SMOOTHNESS and ENDURANCE

never before known at the price

WITH its sound basic design and its background of scientific development on General Motors Proving Ground—with the production advantages provided by this vast facility of General Motors with its score of engineering advancements, including the famous G-M-R cylinder head—

—Pontiac Six offers a combination of smooth six-cylinder performance and high-speed endurance, the equal of which is found in no other car in the world selling for so low a price.

Its smooth, silent performance, combined with the beauty and luxury of its Fisher bodies, provides a measure of owner satisfaction unequalled in Pontiac's field. And its tremendous economy results in unparalleled length of life, which in turn, is expressed in consistently high resale values.

More important reasons for the selection of any car have never been found. That's why ever-increasing thousands are choosing the Pontiac Six . . . why Pontiac sales for 1928 are far ahead of previous records.

TOLLAND NEWS

Herman, Otto and Frieda Wolters have just returned from an extended trip in Canada and points in the United States. The trip was made in a Ford touring car and they covered over five thousand miles. Important points visited were: Turner Oil Fields, Calgary; Sunburst Oil Fields, Montana; the Black Hills and Devil's Tower, Wyoming; Scenic Bad Lands of South Dakota. A stop of two weeks was made at Des Moines, Iowa, where they visited their brother Elmer Kretzmeier and sister Mary Wolters. From Des Moines a short trip was made to Ft. Leads and Columbia, Missouri, where other relatives reside. This was very enjoyable. The return trip was quite direct through Minnesota, North Dakota and Saskatchewan. They report very good roads in Alberta and the best roads in Saskatchewan. The camping facilities were good as nearly every camp has camping grounds.

Dorothy Oldenburg was successful in passing four units and Harold Webber three units in the Grade IX Departmental exams.

McKINNEY — MacPHEE

A very pretty wedding took place at the home of the officiating clergyman, Rev. J. W. Bell on Wednesday August 8th,when Velma Agnes MacPhee became the bride of John Wallace McKinney, of Lloydminster, Alberta. The bride was made a very pretty picture in a gown of peach georgette and lace over white silk, was given in marriage by her brother. She was attended by her sister Miss Edna MacPhee, gowned in periwinkle blue silk crepe Mr Russell McKinney supported his brother as best man. The bride's attendant was given was a navy blue ensemble, with white silk blouse. They left, amid a shower of rice, on their honeymoon. On their return they will reside at Leighton, Alberta.

THE OHIO GOLD DAYS

A pastor at Anderson, Ind., based his sermon with three words "There is lawlessness everywhere. Children no longer obey their parents. It is evident that the end of things is at hand. Then the minister told the congregation that the words were not original with him, but that they had been transmitted from an inscription found among the Ohio Gold Days relics. Many conventions before the time of the patriarch Abraham.

Canada To The Fore

The breaking of records by Canada is becoming a commonplace It is indeed an off year when, in some branch of human activity and endeavor, this young Dominion does not attract world attention to itself by some new and startling achievement

Prior to the war, Canada was hardly known, even as a name, to the vast majority of the people of Europe and those who recognized the name had but slight knowledge of the country To most of the world, Canada was one of the colonies which Britain had scattered here and there over the face of the globe, but which was of little value and of still less importance to world affairs.

In the war Canada made a name for itself, and other nations were suddenly made to realize that there had been in the western hemisphere a nation which already was helping to write history in large and impressive characters and was destined to have a profound effect upon its' commercial relations, political and economic. Canada's war effort, which perhaps as nothing of a less spectacular nature could have done, to turn the attention of the people of the United States northward, and awaken them to the fact that the whole of North America was not to be found within the confines of the republic, that, on the contrary, a second American power was rapidly developing at their very doors

Since the war the reality of this fact has year by year been emphasized. Long the world's greatest exporter of wheat, the United States has seen Canada pass it and secure that title by a wide margin Within the past year or two the United States has been forced to also relinquish to Canada the distinction of being the world's largest manufacturer of paper. Steadily, year by year, Canada has been passing other countries in the production of gold and is now within measurable distance of overtaking the United States and assuming second place to South Africa.

Contributing a volume of only minor importance to the total trade and commerce of the world a few years ago, Canada is now one of the world's greatest traders, a factor to be reckoned with in all the markets of the world Before the war, dependent upon the money markets of Great Britain and the United States to finance its many undertakings, Canada today are able not only to finance their own country, but to an ever increasing extent are financing huge undertakings in other countries, while at the same time rapidly buying back into full Canadian control many large properties which passed into the hands of foreign capitalists during the period of financial insanity which financed and controlled by British and United States capitalists

The war and Canada's significant participation therein, also had the effect of raising the international status of the Dominion, giving it not only a status of equality with Great Britain within the Empire, but the rank of a nation in the council of nations. The refusal of the United States to join the League of Nations undoubtedly had the effect of the more directly focussing attention upon the North American nation which did join, and placing Canada in the forefront in the League membership

And since destiny thus called upon Canada to play its part in the International arena, this Dominion assumed the responsibility with dignity and real effectiveness. Its place around the council board at Geneva has been no minor nor insignificant one Rather, Canada has wielded an influence possibly out of proportion to its present population, but in keeping with the growing importance which other nations now attach to this Dominion

Having thus moved out into the great international arena, Canada this year decided to be worthily represented at the Olympiad, the great meeting place of the athletes of the world. Despite its small and widely scattered population, this young Dominion has in the past proven able to put forward more numerous representatives of other countries in the field of sport and athletic skill and endurance. And again Canada surprised the world. The men and daughters of the Dominion carried the flag of Canada to victory on time and time again, winning many of the premier events. A Canadian school boy Percy Williams, of Vancouver, achieved the double victory of winning the 100 metres and the 200 metres race, regarded as the classic of the great meet. Ethel Catherwood, a Saskatchewan girl, won the high jump and in doing so established a new world's record. A quartette of Toronto girls also broke the world's record in winning the 400 metres relay race, thus endorsing the number of events in which the Canadians participated, no other country in the world approached their record

Canada's Future is assured when it can produce virile and courageous young men and women of the stamp of its representatives in the Olympic games and in the hands of such youth its position as a great agricultural, mining and manufacturing country, as a leader in world finance, as well as an arbiter in international relations, is assured. Canada is coming into that proud position which Nature through her bountiful endowments intended it should occupy, and if the Canadian people continue to regard each new achievement as an incentive to still greater effort and enterprise, another generation will see their Dominion occupying a world position second to none.

Russia and Peace Pact

Foreign Minister Of Soviet Republic Refers To Failure Of U.S. To Invite Russia To Sign

George Tchitcherin foreign minister of the Soviet Republic, issued a lengthy statement to the newspapers Sunday at the necessity of the Soviet being one of the original participants in Secretary of State Kellogg's anti-war treaty

Tchitcherin said the United States' failure to invite the Soviet to sign the pact indicates 'a desire to make the pact an instrument of isolation and struggle against the Soviet'

The statement asserted that the pact was incapable of preventing wars "because it does not provide for obligatory disarmament."

Talking Movies Will Have To Be Pleasing To Audience

The "talking movie is just now being much talked about. Producers think it will greatly increase attendance on the pictures. That may be so. But it won't unless movie actors and actresses learn to speak as well as to "register emotion."

A voice has as much personality as a face, perhaps more. A beautiful face is not allowed to interfere with the face, all goes well; but when the face on the screen is fascinating and the voice uncultivated and feeble, the contrast makes the audience either uncomfortable or amused. Imperial Oil Development

Spending Millions Dollars In Improvements To Regina Plant

When two new storage tanks to be built by the Imperial Oil Company for the plant at Regina are completed, the company will have spent something very close to $1,000,000 in improvements since 1927.

Last year the company spent $750,000 in plant equipment. This year a road oil making plant has just been completed at a cost of $50,000. The two new storage tanks, both of them 150 feet wide, one forty and the other 42 feet high, will cost something like $150,000

Frown On Reckless Flying

Ban Placed On U.S. Army Airmen Doing Daredevil Stunts At Exhibitions.

A ban was placed today on United States army aviators participating in exhibitions of dare devil stunts, such as wing walking and performances of a similar nature.

"This does not, of course, apply to legitimate flying exhibitions at proper altitudes," explained Army Air Secretary Davison, "but merely to exhibitions such as tongue work, wing walking, changing from one plane to another in the air, transferring from one plane to an airplane and stunts of that character."

Dony Responsible

Reject Charge That Catholic Clergy Responsible For Murder Of Obregon

Bishop Miguel De La Mora, in behalf of the accused Catholic clergymen, has issued a statement rejecting the charge that the clergy was responsible for the murder of president-elect Obregon.

He declared the fact that one Catholic priest and one nun were involved in the crime does not warrant that the clergy as a body was responsible.

The statement asserted that it was publicly known that Father Miguel Pro Juarez, Conception Acebedo De La Lais was mentally deranged and that several cases of insanity have been reported in her family. The mother superior was nursed by Jose De Leon Toral, the slayer, as having indirectly influenced him.

A FRIEND OF THE PRESS

F. E. TRAUTMAN
Press Representative, Canadian Pacific Railway

Newspaper editors and proprietors from the Great Lakes to the Pacific Coast, comprise quite a large fraternity, and to know each and every one individually means a fairly large acquaintanceship. Mr. F. E. Trautman, C.P.R. Press Representative, will possibly tell you that he has more than a nodding acquaintance with all the old-timers and most of, the men who have more recently entered the newspaper field in Western Canada. Quite a few years have passed since Mr. Trautman quit the editorial chair of the Port William Times-Journal, to enter the service of the Canadian Pacific Railway in its present capacity. During the intervening time he has cultivated and held the friendship of the newspaper men throughout Western Canada in particular and Eastern Canada as well. Mr. Trautman's outstanding characteristic is his geniality, and the whole-souled interest he has taken in the welfare of the press is proverbial

He has been ever present at annual gatherings of the Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta weekly newspaper associations, and has contributed in his own way, and in a large measure to the success of those conventions.

SEES NO SIGNS OF DECADENCE IN BRITISH EMPIRE

London, Eng.—"I am going back better pleased than ever that I am a British citizen," declared Premier Lt. Howard Ferguson, of Ontario, to the Canadian Press, before his departure for Canada.

Premier Ferguson has been in Britain and Europe studying migration possibilities, educational systems and agriculture since early in June.

"The man is a fool who says the old country is decadent," Premier Ferguson said.

"Like every other country in the war, England lost a generation of the brightest and most promising men who were on the threshold of business or public life. The still younger group who were then below military age are now coming on. The next ten years ought to be the most striking in the whole history of Empire development."

The premier said he found conditions in Scotland and Ireland greatly improved.

Speaking of agriculture in Britain, Premier Ferguson said that an all-round good crop meant ultimate prosperity.

"I can see a distinct advance everywhere in interest in vermers," the premier declared. "The pressure of the unemployment problem will bring of itself a greater consolidation of farming sentiment and imperial forces generally."

Ontario Wheat Pool

Meets With Good Success After One Year's Operation

Chatham, Ont. In one year of operation the Ontario Wheat Producers Pool, a co-operative success, and, according to present indications, greater things will be achieved in the second year. The farmers have been educated to realize the benefits of co-operative marketing, and have responded splendidly to the call to get behind the pool movement in Ontario. These facts were brought out at a meeting here, when the pool's affairs, past and present, were discussed.

The speakers were Colin H. Hamnell, Winnipeg, president of the Manitoba Wheat Pool, and H. A. Gilroy, Alvinston, president of the United Farmers of Ontario, the controlling organization of the Ontario Wheat Producers Marketing Company. David L. McCreary, Walkerburg, Kent County representative on the Ontario Executive, acted as chairman, and at the close of the morning meeting was unanimously re-elected to the executive committee of the pool.

Mr. Gilroy told of the remarkable progress made by the pool movement in Ontario in a year, during which time hundreds of five-year contracts had been signed up. He stressed the observation throughout the grain-growing areas that the growers were becoming convinced of the soundness of co-operative marketing and would join the pool in greater numbers during the next twelve months.

Italian Submarine Disaster

Twenty-Seven Of Crew Perish In the Tragedy

Rome.—Poisoned by acid fumes or drowned in the first rush of water, the crew of the Italian submarine F-14, sunk in a collision in the upper Adriatic, died to a man at their posts apparently with fortitude and resignation.

The stricken submarine was raised to the surface after 24 hours of desperate labor by divers who worked hour after hour to attach an air-pipe to the sunken vessel and to fasten steel cables in order that she might be lifted to the surface.

Twenty-seven perished in the tragedy. First reports received by the naval authorities indicated that there were 31 men aboard, but a check of the bodies today revealed that four of the crew had remained ashore for reasons which have not yet been ascertained. Included in the victims are Captain Weil and Commander Pasnik.

Captain Weil and Commander Pasnik were both at their posts of command in the conning-tower while the remaining members of the crew met their death dead at their stations. There were no visible signs of panic aboard the boat.

Pilgrims At Ypres

Impressive Ceremony Is Held In Which 11,000 British Veterans Participated

Ypres, Belgium.—Eleven thousand British veterans of the Great War, including 3,000 women who served in various capacities during those four terrible years, gathered about Menin Gate on Aug. 8th for a solemn ceremony in remembrance of their comrades who fell in the desperately held Ypres salient.

Among those who stood the Prince of Wales, Lady Haig, the widow of Britain's victorious commander; Admiralty Beatty, president of the British Legion, who headed Britain's naval forces in the great struggle, and others prominent in the various branches of the battle of Ypres.

The pilgrims had come, some marching with the famous old regiments and others by train, their members swelled by thousands who had gathered in the small Belgian capital overnight. It was estimated that nearly 20,000 men, women and children joined in singing the opening hymn, "O Valiant Hearts."

The service, in which the huge congregation participated, was beautifully simple and supremely impressive.

Grave fears are felt for the great citrus orchards, laden with fruit, in the immediate path of the storm.

Meanwhile reports trickling in from the country between the storm front and the Atlantic told of half a dozen towns and villages visited by damage from the storm.

New Telephone Service

All-Canadian Telephone Service Between Winnipeg and East Is Inaugurated

Winnipeg.—Inaugurating the all-Canadian telephone service between Winnipeg, Toronto and Montreal, via Port Arthur and Fort William, officials of the Bell Telephone Company, the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Manitoba Government, recently spoke to one another across 1,805 miles of copper wire.

The new line between Winnipeg and Montreal is approximately 1,805 miles, and is erected on Canadian Pacific telegraph pole line from Manitoba to Sudbury, via Port Arthur and Fort William; from Sudbury it connects to all eastern points by the Bell Telephone Company's lines. The weight of copper of the new line amounts to 350 tons. There are nine repeater stations to amplify the conversations. This is the third stage in the all-Canadian telephone route the first being Winnipeg to Alberta in 1922, the second Winnipeg to the head of the Lakes in 1924.

Those who spoke from coast to coast included Hon. Joan Yarde-Buller, daughter of Lord and Lady Churston.

GREATEST CROP IN HISTORY IS THE PREDICTION

Winnipeg.—Western Canada is on the threshold of its 1928 harvesting season, with present prospects pointing to the production of the greatest crop in the history of the country.

Throughout the prairie provinces most encouraging progress has been made by all grains, and in districts where cutting has started, estimates of yield have in the main been exceeded. Labor has revealed the crops in varying stages with the most advanced harvesting in the southern parts of the provinces and the less forward in the north. Advance threshing, while in the more backward areas another two weeks will elapse before the bulk of the crop will be required to bring the crop to maturity.

The general condition, however, is that of the most favorable year of conditions at this date last year, and binders are expected to be humming over the western grain fields within a few days.

Cutting of barley, rye and oats, has been underway in the southern areas for the past week, with these crops yielding slightly above the ten-year average.

While no official estimates have been made of this year's wheat crop the reasoning of opinion of authorities and farmers throughout the three western provinces during the past week, is that final figures will show a crop of approximately 400,000,000 bushels.

The feature of the growing season to date is its freedom from rust, fungus or other pest infection. Hail has taken a considerable toll, particularly in Saskatchewan, but the loss in no sd acreage seeded this spring is expected to offset this loss.

The first harvesters' excursion to is expected to reach Winnipeg from Eastern Canada this week. The excursion schedule will carry thousands of grain cars to the various centres of movement.

Yet another indication of prepared ness is the arrival of Leslie Boyd chairman of the Board of Grain Commissioners, to make arrangements for the hearings on grain rates for interior elevators. These rates will be fixed by the board on the strength of the evidence submitted, and made public by Sept. 1.

Air Express Inaugurated

The game regulations from the department of agriculture have now been issued, many of the seasons remaining the same as last year. The open season for ducks and geese in this section of the country again starts September 15th, while those with a taste for prairie chicken and partridge will have to curb their appetites as the season for these game birds is still closed. Hungarian partridge may be shot during the months of October and November. The big game season for moose, deer, etc. runs from the first day of November to the 11th of December.

Leslie Geake and Walter Robinson of the Clandonald district returned home last Wednesday after a pleasant three weeks' tour which took them to Calgary, Banff and as far into B. C. as the Yoho Valley.

That the value of the training received at the Schools of Agriculture throughout the province and particularly at Vermilion is known practically world wide, was shown when an application was received for the fall term from Jean Chantreau of Paris, France. Needless to say the application was accepted and Jean's progress here this coming fall and winter will be followed with much interest.

The first report of wheat cutting in this immediate district is from the farm of Geo. Field north west of town who began cutting his wheat on Monday morning Aug 13th and other farmers report their grain about ready for the binders. Next week harvest will be general.

W. E. Mackenzie who recently returned from a three weeks' holiday spent in Ontario, reports a most enjoyable outing and states his and party did not return a minute too soon as they were still busy cutting well and enjoying life. His mother, who is 81 years old, enjoyed a couple of motor trips through the country with him. Harvest weather in the east was bad and a couple of severe storms did considerable damage. The best crops he saw were those at Vermilion on his return. Going by way of Regina and returning over the Grand Trunk to Saskatoon, Mr. Mackenzie was able to size up the crops pretty thoroughly and while Manitoba crops were good they kept improving the farther west you came, reaching the peak at Vermilion. He is enthusiastic over the highways of Ontario, many of which are paved, the earth roadways bound and flat and well surfaced with fine gravel, these latter are kept in shape by maintainers operated in front of rubber tired tractors. Motor cycle police are plentifully sprinkled along all highways and are very strict in the enforcement of traffic regulations

Last Sad Rites To Late Citizen

Funeral of A. Y. Law Held Last Thursday

Probably the most impressive and largely attended funeral in the history of Vermilion was held from the United Church on Thursday afternoon last, when the late Andrew Y. Law, whose tragic death from carbon monoxide poisoning was reported in the Standard last week, was laid to rest in the Vermilion cemetery. "Andy" had long been looked upon as one of our most respected citizens and it seemed only fitting that on large an assembly should turn out not only to honor the memory of the deceased, but also to show their sincere sympathy for the sorrowing wife and family, who were plunged into such sudden and deep mourning. Eighty-five floral offerings were received at the funeral home of J. Weiler during the morning, and these were all tastefully arranged around the beautiful oak casket in which the remains lay. In life, flowers were his special hobby, and in death they were certainly not lacking, and there is no doubt his wife took considerable comfort during the time she spent at the funeral home from the kindly thought that came, as she found by took them in her hands and read the message each one conveyed.

The hundred and twenty-eight cars formed in the funeral procession to the cemetery. Both the local orders of Elks and the Masons attended in a body and took part in the service. Assembling at their lodge rooms they made a procession to the funeral parlors and then accompanied the body to the church, a thoughtful arrangement of the funeral director being that each car was made responsible for a floral offering which they brought with them to the church and placed beside the casket, the family coming into the church only after everyone was placed. The service was taken by the minister Rev. H. A. Boyd, assisted by Rev. M. of Kerr of Camrose (a former pastor), and Rev. A. R. Sage of the Anglican church and Rev. Thos. Bowen of Islay United. A joint choir from the local churches lead in the music. A large number of people who were unable to get a seat in the church during the service came in at the side door to view the body. At the graveside Masons concluded the service their beautiful ritual and order of procedure leaving a lasting impression upon the large concourse of people who were gathered around.

Considerable credit is due to our local funeral director, Mr J. Warner for the efficient and dignified way in which everything was organized and carried out, and his thoughtful endeavor to relieve the suffering of those who were hard-hit with such a severe loss.

The numerous beautiful floral offerings and tributes to the late Mr. Law evidenced in which the deceased was held and were received from the following:

Activtiy On Site Of New School

First Sod Turned Tuesday

With the arrival of representatives of the contractors for the new school building being erected west of the arena rink, excavating for the foundation commenced Tuesday, the work being carried out by C. P. Dolliver. Good headway is being made and as the grade around the site of the building is to be raised some sixteen inches so to ensure good drainage conditions, the putting in of the concrete foundations will not long be delayed. The depth to which earth has to be taken out will average considerably less than three feet

The school faces east and has a frontage of ninety-one feet with large central entrance. It extends back fifty feet and will have a flat finished appearance from all angles. This type of school is to be the first building of its kind erected in the province of Alberta, eliminating as it does the old-time basement with its heavy costs, and giving an eight-room school on the price basis of that of six rooms. Its construction is attracting the attention of the department of education and it is probable this type of building will be used as a standard school design in future

Judge Says Italians Should Be Kept Out

TORONTO, Aug 22 In an address yesterday before the Chief Constables' association of Canada convention, Judge Marcus Kavanaugh, of Chicago, declared that until such time as the Italian government negotiated extradition treaties, Italians should be excluded from Canada and the United States. Italians, the judge said, contributed a considerable quota of crime in proportion to their numbers and because there was no provision for extradition from Italy it was easy for them to escape justice by fleeing to their native land

He paid a striking tribute to the administration of justice in Canada, declaring he knew of no other country where it was on an equal plane

SADDLE LAKE COLONY TO REAP BIG HARVEST

Settled Two Years Ago, Little Community Now Prosperous

Readers are becoming accustomed to the Saddle Lake colony, and the settlers are reaping a harvest far above the expectations of the most optimistic, according to Father Donald McIntyre, who is a visitor in Edmonton for a few days.

A yield of between 20 and 40 bushels to the acre is expected from the wheat crop which the colony will yield on an area of 25 hundred acres. Some of the farms will have an average of better than 30 bushels to the acre.

As well as the wonderful prospects during the last two years the colony as regards crops for next year seeding, as all extra labor is done so as to be on hand to handle the crop.

The settlers are all happy, and the best proof of this is the co-operation shown in the harvesting of the crops. No wages are asked, nothing being undertaken by the different members of the colony, reaping up farm after farm as the crops ripen for cutting. The success of the colony during the past two years is wonderful declared the Rev. McIntyre, and the outlook for the future is very bright.

No hail or rust has been experienced in the colony this year.

WORLD HAPPENINGS BRIEFLY TOLD

Increasing alarm is being expressed over the unemployment situation in Great Britain, with 1,300,000 men out of work.

Nine new brands of whisky, approved by the Ontario Liquor Control Board, have been put on the market by the commission. The varieties are styled "Consumption No. 1," and "Consumption No. 2," and bear the seal of the board's approval on the bottles.

Dr. Paul, chief chemical analyst for the Paris Generale the French Scotland Yard, is reported to have detected toxic matter in the viscera of Captain Alfred Lowenstein, Belgian financier, whose death recently was surrounded with mystery.

Four men held up the First National Bank of Hunton, N.D., and escaped with between $3,500 and $4,500. They made their getaway in a dark blue Buick sedan heading east out of Hunton which is about 65 miles north of Fargo.

Baron von Hunnefeld owner of the trans-Atlantic monoplane, the Bremen, which Captain Hermann Koehl and Chil Ahlenn Fitzmaurice piloted across the Atlantic, will make a present of the disabled plane to the projected municipal museum of New York.

Investigation of the immediate power requirements of the city of Montreal is to be made by a committee of the Saskatchewan Government with a view to working out a plan under which a start can be made in the production and sale of power under control.

Owing to inadequate steamship accommodation it will be impossible to transport to Canada full quota of 10,000 unemployed which were to come in the Western harvest fields, according to J Bruce Walker, director of European immigration for Canada. He states that possibly not more than 6,500 would be taken to Canada from all sources.

Lost Prospector Found

After Walking Aimlessly For 48 Days, Is Rescued By Plane

Lost forty-eight days, during which time he wandered aimlessly through the dense wooded country north of The Pas, Andrew Taylor, local prospector, was found by searchers near Burntwood Lake, and brought by aeroplane to The Pas.

It was a harrowing story that Taylor related to his rescuers. For days he walked through the woods in the belief that he was on his way to settlement, only to find that he was hopelessly lost.

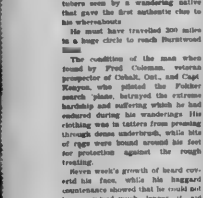
Faced with starvation, he had killed frogs and eaten them, and at times when driven to desperation had relieved his hunger by consuming dead fish found on the surface of the river.

Latterly, he found a few half formed wild raspberries and these stumbled across a potato patch planted by an Indian. It was the uprooting of these that first awakened the hope that gave the first authentic clue to his whereabouts.

He must have travelled 200 miles in a huge circle to reach Burntwood Lake.

The condition of the man when found by Fred Chapman, another prospector of Cobalt, Ont., and Capt Kenyon, who piloted the Fokker search plane, betrayed the extreme hardship and suffering which he had endured during his wanderings. His clothing was in tatters from pressing through dense underbrush, while bits of rags were bound around his feet for protection against the rough treading.

Seven week's growth of beard covered his face, while his haggard countenance showed that he could not have survived much longer if said had not reached him. Slowly he began to walk, he nevertheless showed his joy in having been returned to his wife and friends who had long since given him up for dead.



"Your nose is red Are you cold?" "No, thirsty." Pub Mole Paris.

Farmers' Marketing Tour

We were now in the home of the Clydesdales, and a call by Mr Weir, from Newcastle, in the morning had brought a pressing invitation from James A. & N. Templeton, of Sandy Knowe, near Kelso, to visit them. This took a section of our party to see the great horse "Besefactor" and those of his progeny as well as the Border Leicester flock of Messrs. Templeton, and here we had our first taste of Scottish hospitality. The brothers with their sisters and mothers entertained us royally to a delightful tea and the "two draggie" was not missing. Ours was a great privilege because the afternoon was lovely and from the high ground at Sandy Knowe the eye can roam for twenty to thirty miles in every direction over the beautiful Scottish countryside. Our visit over, we continued our journey to Edinburgh entertaining the night with old familiar songs.

The "main body" had gone on, passing through Dalkeith at dusk, awakening many memories for one of the members of our party, Mr. James Walker, representing the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Toronto, who was born in this pleasant Scottish town. Evening found us in Edinburgh, comfortably established in the North British Hotel, overlooking the famous Princes Street.

From Melrose we had sent a challenge to meet the best curling rink in Scotland, the aspiring rink being that of Provost Edwards, Melrose, but unfortunately a game could not be secured owing to its being Saturday.

Our first engagement was to visit the Clydesdale Stud at Portobello, of Mr Robert Park, owner among other notable stock of "Brunstane Again" and "Brunstane Phyllis," both of which, along with a number of fine colts, were shown for our benefit. To see Mr Park amongst all these animals, he telling the great records, were put through their paces by Mr Parks' twin daughters, girls of seven, whose management of horsemanship delighted us all, as did their modesty. Mr Park is no believer in "baby" Clydesdales, but prefers to breed for scale and power, and was listened with respect to his views as he expounded his breeding principles.

Mr Park took us into his home, "Brunstane House." Here Mrs Park and her daughters entertained us to tea in the room where the Burns committee meeting was said to have been held when the Union of Scotland and England was decided in 1707. The room is eight-sided and contains a 14th century fireplace. But a few years turned to the great hobbies on which were two Cairncor Cups, both won in the same year by sire and daughter—"Brunstane Again" and "Brunstane Phyllis."

A trip to the famous Perth Bridge, reminding us so much of our own Jacques Bridge, completed our first day in Edinburgh.

Leaving for Stirling at 8 a.m. en route for Perth, we were treated to a taste of Highland weather, for snow began to fall by the time we reached Stirling Castle. This forbidding stronghold, perched high on a dominating rock overlooking the plain below, is interesting at any time, but seen through a Scottish mist and falling snow, it was doubly fascinating, notwithstanding that we were robbed of the view of the field of Bannockburn. Taken and retaken, this grey building calls enough today, has withstood many sieges. Within its walls were born James II, IV and V, of Scotland, and here were crowned James V., Mary and James VI., of Scotland afterwards First of England.

We walked the courts and trod the battlements. We examined with some wonder the window of the Douglas Room where the rebellious Earl was beheaded to death by James II., in 1452. We left with the influence of these fiercely stirring times still upon us, to view in front of the castle the noble statue of Robert the Bruce, which, his wife thrilling with pride, a small boy with his sister told us of Scotland's glorious days, excelling in this the guide to the Castle itself.

Next we came to the wonderful Wallace Monument, a great granite tower, four square 220 feet in height and rising 220 feet above the level of the Forth. In a niche on the west front stands a bronze statue of Wallace, measuring 13 feet from heel to helmet, to the top of the second 21 feet, and raised 50 feet above the doorway a noble figure, erect on high, summoning his followers. Those of us who climbed the inside spiral stairway of 246 steps were amply recompensed. The interchambers are noted among other things for a wonderful echo and in one of them the Hall of Heroes, like the double-arched cloister of Wallace, three inches long in the inside which narrows from 3 ft. inches to 1 inch. The leather mounted belt is 12 inches long and has a two inch pommel. For an exquisite Wallace's sword lay in Dumbarton Castle, long transferred to the Monument by Hugh R. Wallace of Glenearn Castle, his family descendant.

Since still falling, we arrived in Perth the pretty ancient city by the Tay. Perth is not a big city but in charm is instant. Moreover its fame as a tourist's centre is world wide. For many years it has been the most important centre in Britain for the selling by public auction of pedigree Shorthorn and Aberdeen-Angus cattle and our arrival coincided with the biggest sale of the year.

Following lunch and a warm welcome by Lord Ellismer Dempster, we were soon watching with critical eyes the judging and street parade of cattle, being with admiration the high average of quality prior to taking

RULING INDIAN PRINCES

(Conferences are now in progress between representatives of the ruling Indian princes and of the secretary of state for India. At present only about half of India is under direct British rule, while the rest is made up of a hundred so-called independent states. It is said that the rulers of the native free states seek to create a federation which would recognize some central authority as a first step to a larger union, which, it is hoped, would embrace British India as one of its units. The four spokesmen for the outlying princes are: (1) the Maharajah of Kashmir, who won considerable notoriety as Mr. A. in the Robinson blackmail case; (2) the Maharajah of Patiala; (3) H. H. the Jagrai Singh, and (4) the Maharajah of Hajipa.a. They are conferring with a committee of Englishmen, headed by Sir Harcourt Butler.

NEW YORK BANKER HEADS EXPEDITION

Camping Unexplored Hunting Region In Canadian Rocky Mountains

A trip which has been promoted by a native of generosity of one big game hunter to his fellow sportsmen, is now being undertaken in the Rocky Mountains of Canada by Prentiss N. Gray, president of the J. Henry Schroder Banking Corporation, New York City. The trip, which will take him through what is unmapped and almost unknown country in the Peace River district, and in McBride, B.C., will occupy more than a month and Mr. Gray is now engaged in completing his outfit and preparations for the start. Edmonton is the starting point for Grande Prairie, Alberta, to start his expedition.

The main object of the expedition is being borne by Mr. Gray, who is taking with him a surveyor and two assistants, a hunting guide and cook and pack horses and a complete motion picture outfit for the purpose of filming wild life and scenery. This purpose, explained by Mr. Gray, in a letter to E. J. Hungerford, vice-president of the Canadian National Railways, is to secure an accurate map of this territory, which he believes to be unexplored and unmapped, and also to make accessible to sportsmen a new hunting area which can be reached within a reasonable time. The idea occurred to Mr. Gray last Fall, during a hunting trip which he made into the northern section of this area on part of which he secured some fine specimens of moose, mountain goat, mountain sheep, and grizzly bear.

In his letter to Mr. Hungerford, Mr. Gray said:

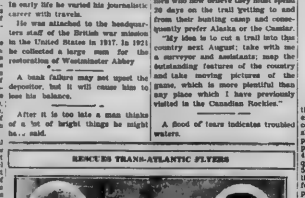
"We found a new country that is new to the sportsman, and I believe now also to the trapper and Indian. So far I can find no maps that even attempt to show the streams of the area as anything more than dotted lines, and most of these are incorrect.

"We reached your railroad in 4½ days from the centre of this new area, although it took us 17 days to get in. This will appeal to a lot of those who come before the snow and spend 20 days on the trail trying to and from their hunting camp and consequently spend a very short time hunting.

"My idea is to cut a trail into the country next August; take with me two packers and assistants; map the outstanding features of the country and take moving pictures of the game, which is very plentiful than any place which I have previously visited in the Canadian Rockies."

A flood of tears indicates troubled waters.

RESCUE TRANS-ATLANTIC FLYERS



Buffeted about by waves in their fragile seaplane in mid-Atlantic, Capt. Frank P. Courtney, R. D. Hoomer of Montreal, son of a former Dominion wide Binaister, his flagship Bellanca, Pred Princeton, mechanic, and H. W. Gilmour of Glasgow, wireless operator were succored by the Atlantic Transport liner Minnewaska a few days ago. Capt. Courtney and the other three were attempting a flight from the Azores to Newfoundland, when their machine fell in flames into the sea. By the aid of their small radio set the Minnewaska found them after she had her course to go to their aid. The Minnewaska reached New York on August 6 with the rescued fliers. Devotional Reading: Isaiah 53.6-12.

Explanations and Comments

The Second Christian Church in Philippi, verses 16-18.—Paul was greatly disturbed at finding a fortune-telling maid who had followed him and Silas and crying, "These men are servants of the Most High God, who proclaim unto you the way of salvation." Professor Ramsay thinks that the slave girl's mind had become distorted and diseased by her belief in her supernatural possession, but was all the more acute in her perceptions and intuitions, and that she had become alive to the moral influence which the intense faith of the strangers gave them.

The girl followed Paul and Silas for many days, and her reiterated cry became a source of painful uneasiness. Paul was "sore troub ed," and at length he turned to her, and in the name of Jesus Christ bade the spirit leave her, and she became wholly normal. Nothing further is told about this girl whose name arouses our sympathy. One writer expresses his belief that "She would partake of the blessings of the Christian and be another Christian woman at Philippi, who would look to her as the honored servant of the men who had domained her ever her, but a sister beloved in the Lord."

HOW TO MAKE COTTAGE CHEESE

Use freshly congulated or clabbered milk. Skim off cream. Set pan of milk where the heat is moderate and slowly until curd separates from whey. Be careful not to let milk become too warm or curd will be tough. Place in a strainer a piece of cheesecloth rinsed in hot water. Strain heated curd and pour until curd is drained.

Crush curd in a bowl with a fork. Mixing with a wooden potato masher will break up large lumps and make a finer texture. Season to taste with sweet or sour cream, butter, salt and pepper. Finely chopped onion, parsley, water cress or other pungent garnesto or green pepper may be added.

RASPBERRY JUNKET WITH FRESH BERRIES

2 cupfuls raspberry junket powder.
1 pint milk.
Raspberries.
Powdered sugar.

Make junket according to the directions on the package. Then pour into dishes. When ready to serve, dust berries with powdered sugar and fill up the glasses. Whipped cream may be added if desired.

Fruit and berries like oranges, pineapple and strawberries should not be put right into milk when making junket, as the fruit causes it to whey. These fruits should be crushed, sweetened and put on top as the dessert is served. Blackberries or raspberries may be put into the dessert, also crushed preserved berries, peaches or other fruits

"Here are Helen's letters," at length said Warner, "they belong to you now. They will tell you everything. If we had only known we could take them back, after you have read them I think if I had had a wife like Helen I would not have allowed her to go—I don't think I would. However I am not saying that to hurt you—no one knows what is in the heart of another. I am glad I met you, Jack. And your wife is well and so is little Lili.

"And so you see you must get through. I may, but you must, and if you do you will tell Helmi. Come on—the sooner we hunt as good now as it ever will be"

Jack took his hand and pressed it. "Arthur," he said, "you have been good to me—you have been a better friend to Helmi than I have"

The bridge was a fine iron one, with heavily studded pillars. Every second light was burning. The road leading to it was not much travelled, and as they walked up the long approach their feet made a strange echoing sound. They left their bicycles overcrossed open, showing the gray German smocks Jack knew what he was to say in German if necessary, but their hope was that no one was on the bridge. Every step brought them nearer, and the lights ahead of them and the Holland side twinkled like the lights at home

Jack's heart was in a strange turmoil over what he had heard

On, on—they were half-way over now . . . steps echoing, echoing . . . no sound but the gentle murmurings from the other side, gentle sounds . . . dogs barking . . . cow-bells . . . they must hurry . . . on . . . on . . . ten feet from the end now!

Suddenly from behind the last pillar stepped out a German guard, who thrust a flashlight in their faces, blinding them with its sudden gleam At the end of his rifle a bayonet gleamed in the light

"Halt!" he cried

"Why do you halt us? We are honest men," said Arthur quietly.

"Give me your passports, then," said the guard, flashing the light on his flashlight, but not lowering his rifle

Pretending to search his pockets Arthur moved a little, then like a tiger he sprang on the guard, grasping him around the neck

"I'll hold him Jack!" he shouted. "Beat it! you're safe! Beat it!"

Jack found refuge in the trees on the other bank There was a queer singing in his head, something drowning like a swarm of bees Then came a sudden pain in his shoulder like a knife thrust, and looking down, he saw the blood running off his fingers.

But he must see what happened He crawled to the edge of the trees and looked back Three guards were standing together, talking excitedly. He could see nothing of Arthur, but the smoke of rifles still hung around the pillars of the bridge. He crossed back into the trees and lay on the damp leaves, sobbing like a child. He was free, he was safe; but the loss of his friend was heavy on his heart.

CHAPTER XXXI

It was a hot night in London in the early spring. The lights shone ghostly blue through their painted shades, and the streets were filled with laughter; and although grief, fear, and a sense of loss walked with every soul in London, the sound of their ominous footfalls were drowned by laughter and singing, true to the brave spirit of British people.

At Victoria Station the V.A.D.'s were assembled with their waiting motor-cars, to take home with one those coming in. There were the usual noises of a great station—hooting of motors, shouting of boys, whistling of railway officials—all the sounds multiplied by the vaulted station roof. There was the usual waiting crowd, a cosmopolitan crowd, though the dominant note was the khaki of the thickset, ruddy-faced Englishmen, the slim Canadian, independent and alert, actually looking for some one, and not content with a general welcome there the blue-uniformed French officer, darting through the crowd like a homing pigeon.

They are removing men on stretchers now, and the V.A.D.'s are busy. Very skilfully they manage too roll the stretchers and on to trolleys to carry them to the waiting ambulances pallid faces, all of them, some bandaged, but most of them looking bravely, too, and glad to be home.

There is one V.A.D. looking very white, for she sees a young man who is passing "Jack—it's Eva —don't you know me?"

Jack threw her arms around him. "It's my only brother—my only brother," she says to her companions. "Oh, poor dear, I'll take you to the hospital case, or can you come with me? I have a flat. I can put you up. All right, wait for me here and get your first bench I'll be through in half an hour."

Jack sat on the bench inside watching the crowds endlessly milling around him. He was put into the charge of Eva's maid, and when he saw her he was safe in Winnipeg. He wondered what had brought her to London Eva, the luxury-loving, indolent Eva. It was strange to see her in plain uniform, carrying stretchers But there was a high look on her face that transformed her She looked more like the Eva he had known long ago

Eva came for him at last and led him to the rear of the great station, where noiseless cars were parked, and put him into one which seemed very small and low

"We pay a license according to wheel base, you know," she laughed "and anyway, a car is a car, no matter how small it is. Oh, Jack, it's good to see you, and I have a bed ready for you. I've kept lots of the boys. I've been here six months."

Eva brought him to her flat in Maida Vale, and switched on a light. It revealed a luxurious living-room, all in black and silver

"Do you like it, Jack" she asked with evident pride. "I work in misery and horrors so I have to have beauty at night.

A large black velvet divan, with round black cushions occupied one side of the room, the rug was black with a faint silver border the fire

A slim maid appeared with coffee and sandwiches.

"We'll have a real meal later, Jack," said his sister. "And now tell me where you have been."

"First," said Jack, "tell me how you happened to come over?"

Eva laughed, "You will wonder, I know, but I couldn't stand it after the old crowd broke up—and I guess I missed Humphrey, too, though I won't admit it, because we had a row just before he left, and he said things to me I shall never forget. But anyway, everything was all right after writing bandages, and I couldn't get into it. So I rented the house and I can put you up, Jack, as long as you like. I only like the work I am doing, and I love the boys—they are so brave. I have been home with me sometimes and write their letters and listen to their stories. I have one little extra bedroom, and you can have it as long as happy in my life. Now tell me your story."

Jack told her of his capture, imprisonment, escape, his friend Arthur Warner and his sacrifice.

Eva's eyes were full with tears as she listened. "Oh, Jack, wasn't he brave? But why did he do it—why should he risk his life?"

"It was not for me—it was his love for my wife!"

"Why, Jack, I didn't know you were married. Now begin at the beginning. Wait, do you want to go to bed? You look tired out. Perhaps it wouldn't let you tire yourself. You see I am a pretty good nurse now, and I have learned to be thoughtful of others. I am glad I met you, Jack. And your wife is well and so is little Lili.

"And so you see you must get through. I may, but you must, and if you do you will tell Helmi. Come on—the sooner we hunt as good now as it ever will be"

Sunday School Picnic

The annual Anglican Sunday school picnic will be held on Wednesday, instead on the 29th of the month. Next Wednesday, young folks! All the children of the Mission Sunday school and their families who are too young or too old for the S. S. are invited, and don't forget, kids, to tell your mothers and fathers that they have a special invitation to be present as well.

Now let's see how we are going and whom we are going to go.

Well, by the kindness of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Firth, we are going out to their farm. And we shall have races and sports and all kinds of fun over there, as it is just a beautiful place to go. How are we going? It is quite a distance for some of us and it'll take too long to hike out, so we are all going to meet at the Rectory sharp at 2 P.M. and the cars will be there to take you. Be on time because the cars will leave here between a quarter and half past two, and we will be out at Mrs. Firth's about a quarter to three.

Please, will all drivers of cars meet at the Rectory sharp at 2 p.m.?

We are going to have a good time and there will be prizes for the races. Oh, yes, there'll be a sack race and tug of war, and what not. Now don't forget folks. — The Rectory. 2 p.m., Wednesday next, S. S. Picnic. Races, Prizes for Cream and EATS!

C'mon, skinny, let's go!" - huh?

28 Schools In Sch. Fair

The Vermilion Schools Fair, with about 28 schools participating, will be held on the 12th of September. Owing to the large number of entries in the various classes it is necessary that all exhibits with the exception of live stock and flowers be in on the day preceding previous to the fair, Tuesday, Sept. 11th. Probably the best way to arrange this would be to have all the exhibits brought to the school on the previous day and then have the public invited resident of the district take them to the fair grounds. This will greatly facilitate matters for the committees in charge of the arrangements and will allow judging to get away in good time.

COMMUNICATION

(This paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

To the Editor.
Vermilion Standard.

Dear Sir,-

It was recently brought to my attention that a man, travelling the rural districts north and south of the Edmonton-Lloydminster C. N. R. line had called at several homes and tried to sell literature which is not entirely in accord with the methods Protestant faith. The book mentioned in my procedure especially was entitled "The Harp of God" or as it is often known "Creatures' Proof that Millions now living will never die"

I would like through your columns to correct an erroneous idea that this publication or any other publication dealing with "The Second Advent," "Creation," "Hell or Hades," stays left by the Anglican Mission Van of the Diocese of Edmonton. The idea has originated from the fact that two vans have recently been working out of the town of Vermilion. Both these vans are painted grey. One is under the supervision of two Anglican ladies who are canvassing homes north and south of the towns on the line, soliciting the names of Anglican children who cannot attend a Sunday School, in order that the headquarters of the Diocesan Sunday School by Post may send them their monthly lessons and papers through the mail.

The other van is under the supervision of two or three members of the International Bible Students Association (I.B.S.A.) or known to many as followers of the late Pastor Russell (Rose-Hites) The Anglican van, a small wood point van are only distributing Bibles, Testaments, prayer cards, membership cards, Bible stories for children, and Sunday school papers, and all that free of charge.

The I. B. S. A. van is selling literature which espouses the teachings and faith of Christian doctrine according to the interpretation put upon them by the International Bible Students authorities.

At present the Anglican Mission Van is working in the district surrounding the Kitscoty Anglican field, having left the field for Islay and Kitscoty a few weeks ago. At present the I. B. S. A. van is working out of Vermilion.

I hope, Mr. Editor, that if you can find space to publish this explanation, that this letter will advise those whose homes are visited by either of these vans to find out carefully which van is at their door and to act accordingly.

Thanking you, sir, I remain.
Yours sincerely,
REV. A. ROSS SAGE.

Wheat Pool Issues Statement

The Alberta Wheat Pool has issued the following statement with reference to rumors concerning the Organization which have been circulating in many newspapers for the past few weeks:

"Statements emanating from various sources to the effect that the Wheat Pool has an enormous carryover from the 1927 crop, and is in a "blue funk" because of the large volume of new crop to be delivered within the next few months, are ridiculously inaccurate. Neither is the Wheat Pool thinking of running to cover under the protecting wing of any Government.

"The estimates of the Wheat Pool carry-over have been placed in certain newspapers as that of anything up to 70,000,000 bushels. As a matter of fact the Wheat Pool carry-over this year will not be any larger than that of last year and possibly less.

"It is true that the Canadian wheat crop will be large this year, but such ridiculous estimates as that of 700,000,000 bushels which was recently wired from Winnipeg to Chicago are entirely unrelated for and do a great deal of damage. As a matter of fact the crop may not exceed that of last year and outrageous estimates only tend to lower prices.

"The Pool handled last year's crop in spite of the damaged condition of a large percentage of it, in a capable and efficient manner. There are no grounds for the belief that it will not handle the forthcoming crop in an even more efficient way. Pool members can rest assured that their organization is functioning smoothly and that they will get the very best average price obtainable for their wheat. There is no reason for members becoming panicky.

The Wheat Pool is entering their second contract period in very considerable strength. Undoubtedly their membership will be increased very rapidly during the next few months. Five years of growth has been given the Pool directors and officials invaluable experience and it is only reasonable to expect that each succeeding year more efficiency will be attained."

A layer of newspaper between the bed springs and mattress will assure warmth without an uncomfortably heavy covering of blankets during the cold weather.

Active Road Building Program

Work is Being Pushed Forward to Completion Before Season Closes

From Lower Shiny lake in the north to Medicine Hat in the south, from Vermilion to Jasper and Kananaskis in the west, Alberta's road-building programme for 1928 is being pushed forward to completion before the season closes, states Hon. G. L. McPherson, minister of public works, in a statement just issued.

On the Peace River highway, clearing and grading contracts show substantial progress. Bridge crews are active between Smith and Sawridge, and double shift is being worked on the Grad line and other mechanical equipment.

On the Edmonton-Lloydminster highway, 78 miles of standard earth construction is being forward between Fort Saskatchewan and south of Chipman, between Minburn and Vegreville, and from Innisfree to Vermilion.

Cooking Lake Road

First concrete gravel placement is proceeding on the Edmonton-South Cooking Lake road, the work being 60 per cent completed. The total cost will be $78,000. And $62,000 is being spent on the Camrose-Wetaskiwin section of 22 miles; construction, which has been slow, is now speeding up, and the contractor's force is being increased in number to this end.

Fair progress is reported on the graveling of seven miles of the Drumheller-Munson grade.

On the Calgary-Edmonton main highway additional reserves of gravel are being held on 90 miles of road, of which 75 miles are at present under contract, and asphaltic oil surface treatment has commenced on the Calgary-Airdrie section.

Lethbridge-Macleod

Standard slick grade on the Lethbridge-Macleod highway, to cost $50,000, is rapidly approaching completion and good progress is being made on the Macleod-Pincher section of 29 miles, where, including several revisions to reduce grades and eliminate railway crossings, some $41,000 is being spent.

The graveling work on the 39-mile section between Macleod and Cardston at $8 per cent completed, and work is well ahead on the 16 miles of road on the Lethbridge-Sterling highway

Jasper Highway

On the Jasper highway, a substantial grading force is at present at work at the westerly limit of the highway, and are approaching the east boundary of the park. Bridge crews are also at work on steel and timber work, of about $30,000 is being spent on this section.

Resurfacing and improving of the Calgary-Banff highway, the graveling appropriation on which is for $40,000 is well within the time limit despite traffic interference.

TENDERS FOR SCHOOL HOUSE

Sealed Tenders will be received by the Board of Trustees of Derwent School District No. 4267 at the office of the Secretary-Treasurer up to noon August 29th, 1928 for the erection of a 2-roomed frame school building at Lot Plan Number 26. Plans and specifications may be obtained from Secretary-Treasurer or from the Department of Education, Edmonton, Alta., on payment of a deposit of $5.00. Plans must be returned within 24 hours, and deposit will then be refunded. An Important Experiment

Bringing ten thousand of the vast army of unemployed British miners to assist in harvesting Western Canada's 1928 grain crops is an experiment on a large scale that will be watched with great interest and sympathy, not only in Canada and Britain, but throughout the Empire. That it is advantageously instructed by many difficulties and set-backs is practically recognized but in view of Canada's present need for harvest hands and Britain's serious and apparently unsolvable problem of unemployment, it is to be well worth while.

Unquestionably there has arisen a feeling in the Old Land that Canada, with its vacant prairie lands and great areas of virgin timber and enormous undeveloped natural resources ought to come to the relief of Britain in the present crisis. It is perhaps through the acceptance of large numbers of the unemployed, and that in doing so this Dominion would not only render a real service to the Motherland and the Empire but would ultimately be well repaid through the infusion of so much British blood into the cosmopolitan citizenship of this country.

In Canada steel there are even more or less prominent in the life of the country who are critical of the immigration now coming into the Dominion and who, broadly speaking, demand that settlers from the British Isles be given a preference over all others, even to the extent of excluding those of other than British birth.

Opposed to these groups is a large body of Canadian opinion which holds that immigration is not the only remedy for Britain's unemployment problem. Many of the British unemployed who lack the fitness and qualifications which would enable them to make successful citizens in this newer land are to be found in the ranks of the unemployed. As the Minister of Labor recently pointed out, it would be no kindness to bring unemployed men from Britain unless there be employment for them here, and that a good service would be rendered the Empire by investing the funds of unemployed in Britain and creating an extra employment market in Canada.

It is recognized, too that in Canada employment is subject to seasonal changes, and that even under the most favorable and prosperous conditions a number of unemployed must inevitably be found during the winter months. Winter employment is at best often in the cities and larger towns during the winter and unless winter employment on the farms can be secured for them, the British immigrants might find themselves through no fault of their own, on the fault of anybody else Between April and November, the situation is entirely different with farm work railway construction, building operations and municipal improvements at their height. But of all hands under very December to March is the critical period.

Under the arrangement whereby these ten thousand unemployed British miners are coming to work in the harvest fields, it is provided that the Canadian authorities will do everything in their power to secure winter farm employment for them, but that all those who cannot be so placed, or prefer to return to Britain, must be returned.

For the sake of these men first and foremost, and for the sake of Canada and Britain secondly, it is to be hoped that by far the greater number will be placed in all-the-year round employment. Canada wants these Britishers, and they should be accorded a hearty welcome and every possible chance to make good. In any mass movement of population there must be a percentage of failures and discouragements and hopeless incompetents but the experiment being made should not be judged by these exceptions, but by the measure of success attending the movement as a whole

Harvest time in the West is a time of stress. It is a strenuous period, when everybody is obliged to work long hours. It is a time when the farmer, anxious to secure in short order the results of a year's labor, is apt to be impatient and exacting and to those miners unused to long hours and engaged in unfamiliar work, the farmer may appear to be a hard taskmaster. There must be a recognition of these differences and difficulties on both sides. The harvest hand should strive to realize to the full his own inexperience and shortcomings in his new environment and exert himself in the interest of satisfaction and make good. The farmer employer, on the other hand, should exercise a maximum of patience and endeavor to teach these men and bring out the best in them in the hope and expectation of encouraging them to do their best and industry in them a real liking for Canada and a determination to remain and make a success of life in this country.

To these British miners if as a harvest hand, they have a man seeking to do their best and industry in them a real liking for Canada and a determination to remain and make a success of life in this country.

To these British miners if as a harvest hand, they have a man seeking to do their best and industry in them a real liking for Canada and a determination to remain and make a success of life in this country.

Farmers too, should co-operate in the fullest extent possible with the Dominion and Provincial Governments in finding winter employment for his best and make good arrangements should, if possible be made to retain best and make good arrangements should if possible be made to retain him throughout the winter and until work becomes plentiful in the spring of the new year.

Judicially handled and with everybody striving to do his best, this experiment with British miners may well prove to be a turning point in the history of immigration in Canada. The British Government is prepared to loan an additional 21,000 miners and their families for agricultural life in the Dominions. If the emigrating miners make a success of their undertaking, and if the Canadian people unitedly help them to do so—this country will undoubtedly receive the bulk of these other 21,000 good British trained men and women. Canada wants them and our people should do everything in reason to encourage them to come here.

The present movement presents a golden opportunity therefore, to those who have been outspoken in their criticism of past immigration efforts from Britain. It is now up to them to throw themselves with equal vigor into the task of finding permanent work for the thousands who are now or shortly will be in our midst.

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Trouble That Usually Attacks Young Children

St. Vitus Dance is the name generally given to a disease characterized by medical men as chorea. This trouble usually attacks young children, though older people may be afflicted with it. The most common symptoms are a twitching of the face, arms and legs. As the disease progresses the twitching takes the form of spasms, in which the jerking runs from one member to the face or all the limbs may be affected. Frequently the patient is unable to hold anything in the hands or walk steadily. In severe cases the speech is often affected. The disease is due to debility of the nerves and relief comes through an enriched blood supply. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been most successful in reaching this trouble through their specific action on the blood, which it enriches and purifies. The following instance proves the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in this trouble. Mrs. Thomas Bath, Ont., says:—"Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been in use in my family for years and always with good results. I believe they saved the life of my only son. At the age of age he grew very nervous and the trouble developed into St. Vitus Dance His legs and arms would jerk and twitch, finally his speech was affected, and his condition was pitiful. At this time there came to me a little book telling of Dr. Williams Pink Pills and I decided to give them to him. The first box seemed to help him and I used there was an improvement in his condition, and by the time the fifth box was more were taken all traces of the trouble had disappeared, and he was well and strong I have also given Pink Pills to my grown girls, and I know of no better strengthening medicine. I am sure that the same applies to grown-ups as well."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

MR. DIDN'T THINK DYSENTERY COULD BE MILDEST

Mr. John McKay, Tamsy, Alta., writes:—"I am a returned soldier, and while I came home from overseas I suffered greatly from dysentery. The doctor said it was chronic and did not think it could be relieved. However, he doctored me for quite a while, but did me no good. One day the druggist asked me if I had ever tried

"On his recommendation I bought a bottle and after I had taken it got some relief, so I got two more, which have never had the dysentery since 1925."

Laying Heavy Steel Rails

C.P.R. Replacing Rails With Heavier Steel On Maple Creek and Brooks Subdivisions

Good progress is being made with the relaying of steel on the Canadian Pacific lines in the Calgary division during the past few months. One hundred and thirty-five miles of new rail has been laid on the Maple Creek subdivision, that is between Medicine Hat and Swift Current, while the relaying is now going on in the Brooks subdivision, between Calgary and Medicine Hat.

The relaying consisted of the replacement of 60 and 66 pound steel by rails weighing 100 pounds per foot The heavier rail is necessary in view of the increased speed of the trains and their greater weight.

As mentioned above, 125 miles of heavy rail have been laid on the Maple Creek subdivision. On the Brooks subdivision the mileage of heavy steel will be about 138. It is estimated that the cost of relaying the track is approximately $1,000 000 per hundred miles, thus the work on the Calgary division this year will cost the Canadian Pacific Railway a total of about $2,000,000.

Water Power Installation

Two Million Horsepower To Be Added Within Next Few Years

Two million horsepower will, it is estimated by the department of the interior, be added to the known power installation in the Dominion within the next few years. This new work will require a direct investment of at least $200,000 000

The annual statement of the Hon. Charles Stewart, minister of the interior, with regard to the progress of water power development issued at the beginning of the year predicted an addition of 278,000 horsepower to the total installation in the Dominion during the first six or seven months of 1928. A mid-season review of conditions now indicates that during the whole year the month of 850,000 H.P. will be added, either in new development or in addition to existing installations

Farm Credits

Steps To Be Taken To Put Into Operation Recent Legislation

With the return to Ottawa of Hon. J. A. Robb, minister of finance, definite steps will probably be taken to put into operations the legislation of 1927 authorizing farm credits.

The first step, it is stated, will likely be the appointment of a central board to be known as the Canadian Farm Loan Board. Under the statute, this board will be composed of four members, one of which will be the Minister of Finance

Six provinces have passed the necessary legislation electing to come under the scheme. These are: Quebec, Alberta, Manitoba, British Columbia, New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Ontario, Saskatchewan, and Prince Edward Island had not as yet taken final steps in this direction

VERMILION, ALBERTA
ESTABLISHED 1909
Published every Thursday Afternoon at the Office, Main St.
G. E. P. COLPITTS, Editor.

Vermilion, Alta., August 23, 1928

Frost around the twenty-first and twenty-second of August each season has been pretty regular and has usually proved damaging to late maturing crops. In comparison frost of the end of the month was insignificant. This year has found the bulk of the crop, especially wheat, practically immune from frost damage at this date owing to most favorable ripening weather which has hardened up the kernel. When wheat has reached a fairly ripe stage it is not affected by several degrees of frost, the dryness and toughness of the outer husks being sufficiently resistive to protect the grain. The danger period for this crop is now passed. There was a light frost on Tuesday night and another last night but neither registered a sufficient number of degrees to warrant any uneasiness as to is damaging grain. True, frosts are servatic, but from information obtained from several points, The Standard is lead to conclude that little if any damage was done

Montreal Swindlers Take $135,000 From Pittsburgh Man

MONTREAL, Que., Aug. 22. — By using the old time confidence game of "lapping a new sucker," two men swindled J. D. Hazelbecker, Pittsburgh contractor, of $135,000 he told police today.

The swindle occurred after Hazelbecker returned from a visit abroad. One of the two confidence men had been a passenger aboard the liner on which Hazelbecker returned home.

Hazelbecker told police, reminded by the man had the appearance of a young American business man. They came to Montreal to the Mount Royal Hotel together where Hazelbecker was introduced to a second man who claimed to have considerable information concerning horse racing.

Shortly afterward, Hazelbecker said, he was induced to place $1,500 on a horse. The bet was made orally, and the Pittsburgher was advised his horse won and that he is due to get $3,000.

He placed this money again orally and the new again reported the horse had won, giving him a total of $6,000. Hazelbecker had won $135,000. The Pennsylvanian decided to draw down his winnings but the two men told a farring story of how a horse would run within a few days at long odds and that for a $135,000 bet he could draw down $450,000.

Hazelbecker finally agreed and was advised that for a bet of such proportions he had to place $135,000 in cash as security. He went to Pittsburgh, he claimed, obtained the money and returned to Montreal

He claimed to have placed the money with the two men on August 17th while all three were in a hotel room. The men went out to find out how the races had come out — and Hazelbecker reported they had not returned since.

Women's Institute Convention, Minburn

The Vegreville, Vermilion and Alexandra constituencies of the Alberta Women's Institutes met in conference at Minburn on Friday, August 17th, with Mrs. A. H. Rogers, of Fort Saskatchewan, director of district No. 2, present.

Mrs. W. A. Brown of Kitscoty, constituency convener, presided, Mrs. C. H. Rich acting as secretary. Owing to the heavy rain storms and bad state of the roads, the attendance was not as good as it would otherwise have been.

Mrs. A. G. Fiske of Minburn gave a hearty welcome to the visitors, particularly to those from Vegreville constituency, comprising Vegreville, Lindbergh, Maloy and Flat Lake Institutes, who have just joined forces with Alexandria and Vermilion.

Secretary's reports were read from all institutes and one girls' club.

Kitscoty report, given by Mrs. J. Stroud, showed a good year for the year. The institute had revised the women's section of the prize list for the Kitscoty annual agricultural society and assisted in fair day; served lunches for the U. F.A. rally day; donated $25 for prizes for school work; exhibited at the fall, and also donated two emergency kits to the village schools.

Vermilion report, sent in by Mrs. J. C. Ginet proved this branch to be very enenetic. Vermilion held a successful baby clinic, 61 babies being examined. Their 'Grandmothers' Day' held in May, was greatly enjoyed and cut tulips and a flowering daffodil in a pot was presented to each grandmother. The visiting committee paid 60 visits to patients in the municipal hospital, and the institute is responsible for the upkeep of the W. I. ward.

A very full report from Vegreville was read by Mrs. Reid. Much relief work has been done by this branch, and Christmas hampers packed and delivered. A complete Encyclopaedia Britannica was given to the high school. The school musical festival was successfully organized, and 200 visiting children were served with lunch free.

Minburn report was given by Mrs. Elgie. This branch has been busy making quilts and assisting families in need. It has greatly improved the cemetery with flowers and trees. The institute owns its own rink room, a delightful place with lawn and flower gardens surrounding it. The chief work of this branch lies along the lines of child welfare and public health, and this year it hopes to have a complete medical inspection of all school children.

Marwayne report, given by Mrs. Marfleet, was bright and breezy. She told of successful booth on sports day bringing in $61, and a cake raffled at a sale of work contributed $22.

Report of the K. W. I. Girls' club, given by Miss Bee Cassidman, showed that these girls are putting the general booklet from their club. Activities take the form of entertainments, sewing, singing and physical training. The Lindbergh institute, taught by Miss E. Place, has been a delight to all.

Throughout the reminiscences the work of the standing committees has been well carried out.

The report on "Education and Better Schools" given by Mrs. J. H. Roland of Minburn showed that keen interest is taken in the subject of rural high schools, and in her address Mrs. Roland told of the splendid results obtained by the Dalton system of vocational training.

Mrs. Redwick of Minburn, reporting on "Child Welfare and Public Health" spoke of the good work done by the travelling clinics, inspection of school children by Miss Reid. Much relief work has been done by this branch, and Christmas hampers packed and delivered. A complete Encyclopaedia Britannica was given to the high school. The school musical festival was successfully organized, and 200 visiting children were served with lunch free.

Minburn report was given by Mrs. Elgie. This branch has been busy making quilts and assisting families in need. It has greatly improved the cemetery with flowers and trees. The institute owns its own rink room, a delightful place with lawn and flower gardens surrounding it. The chief

Beginnings Of Life

Scientists Forced To Admit That They Know Little About It

Existence of life and strange or unusual happenings in it, are more a matter of chance or luck, discounting somewhat the former scientific theory that phenomena resulted from cause and effect, Dr. D. W. Swann, of Philadelphia, declared. He said that while science has been able to see the workings of life, it is at a loss to define clearly its beginning.

The statement of Dr. Swann, who is director of the Barton Foundation Institute, Philadelphia, had a startling effect among members of the American Chemical Society Institute, which he is attending.

"It has been known for some time that some of the molecules of the air are electrically charged," he said. "Yet when we come right down to the final figures only one in one hundred billion is so charged.

"There is no apparent reason why one of these air molecules, rather than any other, should have this electrical charge, which makes possible the living blunder, ruin and other happenings of the air. Science has been able to account for this in no other way than by explaining the phenomenon in terms of luck which now has become a new type of scientific thought."

Existence of life, Dr. Swann said, in applying the same reasoning, may be started by chance.

"Either one accepts the view of creation handed down by the Bible," he explained, "or else the scientist tools his head and says he cannot answer the question. Life presumably was started by pure chance.

"Once started, science has been able to see the workings of life, but so far getting any clear conception of the beginnings, we are at a loss"

Famous North Sea Island Which Britain Gave to Prussia Long Ago

The little North Sea Island which Britain gave to Prussia long ago, despite general doubt and much protest, which, many years later, took no prominent a part in the World War, is crumbling into the sea. It will be remembered that the Germans transformed the peaceful island into an impregnable fortress. By the Treaty of Versailles compulsory demantling was insisted on. The tearing away of enormous masses of concrete and masonry not only reverted to, but intensified the crumbling processes. Now a sum or about two million dollars is to be spent on the work of maintaining the sand-dunes, and the German Hatch is, also, to put extensive protective constructions. The electric plant situated on the harbor, is so much threatened that its removal inland will prove necessary. The city overlooking the pleasi many at say never regretted native darts conveyed the sea god liberty, but in the little village of Rio Canarobe, in Porto Rico, the Indians put their faith in the test in 1511, by immersing an old Spanish nobleman under water and holding him there for six hours to see if it would kill him. It did!

Cannibals Use Irrigation

Natives of New Guinea Have Developed System By Using Bamboo Pipes

A survival of an ancient civilization co-existent with the lowest cannibalism has been made by a postal officer visiting the Wamgit watershed in New Guinea.

The cannibals, who had never seen firearms, had just finished a feast on bodies after a tribal war. They had developed a system of terraced irrigation along the lines of interlocked bamboo pipes and aqueducts for the native gardens which are 6,000 feet above sea level.

Raising Thrifty Heifer Calves

Proper Rearing Of Calves a Matter Of Great Importance

The keen demand for young cows of first grade and upwards, not only that the stock be well bred but that the calves be reared in a way to encourage a steady and fairly rapid growth. At the Central Experimental Farm, the rearing of the calves is regarded as a matter of great importance, and they are so fed and handled as to keep them thriving until they develop into good cows. Details of the manner of feeding are contained in the report of the Dominion Animal Husbandman for last year, recently issued by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa. The calf gets its mother's milk for several days, and whole milk is continued for from four to eight weeks, depending on the strength and vigour of the calf. The change from whole to skim milk is made gradually over a period of one to two weeks, the supplied fat of the new milk in the skim milk ration calves receive a porridge or gruel made from ingredients of different kinds. A favorite mixture consists of flax seed meal, 1 part; ground oilcake meal, 2 parts; and barley ground corn, 2 parts. The meal is prepared by stirring it into a pail of hot water, care being taken to avoid lumpiness. Sufficient is made up at one time for a day's feeding and at the rate of from one to two pounds per day when added to the skim milk. The calves are started with about a tablespoonful of this porridge or gruel at a feed, gradually increasing the amount fed until they are getting a good meal equal to a feed of one or four ounces of age. It is fed in the skim-milk, which is given in the addition of from two to fifteen pounds per day. Great care should be taken to prepare the food properly and to see that the calves get sufficient but not too much.

About the time that the feeding of skim-milk is begun the calves are given a little dry grain mixture each day. A favorite mixture consists of bran, ground oats, a quantity of calves' grain, oil cake meal, and two parts of bran. This is started in very small quantities, and gradually increased up to two pounds per day when the calves reach the age of from four to six months. They are also taught to eat hay, preferably leafy clover or alfalfa.

Public Must Be Educated

Say Chances For Success Of Prohibition Rest With The Youth

Prohibition rest its chances for success upon the education of public opinion, delegates to the Institute of Politics agreed in a round table conference on the issue at Williamstown, Mass. The day laws of several nations, notably Canada, Sweden and England, were outlined by speakers.

Professor C. F. Fay, Toronto, believed that the Canadian provinces had taken a wise course in adopting government control of liquor.

"Drink has been the greatest single curse of the English-speaking people in the last 150 years," he said, "We have failed in our efforts to eradicate it, but we have not had the youth of the country with us.

"Youth feels a restriction in talking of prohibition for fear of offending its elders. It should be encouraged to say freely what it thinks of the law enacted. There has been much improvement in England on the question of drinking, largely because of the steady growth of public opinion against the practice.

The Physician

A Fine Tribute Is Paid To the Followers Of the Healing Art

"There are men and classes of men who stand above the common herd. The soldier and the sailor and the shepherd not infrequently; the artist rarely, ranker still the clergyman; the physician above them all; but he is the flower (such as it is) of our civilization; and when the stage of man is history is set, I feel impelled to be marvelled at in history, as I will be thought to have shared the spirit and the life of the time, if not in the world, in the limited arena of the child, wherein the other two specimens at McGill the arms are bound close to the heart. Unquestionably an excellent set of teeth, her bones are well-knit and there is no evidence of a fracture having been made on the photographs. The plate of the skull showed a peculiar shaped window, through which the brain was protected for the embalming.

The X-ray has been found useful in the study of mummies because of the material information that can be obtained without injury to the subject. If all wrappings are removed, for the study purposes, but the use of the X-ray has made it unnecessary to remove these coverings, and the risk of decomposition is obviated.

Take X-Ray Plate Of Mummy

Interesting Experiment Is Conducted At McGill University

After reclining many years in peace, Hawaraat-Makina, Egyptian mummy at the McGill Strathcona museum, has been the subject of an X-ray photograph taken by E. Lionel Judah, curator of the McGill Museums. The embalmed body of the ancient lady arrived at McGill in 1897, clad comfortably in mummy wrappings, having been presented to the university by Sir Thomas Reddick. It came from Fayoum, Egypt, and is one of three mummies at present "at home" in the Strathcona Museum.

One mummy is that of a princess elaborately bound in the choicest of linen, and another is that of a commoner roughly bound and embalmed with bituminous pitch instead of spices. The lady's mummy, which was partly unwrapped, is the one that the X-ray photographs could be taken more rapidly, shows a medium condition of rank between the two, it is stated at the museum. The wrappings of linen are not nearly as fine as that used by the princess, and one specimen shows more of a bituminous pitch than of a spice embalming.

There is no gold directly placed on the face as there is on the princess mummy, but there is a gold-bead covering the entire upper part of the mummy with a face painted on it, for which vegetable dyes had been used.

The X-ray photograph revealed a normal human skeleton. Unquestionably the specimen is that of a woman ranging in age between 25 and 40 years; the mummy is dated seven hundred years before the Christian era.

Value Of Advertising

Tremendous Growth In Advertising Is Seen In the Past Decade

The decade following the war has seen a tremendous growth in the whole world of advertising. It has embraced every line of endeavor, and with it advertisement has come a new era in industrial and commercial life. Indeed it has been conclusively demonstrated that no matter how good an article, no matter how much thought a manufacturer may give to its production, it cannot be "put across" to the public without the aid of judicious publicity.

Columbia, a Great Legend

The extension of 900 square miles, made by Imperial National Park, Alberta, in 1927, brought the Columbia icefield within national park boundaries. Other icefields, less than one hundred and twenty-five miles in extent, which is the mother of more than a score of glaciers, is surrounded by a galaxy of giant peaks and represents the very climax of the scenic and alpine features of the Rockies.

Health Service Changes Are Seen in Ottawa

The resort is a more constitutional policy is one of the striking changes in Socialist methods. The change is widely regarded as a repudiation of the tactics, and some of the principles on which at one time leading Socialists were ready to compromise, are being modified. The latest illustration is afforded by Mr. Ramsay MacDonald's attitude to unemployment. At one time emigration was denounced as a capitalist device to rid the country of a threatening brands to Norway. Dr. MacDonald admits that the party recognises that fluidity of population is necessary. Some people take a long time to discover what others learn in their youth. Edinburgh Scotsman.

Local Lumber Yards Secure Large Contracts

SUPERIOR LUMBER YARDS, LIMITED, SUPPLYING MATERIALS FOR BUILDINGS ON 158 FARMS UNDER HUDSON'S BAY & C. P. R. HUGE COLONIZATION SCHEMES — C.P.R. CONTRACT INCLUDES LABOR.

Bulk Of Settlement Centres On Vermilion

The Superior Lumber Yards, Limited, with head office at Vermilion and several branch yards at other points on this line and the C.P.R. Culbride Whitford branch, has been allotted the contract for the supplying of materials for ten units in connection with the settlement scheme being carried out by the Hudson's Bay Company of their holdings throughout this district. Each unit represents a house, barn, and cribbing for well. The farm houses will be uniform in size, namely 18x24 feet with pitched roof; the stables are of the same dimensions. Materials to 20 of these units will be delivered from the yards of the company at Manville, 50 from Vermilion and 29 from the Islay yard. R. H. Trouth of Edmonton, who it will be remembered had the contract for the erection of the 160 houses and stables for what is now the Hardisten colony, in the construction for labor on the Hudson's Bay buildings and he will cut and assort most of his materials at Vermilion as a distributing point.

In connection with their activities, the Hudson's Bay company have secured trackage at Vermilion, just east of the stockyards, and are erecting a large warehouse 21x60 feet.

Breaking is under way on most of the land affected and 8 well-boring outfits are at work. Fred Kipp has been appointed inspector of wells. P. M. Cameron is the representative of the company stationed at Vermilion.

This settlement acreage, made up of both quarter and half-section holdings will likely approximate a total of from two to two-and-five thousand acres.

The C. P. R. contract for 50 units involves both material and labor, and E. H. Norton, manager of the Superior Lumber Yards, stated to the Standard that it was the desire of his company to have all building completed by Dec. 1st if possible. Most of the C. P. R. land is in the immediate Vermilion district, consequently the bulk of supplies are to be delivered from this point. Should Study From Every Angle Problems Of Immigration and Settlement

Speaking of the resolution passed recently at the Saskatoon conference of provincial premiers interested in immigration, that a royal commission should be appointed by the government of Canada to "study from every angle problems of immigration and assimilation," J. A. Stoneman, president of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, said that a royal commission, efficiently constituted, would command the confidence of the public. "It can perform a great deal of work which members of the House of Commons have neither the time nor facilities to do," he declared. The suggestion of a commission had been already approved by the U.F.C. Saskatchewan section, said Mr. Stoneman, as well as by the Canadian Legion at its last national convention, he pointed out.

The return to Edinburgh was made under pleasanter conditions, the sunshine replacing mist and snow. That evening dinner was tendered by one of the most interesting and certainly most delightful addresses of the week. This was the talk by Dr. F. A. E. Crew, Director of the Animal Breeding Research Department, Edinburgh University, who spoke on "Animal Breeding: Some Scientific Aspects." Dr. Crew's address was remarkable, not only for the skill with which he handled his subject, but for the manner in which he presented it. He also took us home again to Canada, to the hospital at Winnipeg, he was conversing with, and for a period in the early city, listening to the radio, when to his surprise and delight he heard announced at 9 P.M. the Canadian National Railways' International broadcast. Which was him a speedy evening. The Earl, a grandson of the late Earl, who long was connected with the C.N.R., is one of the most delightful example of courtesy it has been our lot to have experienced in the tour.

The occasion was also noteworthy for the presence of so many of Scotland's leaders of scientific agriculture, including Sir Robert Greig, Mr. Archibald MacNeilage, editor of the Scottish Farmer and Secretary of the Clydesdale Society, both of whom spoke to us. Mr. Greig was president chairmanship of Mr. W. A. Wilson, Agricultural Superintendent representative for Canada, who set the proceedings in a lively manner which was not the least enjoyable feature of a memorable evening.

Hitherto our engagements had prevented us from viewing Edinburgh itself, but the morning of Saturday in "The Athens of the North" gave us our opportunity.

From the Castle we were able to see the heart of her setting, the majesty of her seven hills, the handsome buildings, the spacious streets, the Princes Street, the noble monuments, the whole city spread out from the Old Town and, beyond the city, the lovely country. Of the Castle, which is the Tower of London is to England, so is Edinburgh Castle to Scotland. Here again the past was conjured up. Once more we were in touch with its strange, its pictorial, its defiant, its heroic, its cruelties and sacrifices. The explanation by which we had approached the Castle was for centuries the home of royalty, of luxury and state. Here scores of "witches" were strangled and burned. Here strange to learn then that the very explanation I had to hear of "Auld Reekie" in the reign of Charles I., the esplanade was declared an integral part of the Castle. (Here also, then, so that barracks created under the commission of William Alexander, Earl of Stirling, might "take seize" of their property.) Recently, however, which has never been assailed.

The Castle is entered by the drawbridge over the old moat. The pathway is cut through the solid rock, and the walls of the portcullis gate are 15 feet thick. Accompanied by a guide who orient; y loved every inch of it, in and out, we saw the Argyll Battery on the edge of the cliff, St. Margaret's Chapel, the Palace Yard, the Crown Room, the Great Hall of State, the Parliament Hall and the National Gallery.

St Margaret's Chapel is the smallest. Norman in its details, it dates back only 17 feet by 11. Today the church of soldiers of the garrison are baptized in it. In the Palace Yard, at the time of our visit, our

PAUL IN THESSALONICA

Golden Text: "The opening of Thy words giveth light."—Psalm 119:130.

Lesson: Acts 17:1-15; Romans 15. 18-20; 1 Thessalonians 2:13-20.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 119. 9-18.

Explanations and Comments

Three Sabbaths in the Synagogue at Thessalonica, verses 1-4:—"As though at Philippi we had suffered greatly, and had been insulted, yet on we came to your city and boldly declared to you the gospel of God in spite of great opposition"—in some such manner Paul wrote to the Thessalonians (1 Thess. 2:2). From Philippi Paul and his companions passed through the cities of Amphipolis and Apollonia on the way to Thessalonica. There they tarried several months. As we know from Paul's letters to the church he founded in that city (we remember, brethren," Paul also wrote, "how we worked day and night to support ourselves, while we preached unto you the gospel of God: for we would not be a burden to any of you" (1 Thess. 2:9).

Our historian, however, records only Paul's preaching for three successive Sabbaths in the synagogue. He "reasoned with them from the Scriptures," Luke says; but the cited Scripture passages which were interpreted by Paul to Christ, he showed that Jesus fulfil led these prophecies; that it behooved the Christ to suffer and to rise again from the dead, and that Jesus whom he preached was the Christ.

Mary Queen of Scots once cried out to John Knox: "You teach one thing, the Queen of Denmark another, and what is my subject to believe?" Knox's answer is memorable: "Ye shall believe neither, madame; ye shall believe God, who speaketh His word plainly." And we agree thereto, ye shall believe neither of us." Every doctrine should be tested by the spirit and the Word of Christ.

The result of Paul's preaching was that many of the devout (Greeks (Greeks who attended the synagogue and worshiped God), and many of the chief women, were convinced of the truth of his message and "consorted with Paul and Silas," that is, they let in with them and shared their way of life. They were afterwards instrumental in extending the good news that Paul brought there, for in his first letter he says, "From you hath sounded forth the word of the Lord, not only in Macedonia and Achaia (Greece), but in every place your faith to Godward is gone forth."

The Talking Movies

Moving Picture Industry Said To Be Upset Over New Innovation

Talking movies have thrown the celluloid industry into profound agitation. Conceding that most of the audible films thus far made have been perfectly terrible, the movie magnates nevertheless fear that in future and the more difficult technique trust upon them. Producers are worried because they must scrap equipment even more expensive. Theatre owners are grumbling at the prospect of being required to put in costly sound apparatus for the screens fees. Exporters are wondering how a film with English dialogue can be sold in foreign countries which speak other languages; and if Spanish text, for example, is added after the picture has been made—which is technically feasible—how will the audience receive it when the actors' lips clearly do not speak the syllables we hear? Another difficulty with cases if new stars are brought forward in place of the present ones, even if argued, that the Jesus whom he preached to them is the Christ.

Fur Farming Very Soon To Be A Recognized And Established Western Canadian Industry

Authorities make the prediction that within the next quarter of a century fur farming will be a stabilized industry in Western Canada, accepted and recognized as one of the many phases of agriculture in that territory instead of as a somewhat novel, extraneous activity. The trend in that direction is unmistakable. Farming settlement is extending northward, with scientific development having added considerably to the dominion of the plow, the tendency to make farm intensively and domestically will inevitably become more accentuated, and fur farming takes its place alongside the other established activities of that territory. And because this area is by reason of its climatic and other conditions capable of producing superior pelts it need fear no rivalry from other countries where the pursuit is similarly developing.

Many branches of fur farming have become established in the Western Canada to the extent they have got past the stage of foundation, and are producing animals of value. One of the latest ventures in this respect is the silver fox ranch which has received relatively little attention, but is of considerable and meteoric development. is that of muskrat and beaver farming, particular the former in view of the vast of virtual insignificance in the fur trade this little animal has attained a place of extreme importance by reason of his pelt's multiplicity of uses. The security of the future of the muskrat is established by the fact the readiness with which the pelt of this little animal can be adapted to imitate the finer furs, and the ease with which it can be bred for fur purposes. Beaver farming is also a promising industry in other parts of the Dominion it promises to be one which Western Canada is going to make peculiarly its own.

Accepting as all reports a veritable army of men in the Prairie provinces has been awaiting the completion of the arrangement for the transfer of the marshlands and other suitable tracts from the Federal Government to the provinces. There are stated to be over 800 applicants waiting in Alberta and hundreds in Saskatchewan and Manitoba, according to announcement these lands are to be leased for farming purposes at 25 cents per acre for three years and $1 per acre for each successive year. There is every indication of wholesale establishment to take place as soon as filing is open.

[illegible] is not lagging behind her prairie sisters, having long since accurately established this industry, which is thriving in several districts in Ontario, and in which is to be found the world's largest establishment of this nature. The Columbia Co-operative Fur Farm has come particularly in the fore in this regard and many individuals in the Prairie and Maritime States of the Union have in the past few years moved up to follow the pursuit there. A further addition to such ranches was recently made when a group of Kelowna business men secured a large holding of land on both sides of the Columbia Valley Ranches Limited on the Kootenay and Central Branch of the Canadian Pacific Railway for the purpose of entering upon beaver and muskrat ranching on a large scale. TOKIO, Aug. 29.—The ratification of war treaty marks the dawn of a new day, said Baron Giichi Tanaka, premier of Japan, in a statement today.

The House Fly

Our old enemy the House Fly is with us again. He never fails to come around when the warm weather arrives. To annoy people and to cause trouble seems to be his special aim in life. From the baby's face to father's bald head, to the milk pitcher and to the food are some of his journeys well known to all of us. Yet in spite of this and possibly because he is seen too often, it is doubtful if any of us ever fully realize the danger and filthy ways of this common pest.

The house fly lays her eggs (120 at one time) in fresh horse manure. She prefers it, but she will now any heap of garbage or filth. With a very short incubation (2 weeks) period it can be seen how rapidly flies will multiply unless they are controlled. Naturally the best way to control the fly is to destroy the eggs or maggots before their wings are developed and they can move around more rapidly.

Why is it necessary to destroy flies and keep them from hatching? All flies are carry disease germs; they are filthy in the extreme. The legs of flies are provided with a most small short hairs (100) or bristles and, as the fly walks over filth containing disease germs, some of these are entangled and held by the hairs. When the fly goes again to take a drink from the milk pitcher or touches food, some of the germs will be left behind in the milk or on the food. When these are swallowed later with the food by the baby, or anyone else, they may cause such diseases as typhoid, diarrhoea, dysentery or other illness.

Experiments with the house fly prove that it can be best controlled by sprinkling the infested parts of the manure with a three per-cent solution of Lyman's Disinfectan. One gallon of disinfectant makes 23 gallons of the solution and costs about 50c per year per horse. The solution should be applied about every second day or oil liberally often to ensure that all maggots are destroyed.

Chief Long Lance Author of Book

Tells of Early Days

New York, August 21.—Chief Buffalo Child Long Lance, of the Blood band of Blackfoot Indians is the author of "Long Lance," published today and pronounced by Irvin S. Cobb as a valuable contribution to American lore.

This book tells of the days when Long Lance used to drift down from Alberta into Montana with a roving, hunting, fighting band of Blackfeet. Chief Long Lance rode after buffalo before he ever heard English spoken.

But during the last twenty years he had graduated from two colleges, entered West Point, won honors as a World War hero, distinguished himself in athletics, lectured for the U.S. Bureau of Economics and became not only chief of his tribe but unofficially spokesman for all the Plain's Indians.

Darkly betrayed he was trained as a warrior and looked forward to the career of a brave. It was a terrific shock to be packed off to mission school where his people shunned a treaty and went to five on the reservation. Later he was taken by his people with a troop of trick riders in a Buffalo Bill show; then he became a cowboy and went to Carlisle.

At Carlisle he proved to be a natural leader in school affairs, won the highest scholastic honors and excelled in athletics, playing on Jim Thorpe's famous football eleven.

Graduating from Carlisle he went to St. John's Military Academy at Manlius where his versatile record attracted the attention of President Wilson, who appointed him to West Point, the first Indian ever so honored.

But when the war broke out he relinquished this appointment, walked into the recruiting office of an American Legion being formed in Calgary, Alberta, and enrolled as a private in a battalion about to go abroad, returning, when recruited, to wait for training as an officer.

In France he became sniping and scouting sergeant was wounded several times and received the Croix de Guerre and the Italian War Cross, rising through successive promotions to Captain of the 38th Battalion of Calgary. When President Wilson arrived in Paris, after the war, he recognized Long Lance's ability by assigning him to secret service and offering him a permanent Captaincy in the U. S. Army.

Meanwhile Long Lance, weighing 164 pound, had won the light-heavyweight boxing championship of the Canadian Army and had beaten the heavyweight champion wrestler of the American Army who weighed 217lbs. On his return he worked out with Jack Dempsey (whom he could beat in wrestling), and Dempsey declared to newspaper reporters he could make the chief fight heavyweight champion of the world in three months.

But Long Lance turned down this, and a movie offer, and went to work for several years as a newspaper reporter on the Calgary Herald, later becoming known throughout Canada as a star sporting reporter, a writer of feature stories, an authority on the American Indian, a charming lecturer and a contributor to Liberty, Mentor and Cosmopolitan.

About this time, in recognition of his career among the white people, particularly during the World War, Long Lance was made a chief of the Blood band of Blackfoot Indians, receiving the dynastic name of Buffalo Child, which is resurrected only for distinguished chiefs. Long Lance is now known as the "Big Bear" of all the Plains Indians and is informally accepted as their leader and spokesman.

As a foreword to Chief Long Lance's book on the days when he and his people roamed Alberta and Montana, which the publishers persuaded him to allow the name "Long Lance" to be used, Irvin S. Cobb has written: "I know of no man better fitted than Chief Long Lance to write a true book about the spirit of the American Indian and I know of no book on the subject which better reveals the spirit of Indian youth in the years that are gone and the spirit of the times the like of which will never be seen again."

COMPLAINT FROM MINERS.

Two cases where unfair treatment is claimed were brought to the notice of the Standard by one of the British harvesters the other morning when the following incidents were unfolded. The man in question had been given a job stooking on a farm outside of this municipality district at the going wage of four dollars a day. He had worked for one day and then decided to leave his job, and upon acquainting his employer with the fact and a request for his wages, was handed $1.50. On top of this he had to walk to the nearest town and from there had to pay his train fare to Vermilion. The other case was a little closer home and concerned three of the British miners who had worked for three days on uniform and upon deciding to quit had been paid $1.50 each for their days labor. All of which goes to arouse the wrath of the visiting harvesters.

While these incidents are regrettable as they always a feeling of ennui against in the old country men, they must take into consideration that a farmer in this country hires a man for the complete harvest and not for one, two or three days. It is to the farmer in this country the most vital time when his whole year's work is at stake, and when he certainly has no time to waste one out of every few days running to town for new hands.

There are always two sides to a story, but if the men had earned their wages even though they threw up the job—it would have been much better to all concerned to have paid them up. Coming from the Old Country and jumping into a western harvest is no cinch. It is hard and trying work for the seasoned laborer and a real task for the novice who must be full of grit and determination if he is to stay with it.

NEW FUEL PUMP.

The mechanical fuel pump with which the 1929 McLaughlin-Buick is equipped is offered as a thoroughly demonstrated improvement over the vacuum tank system which it replaces. Its principal recommendations are simplicity and reliability. It is unaffected to do away with fuel failure at high speeds or on hills—eliminates primine when the gasoline tank has run dry and in short bursts one-minute intervals from motor car operation.

In principle the mechanical fuel pump goes right back to the old system on the farm. Its vital part is a flexible diaphragm of wear proof material which is set in motion by impulses up on a lever communicating with the camshaft of the engine. The diaphragm makes one pulsation, a fraction of an inch in extent with each revolution of the camshaft. It draws fuel from the gasoline tank in part a check valve which prevents it return and forces it through a second check valve, to the carburetor. The faster the engine runs the greater the pump's activity.

Two drag tanks are provided between the pump lever and the diaphragm, to permit the latter to idle when the fuel supply on hand is adequate. When the chamber is full the pump chamber also is full and the diaphragm ceases to operate. The lever communicating with the camshaft works constantly, however its motion being absorbed by the drag links.

The pump is so positive of operation as to work efficiently at hand cranking speed, a fact which insures adequate fuel supply even when the starter lags. Neither is it necessary to prime the carburetor after allowing the fuel to run out. A few turns of the engine is sufficient to fill the carburetor bowl.

The pump is said to be fully protected from. Among recent improvements in it is a chamber designed to equalize the pressure of fuel taking care at intervals and delivering it back to the line as required. A smooth strainer is also an integral part of the pump.

Big Dormitory Likely To Be Filled Up

164 Students Already Enrolled At College

Up to Monday of this week 164 registrations have been received at the School of Agriculture, Vermilion and it is felt that the dormitory will be more than filled to capacity when the opening day comes on the 10th inst. The applications are coming in unusually early so it is two months until the doors open. Undoubtedly the front of the boat week will cause some to find it impossible to enter, but the late registrations will no doubt far more than make this up. In fact, those in authority are expecting a registration of something between 175 and 200 students.

The registrations up to date are as follows:

1st Year Boys	67
1st Year Girls	47
2nd Year Boys	29
2nd Year Girls	17
Third Year	11
Total	164

Those wishing to board High School students or desiring a High School pupil to work out board, would do well to insert a want ads in the standard, as there have been several inquiries where both of the above could be secured.

NEW all the way through

In Design · · Performance and Beauty

THIS new McLaughlin-Buick is a splendid new and individual conception of the modern automobile. A dazzling new type of motor car beauty—unlike anything heretofore known—longer, larger, more luxurious bodies, true masterpieces of fleetness and grace—appointments providing plenty of room for three adult passengers on a tremendous increase in power, getaway and flexibility—these are highlight features of this most brilliant of new car creations.

A new and deeper realizer of distinctive design—striking new chrome-plated hood louvres and radiator—embodying new lines and radiator—embodying new lines and contours, poise and distinction utterly new to automotive design.

And in performance, too, the new McLaughlin-Buick establishes all previous standards. Its power, its flexibility, its getaway—all are greatly increased—all are united and unsurpassed to an unprecedented degree.

In addition, the 1929 McLaughlin-Buick introduces a host of engineering refinements, including a new high-pressure gas-proof motor and lubrication with full-length pressure—steel bushed main bearings—and many other features of the first importance.

See the 1929 McLaughlin-Buick. Drive it. Make it your car. And rest assured there is none in the world that surpasses it.

The G.M.A.C. Deferred Payment Plan offers many advantages to buyers of McLaughlin-Buick cars.

Would Reclaim Sahara Desert

(Page 7.) Create Inland Sea in North-ern Africa

A plan to change the climate of Northern Africa by creating inland seas in the Sahara Desert is being seriously considered by the French government and the cabinet is expected to make a decision on the question in September.

Dwight Braman, of New York, is the engineer who presented the plan and undertook to raise $50,000,000 to further the project. He made an engineering study last spring of the arid waters lying below the level of the Mediterranean and extending from the Gulf of Gabes westward to Biskra, and formulated plans to cut three ship canals forty feet deep and two hundred feet wide connecting the Mediterranean Sea at Gabes with three dry saline lake beds called "Shotts."

It is estimated that Mediterranean waters by means of these canals would permanently flood some 30,000 square miles resulting from Gabes westward. This would mean a water route of about 250 miles for seagoing ships through a part of Tunisia and deep into Algeria.

The main purpose, however, is to affect climatic conditions and increase rainfall which Braman undertakes to demonstrate, will be the result

His scheme is based upon that of a commission of French engineers chief of whom was M de Lesseps who in 1...32 made a minute survey of the entire region

Prosperous Toronto

Residents Pay More Income Tax Than Any Other City In Canada

Prosperity must have struck the City of Toronto in a great many ways, for the Queen City paid nearly three millions more in income tax than in the previous year, the increase of any city in the Dominion, not excepting even Montreal. Toronto's contribution to the Dominion treasury was $13,648 545.

Of the other principal cities in the Dominion, Ivevive showed an increase of seven and seven a decrease Some of the increase is due to the efficiency of the department of the local revenue, and includes some of the arrears caused up under threat of prosecution.

Toronto's income tax collections for 1928-29 were $13,648,545, an advance of $1,982,517 over the 1927-28 total of $11,656,028. Montreal's 1928-29 collection of $14,186,683 was $3,723,184 ahead of the 1927-28 figure of $13,462,279.

Hard To Replace

Committee Should See That Old Industries Are Supported

It takes at least two new industries to replace in employing capacity one that has failed or moved elsewhere. Four new industries start on a large scale The city that lets a long-established industry die for lack of help that could properly be given cannot ordinarily make up the economic loss at least in a short time, by bringing in another industry to take the place of a defunct one. It is an almost literal translation of the old adage about the birds, the hand and the bush. New York Sun.

Ancient Chateau Demolished

Ruins Of Thousand Year Old Castle In France Are Removed

Historical and monumental individual funds could be obtained recently to save one of the most interesting thousand year old castles in France—the chateau built by Thibaud III., King of Navarre, in 1199 for Queen Blanche.

The ruins of the chateau, located at Poujan, in the Aube Department, consisted of a stone tower with arched windows and a series of fortified walls. With this historical background they could have been transported to any country estate in Europe of the Americas at little expense. The windows and portals were in excellent condition, and there were several interesting inscriptions attesting the age of the edifice

For several months the government waited for collectors to enter their funds for the premises, but none appeared on the scene. This caused considerable surprise as in the past the mere mention of a thousand year old building would have been sufficient to bring collectors and experts from all parts of the world. The French magistrates made a final desperate attempt to save the ruins by a part of the nation's architectural patrimony, and the question was even discussed in the Chamber of Deputies

Pending funds for other purposes, however, the Minister of Education and Fine Arts turned a deaf ear to all such proposals, and is said to have refused to authorize the opening of a public subscription

And one evening at twilight, the walls and turret which had survived the hottest conflicts of the Hundred Years' War, came tumbling to pieces by a tremendous charge of dynamite.

Nothing Pays Better

Education Is Greatest Asset To Sin-cere In Life

Does education pay? Surely, there is nothing which pays better. The value of competition it is the true absolutely indispensable factor, without which success is practically impossible. But, apart from material considerations one can scarcely estimate the value of enlightenment in any emergency as a whole. Ignorance in one form or another is responsible for most of the woes of the world—the war against ignorance begun in schools and carried on through life is the mainspring of civilization. That country is the most civilized which gives its children the best chance of developing their mental and intellectual faculties. When such development has been adequately provided for, there need be little fear of anyone about other things. The schools are the very foundation of society.

The Cost Of Progress

Trees Four Thousand Years Old Are Felled To Build Boardwalk

The giant redwoods of California are being cut down ruthlessly by lumber companies The irony of it is that among the redwoods we are cutting down trees that are forty centuries old to build boardwalks, make railway ties and split into grapestakes —chiefly grapestakes. Any fool can make a grapestake; but "only God can make a tree." When a big tree falls with the boom of thunder, everybody knows that something has gone, a creature that can never be replaced. A second growth may spring from the stump, but humanity is too impatient and avaricious to wait 4,000 years again.—Los Angeles Times.

Into it has been gathered our sacred memories our tenderest associations our brightest hopes. Vitamines For Growing Chicks

Cod Liver Oil Is Recommended For Leg Weakness

Leg weakness has been a common disease of young chicks, but investigations of recent years have taught poultrymen how to avoid this trouble. If growing chicks get an abundance of direct sunlight they are not liable to contract this disease, but if housed for four or more weeks they are invariably subject to the trouble which may be prevented by special feeds that are known to be right in vitamines. Cod liver oil is now used in many poultry flocks and its virtue is believed to be due to its richness in vitamines. A pamphlet on the "Artificial Brooding of Chicks," prepared by the Dominion District Poultry Promoter and the Provincial Poultry Superintendent, Guelph, Ontario, and distributed by the Director of Publicity of the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, recommends the use of cod liver oil in amounts of one to two per cent. of the mash according to the degree of confinement This, it is claimed, will prevent or even cure advanced cases of leg-weakness. The first is the addition of cod liver oil to the mash, which may be prepared by special feeds that are known to be right in vitamines. Other feeds rich in vitamines are yellow corn, green feeds, immature but clover and alfalfa hay. These if used in an otherwise well balanced ration will give the flock the vitamines necessary for their well doing.

The plan recommended for mixing the cod liver oil in the dry mash is to first mix the oil with bran until it is evenly saturated and then to mix the bran with the other ingredients of the mash. As the vitamins quickly diminishes when mixed with the feed only sufficient mash should be mixed at a time to do the feeds for three or four days.

Are Sun's Rays Declining

Scientists Say That Old Fol May Quit Any Day

Jupiter, the largest planet of the sun's family, is shooting enormous volcanic bombs into space, says a famous astronomer. Some of the comets and fire balls that sometimes hit the earth may come from Jupiter.

Science detecting instruments are capable of photographing three billion of the possible thirty billion stars in the universe. Jupiter is 1,400 times, most of them larger and bright-er than ours. They shed energy until they burst.

It is said that our sun is perfectly near the burnt-out stage. Any day it may explode. But since a day in the universe may be a million years there is nothing to worry about.

Forest Fire Situation Improved

Season Of 1927 Was Unusually Favorable For Timber Protection

Reports submitted by field officers of the Forest Service Department of the Interior, show the season of 1927 to have been unusually favorable in regard to forest fires. Six hundred and sixty-one fires occurred on Dominion lands in Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba, protected by the Forest Service during the season mentioned, as compared with 1,298 fires in 1926, 1,186 in 1925, and 1,427 fires in 1924. Of the number of fires, 464 side timber burned over was 98,297 acres in 1927, as compared with 113,226 acres in 1926 (the seven years mentioned covered for many years), 126,970 acres in 1925, and 229,220 ...es in 1924.

Quilt From Bridal Costume

Interesting Memento Of 1893 Placed On View In Chicago

Frugality and sentiment are joined in the story of a silk quilt made of squares of bridesmaids' dresses placed on view in the Brooklyn Museum as a loan from Mrs. Theron Hallock Webb, of Manhattan. It belonged to the Quaker wedding gown of Deborah Coggeshall, of New York and Elwood Walter, of Philadelphia, in 1832.

Bridal costumes in the 19th century were commonly regarded as made for a single wearing, disappearing from sight thereafter, in packings of tissue and lavender. On this occasion the mother and aunts of the bride persuaded the owners to surrender the garments in order that there might be preserved this a quilt which the bride might cherish as a memento. Their faith that it would receive such care is shown by the present neat, unworn appearance.

The colors in the quilt include several shades of beige, or natural silk, several shades of greenish gray, and a variety of light grays from white through pearl to smoke. The vase of flowers in the central motif Three quilted borders surround it. The first is of the natural shaped leaves, the next an arrangement of feather scrolls and the third is of leaves.

The museum story of the quilt says much careful planning was given for days the work must have been given to design and make it, and the bride held it through life as one of her most prized possessions.

Internal Parasites Of Swine

Sanitation Is Of Prime Importance In Dealing With This Pest

Unthriftiness in pigs is often due to internal parasites, according to the latest edition of the bulletin "Swine Husbandry in Canada," of the Department of Agriculture. Sanitation, an article has been introduced from the pen of Dr. Lionel Stevenson of the Ontario Agricultural College, who in his opening sentence says "Why feed a worm-infested pig for ten or twelve months to get it up to market weight? Better swat the parasites; they have no market value, unless the value of their lost or low parasites in particular are dealt with in his paper and clearly defined treatments are given for their destruction. Sanitation is of the utmost importance in intestinal parasite control. Can Be Exaggerated

Intelligence Not Always Due To Ability To Read and Write

In an article on the Prince of Wales, a writer in the Sunday newspaper says: "You will not find him befuddling his mind with books. . . . He is not remembered for coining a sentence with more curious implications. . . . If books only befuddle the brain, as it would obviously be better if all the schools were shut and schoolmasters who teach reading, writing and arithmetic to innocent children should be sent to prison as public dangers. . . . Skill we are inclined today to exaggerate the importance of reading and writing to the growth of the intelligence. A considerable percentage of illiterates can read and are intelligent so they are at present if they had never learned to read or write they would have been just as well off not read or write and who were nevertheless better company, more imaginative and more intellectual than authors who could. Speech plays a far more important part in the life of the ordinary man than reading and writing. It is possible for a man who can neither read or write to be either a good poet or a good lawyer, and a world containing good poets and good farmers is a world in which any of us ought to be reasonably happy.

A TITLED FARMER

Scion Of Noble Family Has Extensive Holdings In Alberta

Count De Topor, English aristocrat and philanthropist, was among the passengers sailing on the Canarder, Ascania, for Europe recently. The count, who also possesses the title of Duke of Castilla, is a cousin of the late Emperor Franz Josef, of Austria. His family has been prominent in the affairs of Europe since history since the year 1010, one of the count's forebears being Count Maximilian, chancellor of Poland.

"I have no respect for titles," remarked the count, "but family matters make it essential that I should use mine. To my mind, the only thing of any account is the place in this world man creates by his own efforts."

Count De Topor has extensive interests in Canada, mainly through his efforts the town of Vermilion, Alberta, has now extensive farm lands. He erected 40 houses there for farm workers and had a large plot of waste land turned into a nice park. Wooden sidewalks were replaced with cement ones. Farm workers are happy, and they have lived rent free on his farms. They have also received profit sharing plans. He said, that some of them saved as much as $10,000 in three years, and came to him wanting to buy property.

Count De Topor has extensive interests in the west and around Edmonton, which included nearly 60,000 acres of farm land.

"Farm land is cheaper in the Canadian west than anywhere else in the world," he remarked, "and the west holds a marvellous future for the nations industrial life. It is not afraid of a little hard work."

Count De Topor said he avoided anything to do with immigration of agriculturists into this country. He pointed out that his visit was private, "I cannot, therefore, say much about the claims of Canada as the coming agricultural nation of the world."

In addition to his philanthropic and economic interests, the count is a doctor and lawyer, though he does not practice.

"I find no time to practice," he said. "But I have never ceased to look after a sick friend who is tying ill in Le Pouldo, Finistere, Brittany. After which I shall return to England to my home in Bolt Crisstend, Sussex.

Can Be Exaggerated

Intelligence Not Always Due To Ability To Read and Write

In an article on the Prince of Wales, a writer in the Sunday newspaper says: "You will not find him befuddling his mind with books. . . . He is not remembered for coining a sentence with more curious implications. . . . If books only befuddle the brain, as it would obviously be better if all the schools were shut and schoolmasters who teach reading, writing and arithmetic to innocent children should be sent to prison as public dangers. . . . Skill we are inclined today to exaggerate the importance of reading and writing to the growth of the intelligence. A considerable percentage of illiterates can read and are intelligent so they are at present if they had never learned to read or write and who were nevertheless better company, more imaginative and more intellectual than authors who could. Speech plays a far more important part in the life of the ordinary man than reading and writing. It is possible for a man who can neither read or write to be either a good poet or a good lawyer, and a world containing good poets and good farmers is a world in which any of us ought to be reasonably happy.

Developing Rust Resistant Wheat

Dominion Cerealist Says Goal Will Be Reached Very Soon

Within three years Western Canada should have a rust resistant wheat which will grade as high as the varieties now being grown, according to L. H. Newman, Dominion Cerealist, recently.

Mr. Newman is spending a month or more in the west, inspecting the work of the Dominion Rust Research Laboratory, at the Manitoba Agricultural College, and the various Dominion experimental farms in the west. He will also visit farms where rust resistant grains are being produced for experimental purposes.

The Ottawa official announced that the work at the research laboratory at Winnipeg would be extended within a year. An expert cytologist, Miss Bhattingsland, formerly of Saskatoon, Sask., and now at Berkeley College, Calif., has been added to the staff, he said, and will assume her new duties next spring.

The appointment, Mr. Newman said, is a further step in advance, marking a distinct advance in the linking of pure scientific research with the practical purposes of agriculture.

Another phase of cereal work which is engaging the attention of the cerealist is the raising and marketing of high quality malting barley. "We have found that 'trifi,' a variety of barley grown in Manitoba, corresponds closely with the favored variety grown in California," Mr. Newman said. "Prof. S. C. Grant, of the Manitoba Agricultural College, is now in Finland in order to confer with the people of malting firms there on the marketing of barley."

Explanations Are Logical

Expression "Odds and Ends" Goes Back To Time Of Shakespeare

"My brain," wrote Washington Irving, "is filled with all kinds of odds and ends."

Curious that we should say "odds and ends" to refer to a multiplicity of miscellaneous things or details. And for the derivation of this cosmopolitan that has lasted for centuries, we have two interesting explanations.

"Odds," it is authoritatively stated is a straight corruption of the now obsolete English word "orts," which meant fragments. This word "orts" occurs frequently in the works of Shakespeare and Ben Johnson, in exactly this sense.

The other explanation is that the expression "odds and ends" comes from the old Saxon phrase "ords and endes." "Ord" meant the beginning word for beginning; so that in the old Saxon language, the phrase "ords and endes" really meant literally "beginnings and ends."

Both explanations seem logical and reasonable. It is quite likely that we both right and that the words "orts," is derived from the Saxon "ords," subsequently becoming "odds."

To Complete Study Of Arctic Flora

Dr. C. H. Ostenfeld, botanist of the National Herbarium, Ottawa, is carrying on investigations in the regions bordering Hudson Bay and Hudson Strait. He will collect botanical material and study northern plants in preparation. The investigations are work on the flora of Arctic Canada. Dr. Malte visited posts in the Arctic archipelago with the Canadian Government expedition and this summer's investigations are intended to confirm observations made in 1897.

She Stopped a Clock!

Joshua made history when he ordered the sun to stand still, but for no reason at all other than to please a little child, a captain of one of the Canadian Pacific "White Empresses" of the Pacific took time by the button and preserved Christmas Day for little Gloria Cosgrave, seven year old daughter of Colonel L. Moore Cosgrave, D.S.O., Canadian Trade Commissioner to Shanghai At the age of two she was crossing the Pacific with her parents when it was announced that when the International Date Line was reached the day thereafter would be summarily wiped off the calendar was Christmas. The Captain, however, knowing there was a child aboard ordered the day to be preserved and the following one to be eliminated in its stead A special tree and Santa Claus was arranged in mid-Pacific for Gloria's benefit.

She is shown here on board the Canadian Pacific Atlantic liner "Empress of Australia" on her way to England and in the midst of her second circuit of the globe.

Jack was lying on the couch while Evan sat beside him. He had insisted that he could not see her face. She sat motionless through it all. He told of his return from the north and finding her gone; of his suspicions, confirmed, as he thought, by seeing her in Edmonton; of his sudden resolve to enlist; and lastly of his meeting with Arthur Warner "I don't know," he concluded, "what is the explanation of the Winnipeg affair, but I know Helmi is innocent. She was sent to that place by someone and is shielding that person. Look at her letters, Evan—read them—and to think I doubted her and left her alone when she needed me!"

Eva took the letters in her cold hands, but she could not read a word. She was aware of my baby from another man," said Jack brokenly, "and it was his money Helmi got instead of mine. I thought her. Helmi had to beg for work and suffer things. Oh, what she says there—She can wait—I've a girl with baby." Wasn't it damnable, Eva? I rage when I think of it. I blame myself—I shouldn't have left Helmi saying—I'll never how ever sweet and good and true she was—I knew! But the person that sent her for the drugs and then did not let the person who should be shot, and I'll sift it to the bottom where I go back.

Poor Helmi, hurting in all because she was too honorable to tell!"

In his excitement and deep emotion Jack did not notice that Eva could not hear and spoken, but sat with bowed head, like a broken lily

Day and night and nights when the blossoms are just beginning to scent the breeze, when there are those lambkin antics of spring, and whisperings of spring. Even if invitations are at war and planning of the affection of each other, trees lost and blossoms open. The streets seemed quiet to Jack; but for the heavy rumbling of the buses no one appeared to be abroad

Suddenly the silence was broken by a weird, spitting noise as of giant fire-crackers: a sound of deadly import to the people of England, for it gave warning of the approach of enemy air craft.

"It's an air raid," he said, answered, without stirring. "They run to the tube stations; but I never go—I feel safer here—I have a dread of being smothered in those terrible places. I've been through three air raids already. So I am not afraid."

Eva spoke with a composure which she had assumed; anything even better than the maddening remorse that had swept over her as Jack told his story.

Jack went to the window and looked down into the street. Through the open window came the drone of the enemy's Zeppelins, malevolent, horrible, like the buzzing of some poisonous fly. There came a continuous rumbling of the anti-air craft guns, like withheld days of battle. The searchlights combed the sky with their ghostly fingers, and people came tearing out of their houses and raced through the dark streets.

Eva had often wondered how people would act during an air raid, He felt no fear for himself—it didn't matter to him that he could be in danger here in London—his fear was for Eva. "Hadn't we better go, Eva?" he asked anxiously; "it seems to be almost above us. Is the tube far away?"

"Not far—but I never go. Come away from the window. There—that's a bomb—not near enough to hurt us. Jack, they're coming nearer.

Come here, Jack, I feel dizzy—come to me—I want to tell you something. I know your friend in Winnipeg She is not to blame —I sent her, Jack. Forgive me— I sent her to Chinamen!" Ask her to forgive me, too. I have been sorry ever since

A bomb burst in the square. There was a shattering of glass and a crashing of masonry; a horrible confusion of shouting, tearing, and moaning, concussions, clanging fire-engines.

By a strange chance the house in which Eva had her suite stood though many houses in that vicinity fell. All the windows were shattered and on the window sill of the room in which they stood was thrown the body of a little dead dog

On the floor, where she had fallen, Eva lay, a piece of shrapnel in her head.

Jack stayed in London until Eva was out of danger She would recover, the white-uniformed doctor at Guy's told him, but of course she would be badly scarred.

Behind her bandages, Eva smiled feebly. "It's all right Jack," she said wanly, holding his hand; "better women than I have been blown to pieces. Maybe God is giving me a few more years to atone for what I have done. I have been a poor sport, Jack—I needed a smash of some kind —I am not complaining. Life is queer, Jack, isn't it? I wanted to show Humphrey I wasn't as selfish and shallow as he thought. He told me in the last quarrel we had, and the only one, that I would never be an old woman—I would only be a stale novelty. I was determined to show him I had some thought of doing things for other people, so I came to London and joined the V.A.D. work. What I really wanted to do was to drive an ambulance in France, but they wouldn't have me, on account of disfigurement. I hate ugliness so —far more than sin.

"I've sinned for a long time; "But now, with a shoe year on my cheek and my nose broken I will not be afraid. I will be brave and true. Jack, I can take the place of some better and happier woman, and when the shell-shocked men come back I will take me instead. And Jack," she continued, "you will tell Helmi all of this, and ask her to forgive me, for me as she can. She loved me once with all a young girl's adoration."

Jack had often wondered how people would act during an air raid, He felt no fear for himself—it didn't matter to him that he could be in danger here in London—his fear was for Eva. "Hadn't we better go, Eva?" he asked anxiously; "it seems to be almost above us. Is the tube far away?"

Remarkable Migration Of Game

Interesting Sight Is Witnessed By Geographic Society Expedition In Africa

A remarkable migration of game in the Tanganyika territory is reported by Carveth Wells, of the Geographic Society expedition. the reports being made from the party's first headquarters in the Tanganyika territory, East Africa, where they arrived on July 20.

Martin Johnson, noted animal photographer, who is in the same district with Wells, estimated that there are about 10,000,000 head of game migrating across the country in a solid mass ten miles wide and 30 miles long at one spot

Zebras were stated to be leading the way in a mass ten miles wide and five miles deep, followed by miles of gnus and other animals

The explorer's camps at the time reported was situated in longitude 35 east and about two degrees south of the Equator. Wells reported that notwithstanding this equatorial location the air was so cold he had to sleep in a sleeping bag and wear a thick overcoat and sweater, while he would have been very glad of a hot-water bottle at night.

The party had several exciting experiences with animals en route, particularly with some lions which investigated the car in which Wells was riding, coming to within fifteen yards of it and loudly sniffing away

THE CANINES

You have referred to your dog Rover as a canine that is what he is They both then that is the name of the teeth that the canines is called the because they being extra we developed in the dog and other carnivorous animals

The most primitive type of teeth, this is known also as the true type, is found in the porpoise. In this primitive dentition the crowns are simple conical teeth, the roots of which are short and single. The porpoise has no canines, but has a large number of these simple teeth in each jaw. Man has a dentition which shows the temporary teeth and the permanent teeth. In the temporary dentition there are no canines, but in the permanent dentition there are canines. The canines are the fourth teeth from the middle line of the mouth well fitted out for tearing. Like the incisors, they are simple conical teeth, the crowns of which are pointed. The roots are single and long. The upper canine is the largest tooth in the mouth, and the lower canine is the next largest. The canines are separate with the incisors on the one side and the premolars on the other. They are placed at the corners of your mouth and keeps nutrition

The point receiving the greatest strain in the upper canine is the distal surface of the crown. The lower canine receives the greatest strain on the mesial surface of the crown. The canines are the strongest teeth in the mouth. They are placed in the corners of your mouth and keeps nutrition

BAD SMASH-UP WEST OF TOWN

The Chevrolet coach of George Mix and a Whippet coach owned by D. Prymath of Chalfey figured in a collision on the highway a few miles west of town on Friday night last. Report Concerning British Miner Harvesters Misleading

The report broadcast that there was required no call for the British miners to harvest help was misleading to the public to derive as far as Vermilion and district is concerned. The miners are given here on Wednesday afternoon. Not 22nd 19 in number. By Thursday night there were only seven of the blokes left in town and this was only on account of a slight misunderstanding on their part as a few of the old country boys had had some experience with binders and had been hired to operate binders at $4.00 a day while stookers were offered $3.50 per day. A few of the miners failed to see the distinction and demanded four per also for stooking. By the first of the week all the British boys had secured jobs and left town for various farms in the district. Apparently the only thing that the miners were disappointed over was in not having enough of them left in town to make up a football team, as they had challenged the town boys to a game for Friday evening but this had to be cancelled owing to the inability with which the harvesters were rushed off to work

Is Your Child Handicapped?

Does your child's nose run or is it sore? Does the child sniffle? Are the eyes red? Does the child seem dull? Does it stand and look at you with open mouth? Does it put its hands to its head as though it had pain? If yes the child sleep with its mouth open? Does it snore? If the answer to any of these is yes, ask the doctor if the child has adenoids or large tonsils

Tonsils often become diseased and still remain in the throat. Sometimes diseased tonsils do not get any larger, but remain little pits filled with pus. Diseased tonsils hold poisonous germs which may cause throat trouble or may be carried to other parts of the body and cause serious sickness. Adenoids look like a little bead of cauliflower colored red. They grow in the back part of the throat where the nose and throat joins and can be seen only by the doctor with a special mirror. They grow large in some and make the child breathe through its mouth. When the child breathes through the mouth much dust and many germs get into the body. Adenoids should always be removed. Earache often means a child has adenoids. Earache always means the child is in danger of getting deaf, also there is the danger of run ning ears. A doctor should treat a running ear always. When adenoids grow or tonsils become diseased the glands of the neck try to carry off the poison. This overwork makes glands enlarge and lumps are visible on the neck.

Diseased tonsils and adenoids are reservoirs for poisonous germs that are frequently carried to other parts of the body and cause sickness. Rheumatism and heart disease often come in this way. Stomach, bowel or lung disease may also arise from the same source. A child with adenoids and diseased tonsils can get the communicable diseases such as scarlet fever, diphtheria, etc. very easily

Often children who seem stupid and who do not learn rapidly, can be made healthy and normal by the removal of diseased tonsils and adenoids. Don't wait thinking they will get better. It is dangerous.

CLEANLINESS VIA VINEGAR

Cleanliness by the way of vinegar sounds rather peculiar. But it is not. The flower vases need to be cleaned, but if they are boiled in hot soap-suds for hours, they still show the white deposit from the water. Try washing them with a solution of salt and vinegar. They come out clear as crystal.

The enameled breakfast table or work table always looks streaked, no matter how many times it has been wiped. A cloth, moistened with salt and vinegar solution, and rubbed over the table, will take away every streak and finger print, and make the table bright and shiny

The bone or copper set can be made to fairly glitter by a rub-down of this solution

Talking about cleanliness, instead of cleaning each piece of silver separately, put it all into a large aluminum kettle which contains boiling water, soda and salt. Let it boil for a few minutes, then remove silverware, rinse and dry. The silver will look just as clean as if each piece had been rubbed separately.—"American Cookery."

THE WAY (?) TO DRIVE

In one of our exchanges we came across the following. It is addressed to men, but the woman driver may enjoy it too. Paragraph four in particularly appealing:

The recipe for meeting Saint Peter? Here it is: Take any fool, add plain ignorance and a motor car, soak the fool well in his own sex, place in the car, and let go; after due time remove and set in a satin-lined receptacle and garnish with flowers

Always drive fast and never sound your horn when leaving an alley. Race with locomotives when approaching a grade crossing. Engineers will like it as it breaks the monotony of their jobs. Take the shortest route around blind left hand curves. Let the other fellow look out for himself. Never look around when you back up, as there is never anyone back of you. Always speed—it distinguishes you as a driver of pep.

Drive fast on wet pavements and never use non-skid chains—they is always something to stop you, often a heavy truck or a strong curb. Drive just as if there weren't twenty million other cars in service. In wet weather always drive in trolley tracks. It's smooth going and out of the mud. Always back your brakes and have your wood chains in the toolbox when skidding. It makes the job more artistic.

In sloppy weather, drive close to the curb and splash pedestrians; drg. dealers will appreciate it. Always use a cut-out; snappy drivers always do, and sick people love it. Never expend your horn on the road but save it for late at night as a door bell; in this way you are sure to get attention from mothers of sleepin children.

When driving at night, make sure one of your headlights is out; this makes people think you are Dead Eye Dick, which greatly enhances your safety. When stopping for traffic signals, always drive on the pedestrian's right of way and always make your "horsehoss" turns at intersections in the middle. Traffic is hastened.

The fool grins. That same grin is on his face when, later, he is hurried to the home—only then the grin is more horrible.

Canada's Migration Policy A Puzzle

$1,000 Foreigners Come to Canada, Only 50,000 Britishers, Says Lord Lovat

WINNIPEG, Aug. 24.—Although the unemployment situation in Great Britain is still sufficiently serious to cause the government considerable concern, Lord Lovat, under secretary of state for the colonies, who arrived in Winnipeg last night, considers that by 1931 at the latest a solution will have been reached and work will be available for every man in the United Kingdom.

"We have been finding billets each year for 125,000 new men," said Lord Lovat. "That is as good as Canada and Australia have been doing. We shall continue to place men at that rate and possibly faster as our industry expands."

The problem of the moment, he explained, is to find work for the miners who have been thrown out of employment by the depression in the coal industry.

Lord Lovat stated that he considered the feeling in England towards Canada to be somewhat more pleasant duly largely to the readiness which Canada showed in responding to the call for better plan now launched. "The thing which we in Great Britain do not understand," he said, "is the fact that Canada can take $1,000 immigrants from non-preferred countries annually and only 50,000 from the British Isles. We are told there are only jobs for that n any that country. I am sure Hon. Robb will agree with me that this is entirely wrong in principle that Britishers could fill some of these $1,000 jobs you have given to foreigners."

Lord Lovat hoped the campaigns of Canada and Great Britain would not only bring more attention to steps brought them by the manufacturers of injustices done them. "There are bound to be injustices on both sides," he said. "But these will also be overcome, not probably in a year, perhaps, or when the men have been absorbed and have kept the [illegible] of [illegible]

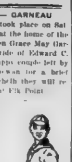
WOLF CUB NOTES



BEAR CUBS

In the Jungle when the Old Wolf is getting too old to lead the Pack, a younger and stronger wolf generally takes the honour, while the whole Pack [illegible] and by joining in and filling their old leader. I am glad to say this is not the case with the Pack at Vermilion Wolf Pack. The Old Wolf does not like to see his leader dropped still has all her teeth, and as one [illegible] is about to go away for awhile, so she cannot continue to lead the Pack.

For a time we were afraid the Pack might have to be disbanded for want of a leader. We were climbing round tails between our legs, feeling very sorry for ourselves, but Mrs Elford seeing our plight had compassion and has promised to carry on. Splendid of her, isn't it? Now let's all show our appreciation by giving her a good Wolf Cub Heel as she steps on the Council Rock. "Akela — We've-ll do-o-one BEST." Turn up to the meetings regularly with that Cub grin (don't leave that at home on any account) and D.Y.R. to make the new Akela proud to be your leader. Don't all bark and howl at once. Keep an alert ear for the whistle (for some of the Cubs have mislaid rather hard of hearing occasionally). Be obedient. Remember to keep the Law and Promise you made when you joined and D. Y. R. and I am sure the Pack will flourish. So here's good hunting to you from your old Cubmaster

AKELA

P.S.—Jimmy Curry wishes to say that there are no Wolf Cubs at Morinville. He misses the Pack and wishes he could be back with us. He sends his love to all the Pack and thinks the photograph Mr. Tillett took is fine. Cubmaster.

Where Co-operation Is Needed

The movement of ten thousand unemployed British miners to Canada to work as farmers' hands in the great fields of the West is no significant, and may have much far-reaching result that it warrants additional comment to that already given in a previous article in this column.

Suppose the scheme was reversed and there was a surplus of tens of thousands of farmers' sons with cash, built in Western Canada who could not find employment while on the other hand there was a shortage of workers in the engineering districts of the British Isles and the experiment was tried of transporting an army of men from the grain fields of the West to the mines of Britain.

Under such circumstances the sympathy of the people of Canada would go out to their kin across the sea. They would be in an unfamiliar country to engage in work of which they had no knowledge or training and to live under conditions entirely new to them. There would be hope in the hearts of the relatives and friends of the men in the British people and the mine owners would be unbiassed in their treatment lenient in their judgments, sympathetic and patient in assisting the strangers to adjust themselves to their new environment and to make good.

But sadly for Canada its people do not have to go abroad in order to find work and opportunity because nowhere in the world today is work more plentiful, or the chances of success greater than in the Dominion of Canada. The very fact that they would however but provide a greater incentive and a heartening welcome and a helping hand to these unfortunate brothers.

Subject to immigration restrictions there are the vast majority of them will come to Canada and in the course of a brief period will make a real determination to become permanent residents of the country, not merely but a permanent asset to the Dominion. The men will be prepared to do the work they are to undertake. Instead of working eight hours a day, they will be required to work from eight hours to daylight. Instead of the men was employed in the past, there will be required to do a full day's work, which is said that eighteen hours at work in the open fields at this season of the year would not be any worse than eight hours under ground in a coal mine.

Experience has proved that a large group of miners wrenched both to the British Isles, when they were determined to succeed and at the port of landing in Canada, and especially at Winnipeg, Moose Jaw and other points of distribution made up their minds that they were anxious to make a success in Canada and were hopeful of securing the work after the harvest and becoming permanent citizens of the Dominion.

These men by the act of their coming to Canada to harvest hands have shown that they prefer work, even hard unaccustomed toil to living in idleness on the dole in Britain. Each and every one of them had to pass a rigorous physical exam nation before being allowed to sail. They are, therefore the pick of the unemployed miners, and animated by a desire to 'make good' they should succeed if given a fair chance and a helping hand and encouragement.

That chance assistance and encouragement should be forthcoming on large measure from the Canadian people as a whole and, in particular from the individual farmers who employ them. It will be necessary to show them how their work should be done and how to do it. This will require tact and patience. Too much must not be expected of them. And the man who makes an honest effort to learn who shows a real determination to work and render service to his employer is deserving of every encouragement.

Such encouragement cannot be better shown than by a kindly, sympathetic attitude a personal interest in the men's welfare, and in all cases where it is possible to do so by the offer of a job for the winter. The knowledge that if he shows a disposition to make good, he will be provided with work for the winter, and thus given his opportunity to become a permanent settler in Canada will provide the greatest possible incentive to a man who is desirous of achieving that result. And it is settlers of this British type of whom Canada stands in need.

If both parties to the unique experiment strive to make it a success there is no reason why it should not succeed, and if it does prove successful, it is surely being judged by the results of the movement as a whole rather than by individual cases then it will be in all probability prove the beginning of a new and worthwhile immigration from the congested groups of the country—not from the foreign spoons of Canada, but from those where enough that favor can be found to help with an important factor in bringing large tracts of vacant lands to the cultivation and in providing the necessary man-power to develop many of the as yet untouched natural resources of the Dominion, thus making comfortable homes for themselves and adding immeasurably to the productive capacity, wealth and prosperity of Canada, and incidentally of the Empire as a whole.

No Menace To Consumer

British Delegate Returns Home Fully Impressed With Wheat Pool

"We do not agree with those who put in the words the menace to the consumer," writes Henry J. May, general secretary of the International Co-operative Alliance who was one of the principal speakers at the recent international wheat pool conference in Manchester, England.

Mr May expresses his views in the Co-operative News published in Manchester, England.

He states that the economy of production on large scale methods the elimination of the middlemen's profits and improvement in selection of seed, made it possible for wheat pool to bring larger profits from their crops and at the same time to give better values to the consumers.

British Immigration

Conference Between Lord Lovat and Ottawa Authorities Brings Results

When the immigration conference between Lord Lovat, head of the Empire Settlement Board, and federal immigration leaders concluded at Ottawa, an official statement was issued, saying "it is confidently expected that the result of these negotiations will be a steady increase in the flow of suitable British migrants to Canada."

The conference discussed various matters arising out of British emigration to and settlement in the Dominion, with particular reference to the measures to be adopted both in Canada and in Great Britain to give effect to the recommendations of the select standing committee of the House of Commons on agriculture and colonization. All the recommendations and other proposals made by Lord Lovat have been fully considered, with a thorough appreciation of the difficulties on both sides and in every case a satisfactory understanding had been arrived at, the statement said

Reindeer For Hudson's Bay Area

12,000 Reindeer Will be Sent Overland

Shortly after the farming season is over, 12,000 reindeer will be herded from Alaska to the shores of Hudson's Bay, according to W. A. Brandon, of the Canadian Reindeer Company. This is due to the rapid increase of the herd of 1,349 animals started in Alaska thirty years ago. Progress will be slow, the herd travelling about ten miles per day. But first the shortest route must be found and charted.

WAS VERY DELICATE

New Health Came Through Using Dr. Williams' Pink Pills

Mrs Cuthbert Miller, Lourdes, N.S., says that never in her lifetime she has reason to be thankful for what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for her. She says:—"I was a very delicate girl, and my health was such that I first found benefit from Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was a victim to cramps and pains every month and was hardly able to move around at all. One day when I was very sick a friend came in to see me, and spoke to my mother. 'Why not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills,' she said. She did so, and before a box of Pills was gone I felt much better. The result was my mother got six boxes and I began their use. By the time I had taken them all I felt quite another different girl and no longer suffered from cramps and pains. Then a few years ago I was attacked with influenza, and was ill for six weeks. Again I started taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and again they brought me good health. I am the mother of a family of five and my own health, as well as I have to keep in good health, and depend on Pink Pills to keep me so. Also I always recommend Dr Williams' Pink Pills to my friends when they be sickly."

Planting Trees On Highway

One Of The Most Beautiful Driveways In Western Canada Planned By Mr. Pat Burns

The main south highway from the Calgary city limits south to Midnapore, some ten miles, will be transformed into one of the most beautiful drives in Western Canada within the next two years as a result of the decision made by Patrick Burns, well known pioneer cattleman and rancher, to plant trees on his land, which skirts both sides of the highway near Midnapore.

Work of preparing the land for the tree planting is already under way, and the first trees will be planted next spring. The section between Calgary and Midnapore will be completed next summer, and it is possible that Mr. Burns will extend his activities further south the following year, as he has some considerable amount of land south of Midnapore.

ASK FEDERAL AID FOR HIGHWAYS IN THE WEST

Edmonton.—Launching of a strong campaign for federal aid for highways was expressed at a meeting of the northern directors of the Alberta Motor Association, held here, when A. B. Mackay, provincial president, and Fred R. Brason, head of the Calgary branch, were present. This will be following up the request made at the annual convention held last spring when a resolution asking the federal authorities to grant $500,000, which would be spread over a term of five years, was passed. The sum specified would be used for the Dominion and greatly aiding to Canada's tourist attractions in that way.

The federal grant of $20,000,000 made in 1919, and now exhausted was distributed on a basis of population to the provinces and it is felt that this basis works out unfairly on the far-flung prairies especially, and the first trees will be planted next spring. The section between Calgary and Midnapore will be completed next summer, and it is possible that Mr. Burns will extend his activities further south the following year, as he has some considerable amount of land south of Midnapore.

GOVERNOR SMITH STATES POLICY IN VIGOROUS SPEECH

Albany, N.Y.- With all the force of his remarkable Alfred Smith, governor of the state of New York, told an expectant nation what he would do if elected president, in aggressive fashion, he accepted the Democratic nomination with a speech which not only set forth his stand on prohibition, agriculture, foreign relations and other public questions, but accused the Republican administration of a failure to keep faith with the people.

As millions listened-in by radio, like new leader of the Democrats addressed the multitude of Alfred Smith, and gubernatorial mansion, Niagara guns and Mexican policy, and pledged himself to a "real" endeavor to outlaw it.

He also called for a reorganization of Federal Government activities on a business basis; declared that neither he nor the Democratic party contemplated "sudden or drastic" changes in tariff schedules; reaffirmed his stand for public ownership and control of waterpower, promised a special deal for war veterans, stressed the need for inland waterway development, reforestation and conservation of natural resources, and recommended progressive legislation for the protection and care of women and children.

While standing squarely on the Democratic platform declaration for prohibition enforcement, the nominee asserted that he was heartily in favor of removing from the immigration law the harsh provision which separates families," and was "opposed to the principle of restriction based upon the figures of immigrant population contained in a census 38 years old."

Rockford, Ill.—A long message has replied to be from the crew of the Greater Rockford was received by Joseph Lynch, an amateur radio operator, who declared he was in direct communication with the lost club honored for long distance.

The crew said, according to Will Issue:

"We are stranded on a small island two miles north of Newfound land. We are flanked by Swedes. Nobody remained the same. Please do all in your power to get help to us.

Williams then said he conversed with a member of the crew and in reply to a further question, said: 'Just say we are well and well.'

Then, Williams stated, the message was garbled and all he was able to get. The operator declared he haven't had any dear most since yesterday."

The communication ended, Williams said, when static began trying to get in touch with some station last night. Please hurry."

Williams declared the message was received on a wavelength of 42.8 meters at his station 9AME. He was in touch nightly with the call letters of the Greater Rockford radio station.

He stated that he first received faint signals at 11.30 and at 11.45 he could hear the sender distinctly although the interference was loud

This is the first time in the history of the city that this condition has existed, and it is said to be due entirely to the improved business conditions experienced here.

Earlier in the year there was one occasion when the city was able to borrow from the bank loans, but there was no surplus.

Advice To Dairymen

Hon. C. M. Hamilton Says Industry Here Is Not Behind Other Countries

Ottawa, Ont.- Bringing back some friendly advice for Canadian dairymen, Hon. C. M. Hamilton, minister of agriculture in Saskatchewan reached Ottawa. He is returning from the world's dairy conference in London, where 1,600 delegates representing nearly every country in the world "Canadian dairying," Mr. Hamilton observed, "does not appear to be behind other countries in the line of production and manufacturing The main difficulty seems to be in the uniform high standard of the herds. In that we are somewhat lacking but it is not surprising as in a number of the provinces dairying is largely a new art.

"To establish ourselves in the British market, as producers of butter or cheese bacon or any other agricultural product, we must not only grow on the market the high grade quality but also a steady volume Methods whereby we can secure supply is a large factor. We don't want to be able to supply occasionally and that is where we have to improve."

Mr Hamilton tells of the Hon W. R. Motherwell's trip to Europe. He endorsed all over the British Isles is going to Prince Edward Island. He said Denby up to the Dominion's every country.

MIGRATION PLAN IS ESSENTIALLY BRITISH PROBLEM

Toronto said. While the province of Ontario is willing to cooperate in every public way in the matter of immigration scheme suggested by Lord Lovat in Toronto, Premier Ferguson expressed the opinion that the matter was essentially a British matter than an Ontario problem

Discussing the conference held with Lord Lovat in his office here, the premier stated that he looked forward with great optimism to the first result although he admitted that the paramount question of finance had not been definitely settled.

CRAZY QUILT BASEBALL CHAMPS

In spite of having nine of the largest town stores in Western Canada, the local firm of Craig Brothers have on largest their floor space in order to give increased facilities to their patrons. This was carried out by removing the grocery department from the first to the basement floor where a first-class division awaited them, and thus allowed all the first floor space to be utilized for dry goods and clothing.

The basement grocery, which is as handsome as far as Vermilion is concerned, is located in the north end with entrance from a stairway leading down from the centre of the first floor. The change not only gives greatly increased floor space, but allows a more attractive and convient lay-out of the groceries and also serves to keep them cooler and fresher. This change is in accordance with Craig Bros.' general plan to supply every possible new and high-class facilities to its patrons

Clan Welcomed Distinguished Visitor To Colony

"When I return home I shall tell the people there how well you look, how happy you are and how well you are doing here," were the concluding words of Lord Lovat, British undersecretary of State, in a short but pithy address given by him to a large gathering of the Hebridean settlers at Clan Donald Friday afternoon last

The number of people who had gathered there was large and they had come from distances far and near; some 15 and 20 miles, and all of them dressed in their wagons. Indeed some of them came walking three and four miles. They wanted to see their High land chief, greet him in their mother tongue and impress upon him personally and good cheer to be carried back to the old land

As Lord Lovat took his place on the platform, erected on a small knoll overlooking a vast expanse of one of the finest sections of the district, he was greeted with the happy smiling faces of men and women who only a few short years ago were laboriously toiling for a living in the north of Scotland and of Ireland but who today were surrounded with broad fields of waving grain last falling beneath the knives of the binders

In his address Lord Lovat congratulated Father Macdonell on the great success of his enterprise here. Evidence of this he saw on every hand.

He knew he would see greater advancement when he next visited the settlement. "This is the land of opportunity," he said "and I know you will make good here and indeed you are now doing exceedingly well."

Before concluding his address Lord Lovat presented the prizes which were awarded as the result of a competition among the settlers for the best horse, farm in general. The first prize went to Patrick Dooley, who received a fine pedigree Ayrshire cow. Patrick McGrew won second place, his winnings being a pure-bred ram and four ewes go in for at stop, was the advice following the awarding of this prize. Hugh O'Rourke won third place and was given a pure bred Tamworth sow. Allan Mclnnis carried off fourth with a sufficient quantity of paint to paint all his farm buildings. Major J. A. McMillan was fifth and won a scuffler while young Neil Morrison got the consolation, a handsome rocking chair. Special mention was made of the young lad as the sole support of a widowed mother, whom afterwards Lord Lovat congratulated on having such a fine boy to help her Father McDonell was in charge of the entertainment and told the people of the intense interest taken in Lord Lovat in the motherland. Lord Lovat was a director at their society and a hearty contributor to its funds. With him was celebrated and he spoke of the success which this would have done.

The people of the Clan were then entertained by Mrs. Macdonell, assisted by Agriculture and of the homes and sundries. Miss Annie M. Kankiewicz of the household economics service of the government

Lord Lovat on Friday morning visited the Clansmen district at Lett Harbour and made favorable impressions on the grounds and buildings of the settlers' agriculture and the directions. Provincial Editor The party also visited several of the settlers in the Lindbon and colony also settlers under the "three thousand" scheme of the soldier settlement board

SMOKING TOBACCO
A Real Menace

Summer is on the wane The nights will soon be nippy and chill, and if we have not been careful to stock up on our bank of health with a little surplus of energy during the long sunshiny days, we may be disgusted to find ourselves with a developing common cold.

So declares the Canadian Red Cross magazine in discussing what it characterizes as a real menace in the country Coryza is the official name of the common cold, but the name is not very indicative of the nastiness of the disease at first blush. Coryza is a real menace. There is no other affliction that quite so universally causes discomfort or so great a loss of time for workman business man, and school child.

A lowering of vitality means a slow-down in usefulness or production and time lost in our busy age is a money loss somewhere, or somehow to someone Remembering however that a nation's health is a nation's wealth, we'll cease to think in dollars

The real menace of a cold is its possible bad after-effect on the individual As it is caused by varieties of bacteria very closely allied to those responsible for the pneumonias, for bronchitis laryngitis, and possibly catarrh it often leaves in its wake damage that are permanent

When we speak of "catching" cold we speak correctly, if by "catching" we mean getting it from the other fellow About ninety per cent. of our colds come from him.

Men rarely one may develop his own cold, for these germs probably are ever-present in the nose and throat and will multiply and thrive should the vitality of the host be sufficiently lowered to furnish a good culture ground for their growth

This may be effectively accomplished by avoiding fresh air and sunshine by going to bed sleep, by over-fatigue, or by living in over-heated rooms insufficient, improper, or excessive food or clothing assists greatly

But for the vast majority of our colds, we may blame close contact with our neighbor who coughs sneezes, and spits, and who uses his hand kerchief to saturation and then greets us with a friendly handshake

Ignorance of man-made laws excuses no one, ignorance or disregard of the laws of health eventually brings ill luck, or those who violate the laws of health should be regarded as having a dangerous communicable disease, and we should know enough, and our children should be taught, to avoid him. Even sensing people who realize this knowledge generally outstrips practice, and so and on goes the cold

The trouble is that the vast majority of people do not regard the common cold seriously enough If they did, or those near ones, contract tuberculosis, or are stricken down with pneumonia, they are seriously alarmed, but they overlook the fact that the common cold may be but the forerunner of these and other dread diseases Oh! it is only a cold they indifferently say with a shrug of the shoulders, ignorant or careless of the fact that the cold will quickly seize upon the weakest spot in the human body, whether it be the throat, the nose, the lungs the bronchial tubes, the heart, or the kidneys or at best reminds one that there is something seriously wrong it frequently is everlastingly too late

"It is the little things in life that are causing all the strife," is an old, old saying. It is also what we ignorantly regard as the little things that are responsible for most of the ills from which mankind suffers. Make no mistake about it the common cold is no little thing although we may look upon it as such. Get after it the moment its first symptoms make their appearance Better still, exercise all those precautions necessary to prevent taking a cold in the first instance

Finally, if you can't or won't dodge the common cold, then at least don't make it necessary for your neighbor to dodge yours

A TIRED-OUT FEELING

Is a Sure Sign That the Blood Is Thin and Watery

"I am glad to have an opportunity of testifying to the benefit I derived from the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills," says Mrs. Lawrence Kennedy, St. Joseph, N.B. She further says: "About one year ago I was working as a stereographer, and became all run down. I felt tired-out, had a tired-out feeling, had no appetite and suffered terribly from headaches. Almost every night I had to remain from the office for a day or two. My mother used to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I have reason to be glad that I followed this advice. Before I had been taking the pills very long I felt I was getting better. Continuing their use my strength returned, the tired feeling left me, and the terrible backache from which I had suffered almost daily, have been married some years now, and have a little baby girl, a dear little girl and a boy, and am in the best of health. All this I owe to Dr Williams' Pink Pills, and I firmly trust that these few lines may help some other tired-out girl."

All weak, run-down people who suffer from the many ailments that a fair trial will find through its use that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will get the pills from any dealer in medicine, or they will be sent by box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co Brockville, Ont.

The Family Ailing Stock

Resident Of Vancouver Makes a Most Interesting Discovery

Even the small family in moderate circumstances of today carries an annual amount of rolling stock, compared with the family of a generation ago. J. Butterfield, a writer in The Vancouver Province, makes the astonishing discovery that in one modern family there exists under one ownership one automobile, two bicycles, one express wagon, four roller skates, two scooters, a kiddie car and a baby carriage. Then there is the lawn mower, retained exclusively for one member of the family. Forty years ago a similar household contained two items of rolling stock, a baby carriage and a coffin-lid. Question: "Is there a boom in all Vancouver now?" asks Mr. Butterfield — Regina Leader.

Experiment In Immigration

Farmers Of Western Canada Can Assist By Providing Winter Work For British Miners

An experiment in colonization on a scale never before attempted is now in progress in Canada. Ten thousand men from the mining districts of England, driven out of employment by an attempt to maintain themselves and their families upon the dole, have come to Canada to help with the harvest and to start life anew if the opportunity to work after the harvest is over is afforded them. It is an experiment in which the British and Canadian Governments have co-operated and in which the railway companies and steamship lines are also assisting. And there is no reason why it should not provide the primary reason for making the attempt, the real purpose in regard to both, since and for all, that much-discussed problem of whether or not the British-born man is equipped a desirable settler for the west.

No one can estimate how far-reaching will be the effect of this success or failure of this experiment. Failure may retard the course of British immigration for many years. Failure may further the belief prevalent in many quarters in the British Isles that the men do not want the British-born. Failure may produce a general reaction which will injure Canada's credit in Canadian credit. Success, on the other hand, will effectively silence the criticism of British immigration policy. Success will give new hope and fresh endeavor to thousands of Britishers who impoverished and desirable citizens for Canada but who have been holding back because they believe they are not wanted here, or because they do not believe there exists in Canada the opportunity to which they have been accustomed. Success will enhance Canadian prestige in Great Britain and improve Canadian credit.

Speaking in Winnipeg early in August, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, former Premier of Great Britain, plonded for a warm welcome for these men. Such a welcome would, he said, be anywhere or not Canadians are genuine in their protestations that they are not discriminating against the British-born. There are now 10,000 harvesters have now arrived. Their welcome has been a warm one. The provincial governments, the municipal ways and civic authorities have cooperated in making them feel at home. Winnipeg has filled out of them as quickly as they reached Winnipeg, and all of them are now receiving wages that are good in years.

But to welcome them is not sufficient. The harvest cannot continue when winter sets in. Either work has to be found for these 10,000 men during the winter months or they must be sent back to England to spread stories of Canadian ingratitude and the lack of employment in the country. All of these men are willing and able to work. They will take any job that will keep them sufficient to feed, clothe and house the winter months. In the spring it will be easy to place them on the farms or in other forms of employment. But the winter months will tell the story of success or failure.

In providing work for these men during the winter months the farmers of Western Canada can render more than any other agency. For the expenditure of a very few dollars during the winter months the farmer will be enabled to employ one or more of these men. It is true many of them will be unskilled. But the wage will be that of unskilled labor and by the time spring rolls around the man will probably have learned enough to prove of considerable value to his employer in the plowing and seeding of the fields.

Such a system does not in the least smack of charity. It is sound business practice. For the investment of a few dollars per month the farmer will have help during the winter and, with the coming of spring he will not have to face the great problem of seeking in a highly competitive market for labor. That which he will pay out during the winter months will be saved by reason of the fact that it will not be necessary for him, in the spring, to engage new help at high wages.

The governments and the railroad companies are spending tens of thousands of dollars to bring this experiment to a successful issue It is to be hoped that the farmers and other employers of labor will also lend their aid in an issue of such paramount importance to all of its characteristics

MANUFACTURE OF ARMS UNDER LEAGUE CONTROL

Geneva.—Russia has refused to collaborate in present efforts of the League of Nations to obtain control of the manufacture of arms.

Maxim Litvinoff, Soviet vice-commissar for foreign affairs, in telegraphing this decision to Sir Eric Drummond, secretary of the league, pointed out his government's contention that the league had done nothing toward solution of the problem of real disarmament.

He insisted that urgent steps should be taken to obtain definite results and avoid the risk of future wars. An attempt to supervise the production of armaments is calculated merely to mislead public opinion of holding forth hopes of real disarmament, he asserted.

Meanwhile, Canada and the United States are co-operating in an effort to bring before the public mind the publicity concerning manufacturing of armaments. Their representatives, Ambassador Houghton of the United States, and Dr. W. A. Riddell, for Canada, voiced disapproval of a draft project reported to the commission which is trying to frame a convention for the control and manufacture of arms, on the ground that it did not go far enough.

Messrs. Riddell and Wilson favored giving to some governments the manufactured by governments as to arms made in private factories. Dr. Riddell contended that publicity pending largely on private manufacture should not be expected to furnish a solution, as it was pointed out that governmental manufacture were permitted to withhold such figures.

The draft convention now under consideration will be sent to the League of Nations council, which holds the league assembly, which is empowered whether, taking into account the difference of opinion in regard to the draft, it is desirable to call a conference for its discussion.

In France and Italy it is categorically denied that the provisional naval agreements between France and Great Britain contained secret clauses. Both British and French spokesmen deny reports that the agreement provides for parallelism in submarine naval construction, the limitation of powerful and offensive naval fighting units.

The British explain that the agreement was placed before the other naval powers to be used as a basis for discussion by the league preparatory to disarmament conference. The first session of the commission's next meeting depends on the result of these negotiations.

Chinese Facing Starvation

Crops In Many Districts Have Been Ruined

Shanghai, China.—The population of 1,500,000 in a district 30 miles wide and 100 miles long on the border of South Chihli, and Honanese Shantung, is facing death from starvation, said Earl Baker, secretary of the New York-China famine fund committee on his return from a visit to the stricken area.

"There has been sharp differences of opinion, both in China and the United States, regarding the necessity of relief measures.

Mr. Baker said he is convinced that relief must be sent at once. He stated that 150,000 persons were in an exhausted state of malnutrition and apparently doomed to death and that 20,000 were slowly starving.

Drought and grasshoppers have ruined the crops in the famine districts, said Mr. Baker. He added that the grasshoppers now form part of the diet of thousands of the starving people. Tree village, he said, was being fried grasshoppers on a wholesale scale, the insects being the only food of many houses which he visited.

Declares Navy Pact Letter a Forgery

Foreign Office Says Document Is Palpably False

London.—"We have now seen a copy of the letter which purports to have been written by Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary of state for foreign affairs, to Aristide Briand French foreign minister, concerning the alleged terms of an Anglo-French naval agreement, and we have no hesitation in declaring that the letter must obviously be a forgery. No communication, even remotely in such a form as suggested has ever passed from Sir Austen to M. Briand."

This statement was issued by the foreign office to the Canadian Press. The document, a summary of which was published widely in the United States and Canada and occasioned a great sensation, has now been received in London and is stated to be a most palpat and palpable forgery.

It is understood that the British government has asked instructing the British embassy at Washington to deny categorically the authenticity of the document.

Land Boom In Saskatchewan Did Not Materialize

Moose Jaw. Although conditions in Saskatchewan were propitious for a heavy rust infection during the month of July, the rust menace in Saskatchewan has not materialized.

This was the statement made here by Mr. P. Tullis, Field Crops Commissioner for Saskatchewan, following his return to this city from a visit of inspection to various districts throughout the province.

"While the heavy crop stands and the succulence of the leaves and stems of the grain, together with the unusual amount of moisture in the atmosphere during the month of July, indicated the possibility of heavy rust infection, the rust menace has been practically negligible," said Mr. Tullis.

There were two great airships now under construction in Great Britain, one by the government, the other by Commander Burney, and the latter was ready to have its trials toward the end of the year.

"I should be surprised," Mr. Williams said, "if we do not see the development of rapid mail communications between England and Canada through airships."

Mr. Williams was speaking at the first conference of the delegates at the Empire Press Conference, in session now visiting Canada. The conference was with members of the Montreal Board of Trade. The subject being empire transportation.

MORAL VALUE OF THE PEACE PACT IS NOW STRESSED

Paris.—Lord Cushendun, who signed the peace pact in behalf of Great Britain, Northern Ireland, and India, said that it was a great and historic event, but he cautioned against the inference that the activities of Secretary Kellogg, of the United States, in advancing the treaty meant that the United States would depart from its policy of aloofness toward European complications.

"So far as this pact is concerned," he said, "it carries with it no implication that the United States will not concern themselves with European matters."

The British minister emphasized the moral value of the pact, recalling that Napoleon once said that the moral factor in war was the moral factor.

"No it is in peace," Lord Cushendun said "that the moral factor is the most powerful."

Lord Cushendun said that peace is only to be found in the face of the negotiation of the treaty Aristide Foreign Minister Briand and Secretary of State Kellogg, but he paid all Mr Austen Chamberlain's work in the establishment in the previous he said he doubts remained on the evident sincerity throughout the Locarno and spoke particularly of progress in the Peace Rives country. Debris, Found Near Seattle Thought To Be Part Of Wreck Of Missing Plane

Lt Commander L. L. Bennett, directing the coastguard search for the missing plane, said he was convinced that the fragments of upholstery were from the giant aeroplane that he ordered flown from Seattle to Port Discovery, where the search was to be made by George A. Smith pilot, and Mr. and Mrs. F. C. Brown.

With the pieces of upholstery were several fragments of felt used to insulate the body of the plane from the engine

INDUSTRIAL GAINS ARE MADE BY GREAT BRITAIN

Minister Herbert G Williams M.P., parliamentary secretary to the British Board of Trade, addressing the Canadian Club here removed misconceptions abroad the effect of land

Some people think," he said, "that Great Britain has passed the peak and begun to decline. I am satisfied that this does not represent the facts

As an instance he pointed out that the export of electrical machinery had increased from £3,000,000 to £9,000,000 during the last five years and Germany first.

Great Britain leads both the United States and Germany

The number of people at work in Great Britain was three quarters of a million greater than before the war, or a total expansion greater than that of Canada

"We have made a total greater progress in the last fourteen years than we have," Mr Williams said. It was true that Great Britta also had a greater number of unemployed. That too was three quarters of a million greater than in 1914

Mr Williams urged further the development of trade between Great Britain and the United States. Trade between these two countries was not fully developed while Great Britain bought from Canada to the am um of $100 per head of population Canada bought from Great Britain to the extent of only $6 per head of population

Mr Williams pointed out how Great Britain had been able to retain her predominance at sea despite efforts made by other countries to capture it One attempt to capture it had been made by the people of the United States So far as I can see" he said, "they regret it."

HOLD DIVERGENT OPINIONS ON BANK MERGERS

Winnipeg. Divergent views on bank mergers were expressed by the presidents of two of the largest banks in Canada when they were interviewed here

Sir Herbert said: "There are times when large amounts of money are needed and we have to have strong banks to meet these requirements in England as in the United States a strong bank can serve its clients better than a weak one."

Lord Lovat Sees What New British Settlement Near Vermilion Is Accomplishing

Arriving here last Thursday afternoon, Lord Lovat and party lost no time in getting out to view the actual conditions as obtaining under the settlement scheme of the Scottish immigration Aid society and the British Dominions Land Settlement corporation, both of which colonization enterprises are continuous to the town of Vermilion. It was a perfect day and the land basked in glorious harvest sunshine. The hum of the binders was the music with which their advent to the area occupied by these new settlers was greeted.

The first farm visited was that of Tom O'Neil, a few miles north of Vermilion. Lord Lovat went over the building with an eye of a really valuable looked over the garden, the crops and the general outlay of the place. From there they went further north to the home of Major John McMillan of Highland pipe fame, who farms a half-section near Kitscoty and Edward school. The major was busy in the field with his crop and he has a good one. Over 20 acres of wheat which will average 35 bushels to the acre, and a 25-acre oat crop besides, with over 60 acres plowed and ready for the next year was his record. The major is only a little over two years on the place. Lord Loval came out of this man's farm with complete data as to the major's progress and what-not.

Another Instance

From there the party visited the place of Thomas McGregor who is settled on Range 5, Township 50. McGregor has 50 acres in wheat and 20 in oats and barley. Lord Lovat was greatly pleased with the progress made by McGregor and felt, as in the case of Major McMillan, that any advances made by the British immigrant were more than justified. The party next visited the place of a Scots settler named McIntosh, under the British govt. corporation scheme, and again were they greeted with the elements of success on the way back they were to the farm of C. E. Henry with a view of making an inspection of a type of house found on this place, that of stucco construction. Lord Lovat was very much impressed with the stability of the house and appearance and comfort. The trip took them three or four hours and gave the party quite an insight into the colonization scheme undertaken by those societies, especially by the Scottish immigration organization of which Rev. Father Macdonald is the guiding genius. Moving pictures were taken of the party's arrival at Vermilion as well as of their visit to some of the Clandonald settlement. The visitation here was under the direction of Father Macdonald, who is adding to his efforts to see that the party secured first-hand information as to what the people are doing.

Guest at Banquet

"Although I have traveled over a great deal of my fair land, I do not remember any section of the country that has greater promise than that which we visited this afternoon," declared Lord Lovat at the banquet tendered himself and party at the Dragoon hotel Thursday evening under the auspices of the board of trade, and covering particularly to the portion of the district of Vermilion in which the Clandonald colonists are located.

"I know of no place where British settlers seem to succeed as they do here," he said. "We are out here to try and further the work in which you engage in take a very kindly interest in Britain we have a surplus population and we are keenly anxious that this surplus should be placed in sections of our overseas countries where they can succeed and continue as vital constituents of the British Empire."

Speaking of the unemployment situation in England he said that this was never lower than it was now; in fact it is much better than prior to the war. There are, however, excellent openings for all who are fair minded they were anxious to find places in those parts of the empire beyond the sea. He felt it was the real wish of the people of Canada to see the right type of British settlers brought to this province. He acknowledged there was a feeling of misapprehension in England that her people were not wanted here.

"The most explicit message I can bring to England on my return will be that Canada does wish to see British people come here to help her in her forward march of progress and development."

He felt that Canada needed men to develop her agricultural resources. They had no surplus of agriculture but they could train them for that work. He said they were also desirous of getting work for families still in that they were being assisted by the railway companies and the government with a great deal of success. He said B' was their wish to divide their surplus population among the different parts of the empire where the most good could be and assist in the development of those widely scattered areas. In referring to the eighty-five hundred harvesters who had been sent out to Canada he said they were a batch of the young men and boys who Canada would make available to them the opportunity of succeeding in their vocation as much as that they will remain with and become a part of the dominion. Give them only the chance and they will make good.

Solution Co-Op'at

He took occasion to mention that the relations between the government of the old land and that of Canada were most cordial. He thought it was a great credit to the governments and the railway companies that these harvesters should be transported from England the the harvest fields without loss to them.

"I do hope," he said, "that after the harvest is over you will be able to find places for those men during the winter months and thus add to the splendid class of citizens you have in this country."

He thanked the people for the kind and generous reception tendered them. It was such gatherings as these and meeting people in their own homes that made these visits worth while.

His Worship Mayor Fuller presided and following Lord Lovat short addresses were made by J. W. G. Morrison, Principal Elliott, Col. Hattersley, D. F. Plant, secretary of the Overseas Settlement board, and Mr. Stallington of the British treasury department.

Sixteen Years Ago Today

Interesting items gleaned from the Files of The Vermilion Standard SEPTEMBER 4TH, 1912.

It is announced that one of the three agricultural schools which the government of the Hon. Arthur Sifton, premier of Alberta, have decided to open in the province, is to be built on the Beaconsfield farm in Vermilion. This is great news and is hailed with delight. The school will be utilized to give winter courses to farmers and farmers' sons. Besides this main purpose, summer schools for training public school teachers along the lines of agriculture will also be held. As the Standard predicted when this point was selected for the demonstration farm, it was bound to lead to something bigger as time passed and the needs of agricultural education could be met by the establishment of a school such as this and ultimately to an agricultural college.

Says No Nation On Earth Whose Position Is More Secure Than That Of This Dominion

"What we want, and what we must get, is that hearty unification to cooperative work, a pride in our own possessions, and a comfort in our own existence. Once—are the bonds that are going to keep the Empire United, not only for a day and generation, but for generations after generation. The British Empire stands above everything else in the world for freedom, openness, and freedom that is not merely political freedom."

With these words, Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the British Labor Party, and former Prime Minister of Great Britain, summed up a declarations of faith in the permanence of the ties of Empire, when addressing the Canadian Club of Montreal. Mr. MacDonald expressed confidence in Canada's future and asserted that the spirit of tenancy by which found in the Dominion was duplicated in Great Britain.

Mr. MacDonald agreed that trade preference played a large part in holding the Empire together, but said: "Trade is sometimes a fickle jade. It is too often the market place to be reliable. We must find something more."

Here Mr. MacDonald made his declaration of his idea of the essential bond of empire unity.

He continued with a discussion of freedom. A nation following the gleam of freedom, he said, a continuity. A commonwealth is formed in that would receive the homage of all the other nations of the world. That, he said, was his idea of the British Empire.

Mr. MacDonald's vision of Canada's future was given in the following words:

"Canada, and this is the last word I shall offer you, has a future that is secure. As the years go on your population will get bigger and bigger, your factories will become larger and larger. You will develop your transport, you will exploit your hidden riches. The great West will be peopled late will become busy hives of exploited industry. Canada, 50 years from now, Canada a century from now, what rein are you to put on your imagination when you try to picture it? My friends, there is no nation on the face of the earth whose future is more secure than yours. Wealth will pour into your lape, money will come to you in abundance Economic power will be yours. When some of this still new countries that are your neighbors will have passed beyond the middle age and begin to show flagging zeal of years, Canada will still be young. Canada will still be buoyant.

So my friends, with this feeling in my heart, I, who have led a party and headed a government composed mainly of men who before they came to rule had never entered public buildings except as applicants, I who will colleagues of mine when the British Empire means, not as red patches all the map, but as hours and hours days and days, weeks and weeks, and months and months, of almost unbroken labor required to be careful of the material I use, as required to guard it, required to advance it, required to keep its name and reputation clean and pure, I come to you, and there is nothing in my heart except pleasure in meeting you and honor for the nation, its past, hope for its future. Nothing but those things are in my heart and that is what I have been trying to say, imperfectly I am afraid, to express to you, while thanking you, for the honor you have done me."

Sweeter Than Sugar

South American Plant May Be Valuable In Modern Diet

A substance two hundred times sweeter than sugar cane has been found in the desert regions of Paraguay, in South America. Scientists are experimenting to see whether dry properties may not be valuable in modern diet. The plant belongs to the family of compositae, of which the sunflower and daisy are familiar representatives. The sweetness it contains is not a sugar, but a glucoside somewhat similar to that found in the root of licorice. The leaves are dried and ground up, and a pinch of them is added to anything that requires sweetening; or they may be soaked in water and a sweet liquor prepared. One of the most valuable qualities of this liquid is that it does not ferment. The possible uses of such a plant are more or less obvious. It will particularly interest sufferers from diabetes, promising to furnish them with a sweetening that has none of the harmful properties of sugar. Experiments have been required, of course, before it can be said that the new substance is wholesome and free from ill effects. Meanwhile, there is the possibility that by cultivating the stem does not terminate its life.

ADVICE TO PARENTS

Waywardness Of Children Largely Due To Lack Of Parental Discipline

General Draper, Toronto's Police Chief, is not concentrating all his efforts merely in improving the efficiency of the force itself. "He realizes that the success of any police system is dependent on the co-operation of the people at large and that intimately the best public protection is a high standard of public morals. In writing in Carry On, a local reference organ, he gives "some noteworthy advice to parents.

The Chief is old-fashioned enough to believe that the Fifth Commandment means just what it says to children; and that no better formula for child-training can ever be discovered than that inspired by a commanding enunciation of the children from the control and discipline of the parents, and is one of the most potent factors in the growth of those conditions from which youthful delinquency and lawlessness develop. This body of conditions, this criminal oestrix (if I may use such a term), is largely, if not actually created by the indifference, the lassitude, the neglect—or whatever you might call it—the failure by parents fully to perform their duties. The consequence is that the young of today are growing up to be pleasure loving and mind by filthy, suggestive, vicious literature, so easily obtainable and widely discussed on all hands; by moving pictures, many of which teach everything but virtue, and demoralize the youth of the land more than can be committed; and by frequenting with idle, loose company in dangerous pleasure resorts. Undoubtedly society is much to blame for not suppressing such literature and pictures and resorts; but, nevertheless, the parents, being bound by their duty are primarily to blame for the condition of the young ones."

Chief Draper agrees with a noted Western Canadian, Rev. Brother Joseph, that there is too prevalent a tendency to leave growing children too much to their own devices He urges athletic sports on the grounds that "a sound body makes a sound mind." Of far more importance than athletics, or organized "ralling," he judges the example of elders: "Youths cannot be expected to have any respect for law and order when their elders disregard the law. Greater care must be exercised in the education of boys in character building, and more attention must be paid to the in their spare time; and last, but not least, example must be set by the older elders which it would reflect to a boy's credit to follow. — Toronto Globe.

Why Russia Imported Wheat

Late Harvest and Depleted Reserves Is Given As Reason

The fact that Soviet Russia recently has been importing wheat was admitted at Moscow by A. Mikoyan, trade commissar, in an interview with the newspaper Pravada.

Mikoyan said because of the late harvest and depleted reserves, the government has been unable to supply needs to the districts where the crops suffered from the drought. The government, therefore, purchased 270,000 tons abroad, of which 90 per cent. already had arrived and the balance was expected before the end of this month. Despite the necessity for importing wheat, Mikoyan said he expected the crop to exceed last year's.

Explorations Reveal Character And Resources Of The Great Northern Plains Of Canada

Maps Must Be Accurate

Map Making Is An Art That Requires Great Exactitude

The lithographing of maps is a craft requiring great exactitude, and lithographers have many troubles. Not the least of these is with paper that shrinks or expands though ever so slightly under varying weather conditions.

In Britain's African colony of Gold Coast all color printing for maps has to cease during January when the harmattan blows. The dry wind following rapidly on humid conditions causes a change in the paper of as much as a quarter of an inch in a sheet two feet square. The maker is impossible to secure registration of the colors in their precise places in the maps. Map-making in Canada is subject to the same difficulties, but in a lesser degree."

Paper used in map-making is of a superior kind specially made for the purpose. Most of the papers used for commercial purposes are too porous and too susceptible to damp for high class map work. Even when plaster of Paris and other fillers are used on them they are still subject to such great changes in dimensions as to be of little use for lithographing maps.

Alberta Macaroni

Lethbridge-Made Product Is Shipped To New Zealand

Macaroni from the Columbus Macaroni Factory, at Lethbridge, is starting to invade the New Zealand market. A car of Lethbridge-made macaroni left recently for New Zealand. The order being placed as the result of samples sent by the local company last January. The report from the New Zealand dealers was that the local macaroni was "second to none." There is now no duty on Canadian macaroni entering New Zealand, and a profitable market there is anticipated. An effort is now to be made to enter the Australian market. Mr. Reader, head of the Columbus Macaroni Factory, has returned from Italy and installed the largest and most up-to-date macaroni press in America, by which will enable to double the capacity of his North Lethbridge plant.

Good Work Of Reclamation Service

Henry Gumbo Land In Alberta and Saskatchewan To Be Cultivated

As a result of experiments of between five and six years' duration conducted by the Calgary Branch of the Water Power and Reclamation Service of the Department of the Interior, between 5,000 and 6,000 acres of heavy gumbo land known as the Maple Creek flats in Alberta and Beaubatchewan, will soon come under production for the growth of alfalfa. By irrigating a couple of town lots and experimenting with forage crops, it was proved that alfalfa and sweet clover can be grown on these flats and Reclamation Service has undertaken irrigation project to serve the whole lands will be developed.

Rust Resistant Wheat

Encouraging Results Are Obtained In Making Experiments This Year

"We are holding our breath," remarked L. N. Newman, Dominion cerealist, who is in the West, the expectation referring to the development of a grade of wheat that will be rust resistant. Mr. Newman is working into the situation of "Reward" wheat, which is not rust proof but grows so quickly as to be matured before the rust season develops with the humid weather This year "Reward" has been sown on 600 acres of experimental farms, while 467 farmers are growing it from limited samples distributed among them. The result so far is stated to be most encouraging

Rainy Pheasants in Alberta

The Medicine Hat Fish and Game Association have been experimenting with the raising of pheasants by supplying different people with the eggs. The Association now possess 22 young birds and, in addition, will shortly have 20 grown pheasants shipped to them from Oregon.

Traffic Cop "Hey, who do you think you are?"

Driver: "Oh, I'm just one of the taxpayers that pays you your salary for insulting me!"

Your efforts to please others invariably afford you pleasure.

A SUGGESTION

One of the matters which the town council are probably considering in connection with the extensions to our power plant, is the better lighting of the streets of the town. In this regard the Standard would suggest that every house lighted by electricity be allowed a light on the front verandah or on the front of the house free of charge. The connection for the free light to be made outside the meter, the house-holder supplying the lamps. Such a policy, we think, would result in effectively lighting up many of the now very poorly lighted streets and obviate the necessity of going to much heavier expense to obtain results not so satisfactory.

AN ENROLMENT

An enrolment of 95 students in the high school with definite word of 11 more to enter, was the report given to the board at its regular monthly meeting last night, by Principal Marble. This is a few higher than at any time last year and will likely be further increased during the term. Principal Stewart reported 219 enrolled in the public school with still a number to come in. The peak last term was 275. The boarders totalled 11 and indications are that an additional room will have to be opened after Christmas. Grad-IV has been added to the South Side school for the convenience of pupils located there.

EIGHTH CROP REPORT

Issued by the Department of Agriculture, Government of Alberta.

Edmonton, Sept 4, 1928

Broken weather during the first two weeks in August retarded the ripening of crops and delayed harvesting a few days. The warm weather of the past few days has, however, been beneficial in drying out the grain crops and in ripening the late grains, and cutting is now general over the entire province. Threshing returns generally reports 75 p.c. of cutting done and threshing expected to be general by next week. Cutting and threshing returns of the province report 25 to 30 p. c. of cutting done. Very little threshing has been done in the province to date and no estimate can be made at the present time of the yield of the different grains. We do not anticipate, however, any increase in total yield of wheat over that of 1927. The quality of the grain being harvested throughout the province is good.

Frosts have occurred in almost all parts of the province but these have been confined to small areas and the average percentage of damage from frost for the province will be small, not more than 10 per cent at the most. Hail damage has been heavy also in a few districts but the average for the province will be less than last year. The percentage is estimated to be approximately 1½ per cent of the insured acreage as against 17 per cent last year. The crop in general has been singularly free from disease and insect pests.

Labor appears to be plentiful throughout the province, wages running from $3.50 to $5.00 per day Swathing machines and combines are being used more generally in the province than was the case last year and harvesting should go forward rapidly

The acreage sown to wheat will be less than estimated at the beginning of the season owing to the dry weather at wheat seeding time. This land however, was sown to coarse grains and the total acreage of the province is approximately the same as reported

The best crop of Southern Alberta is progressing well and promises a good yield per acre

LOCAL PEOPLE IN BAD MOTOR SMASH

(From the Sherbrook Record, Que.)

On Sunday, August 12th, a rather serious motor accident occurred on the Stanbridge East road, the scene of several previous motor accidents, when Mrs. Cox (nee May Nicholson), Alberta, sustained a fractured wrist and a broken nose, as well as severe shock from flying glass and other bad bruises. According to report, an approach car ran in ahead of a team driven by Mr Boomhower and crashed on to the car driven by Mr. Cox who had his wife and small children with him. Mrs. Cox was the only one seriously injured though the others were badly bruised and shaken up and the car badly damaged Mrs. Cox was immediately taken to the General hospital Montreal, for treatment, and we under stand will soon be able to return to Bedford. Mr. and Mrs. Cox and family who motored east from their Alberta home have been spending a few weeks with Mrs Cox's mother Mrs. Alfred Nicholson and intended leaving the next day for their western home

OFFICIAL WHEAT POOL STATEMENT REGARDING INITIAL PAYMENTS

The Central Selling Agency issued an official statement August 27th by E. H. Ramsay, Secretary and Manager, announcing that the initial payment of the 1928-29 crop will be $1 per bushel, basis No. 1 Northern, at Fort William and Vancouver

"The Wheat Pool Board in taking this step is following the same conservative policy pursued from the forma tion of the Pool," Mr Ramsay stated "The initial payment made by the Al berta Wheat Pool when it began operations in 1924 was 75 cents per bushel The initial payment for the four subsequent years was $1.00 a bushel The initial payment has always been based upon market conditions at the opening of the crop year and bears no relation to the price per bushel ultimately received by the Pool members

Old Crop Sets Out

"We are starting the new crop year practically sold out. The rumours which have been circulated during the past summer in respect to the large stocks of wheat held by the Pool are therefore refuted

"The recent Pool interim payment which brought the payments already made to our members for the last year's crop up to $1.40 per bushel, basis No 1 Northern at Fort William and Vancouver, should have made any reference to such absurd rumours unnecessary. The reforestation of the Pool by the great majority of the grain growing farmers of Western Canada who have signed up for another five year term is sufficient proof that the faith of our members in orderly marketing has not been shaken."

Question of Good Business

The above statement is self-explanatory The drastic drop in wheat prices has resulted in a decision to lower the initial Pool price. It is a question of sound judgment and good business There need be no occasion for alarm among Pool members On the contrary, members may feel for ther that their organization is operating on a sound basis

The first duty of the Wheat Pool directors is to see to the safety of the organization. That is the prime motive behind the reduction in the initial price The directors are entrusted with a trust responsibility They cannot by take any stand that would endanger the Wheat Pool Thoughtful and reasonable Pool members will at once realize the soundness of the position taken by those into whose care the Pool is entrusted

The probability is that the members of the Wheat Pool will at once come to an attack on the organization as in the past members have stood by their guns and refused to be stampeded They will do all in their power to resist anti Pool propaganda at this time The crop year has only begun The bulk of the 1928 crop has been marketed as yet

The combination of causes which has resulted in rapidly falling wheat prices can in no way be attributed to the Wheat Pool The Pool wheat from the 1927 crop was sold entirely The Pool carryover was a nominal one It was the non Pool carryover of Canada Wheat that caused a great deal of the damage

A Policy of Safety

The Wheat Pool has never guaranteed an initial payment as an investment, or a final payment Nonetheless the Pool ever claimed it could fix the price of wheat at a certain point These statements are well known facts. What the Pool does guarantee is that the members receive the full average return getting a year's operations. Without a Wheat Pool the farmers of Western Canada would be in a far more serious situation right now They would be faced with the necessity of dumping a large crop on a sagging market over which the board of element has gained a nominal control With the Pool functioning the farmers may have hope and confidence

While the Wheat Pool directors very naturally would have preferred to have retained the initial payment of the $1.00 figure as originally announced, they followed only a policy dictated by safety and good business principles in reducing the amount They are custodians of the property and interests of Pool members and as such are guided by a policy founded on common sense

VERMILION DORMITORY FILLED TO CAPACITY

The large $150,000 co Dormitory provided by the Provincial Legislature for the School of Agriculture at Vermilion is likely to be filled to capacity during the coming winter. As early as July applications were received and during August from five to ten per day have been received from students who are anxious to have a place in the splendidly equipped dormitory.

Up to September 1st 182 students have applied for admission. This is a month earlier than applications have been received in former years and as the great majority of the girls and boys who attend the school range in age from 16 to 24 or 25 it speaks volumes for the practical nature of the Agriculture and Household Science work that is given in the course It looks now as though there will be about 200 students attending the Vermilion co Last next winter and those who intend to apply for admission had better give the matter their immediate attention

The course is free as there are no fees Board and room will cost $1 00 per day for the few winter months. The school opens October 30th, which is after the threshing and fall work is well out of the way, and the course is completed by March 29th, so that the boys and girls are home in plenty of time for spring work

Marshal Emile Fayolle, Marshal of France and one of the great French writers that the war produced, died in Paris recently.

According to members of the Canadian Olympic team, much confusion was engendered over the treatment accorded Canadians at Amsterdam.

What is termed "encouraging" is needed to fight an epidemic that has been established by the Winnipeg Rifle Club when members have lost a game by single shots. The latest victim opened on May 24 on the year.

Sharing Does Not Worry Gwenth

Dr. Mildred Trotter has proved to her entire satisfaction that sharing does not increase the rate of growth of the board. Precise measurements of board showings supplied by four students over a period of nine months were used in the test. She also found that hair does not grow continuously, but in short spurts, each of which is followed by a short rest.

Rural Mail Service

Rural mail services in Canada are steadily increasing. A maximum of 20 rural routes has now been reached, the representing an increase of about 600 compared with a year ago. The most notable development is in the Western Provinces, more demands coming from there than from other sections of the country.

These still permitted a visit to Holyrood House to a reception by the Lord Provost, Sir Alexander F. Grosset, at the City Chambers. Holyrood, built in the French style, is still used by the Royal Family. It has been the scene of many stirring events. Cromwell stationed some of his troops there before the Battle of Dunbar, in 1650, but its chief interest is as the most people were in connection with Mary Queen of Scots, in Mary's Audience Chamber we saw the little oratory where she used to pray. The bed, chairs and furniture are those believed to have been used by Charles I. The suite of Queen Mary's bedroom are hung with tapestry. The canopy and head of the bed are of crimson damask with green silk fringes and tassels. It was this suite that the bed we have is modelled. The room entering the Queen Mary's apartments is of course the little supper room with white ceiling for private dinners. It was of upon by consider- with delight I saw through the windows and the Auberge Chapter to the head of the priest's staircase. Here they left us ready for supper.

The Picture Gallery in the Palace of Holyrood contains the portraits of all the kings "who reign Scots," if they have existed at all, lived before the invention of painting in oil colours.

Sir Stanley Cursitor, the Quadrangle are parts was photographed as a group for the first and only time that has proved possible.

The reception at the City Chambers was very splendid. Tables were due to reach Glasgow by six o'clock, but the entertainment did not shall never forget the cordiality of the welcome we received, or the happy fashion in which the dignity of the occasion was relieved by the warm-hearted brotherliness. The Lord Provost and the City Council were in their red robes of office, the Pipers played, and the whole scene was picturesque depicting the history of the City added to the impressiveness of a happy occasion. Owing to the absence of the Lord Provost in London where he was receiving honorary degrees on the following morning we were received by the Magistrates.

Our earliest scheduled appointment for us on our first morning in Glasgow when we breakfasted with the officers of the Until 1 o'clock we were busy receiving at their place, where the President, Mr. Alexander Paterson, welcomed us. Our trip through the bakeries was full of interest. In one department we saw the baking of one day's supply of the 600,000 loaves that are baked every week. In another, wonderful machines are handled by many girls, obviously happy in their work, were turning out biscuits at an extraordinary rate. Over 60,000 tins of biscuits are baked in one week. 22,000 packets of cookies, and 6,500 packets of pastries are made and shortbreads (over 140 varieties) are daily turned out. The Society is truly co-operative, the very bakeries having been built by the Society's own master-masons and staff. The United Co-operative Baking Society serves 224 co-operative societies and its annual output is worth over $6,000,000. The baking plant is the largest in Europe if not in the world.

We next visited the Shieldhall works of the Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society, which supplies the co-operative idea carried into the realm of industry and its application to the purchase distribution and even manufacture of goods for the benefit of a number of individuals working together in their mutual interest. The Scottish Co-operative Wholesale Society came into existence in 1868 through the federation of retail co-operative societies. Its initial capital was $5,000. Its capital today is $15,000,000 and its annual sales total $30,000,000. The Shieldhall Works through which we passed were devoted to the manufacture of furniture, boots and shoes. We also visited the printing establishment, where we saw the latest type of two-colour printing machine which prints on two colours on one operation.

Forty-eight factories are operated by the great Society, and it was especially interesting to us to [illegible] that it possesses 2,160 acres of farm lands. As is well known the Society maintains an office in Winnipeg and elevators in Western Canada and it was our pleasure to meet the Canadian Manager of the Company, Mr. John Fisher in the Shieldhall Tea Room, where we were entertained to a delightful luncheon under the cordial presidency of Mr. R. Stewart, chairman of the Society.

A full day was completed by a meeting with the representatives of the wholesale fruit, provision, grain and flour trades in Glasgow. Once more we were treated to the outspoken frankness like to which we have come to expect when dealing with leading business figures during our hour. The particular session was perhaps the most productive of any that we had attended.

Our next day's programme had been anticipated with more than ordinary interest, for we were to visit the world's leading Clydesdale stud, probably the best breed known. Anywhere breeds in existence and the wonderful Dunalastair herd of Aberdeen-Angus cattle; and in addition, Burns' cottage and the Brig o' Doon.

First we went to Craigie Mains, Kilmarnock, where Mr. James Kilpatrick, famed not only as great breeder of Clydesdales but as well, showed us the finest horses in his stud surely never were nobler specimens of the Clydesdale breed ever brought together. As one beautiful animal was succeeded by another, we became lost in admiration for the truly aristocratic breeding and the high individual merit shown by the stud. Such horses as "Craigie Sir-

Then a few hundred yards from the Kilpatrick house, where we were most hospitably entertained, are the ruins of an ancient castle the stronghold of an uncle of the great William Wallace. Close by a monument marks a spot called Burnwynd, from which tradition says Wallace looked back to watch the burning of the barns to which he had barred English soldiers after a number of his followers had been treacherously slaughtered. Hence the saying "Wallace wood" "The burns of Ayr burn wood." Hence the persistence of the name Burnwynd.

Golden Text: "For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and Him crucified."—1 Corinthians 2:2.

Lesson: Acts 17:6-18,17; 1 Corinthians 2:1-16; 1 Timothy 2:5-7.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 119:9-16.

Explanations and Comments

Paul At Athens, verse 1.—After leaving Berean, Paul went on to Athens, as we shall see, where he was rescued in the synagogue with the Jews and proselytes in the marketplace to all who would listen. Athens had a famous university and was the headquarters of the various philosophical schools; among them Luke mentions the Stoics and Epicureans; certain of whom encountered him and said, "What would the babbler say?" and others of whom said, "He seemeth to be a setter forth of strange gods," because he preached Jesus and the resurrection. Parenthetically Luke observes, "Now all the Athenians and the strangers sojourning in it spent their time in nothing else, but either to tell or to hear some new thing." Those Luke spoke as the strangers sojourning in it were the best kind of people to tell there when his new teaching was.

Paul addressed the waiting crowd. He referred to an inscription which he had seen on one of their altars, "To an Unknown God"—and said that the one whom they worshipped in ignorance he declared unto them. God who made the world does not need to dwell in temples, nor does He need anything from men, for He is the source of all life and of all things. He made all nations one family, that they should live and seek and find Him, but He is not far from everyone, for He lives each one lives. God's children, we ought not to think that our Father is like any of the images by human Their ignorance God had overlooked in the past, but now He calls them to change their views, for there will come a day when He will judge the world by One whom he has appointed, and the whole world knows Him.

In the interests of world peace Minister of War Painleve, of France, announced that he would ask the cabinet to change the title of his department to the "Ministry of the Army." Painleve's original plan was to propose the establishment of a "Minister of National Defence," but this could have been accomplished without the amalgamation of the present war and navy departments.

Making French Real

Suggest Quebec Scholarships For High School Boys

After wrestling for a generation with American boys to whom the French language was about as vital as Sanskrit, Mr. Horace D. Taft, principal of the famous private school at Watertown, N.Y., has put into effect a new idea that promises to change the whole situation. It began with a sudden realization of the fact that just north of him is a French-speaking and French-living Canadian province. Mr. Taft thereupon wrote to the superintendent of public instruction in Quebec and asked if some of his boys could be given a half-dozen Quebec scholarships each summer to Alberta high school boys and girls who had demonstrated their ability in French as an important curriculum subject, a great living language, and by no means unworthy study in federal matters. What is the department of education doing to make it vital in the province of Alberta? — Edmonton Journal.

From Ottawa comes the estimate that the population of Canada is now 9,653,000, or an increase of 190,000 over last year. The total is not large but then prosperity cannot be measured by density of people. If it could, India and China would be the most prosperous lands of the world.

CONCLUSION

At Arthur Warner's bungalow the flowers were blooming. Hollyhocks stood straight and tall against the house, with their quaint, old-fashioned rosettes in prim rows on the stakes, crimson and cream and white. Arthur had planted them, but had not seen the bloom. The walk from the house was bordered with round clumps of dwarf nasturtiums, orange and red, alternating with mounds of sweet alyssum and candytuft, white as snow, and at their feet in a straight line, marking the edge of the gravel path, ran a line of ground lobelia as blue as the sky above.

On one side of the walk stood a rockery of stones from the river, which Arthur had contemplated for years, from which now grew trailing nasturtiums, in all the shades from creamy pink to scarlet and crimson peeping out from their glossy green leaves. On the other side was a rustic bench and table, where Arthur hoped he could sit and think and dream, watching the changing lights upon the mountains.

Here at Helmi, thinking and dreaming this Saturday afternoon in his August. He had left Helmi gone to Eagle Mines—Rosie and Danny Corbett who were spending the holidays with her; old Sim and young Lill, the latter now an exquisite young lady of two and a half years. The teacher, too, who boarded at the bungalow had gone with them.

Twice a week Helmi sent to town a load of vegetables and fresh fish from the English River, and Kendity her savings in the bank were increasing. It seemed a long time since she had climbed into the old buckboard, with Lill on her knee, Cleo close behind her, and the pups in a box behind, and canvassed the neighborhood to see whore she could get a new "un items to sell purchase." She had been successful in her quest, and brought the cow home with her; the next week she got into the house and washing for the numerous and increasing Peterson family, three miles away.

Helmi thought of her neighbors now with real affection They had all befriended her, and she was glad that Arthur Warner had learned to know them better. Helmi ha dtold them quite frankly all she knew about him, and when his letters came she made no secret of them. When she made the suggestion that week-end visits should be held at his house, where knitting and sewing could be done for the soldiers, the women gladly came, and a new spirit of friendliness came to the settlement Every week a letter was written to him, and parcels sent, and so it came about that, though thousands of miles intervened Arthur Warner had come to know his neighbors and they him.

No letters had come from Arthur now for several months and Helmi feared that the shadow she had seen upon his face the day she said goodbye to him, had fallen. In her dreams she had seen a luminous figure, all in white, that had walked over to Arthur and tapped him on shoulder, and he nodded his willingness and went away, and the name night Cleo had fretted and cried all night and would not be comforted.

But the boxes went every week, for Helmi and the women knew that those poor soldier would be happier for them.

Of Jack she had not had a word, and in the midst of all her happiness and achievement there was the one sore thought which sometimes required all Helmi's faith to drive away. Jack's face, so and and drawn, drifting away from her on the silver waters of the moonlit lake, filled her heart with pain.

Then Helmi had not forgotten the experience she had the night of the storm, when her soul was lifted high above the mists of earth.

The hearts of the women were knitted to Helmi's because she had a way of comforting them in their sorrows. There was strength in the touch of her hand, and healing in her presence

"I know what she's done for me," old Sim would often say, "when I got crippled for good and couldn't do my work in the mine any more, there was Helmi, she said; I ans all alone except for little Lill and the dogs, and Helmi she says to me, 'Stay with company'—makin' out I would be doin' her a favor. Look what a home she has given me."

It was Helmi, too, who discovered the seam of coal a little further up the river, shining and hard, that burned with a blue flame and gave off more heat and burned longer than any coal she had ever seen. It was Helmi who persuaded Sim to go and stake a claim there, and who kept him from getting discouraged when the first shaft he sank proved worthless. It was Helmi who discovered the spring of water in the bush near by, more, and it was Helmi who persuaded Sim to build a log house there, and to get a horse and wagon with his first earnings.

Helmi thought of her self-forgetting ministry to others as she sat in the twilight by the window of the bungalow and gave herself up to the joy of being in this glorious spot at the height of the tourist season. It was the first prosperity of the land of their birth—the native sons of Canada. Do not think the opening chapters appearing next week

THE BICUSPIDS

"Count them"—two in line back of each cupid, making eight all told in the mouth. Each has only one cusp—or tooth—so this, then is a bicuspid tooth.

(You have doubtless observed, however, that the inner cusps of the lower molars is not nearly so well-modelled forms of the original full cusps). Then, they are also called pre-molars "pre" meaning "before" you get your "molars."

This tooth erupts generally from the fourth to the twelfth years and though chiefly utilitarian yet it has many conducive functions as well as to prove this save up your best jobs and let it do your neighbor's dirty work. Everybody observes the open space marking a missing bicuspid which you had probably not noticed before.

To paraphrase "Lead laugh before you meet your wife."

Now there is a danger peculiar to the upper bicuspids which is this. That tooth lies in a position just below the floor of the nose and the roots of these teeth are separated by the latter from the end of the root or roots.

Should, then, decay proceed so far as this tooth as to infect the pulp, causing it to die, with a resultant abscess, it occasionally happens that you will burrow into the antrum including it and with the consequences generally necessitating an operation at the hands of the surgeon.

Still your dentist that you want your bicuspids well, not just reasonably well. The responsibility is then his

SAVE THE CHILDREN

In Summer When Childhood Ailments Are Most Dangerous

Mothers who keep a box of Baby's Own Tablets on hand have found that the lives of their little ones are frequently saved during the hot days of summer. Stomach troubles, cholera infantum and diarrhoea, which cause the deaths of little ones every summer, in most cases begin with constipation. Do not have a safe medicine at hand to give your baby when it is needed, and relieve these troubles, or if given occasionally to the well child they will prevent their coming on. The Tablets are guaranteed to be absolutely harmless even when given to a new born baby, are especially good in summer because they break up colds, regulate the stomach sweet and purify the blood. They strengthen the baby by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

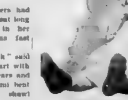
What Will you do



When your Children Cry for It

There is hardly a household that hasn't heard of Castoria! At least five million homes are never without it. If there are children in your family, you've almost daily need of it for comfort, and any night may find you very thankful you have it in the house. Just a few drops and that colic or constipation or sour stomach or diarrhoea checked. A vegetable product; a baby remedy meant for babies; Castoria is made to be only thing you have ever heard doctors advise giving to infants. Stronger medicines are dangerous to a tiny baby whose little system must be built up for grown-ups. Good old Castoria! Remember the name, and remember to buy it. It may spare you a sleepless night or worse. It is always safe to use; in emergencies, as for everyday ailments. Any hour of the day or night that baby becomes restless, or revives. Castoria was never more popular with mothers than it is today. Every druggist has it.

They arrived back in town on Monday evening, Doug and Geoff claiming that they had the time of their lives.

Cornerstone Of New School Laid By Hon. Perren Baker

Minister Forecasts Far Reaching Changes In Educational System of Province By Act To Be Brought Down At Next Session

That a new school act marking some very far reaching changes would be brought down at the forthcoming session of the legislature, was the announcement made by the Honorable Perren Baker, Minister of Education, at Vermilion Wednesday afternoon, who is delivering an address in connection with the laying of the cornerstone for the new Vermilion high school building. He was not prepared to state what these changes might mean, but it was gathered that one of the main features would be larger consolidating areas for high school purposes. It is not likely, however, that the act will materially effect the status of the town and village districts, although possibly adjoining territories will be asked to contribute to these schools. He would ask for a sympathetic consideration to the new act when it was made public, and not criticism on general principles Rather he would ask the people to compare it with the old and see wherein it was an improvement. There never have been, he added, any great constitutional changes without producing effects that were not desirable.

It was a large gathering of people that greeted the Honorable Minister when he performed the ceremony of laying the corner stone. The entire school population crowded around the platform and scores of children from outside districts who were in town to attend the annual school fair. In his address he referred to education as being the corner stone of our civilization Highly developed minds were essential for the well being of the state It was such schools as it was proposed to erect here, he said, that make communities worth living in If these facilities are not provided people will simply move to where they can get them No community is fit to live in that does not provide its youth the opportunity to develop the mental faculties with which it is endowed he said He congratulated Vermilion upon the splendid building they were erecting for the same of education in this district. It was a tribute to the men who had the foresight to see that provision is made for the intellectual development of the boys and girls that are coming along in life.

The corner stone bears the inscription This stone was laid by Hon Perren Baker, Minister of Education, September 12, 1928." The honorable minister was presented by the Board through its secretary H. P. Lenz with a silver trowel suitably engraved to commemorate the occasion

J. W. G. Morrison, chairman of the board presided. He referred to the building as marking the adoption of a new type of school buildings in Alberta in that the basement was being utilized for class room purposes, also states it would be the first town school in Western Canada located from a community heating system. He also announced the proposal to adopt a commercial course and intimated that before very long the erection of a dormitory in connection with the school would be a vital question.

His Worship Mayor Fallow spoke of the problems confronting Canada in the assimilation of its incoming new population and in greater or lesser degree of the state as a British unit in what was necessary that education be made its first undoubtedly necessity. Principal Elliot on the school act particularly spoke of the influences on high school pupils in connection and felt the day was rapidly approaching when more attention would have to be given to the development of special abilities Chairman Lennox and Lauchlin Bowen second ed brief congratulations and announced that in connection with the school fair the prizes awarded in the public schools would be distributed. The principal prize, a Lindemere set of books was donated by the President J. W. G. Morrison and the second, also a set of books by R. M. Slack The first prize was won by Margaret Gallow age 16 a grade 10 in Grade XII of the Vermilion High School The second was awarded to Miss Violet Young, age 15, a pupil of the Turkey Hill school Both essays received high commendation from the judging committee The presentation was made by the Pr sident

Over 1200 Entries School Fair

There were nearly twelve hundred entries at the annual school fair held Wednesday afternoon on the Fair Grounds Some twenty schools responded to the call and success About $400 will be distributed in prizes

An interesting feature in connection with the day was the presentation of prizes to the winners of the essay on the subject "Why Canada First" The first prize a Lindemere set of books was donated by the President J. W. G. Morrison and the second, also a set of books by R. M. Slack The first prize was won by Margaret Gallow age 16 a grade 10 in Grade XII of the Vermilion High School The second was awarded to Miss Violet Young age 15, a pupil of the Turkey Hill school Both essays received high commendation from the judging committee The presentation was made by the Pr sident

It was not far from Craigie Mains to Hoolsland, the home of Mr. Thomas Barr, the Ayrshire cattle breeder where, incidentally, we learned that our leader, Mr. Arkell, had spent part of his honeymoon!

It is safe to say that none of us had ever seen a finer herd than that which was shown to us, fine, big, heavy, deep-milking cows, every one a picture of what an Ayrshire ought to be. The 75 cows in milk averages between 900 and 1,000 gallons, with one yielding 1,800 gallons, testing 4 per cent. Most of these cows were daughters of champion bu'ls. Mr. Barr does a great deal of business in Canada, and at this year's Royal Show a large proportion of winners was from stock in his breeding

In the opinion of the dairymen members of our party, Mr. Barr's byres were the best they had seen Part of the barns are floored with concrete part with brick. Mr. Barr is maintaining that brick flooring is healthier in winter and results in the avoidance of trouble in the knees and joints of the cattle. It is interesting to note that some of the fields on the farm have been in grass for 70 years

Mr Montgomerie's Leonesmuch farm at Dchillfree which we next visited, is best known to Canadians because its name is a prefix to the names of many bulls which have been helped to make Canadian Ayrshire history. His bulls are famed for Prime Maschlina, where the poor Burns had a farm of his own

Last year 100 Ayrshires were shipped to Canada from the Montgomerie's. His herd now supplies tuberculin-tested milk to consumers in the hospitals belonging to the Municipality of Glasgow, besides 4 per cent. and turning up to 4.6 per cent. This herd provides one of the most outstanding examples of grading up milk and butter fat field. In 1903 he had 40 cows averaging 534 gallons of 3.69 per cent butter fat over 36 weeks In 1721 52 cows averaged 720 gallons of 3.9 per cent butter fat over 38 weeks, and in 1927, 52 cows averaged 920 gallons of 4.16 per cent. fat over 44 weeks

It was a delight to see his fine herd of milking cows and the large dairy byres which presented an object lesson in clean milk production. An interesting development was the "Morning" of the calves of Lessnessock, a step which is being watched closely by other breeders. Mr. Montgomerie applies a preparation to the calves when they are a few days old which prevents the horns from growing

The farm of Lt.-Col. Norman Kennedy, D.S.O., breeder of the famous Dumbiana herd of Aberdeen-Angus cattle, lies in the very heart of the Burns Country on the "Banks and Braes of Bonnie Doon," one mile from the poet's birthplace at Alloway. It is a pleasure to see selected members here of this wonderful herd which has such an enviable record of high awards to its credit at the shows of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, the Highland and Agricultural Society of Scotland; Smithfield, Edinburgh and Perth Spring shows and sales. Outstandingly interesting as were the animals themselves, they were rendered doubly so by the able expositions of the points of the Aberdeen-Angus breed by Mr. James Chapman, formerly agricultural editor of the Glasgow Herald and one of the foremost judges in Scotland, besides having judged at Smithfield and the Highland.

We were not allowed to leave Dumbiana until Lt.-Col. and Mrs. Kennedy had extended to us the hospitality of their beautiful home on the banks of the Doon, where in the grounds we were shown the five trees which were planted by the father of Robert Burns as gardener to the estate.

Interested as we were in these three famous farms, we were glad that opportunity permitted us to visit, if only for a short while, the home of Robert Burns. The wee clay cottage remains almost as it was in Burns' day, even to the furnishings—the kitchen table, the grandfather clock, the straight-backed wooden chairs, the plate rack and dresser, the bangings and the bed where the poet was born, the "aumry" adjoining, and the cattle stalls. It made a humble and a humble one, but to be entered with reverence by all who believe in the dignity of labour and the independence of man. Behind the cottage we visited the museum of Burns relics the Auld Kirk where Tam o' Shanter watched the witches dance, and, not far distant, the "Auld Brig o' Doon," where his mare Meg lost her tail, and the Burns Monument.

Our excursions from Glasgow gave us all time to see the city itself. Although all of us took opportunity to visit along the famous Sauchiehall Street, Broad, with handsome shops on both sides, this fine thoroughfare is full of interest, and mirrors in its bustle and activity the vigorous spirit of this great industrial city.

Our business trade connection with Glasgow is close. Glasgow has always favoured the removal of the embargo on the importation of Canadian cattle, and the proportion of cattle liberated out for storage was greater than at any other port. Glasgow, along with the rest of Scotland has also favoured a high opinion of Canadian bacon and bacon.

It was with special interest, therefore, that we visited the Glasgow Corporation's Hunterhill Wharf at which Canadian cattle and pigs are landed. There are no finer facilities in the British Isles. The accommodation is for 4,000 beeves, also includes three sales rings, a large number of killing, cooling and excellent cold storage and carcasses before removal direct to butchers' shops or to the great meat markets in the east end of the city.

And now, as guests of the Corporation of Glasgow, we were to attend our last official luncheon in Great Britain. We took our seats in the great banqueting hall, the Lord Provost, Sir David Mason presiding.

Alberta Elevator Construction

130 New Elevators Have Been Built in Province This Year

Approximately 250 new elevators have been constructed throughout Alberta this year, it is estimated by local grain men. The total capacity of these elevators would be about 12,000,000 bushels. It was stated that 130 new elevators have been completed in the province were not available, but grain men stated that extensions of facilities had been progressing rapidly in all parts of Alberta. The capacity of the elevators varied from 25,000 bushels to 140,000 bushels. The Alberta Wheat Pool alone has 110 more elevators this year than last year, and considerable other public grain elevator companies have increased their storage capacity.

PAUL WRITES TO HIS FRIENDS IN CORINTH

Golden Text: "Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!"—Psalm 133.1

Lesson: 1 Corinthians 1-4.

Devotional Reading: Ephesians 4. 1-6.

Explanation and Comments

Exhortation To Unity, 1 Corinthians 1.10-13.—Through members of the household of Chloe, Paul learned that there were contentions among the members of the church at Corinth. It has been inferred that Chloe was a business woman of Ephesus who had sent Silvus to Corinth in the pursuance of her trade, and that on the return of the latter they had brought back this news to Paul, who was then at Ephesus. If they had belonged to Corinth, it is argued, Paul would hardly have exposed them to reprisals by this disclosure in his letter. After his salutation and words of thanksgiving (verses 1-9), Paul takes up this report and appeals to his readers to be of one mind. "I beseech you, brethren, through the name of our Lord Jesus," he wrote—a name which should be a reminder to them of their oneness as His disciples—"that ye all speak the same thing; that you agree in calling Christ your Leader, "and that there be no divisions among you."

A sadly needed bit of counsel this for our day! It is said that in one of the great cities of England a quarrel among the firemen, and at the first fire which they were to fight instead of putting out the flames they turned the hose on one another This is a picture of what many Christian groups are doing today. The remedy is given by the Persian poet Sh'di:

If the litigious knew the taste
Of friendship with the Friend,
Think you that their life would assume

In quarrels without end?

"That ye be perfected together in the same mind and in the same judgment," continued Paul.

"Nothing doth so much keep men out of the church and drive men out of the church as the work of unity."—Bacon.

There were three parties in the church at Corinth, Paul had learned, which were called by the names of the leader which each admired the most and regarded as most important: the adherents of Paul, those of Apollos and those of Cephas, or Peter. And there was also the party "of Christ," which may have been a party against calling any man the leader of the church. To use the name of Christ as a watchword of a party must have seemed a terrible thing to Paul.

"Is Christ divided?" Paul questioned. Is Christ there a part of the whole instead of the whole? Ely the question Paul expresses his horror at the thought of degrading Christ to the level of his human messengers. "Was Paul crucified for you? Or were ye baptized into the name of Paul?" he continues. By the crucifixion of Christ they were saved, by baptism they were dedicated to Christ's service; it was inconceivable that they could put others on a level with Him.

One may say, I am of Paul; another, I am of Apollos; but let neither forget that both Paul and Apollos are disciples of Christ, and remember the words of Christ Himself: "I pray for them: I pray that all may be one, as thou, Father, art in Me, and I in Thee, that they may be one in us."

Northern Trip Successful

Commander MacMillan and Party Brought Back Interesting Data

The general result of scientific observations by Commander D. B. MacMillan, who arrived at Sydney, N.S., on his exploration schooner Bowdoin from Labrador, has established the boundaries of plant, fish, and bird life further north than generally supposed.

Commander MacMillan said his expedition had been highly successful and that 6,000 specimens of plant life and many varieties of fish, birds and game were brought back by scientists on the party.

A number of these were hitherto not supposed to exist so far north as Nain, a point on the coast of Labrador where the commander had his headquarters. None of the party was ill during the time the expedition was on the Labrador coast. In the house they built with the lumber taken North last summer, they were as comfortable that they had frequently to open windows to cool off although the mercury at the time registered 45 below.

The Measure Of a Man

S. R. Guggenheim, the New York financier, said on the Mauretania:

"Every man has a different figure. He, his own special impetus, to measure his fellows by their wealth, the blue-blooded men by their blood," said he on.

"Once an important personage lay very ill, and I said to an editor at the Lotos Club:

"'How is Blanc today?'

"'Blanc,' said the editor, 'passed on this afternoon.'

"'Poor Blanc!' I said. 'Worth much?'

"'Um—about a column,' said the editor."—Literary Digest.

U.S. Feels Canadian Prosperity

Farm Implements Imported From U.S. Reach High Valuation

A reflex of the prosperity prevailing in Western Canada which touches the United States is indicated by Canadian purchases of farm implements in that country. In July these purchases are stated to have broken all records. During that month the Dominion import shipments of this kind totalled $5,358,603 in value, making a record of $29,217,301 for the first seven months of the year.

Most of the bulk of these imports consisted of tractors and harvesting apparatus. During the month of July, more than 1,900 tractors were shipped to Canada, of which 1,422 were wheel tractors of from 15 to 32 horsepower. Other large items among the Canadian purchases were 3,943 harvesters and binders, 914 combines and 1,000 mowers.

These purchases from the United States are, of course, in addition to those quantities brought from Canadian manufacturing concerns and represent only a portion of the activity in the farm implement field due to this year's record crops.

MARKS AN EPOCH.

The laying of the cornerstone of Vermilion's new high school yesterday afternoon by the Hon. Perren Baker, Minister of Education, marked an epoch in the advancement of education in the district. In the new build ing, which is expected to be ready for occupancy the latter part of November, perfect facilities are provided for carrying on the work of secondary education in an environment conducive to producing the very best of results — developing a high spirit of loyalty among the students and pride in their institution, leading to greater endeavor.

DRASTIC HIGHWAY LAWS.

The drastic measures which are to be taken in October to bring safety to life and limb on the highways in that province may have to be adopted in Saskatchewan, unless the driving public elects to become its own policemen.

Reference is made more particularly to the decision to enforce to the limit legislation requiring automobile drivers to come to a full stop before traversing a railway crossing. It is perhaps not generally known that a similar law is in effect in Saskatchewan, but observation leads to the conclusion that it is more honored in the breach than in the observance. There, there is no doubt, the majority of drivers do slow down before crossing railroad tracks.

However, it is not the law abiding motorist who is responsible for nerve wracking and railway crossings and elsewhere on the highways. No the majority of drivers in Saskatchewan appear to exercise reasonable caution in dangerous places. There are only a few who do not and these are the drivers who constitute a peril not only to themselves but to others. To better protect the innocent and careful drivers from the careless driver and the fool driver that careless driver and drastic enforcement are necessary.—The Saskatchewan Farmer.

SHORT POINTS

Rooming accommodation is at a premium in Vermilion while there are available rooms, including hotels, being filled to capacity

That the building of the Municipal Arena is a boon to the town is being realized by many who have been handicapped by dreadful weather, and also as a diversion for the boys who are using the town's central heating system, who could not be accommodated elsewhere

Jack Dunlop's big trucks which are engaged in hauling material to the Municipal Arena, also of the new buildings which are being erected are now a common sight in the town Jack has a big contract on hand, an office in the old Dunsmore building

Lorne McLeod's garage has delivered 22 Chevrolet ton trucks this fall and has orders for as many more

The various sized pipes, six which are to be used in Vermilion's central heating system have been here for some time and the amount and construction of the same has been a revelation to most people

Work on the installation of the new units of the electric lighting system has been temporarily held up by the non-arrival of some very necessary bolts.

No wonder this man's town is filled to capacity with people Listen to what's going on here Installation of a central heating system, which requires the employment of a large gang of men — Work on the $250,000 distillery — Work on the $35,000 school Work on the installation of new units in the power house — Arrangements for the distribution of material for the C.P.R. and Hudson's Bay settlements — Besides the usual influx of high school students at this time of the year.

EATONIA DEATH CLEAR SUICIDE, CABLES LOVAT

British Minister Sends Complete Refutation of Baseless Rumors

LONDON, Sept. 12. — Lord Lovat, under-secretary for the dominions who is now in Western Canada, has cabled to the Catholic Herald here in reply to a request that he investigate conditions affecting the British harvesters now in Canada.

Lord Lovats forwards a telegram he received from authorities of Eaton to, Sask., showing that the case of a Lanarkshire farmer, Edward Iveson, found hanged, was one of clear suicide. Statements that British harvesters had been assaulted in connection of alleged strike-breaking activities were also refuted by Lord Lovat, who added: "I have hardly said that these baseless rumors of foul play, strike-breaking and mishandling of miners first in Alberta and now in Saskatchewan are justly resented, not least by those who helped the British harvesters and other British settlers the most."

OLD AND RESPECTED RESIDENT PASSES

The death took place at the family home, Wellsdale, on Tuesday morning of Mrs. James Hurst, one of the old est and most highly esteemed early residents of that district. The funeral will be held from the home on Monday at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Arrangements have been made for the re mains to view the body on Sunday. The obituary will be published next week

DROWNING FATALITY

Jerry Butz, of the Hawberry district was drowned in a small lake near his father's home on Sunday afternoon last. He had gone in for a swim shortly after dinner and is supposed to have been taken with cramps. The body was recovered a little later in nine feet of water. The funeral took place yesterday afternoon and was largely attended by residents of the district The sympathy of the entire community is extended to the sorrowing relatives in their sudden and very sad bereavement.

Evidently a Case of the Early Bird Getting the School

Our local inspector tells us a good school opening story of the actions of a certain well known school board not so far from here. It appears that the Board advertised for a teacher and received some fifteen applications in reply to the ad. In order to make sure of getting at least one teacher on hand evidently the whole fifteen were accepted, at any rate four of the successful applicants turned up to take over their duties. Now, what would you do in a case like this, if (a) you were one of the teachers, and (b) you were a member of the school board?

Coming hard on the heels of last Monday night's thefts and attempted thefts, came further depredations of a like nature Two cars, both of them belonging to travellers, one parked in front of the Brunswick and the other beside the Vermilion Motors, had the oil drained from their crank cases while their other cars had a flat tire each. In the case of the oil, this had been saved and taken away, the flat tires were evidently somewhere idle.

The Western Wheat Harvest

Estimated Of Wealth It Produces In Toil Everywhere

So many hazards have now been overcome that it is almost taken for granted that the Western wheat harvest will this year constitute a record by a considerable margin. An increase of 2,000 000 acres needed would require a major setback in anything but a record, still, the colossal undertaking of the Western farmers must always face serious dangers and only when these are past is rejoicing in order.

There have been local hail storms and regional wet stretches, but, as a whole, the conditions have been excellent and the talk is of a crop of 500,000 000 bushels of wheat, compared with 440 000,000 last year, and with 473,000 000 in 1928, the year of the greatest previous production.

The harvest as it becomes a reality is like music for the West, the golden stream of grain bringing enormous new wealth whose influence is felt everywhere. The farmer has the needful for all his purchases, his interest on borrowed money something for payment on past debts, if not perhaps something for luxuries before Christmas Tradesmen feel the current of new money in bills and gentlemen clip a fresher here and there and plan new expenditures Manufacturers renew enlarged markets. Instant cities will realize increased employment. It is as a genial exhilarating fluid running through the nation's veins, for the wheat crop will represent about one-fifth of the new wealth of the country Dominion and primary sources for the year No Canadian can be indifferent to it Toronto Globe.

How Long Finger Nails

Chinese Gentleman Grows Them To Length Of 32 Inches

One of the famous firms of the rue de la Paix in Paris, which is known around the world for the antiques and curiosities it sells, recently received an offer from China of the longest fingernails in history.

The Chinese correspondent wrote that the two nails of the last two fingers of his left hand have attained a length of 74 centimetres (32 1-3 inches) and he desires to dispose of them "now at a profit. He hopes to sell them for $300, and suggests that perhaps some American museum would be interested in them.

Young Immigrants Make Good

Seem To Be More Successful Than Older Ones

The notable successes that have been won in this country by immigrants have been won mainly—if though not exclusively by those who came here young. Now and then a case is reported in the press in which a boy from the old country appears to have been badly used by the farmer in whose charge he has been placed. As a rule, we believe, they are well used and the steps taken to see that injustice is not done to new immigrants are constantly being made more effective.

Grudge Game Of Fire

More than 2,000 acres of forest land in California were saved by fire recently the blaze being started by sparks from a horse's hoofs, according to the report of the state forester, says Popular Mechanics Magazine. This is believed to be the first verified instance of an occurrence of this kind, although other fires, starting in this manner have been reported.

Conditions Are Different

Intending Settlers Cannot Reason By Like Early Pioneers

The day is past when settlers can be expected to be successful if they are dumped down on any sort of land and without any capital The higher standard of living today as compared with a generation or two ago has made a difference in this field as in every other Generally speaking, the intending immigrant of today is not prepared to face the grim conditions that were accepted as part of the game by the early pioneers

The Newest Reason

Clergyman Who Endorsed By Bank Married "Blank Blank"

I have heard of checks being refused from banks, for various reasons—forgery, wrong signature, no account, insufficient funds, or a check being dated ahead, but here is a from one that surprised me and I took the matter up with my bank. The other day I rushed a check for fifteen dollars for a friend of mine and the check was returned by the bank marked "Blank date." I looked at the check and saw that the man had made it out May twenty-eighth, nineteen hundred and twenty-seven. I always thought that a check previously dated was okay, so now, dear friends, as soon as you receive a check look at it and be sure it is not "stale." And when you do get one deposit it immediately, for if you hold it too long it will lose its freshness and be returned stale.

World Make Herself Popular

American Woman Trying Experiment To Exterminate Mosquitoes

An American woman who lives on Long Island is going to try to rid the neighborhood of mosquitoes by a new method. She is getting from a French scientist a breed of cannibal mosquitoes which eat other mosquitoes instead of going around biting human beings.

There's an idea that we really like. To obliterate mosquitoes is a praiseworthy idea under any circumstances; but to do it by turning more mosquitoes loose on them, so that the little pests will have to endure the very thing which they have been inflicting on the rest of us; well, it's just simply dandy, thats all.

More power to the cannibal mosquitoes May they eat their fill.

Bay Route Is Practicable

Outlet From Hudson Bay To Atlantic Seems In Open For Five Months Of the Year

With the return to Ottawa of the Hudson Strait aerial patrol, the period of investigation in these northern waters will be completed, and the airplanes of the government will have proved to their complete satisfaction that the outlet from Hudson Bay to the Atlantic ocean is navigable for at least five months in the year, and perhaps longer.

Previous to the aerial patrol, the limit of proved navigation was placed at about three months. While the information relating to ice conditions, the government is still keeping close watch on this strait, through the agency of the Montcalm, a government cruiser, which will steam to and fro in the strait until freeze-up. In the late autumn the Montcalm will return to the St. Lawrence, leaving the strait for the last time to primeval solitude.

Next year the government will commence building permanent improvements in navigation in order to have the strait ready for ships by the time the Hudson Bay railway and terminal are completed.

Egyptian Government Pushing Plans For Construction Of Two Aerodromes

In view of Egypt's geographical importance as air route the government is pushing its aviation plans bill, which as drafted provides for the construction of two aerodromes.

One of the aerodromes will be built near Cairo, and the other near Alexandria, costing £90,000 and £400,000 respectively.

The ministry of communications is contemplating the purchase of seaplane which would form the nucleus of an aerial merchant fleet.

Shrinking Canned Products

Heat, Light, and Dampness Must Be Banished To Preserve Canned Fruits and Vegetables

A cool, dark, dry place is ideal for the storage of canned products. Heat favours the growth of bacteria; light causes fadings; while dampness further the growth of moulds and may cause rusting of the metal fastenings of jars.

Do not allow canned goods to be stored under mountain of clothing, with the jars and label nearly with name of product and date when canned. If dark storage is not available wrap all jars in paper to exclude the light.

If a damp atmosphere is possible thoroughly examine the rubbers on the jars from time to time, as mould may attack them, making impossible the admission of air and bacteria to the contents of the jar.

A container for canned goods should be of a size to suit the needs of the household; not so large that its contents cannot be consumed shortly after opening, or deterioration and spoilage will ensue.

It is a wise precaution to boil canned vegetables products for a few minutes after they are removed from the jar. This does not imply that they must be eaten hot. When the vegetables are required for salads, etc., they may be set aside after boiling and chilled before use. These and other phases of canning fruit and vegetables in the home are described in Bulletin No. 77 "Preserving Fruits and Vegetables in the Home," obtainable from the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa.

Plants Sent From Canada

Potato Pioneer Will Be Remembered In Geneva In Bronze

Pilgrims from Canada to the graves of those who gave up their lives in the cause of liberty in the Trenches will find blooming on the last resting places of the dead a familiar little flower, the potato, and round that it is twined the vine.

Geneva Cross Commission at the instigation of W. L. Mansey, of Ingersoll, Ont.

In July last, Mr. Ramsey forwarded to St. Cyper, France, a large parcel of seeds of Awesome Potatoes, which were handed up to that all parts of the field in which Canadian soldiers had received an adequate supply. When the seed was handed from person to person a letter was forwarded to all officers of sections instructing them to raise the seed and set the resulting plants among Canadian graves. It is expected as a result that the flowers will be a feature of the quiet landscapes in which our heroes now lie asleep.

J. S. Parker, chief horticultural officer of the Imperial War Graves Commission, says in reply to Mr. Ramsey's letter:

"Please accept my very warmest thanks for this most generous gift. It will be a great satisfaction to you to know that if we succeed in raising the potatoes from the seeds you have so kindly sent us, then I believe in possible from your seed, a very large number of Canada's graves will be decorated with this little prairie flower.

"It should be a source of great satisfaction to any man to think that from the prairie provinces visiting a grave in France or Flanders, to find growing there one of the most beautiful of the prairie spring flowers.

"This satisfaction will be shared by you and your family for many and generously made it possible for me to provide the plants."

The Yak in Canada

Developing a Hardy Breed Of Cattle For Northern Regions

Interesting experiments have been, conducted at Buffalo Park, Wainwright, Alberta, with the Yak (bos grunniens), the ox of the plateaus of Tibet.

Under experimental farm direction excellent specimens of crosses between the yak and the buffalo have been secured, as well as crosses between the yak and domestic cattle.

What may be the future development in this breeding work toward the retention or elimination of yak blood will be largely determined by progress in other directions. However, the work to date has afforded a most interesting study of considerable value in animal breeding, and it is quite possible that in future years there may be developed a herd containing largely the domestic blood of the improved beef breeds, but with an infusion of bison and yak blood sufficient to give that hardiness, ability to withstand storms, ability to forage in the winter, and the general thrift and vigor which may be of some commercial value to the colder and northern sections of Western Canada, where the beef industry will for all time be one of the important phases of agriculture.

Encourage Winter Feeding Of Cattle

Cattle Exporter Makes Interesting Proposal At Saskatoon

H. P. Kennedy, Toronto, famous cattle exporter, has made a proposal to the Saskatoon Exhibition Board that 1,000 head of young cattle be distributed among farmers' sons in every district in the north of Saskatchewan.

The suggestion follows the success of the boys' and girls' cattle feeding competitions. The idea is also to encourage the winter feeding of cattle on the western farms. And develop a livestock market here.

CHAPTER I.

Jangling his keys on their big ring, the sheriff led John McLean down several steps, then through a long narrow hall to the rear of the jail. From a distant corridor came the sound of a prisoner singing, attempting to sing one of the popular ragtimes of the day.

"Some fellow's still got a 'hangover,'" observed the sheriff as he paused before a cell, consulted a number, then searched for the key. As the door opened with a creaky noise it was raised in mock solemnity.

"What ho, variet! Why dost thou open the dungeon door? Has the king granted a reprieve?" His eyes blinking, the inmate stepped into the bright light of the hall. A dull red suffused his pale face as he saw the tall figure behind the sheriff.

"Hello, Dad! How's mornin'?" he smiled in a weak attempt at joviality, but the smile faded as he sensed a change in his father.

"My son arrested in a low gambling den!" the father said bitterly. "Donald, you have disgraced the family name. Your drinking carousals and gambling can have but one end. I have been easy with you, but now your own good I'm going to turn you loose. Until such time as you can return to me rid of your bad habits, and have proven yourself a man, you are not a son of mine. I—I'm done with you."

Donald's father turned abruptly on his heel and strode swiftly down the passage. It had been a tremendous test of his will power to make this short speech, and to resist the almost overmastering desire to take his boy in his arms.

The young man stood with mouth agape, a stupified look in his eyes, and stared after the retreating form of his parent. The sheriff broke the silence. "We'll go upstairs, Don."

On the upper floor the desk sergeant handed the released prisoner his watch and money, taken from him, as is the custom, the night before. The sheriff motioned to a seat

"Sit down. I want to talk to you." Donald listlessly obeyed

"Sorry, boy, but I had to do it," the sheriff said in a kindly voice.

"What are you going to do?"

"I don't know." Donald admitted dully.

"How much money have you got?"

Donald stood up and drew from his pocket a few crumpled bills and some loose change. Then these out his arms in an eloquent gesture As he stood with the slanting rays of a late December sun shining on his black hair, he presented a wonderful specimen of man. Six feet in height, of a deeptitle slenderness, his rather tight-fitting grey suit set off the graceful lines of a supple body His shoulders were wide, with the gentle slope that denotes agility as well as strength His fine white skin and long black lashes would have given his features an effeminate touch but for the manly mould of his face, with its square jaw, broad forehead, and deep widely set eyes

The Passing of A Western Pioneer

Intense sympathy will be felt by a large circle of friends around the district of Hindville and town of Vermilion on behalf of Mrs. John Fortune and family in their and bereavement. Mr. Fortune had been ill for a few months; the best of skill was procured but without avail. He bore his sufferings with Christian patience, and passed away at the family residence on Monday, September 3rd.

Deceased was one of the pioneers of Western Canada. He was born at Dalston, Northumberland, Eng., sixty-seven years ago, the son of William and Jessie Fortune. He married Martha Stewart, of Newcastle-on-Tyne, and entered in business in that city in the flour and bakery trade. For nineteen years he took up business as a florist and fruiterer, subsequently coming to Canada in 1904 with his son William. After spending some time around Calgary, he came to Olds, trying to break land. Not finding it required him he trekked east to Hindville district, ultimately acquiring land in that locality. He crossed the ocean in 1909, bringing back his wife and family from England. They settled down in the Hindville district where he continued farming operations.

His passing is a distinct loss to the community. The funeral took place on Thursday, Sept 6th. A short service was held at the house, when twenty-four cars besides a number of other vehicles wended their way to the schoolhouse which was packed to the door. This sympathetic congregation listened to a very impressive service conducted by Rev. Wm. Mitchelson, who preached from the text 116 Psalm 15th verse: "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of His saints." The Rev. James Bilsson of Earlie very kindly assisted in the services and at the grave, Vermilion cemetery. Mr. Mitchelson in the course of his remarks said Mr. Fortune had a sense of high character and the possession of a beautiful disposition that endeared him to all who came in contact with him. This congregation, he said, is an indication of the very high esteem and place as a man he has held in the hearts and lives of all. He was a man who had great consideration for the opinions of others, whether religious or political, and also had the fine conscientiousness that he should be our brother's keeper. He was a great lover of his church, and was superintendent of the Sunday school for many years, a work that he very near his heart. He was much loved by the children to whom he always had a kind word to say. As a neighbor he was always kind and obliging; in business he was punctual, thorough and displayed the righteous paths of wisdom in all his transactions with men. Of high integrity, honest in purpose, straight forward and free from deception, his word was his bond. As a husband and father his life was simply beautiful.

Mrs. G S Malcolm of Kitscoty presided at the organ, and also sang Night set and Evening's Star. A short service was also held at the grave and Scripture's beautiful hymn was sung.

A memorial service was also held at Hindville Sunday afternoon.

Tributes of flowers were sent from the following: Mrs. Fortune and Arthur, Mr. & Mrs. William Fortune, Mr. & Mrs. David Watson, Mrs. Herbert Young, Mr. & Mrs. John Cote, Mr. & Mrs. Chas. Lewis, Mr. & Mrs. Dick Hind, Mr. & Mrs. Dickson, Mr. & Mrs. Harry Portsmith; Mr. Edward Mooney and several bouquets from friends whose names were unknown. Pall bearers were Messrs. Chas Lewis, O. H. Webber, Alexander Dickson, Richard Portsmith, Chas. Friesland and John Robertson.

Mrs. Fortune and family wish to thank all friends for attentions and kindnesses shown them during this season of bereavement.

SOME SALESMEN speak of the quality of their flour as if it resulted from secret and highly mysterious milling. There are no secrets in milling. The best flour is the result of intelligent selection of the very best wheat, a good mill, skilful milling and constant and never ceasing watchfulness. That combination insures good flour. MELBERTA MINUTES

The regular meeting of the council of Melberta was held in the municipal office, Manaville, Sept. 3rd. All the councillors were present with Reeve Brent in the chair. Minutes of the preceding meeting were read and approved.

The following surveys were authorized: Between Sec. 13-50-9-4 and Sec. 18-50-8-4; Between Secs. 2 add 11, and between Secs. 2 and 10-50-7-4.

The weed inspector, Mr. Gardener, submitted a written report on his work in the district. Stink weed is spread more or less all over the district, most cases are in patches yet. Wild mustard is found in a number of places; wild oats are scattered over the whole district, in some cases they are so thick that the other crops are crowded out. Blue lettuce and blue bur are also found in small patches here and there. Canada thistle is quite rare, only four patches having been found. Perennial sow thistle is spreading and is found mostly south and west of Manaville and around the south of Lake Kmallen, with small patches distributed elsewhere. He reported that the farmers were alive to the noxious nature of these weeds and in most cases were working hard to control and stamp them out.

F. H. Langenhahn interviewed the council asking for compensation for injury done to a horse of his while working on the road. This was refused.

The C.P.R. Co's claim for $2.40 compensation for land taken for roadway in S.W. 9-52-6-4 was allowed.

The secretary was instructed to force corrections of seed grain samples owing to the district. The council feels that the time has come when this matter must be cleaned up.

A Bank For The West

(Financial News of Western Canada)

There is said to be room in the West more particularly in the prairie belt starting a Western Canadian Bank.

Rightly or wrong the West in many ways, by general opinion is about the market in which other provinces look to the bank. There it has been asserted too little attention given to managers of western branches to transact business for the bank with the result that western enterprises suffer for lack of credit. An example of course is the fruit business.

It will be remembered by those who experienced the boom days in the West when everything was run on industrialism, that money was about as free as one could wish. The bank had money to lend and they lent a great deal of it in the West. When the modern stringency came the flattening up process sought out the weak lenses in so many western enterprises and soon considered as liquid were solidly frozen that the banks, along with trust and insurance companies that had been lending in the West had heavily when they tried to realize. There was a Bank of Vancouver in the good old days and it went down.

From late 1913 to about 1920 the attitude of all eastern financial institutions to the West was one of extreme caution. But from that point onward confidence has been growing and there is today probably a greater availability of mortgage money in Western Canada than at any time since 1912.

Moreover, it is a fact that it is an absurdity to lend money in the West on ordinary commercial loans incident to the business of a Canadian bank and bank is forced in Western Canada often difficulties today to a greater degree than at any time in the past fifteen years. The complaints of a few years ago as to bank credit in the West have pretty much died out

It is doubtful if the West would welcome a new Western Bank quite

A SCOURGE OF CHILDREN

During the months from May to November there is a "Terror that walks by night," a whisper of whose presence makes parents tremble. This dreaded thing is Acute Poliomyelitis—Infantile Paralysis.

Infantile Paralysis is a germ disease. It occurs most often in the months from May to November, and most often among children, though adults are not by any means immune. The disease affects nerves, all classes and all parts of the world, but is more prevalent in colder climates. The robust child falls a victim as readily as the delicate child

During an epidemic, rural communities suffer more than cities.

Infantile Paralysis in its beginning resembles many other contagious diseases. A child that has been perfectly well will become restless and drowsy. He is irritable, and does not want to be moved. There may be vomiting or diarrhoea, but constipation is the rule. There may be headache, pains in the muscles, or a convulsion. The child is feverish. It may be all that appears and yet within one or two days the child may be unable to move arms or legs.

If a child appears to have fever, vomiting and marked restlessness put him to bed and call a doctor promptly. No matter how mild the sickness may seem, get a doctor. While waiting give a dose of Castor Oil Keep all other children away

If there is an epidemic, keep your children away from crowds, movies, theatres, dances, etc. Keep them from homes where there is sickness. Keep the house clean, using plenty of soap and water Burn rubbish. Garbage boxes should be tightly covered, and cleaned daily. Keep out flies and other insects Let in fresh air and sunshine they are Nature's killer of germs.

The Impatient West

Twenty five years ago the population of the three prairie provinces was comparatively less than one million people today it is well over two million people. Nevertheless Western people talk of the slow growth in population, and are severely critical of the Government at Ottawa, irrespective of its party, at complainers, and the unenlightened generally which have prevailed.

Twenty-five years ago Manitoba was largely an undeveloped province, while the Provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta were yet to be born, this vast territory being known as the North-West Territories, lacking a fully autonomous form of government and without many of the institutions, services and conveniences enjoyed by the people in other parts of the Dominion. Today these three provinces are well organized, an up-to-date and well served in most respects and better in some, than the older provinces.

Twenty-five years ago, with the exception of the main line of the C.P.R. and a few north and south branch lines this western country lacked railway facilities. Today the whole country is criss-crossed by numerous main lines east and west, and by branch railways run in all directions, while hundreds of additional miles of railway are being constructed every year. In the south of the province of Saskatchewan and the central of the three provinces, has to be added every province except Alberta in railway mileage.

Again, twenty-five years ago the greater portion of the West was dotted and here and there dotted hamlets few of the villages villages have grown sometimes towns have developed into cities, municipal systems, water, light, sewerage, etc., have been established. Those of older localities have been improved, and in the thinner settled districts schools have been erected, to high schools, colleges, institutes and universities established; great educational systems have been created, the telephone has been carried into the farthest remote rural home.

The old ox-cart, the wagon, the buggy, has given way to the automobile, the single furrow plough and two or three roughly constructed implements by the tractor and the gang plough; the winding trails leading across the prairie, up hill down dale, and through the valleys to the far distant little railway station calling for days and nights on the road to market or back, by good roads, now converted into all weather earth roads, graded to a standard, with bridges and culverts eliminating the old mudholes. Tens of thousands of miles of these good market roads have been built in the last ten or fifteen years, and millions of dollars thereby saved to the people of these provinces.

But are the people satisfied? Not a bit of it. When the well designed, properly graded and constructed earth roads, with good drainage, bridges and culverts replaced the old original trail and ungraded road, the people were enthusiastic and more than satisfied. But the best of earth roads makes hard going after days of rain, and roads which were regarded as eminently good in the factory even three short years ago, are now roundly criticized and condemned because they are not all-weather roads.

The West is impatient. In many respects it is an excellent quality. The West is not and never will be contented with less than the best. And what it wants, it wants immediately. It is impatient at delay. Take the matter of roads. If other provinces, states and countries can have gravelled roads and good earth roads, why can't the West have them? Well the West can have them if the people of the West are prepared to pay the price. But Ontario and Quebec, and the States to the south, and the countries of Europe did not enjoy hard-surfaced highways until they were only twenty-five years old, and when their populations were small, and their accumulated wealth not great. Those things came to them gradually. But the West is impatient. We are living in an age of rapid transportation and the West must have everything others have irrespective of its numbers or wealth.

It is not sufficient that in twenty-five years the West has created great power-houses of virile learning, and supplied its people in that short space of time with institutions public services, and conveniences which other and older and wealthier lands took hundreds of years to provide. Thus it is that in Alberta the U.F.A. Government, under Premier Brownlee, the Liberal Government under Premier Gardiner, in Saskatchewan, and the Bracken Farmers' Government, in Manitoba, are all under fire because they have not provided or paved many thousands of miles of roads, although in order to do so the public debts of these provinces would have been enormously increased and the taxes imposed made much heavier.

And no sooner are roads gravelled than a new demand is made. In Manitoba complaint is now made that these gravelled roads are too dusty, and the Government of that Province is called upon to remedy this condition. In Saskatchewan, a proposal is calmly made that there should be paved roads provided, running from the United States boundary through the province to the northern edge of settlement, and that at least two other paved roads should be constructed right across the province from east to west, at a good thousand miles of paved highway at a cost of many millions of dollars.

And along with the demand for more roads, better roads, gravelled roads, oiled roads, paved roads, is coupled the demand for reduced license fees for automobiles, and the retrenchment in municipalities of a goodly portion of the money now collected in taxes from automobiles and their people. It is a peculiar situation. All Governments being urged to spend millions more and to collect very much less.

Yet, the West is impatient, and at times apt to be a bit inconsistent, too.

Production in Canada During July Less Than Last July

A decrease in the total catch of sea fish on both Canadian coasts was recorded during July last as compared with July, 1927. In July last, the total catch amounted to 27,079,000 pounds, valued at $2,713,832, as against 37,451,900 pounds valued at $3,166,554 during July, 1927.

Weak, run-down, lacking in energy and ambition, nervous, sleepless, poor appetite, digestion disturbed—these are the symptoms associated by a great majority of people who have not established the fact that Dr Williams' Pink Pills. These tonic pills put new rich blood into the veins, and if you have any of these symptoms you should give these pills a trial. Their great value in cases of A like kind is shown by the statement of Mrs. James A. Tibbetts, Halifax, N.S., who says: "I was completely run down in health. My blood was thin and watery, and my nerves so bad that I did not sleep well at night. My appetite was poor and the least exertion left me much tired. When I went out I would have a severe headache, and often I had to lie down as soon as I got in the house. A friend advised me to try Dr Williams' Pink Pills. I soon found they had taken the stand that I felt like a new woman, and have enjoyed good health ever since. For this reason I can highly recommend the pills to anyone run-down or troubled with their nerves.

Casein Made From Skimmed Milk Can Be Profitably Used For Manufacture Of Many Articles

The products of Canada's dairy factories include bundles butter and cheese, ice cream, evaporated and sweetened milk, milk powder, etc., an item seldom heard of, called casein. Of the three thousand odd dairy factories in the Dominion a mere handful manufacture this substance, and yet there is a large, nearby market in the United States which in 1926 imported 26,000,000 pounds mostly from Argentina. Canada's exports to the United States last year amounted to only 287,000 pounds. Canadian dairy factories can produce casein of high quality and there is no particular difficulty in manufacture. One of the chief obstacles in a large export trade according to the Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, is that Canadian manufacturers of casein have not yet seen their way clear to guarantee deliveries in the quantities

Casein is interesting because it represents the recovery of a large product in dairy factories, because Canada imports considerable quantities and has export opportunities, and because it has a most fascinating list of uses in industry and in the arts. Casein is generally manufactured from skimmed milk. Of course whinsed milk has other and important uses as in the production of skim milk powder, condensed skim milk, skim milk cheese and for feeding livestock. The use of skimmed milk for the manufacture of casein is usually advocated when circumstances are such that it cannot be put to more profitable use. It is known that large quantities of skimmed milk are going to waste in many dairy factories and if this waste could be converted into casein it would represent a step in the direction of skim milk powder, condensed skim milk, skim milk cheese and for feeding livestock. The use of skimmed milk for the manufacture of casein is usually advocated when circumstances are such that it cannot be put to more profitable use. It is known that large quantities of skimmed milk are going to waste in many dairy factories and if this waste could be converted into casein it would represent a step in the direction of solving one of our materials and be of benefit to Canadian industry and trade.

Casein is generally prepared from sweet skimmed milk. It is the curd separated by the addition of an acid or an agent and then dried and pressed. Its uses are legion. Though in Canada at present it is principally used in the coating and sizing of paper and also in the manufacture of cold water paints and of special glues for furniture and veneer work. In Europe however, casein is further converted into a plastic or hardened substance resembling horn and which can be worked into a countless number of useful articles of commerce. There is no manufacture of casein plastics in Canada. If there was we would find that skimmed milk was being used for the manufacture of fountain pen radio parts electric fittings, pen and cigarette holders, chessmen, dominoes and dice, backs for hair and clothes brushes, combs, door knobs, knitting needles, umbrellas and parasols, piano keys, buttons, beads and brooches and other ornamental jewelry and novelties. There are only a very few of the items which can be made from casein plastic which is a non-inflammable and highly elastic substance which can be sawn drilled turned, glued and moulded into any shape desired. It is an inexpensive substitute for many natural materials often rare and costly such as Chinese jade, Indian ivory ebony, amber, tortoise shell and coral. Many ingenious effects can be produced with casein plastic as it can be produced perfectly transparent or dyed in a variety of shaded and marbereed colors.

The considerable quantities of casein still imported into Canada the increasing exports and possibilities of establishing a really large export market, the opportunities for interesting the output of casein glues, casein paints etc., as well as in manufacturing casein plastic products all points to a very great outlook for the manufacture of more casein in Canada

From Well Water

Only 34 Per Cent Of Wells Tested Were Found To Contain Pure Water

Of the samples of water from farmers' wells analyzed last year by the Experimental Farm Division of Chemistry, 34 per cent. were pure and wholesome, 18 per cent. suspicious and probably dangerous, 24 per cent. seriously polluted, and 24 per cent. saline.

Copies of the report of this division may be had on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. The report calls attention to the conditions regarding drinking water in villages, and the danger of pollution. A minimum safe distance from a possible contaminating source at which to locate a well is given to be about 150 feet.

The report contains much valuable information on soils, fertilizers, silage, and many other lines of investigation

The Balance Of Nature

Flowers Depend For Fullnesthin On Visits Of Insects

An important instance of the balance of Nature is involved in the fact that most flowers are dependent for pollination on the visits of appropriate insects. If certain insects fail to visit them the crop of seeds fails; if they keep their appointment the crop is full.

These visits depend somewhat on the weather, but sometimes disappointment results over though the lack of visits of honeybirds, humming-birds, and sun-birds, and if these are absent or driven away it is a disaster for the plants. There is no doubt that the keeping of bees on fruit farms greatly increases the chances of the fruit trees.

Have Wonderful Memory

Thinking Power Of Elephant Is Almost Human

The almost human intelligence of elephants has often been narrated, and the following instance adds to one's admiration of the thinking power of these mighty creatures.

There was an elephant in the Zoo which while days ago an article in the Sunday Chronicle, which had a difference with his keeper. This big chap formed a great attachment to a baby elephant in the spring of the year and had to be fastened up for a day or so until he became more amenable to reason.

Of course, these little affairs blow over in time, and by a few days, I certain, says the writer, that old Bunny was thinking far more about biscuits and less about the man who was the lady who had filled his thoughts a few days before.

Bunny collected his biscuits as usual, but studiously avoided the coins given him which were his keeper's perquisites. When at last a pedestrian visitor insisted upon putting a copper into his trunk, he deliberately handed the copper in the hand of another elephant who was passing him at that moment.

Never again did Bunny give his keeper a penny. He had quite got over his love affair, but he never forgot that it was the keeper who frustrated him and - at least I suppose so — he made him pay for it.

To Reconstruct China

The London Daily Express says that a syndicate of manufacturers, with interlocking interests in almost every phase of British industry and trade, has been formed to reconstruct parts of the war-ravaged areas of China. Contracts about to be signed between the syndicate and the Chinese nationalist government will involve a total capital of $13,000,000, the newspaper says.

Growth Has Been Rapid

Development Of Prairie Provinces Has Important Bearing On World Economic Situation

The growth of the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan after they were brought into being by the famous "autonomy bills" on September 1, twenty-three years ago, is a feature of the history of our times that should give unalloyed pleasure in our own people and, because of its important bearing upon the world economic situation, attract the attention of students in every quarter of the globe.

When the Dominion created the two new provinces, the area affected had fewer than half a million people. The population has increased to one and a half millions, or by 200 per cent. The agriculture revenue has increased to 650 million dollars yearly, and the gross agricultural wealth to three billion dollars, or to more than one-third of the total for the whole Dominion. The rate of natural urban population has declined slowly, but in actual numbers the rural population has increased by leaps. The number of manufacturing plants and their output have multiplied ten times. The population classified as urban has grown almost to the half million mark.

Behind have flocked into Canada's prairie provinces because those provinces offered better prospects of obtaining a competence than from the east than was to be found in Europe and many parts of Ontario and the United States. The bringing under cultivation of new wheat lands in the west during the last twenty years has made Canada the greatest wheat exporting country in the world.

The political aspects of western development are significant. Owing to representation in the house of commons of the districts to the west of Ontario having increased in the last quarter century from 38 to 69 seats, and to new greater than that of Quebec, the prairie provinces have great influence. This shifting of the balance of power has modified public opinion in regard to the tariff, public ownership and other matters to a degree that politicians have been slow to realize.

Nor are the prairie provinces near their maximum development. More of their fertile lands are unused than the portion that is being cultivated. The exploitation of mineral wealth in their northern hinterlands will add to their prosperity. The coming of those days will bring a stimulus to the well being of every part of Canada.

Russian Financial Code

London Still Leads In Regard To Credit

Despite all reports to the contrary, London still is, and will be for some years yet, the banking centre of the world, according to Charles Cambie, manager of the London, England, branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce. Mr. Cambie is very optimistic in regard to business and financial conditions in Great Britain, and he is in a position to be well informed on these topics.

In returning to London as the banking centre, Mr. Cambie said that he did not mean that there was any competition for England that elsewhere, but merely speaking from the banking standpoint it is the leader. Although there are many people who think that Great Britain is financially weak this is not the truth.

A CONSISTENT WINNER

Call Potatoes For Poultry Fattening

Results Of a Series Of Experiments Are Given

Potatoes when available make an excellent fattening feed, and when cull potatoes are fed, are a source of profit that might otherwise be lost. This is the finding after a series of experiments conducted by the Experimental Farm Poultry Division. Barred Rock and White Leghorn cockerels were used in the experiments, one lot of each being fed cornmeal and the other lots potatoes.

It was noticeable that gains per bird were greater for the Barred Rocks, and also for the birds on corn. The finished weight in each of the experimental pens fell short except that the Leghorns showed a greater percentage gain than the Barred Rocks. The same amount of feed was consumed by each of the two lots. Owing to the use of potatoes, and the spite of the fact that they constituted but one-fifth of the ration, the cost of feed per pound of gain was less in the case of the potato fed birds than the corn meal fed. This also in spite of the fact that the corn meal fed birds made slightly the greater gains.

The results of this experiment do not indicate that potatoes are superior to corn meal, except from the standpoint of economy, but are intended to indicate that potatoes when available make an excellent fattening feed. The birds fed potatoes took the most attractive dressed fowl. Flavour, as judged by persons who ate the experimental birds, showed the birds fed potatoes to be superior to those fattened upon both feeds, was considered to be superior in the potato fed fowls in every case.

The Poultry Division, Ottawa, will report which may be had on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, contains the results of many other experiments of interest to poultry breeders.

Not a Spanish Institution

Bull Fights In Different Form Were Common Sport In Great Britain

Bull fighting was not always a peculiarly Spanish institution. It was once a common amusement in Great Britain, in a somewhat different form. The bull was tied to a stake, after having the points of its horns padded. Fierce dogs were let loose on it, and a terrific battle would ensue. Bulldogs were bred specially for the sport. Their peculiar jaws gave a grip like iron, and the bull could never throw off its attackers once their teeth had met in its shoulder. Bear-baiting, too, was popular during the times of Queen Mary and Queen Elizabeth. Both were fond of bear-baiting and bullbaiting. Great sums "ran high," and there was one bear nearly every place of amusement. "Bankside" was a noted place for this "sport" in London. The charges for admission were a penny to enter, another penny to go in the "groundstand," and a third penny for the equivalent of reserved seats. Thursdays and Sundays were the favorite days for baiting bears and bulls. At one time the theatres were ordered to close down on the former days on account of the bear baiting, which interfered with the bullings.

Afghan Social Leaders Wearing Fresh Linen and Fashions

Flowing robes have yielded to frock coats and turbans to fezzes in Afghan social and political circles since the western tour of King Amanullah, according to a dispatch from the Allahabad, India, correspondent of the Daily Mail, who recently visited Kabul.

Many bearded parliamentarians also sacrificed their facial adornments, being honored by ragging in deference to the king's reform ideas.

"Good-bye old pal." Donald whispered, his arms about the collie's shaggy neck. Then he turned quickly and unwillingly toward the house.

In the meantime, within the house, John Mackie and his wife were discussing the possible result of the father's seeming severity.

"Donald is a great trial to us now, John," said the mother, "but we must not forget the happiness he has brought us in the past." She gazed long and lovingly at a photograph of her son as a child; then, with head bowed, her lips moved in silent prayer.

Upon his arrival at the wharf Donald found his baggage, destroyed the pass in the ticket in the habit of using, as his father were wont of the steamboat line, and bought a ticket to Bangor.

Reaching Bangor, he chose less expensive quarters than was his custom, boarding at a cheap hotel on Exchange Street. In no mood for sleep, he decided to take a stroll. Outside an electric sign caught his eye, long string of cars, and from within came the sound of happy laughter.

A fleeting impression, coupled with a slight hunger induced him to enter. A big man sitting at the counter, attacking vigorously a T-bone steak, was the centre of interest, as evidenced by the cluster of taxi-drivers and other night-laborers about him. He wore a wide-brimmed hat, high leather boots, corduroy trousers, a blue flannel shirt, and a red-handkerchief coat hung on the wall behind him. Blond, sun-washed hair stood up from his head aggressively, and his steely blue eyes were set in a face tanned a brick red.

"Yes, sir," spoke the blond giant, between mouthfuls, "she's a he-man's country, she is. None of your bum chow that I used to get in those Eastern logging camps, now-a-days it beans three times a day, and workin' for forty dollars a month from daylight until dark. Yes, sir! Just the ticket for the Canal with its four bucks a day. And talk about grub! Say, there ain't any hotel that puts up better scoffins than we git in the loggin' camps in good old B.C."

He looked around at his audience and, convinced that they were interested, he continued: "Yes, sir! Hritish Columbia for mine. Say! What'd you think of three flr logs that makes a carload? Of cedars ten feet through? Or ashes that you can't git your arms round? Some different than them toothpicks you got out there," jerking his thumb contemptuously toward the Penobscot River. "And minerals," he went on, "the mountains are filled with 'em—miles and miles that ain't never bin prospected. Prospectors comin' in every day with new strikes. And talk about fish! I seen the fish so thick they choked the rivers; you could darn near walk on their backs. That's the country, fellers. That's the place for men with git-up-and-git." He finished his repast with a cup of coffee, lighted a sack of tobacco and brown paper from his pocket, and rolled a cigarette. "A brand new country," he ran on, his eyes shining with enthusiasm, "that ain't half explored yet, and richer 'n a pail of cream. How much do I owe you, boy?" he asked as he drew out a wad of bank-notes, peeled a bill from the outside of the fat roll and threw it carelessly on the counter.

"Keep the change," he said with a lordly air, then swaggered through the door. Several of the taxi-drivers followed, loudly importuning him to ride.

Donald finished his lunch and sat for a time smoking.

"That guy was a nut to flash his poke in front of that gang," observed the waiter, "Guess he's big enough to take care of himself," he added

Donald stepped out of the restaurant he saw the big man across the street with four of his former associates. From the shadow of a doorway he saw the party enter a ramshackle building, after hearing one of them promise to get the Westerner drink in spite of prohibition. Donald decided to walk by the place, and then to follow, in case of trouble. Raising glass and indications of a struggle.

"You will, will you?" he heard the unmistakable voice of the big Westerner.

With a bound Donald was at the door. He found the Westerner badly battered, but holding three men at bay. The fourth lay in a crumpled heap on the floor.

Only one of the men noticed Donald's entrance. He was a big, burly fellow (1940), under-world character the 'Far West,' the 'Far North,' and the Arctic Coast of Canada were active. His business of bootlegging was maintained, trade developed and British rule strengthened.

It was in this field that was the first white man to cross the Rocky Mountains by Simpson's Pass.

It is said that Sir George Simpson left a register on a tree in Simpson's Pass, in the form of a carving of his initials and those of his bride. Mr. James Brewster, of Banff, who is familiar with the mountain districts, states that for two years he looked for this tree, when in the vicinity. He finally found it in 1912. The tree, about 16 inches in diameter, had fallen down with the blaze on the under side. The main body of the tree was rotted through, but the blazed section had been preserved apparently by the pitch that had collected on the surface when the bark was taken off. The portion of the tree is in possession of Mr. Brewster. It bears the initials G.S. and the date 1841, the year of the famous governor and of his guide, James Roland. The date carved is 1841, the year in which Sir George made his famous journey around the world.

Not until 1841 when the governor journeyed through Simpson Pass do we find a southern gap in the mountains used. All early travellers used the northern passes because of the warlike Indians of the south

Sir George Simpson, who was undoubtedly a man of vision, found time to concern himself with even the religious interests of his vast domain. Through his suggestion Dr. Robert Terrill Rundle, who arrived in Canada in 1840, was engaged in mission work in this country. Dr. Rundle is eternally commemorated in the great dark peak, Mt. Rundle, that overshadows the mountain resort of Banff, Alberta.

"What does that 'R.S.V.P.' mean on a wedding invitation?"

"Well, in some cases it seems to mean 'Requesting some valuable presents.'"

Canada Wants No Shirkers

Lord Advocate For Scotland Says There Is No Room For Whiners Here

Canada is no place for "whiners," the Rt Hon. H. P. Macmillan, Lord Advocate for Scotland said in an address to the Victoria Canadian Club in referring to the troubles over imported domestic workers for the prairie harvest fields

"I should like those who come to Canada to have a little of Canadian history and understand some of the hardships faced by the pioneers in the days of wonderful and their children to develop and settle this country." Mr Macmillan said "Those who come across here to whine and complain of hardships don't know that they are born. The Canadian settler in the West looks to the Westerner's assistance. Both men turned their heads. The handsome, big blond giant struck the larger of the two men such a terrific blow on the side of the head that the recipient whirled completely around and sank dazedly to the floor.

"Duck!" yelled Donald, as he saw the other man get his feet. "I'm the Westerner dropped, and not a second too soon, The bottle whizzed over his head, bringing a shower of glass from the wall where it struck. With a curse the big man turned, but the bottle-thrower had disappeared through the side door The remaining thug, a tall, cadaverous looking fellow, took one wild look around and bolted through the front door

The Westerner, gasping and rather pale, secured Donald's hand in his big paw. "Pardner, you saved me from a hell of a lickin'! Dost two minutes and I'm—"

"Grab your coat and hat and we'll get out of here before the police come," interrupted Donald

They went through the alley to Hammond Street, then down Exchange Street

"Better come up to my room, and have those cuts attended to," suggested Donald.

The Westerner touched gingerly the rapidly swelling lump over his left eye. "You know," he observed, "these fellers never to'ended to start a rough-house. The little sip was pretty stiff, but I caught him with his hand in my pocket and when they saw that they had a fight in their hands, they tried to lay me out with a billy Should have seen the funny look on that little rat's face when he saw me with that billy. He bonded after and I didn't go down. Guess this old town of mine must run pretty heavy to beer" he finished with a chuckle He looked at Donald curiously "You sure bonded it to that big dago quick How did you learn to do the art any how"

Donald laid of being in the boundaries when he had displaced his money, and of the waiter's subsequent remarks.

"Huh!" snorted the big man disgustedly, "guess I need a guardeen," With the assistance of the obliging night-clerk, who furnished antiseptic and court plaster, they doctored the hurts of the much-bruised Westerner.

When the clerk left the room the big man turned to Donald. "My name's Jack Gillis. What's yours?"

"Donald McLean," he answered.

"Dang good name," he averred, looking Donald over critically.

"I his visitor's "My old home in Nova Scotia," he ran on. "Come down here to visit my sister. I'm gittin' homesick for the Pacific Slope, and I'm goin' to jist for H.C. tomorrow mornin'."

"I'm on my way to Vancouver," said Donald.

The effect of this statement on Gillis was electric. "Do you belong in B.C.?" he questioned excitedly

Donald told him how his grieving dad had given him the money and induced him to go West, and that this would be his first visit to the coast.

"Well," observed Gillis, "if I've been the means of addin' a man like you to the population of B.C., then Jack Gillis has done some good."

"That's a real compliment," smiled Donald

"I'm goin' on the mornin' train," remarked Gillis. "I'd like to have you travel with me."

USE OF ALBERTA COAL DEMONSTRATED AT FAIR

Next Big Shipments of Fuel Scheduled to Start East in January

Practicability of burning Alberta coal for domestic purposes provided an interesting demonstration at the Canadian National Exposition, Toronto.

General Steel Wares Ltd. using McCleary Gasaline furnaces and ranges kept a continuous fire in both throughout the Fair. The Alberta coal was been through the fire burning with a free flame, and there was ample evidence of the fuel contained. The range was operated well into the night and in the morning, and the ease and freedom from ashes and clinkers encountered in the handling of the fuel were noted by many visitors.

The exhibition fuels, Alberta coal, also accumulated in a total coal failure was unsatisfactorily small for the amount of coal burned and its fine-ness. The problem in burning Alberta coal is complete combustion. For this a device called the "equilibrat" was introduced. This is merely a special draft which, through a rise and a series of vents inside the lining of the fire box, feeds a supply of oxygen to the top of the burning coal in the fire-box, thereby completing the combustion of the light gases.

In the coal range the same effect was secured by dropping the firebot about eight inches, providing the necessary combustion space above the coal which escaped full combustion and a maximum of heat.

Large quantities of Alberta coal have moved into the Ontario market so far this year, but most of it has been taken up at prices slightly lower than the American anthracites. The next big movement eastward of the Alberta product will come around January 15 when the bulk of the wheat crop will be off the rails.

A number of United States visitors, who were particularly struck by the fact that Alberta coal can be used in domestic stoves without the necessity of using a forced draft, were also interested to learn that the Dominion Government has been experimenting with the use of Alberta coal in the locomotives of the Canadian National Railways, and that the results have been very satisfactory.

The remarkable heating qualities of Alberta coal as demonstrated at this booth during the Toronto Exhibition amazed tens of thousands of people, and will undoubtedly lead to a big increase in coal orders from Ontario in the future.

DEWBERRY BUDGET

The first school fair to be held in the hamlet of Dewberry took place on Monday 17th. of October, the following schools participating; Dewberry Hazeldean, Rye, Greenlawn and Harvest.

A very creditable display of school work was neatly arranged on the tables provided for that purpose, the pupils handing over their exhibits to the ladies of the committee in charge of the arrangements.

The building where the work was displayed took on a very gay appearance with the various cases of canned fruits and articles of household use made by the pupils.

The live stock exhibits were limited to one calf two colts, and a few cases of poultry. A fine display had been indulged in to the delight of kiddies who scrambled for the peanuts, to the older people who took in the dusty marathon around the town, and named for the occasion the "Dewberry Derby."

This took the form of a relay race between four of the schools, the result being Dewberry first, Hazeldeane Second.

Last, but least were the speeches of the judges who gave the reasons for their decisions in the awards.. These talks are educational to old and and young alike, and are an important part of the fair.

W. H. Anderson as Chairman, and his Fair Committee are to be congratulated on the result of their efforts.. Also the teachers and pupils and all who helped to make the Fair a success.

Harvest is well under way in this district, and the conditions are proving a success. Good reports are coming in from the enterprising ones who have introduced the modern harvest giant to the district.

The new home of J. H. McKay is now nearly roofed, and gives a most appearance in the town. The house now being erected for the Women Pool opposite is nearing completion, under the direction of D. Rainy and R. Carey.

The sincere sympathy of the whole district is extended to Mr. and Mrs. Buzz and family in their and bereavement, the details of which are given in a separate column.

CRITICIZES MOVE TO BRING JOBLESS FROM BRITAIN

Toronto. — Immigration problems formed the chief subject of discussion at a session of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada. While there were few aspects of the immigration policy left untouched, the highlights of the session were the unqualified condemnation of the British mine-harvester movement and an address by Hon. Peter Heenan, in which he dealt with it at length and forcefully with the immigration question.

Mr. Heenan charged that there was a well-thought out campaign being conducted in Great Britain to stampede the Dominion government into bringing British unemployed to Canada by the shipload. The propaganda was motivated by the desire of certain interests in the old country to solve a political problem and encouraged by persons in Canada who wanted to flood the labor market and provide ten men for every job.

As an instance of the working of the scheme, the speaker said that advertisements in England were telling the people that mineral miners were wanted in Canada at high wages—when as a matter of fact there was a surplus of miners in every coal field in the Dominion

"It's a lie," declared Mr. Heenan "to say that the Dominion unemployed don't want to work and that they are content to subsist on the dole. They want to work and as the daily reports of lots of work and high wages in Canada are eagerly received.

"Canada ought to have something to say about this," he continued. "Canada should be part of the scheme where we can take up a paper and read calmly that a British magistrate has allowed a man convicted of a crime to go on suspended sentence if he migrates to Canada."

The Labor minister declared the movement of British miners to Canada for harvest labor, and pointed out that it was separate from immigration generally

"We knew we could get men in other parts of the world," he said "but the British government offered us 25,000 men, accustomed to hard manual work, and why should we turn down our own flesh and blood?

Gambling In Land Values

Says Prices All Over Canada Are Higher Than In England

London, Ont.—Gambling in land by all classes of Canadian citizens is one of the major reasons values are at such prices, declared A. G. Dalrell, of Toronto, speaking at noon before a luncheon session of the Town Planning Institute of Canada convention now being held in the city.

The speaker quoted prices to show that land values were very much higher all over Canada than in England or other countries and he stated that the chief reason for this was a wholesale speculation in properties all over the Dominion.

Opportunities In Peace River

Lord Lovat Finds That British Settlers Are Doing Well In North Country

Edmonton, Alta.—"There are wonderful opportunities for British settlers in the Peace River country," declared Lord Lovat, chairman of the British Overseas Settlement committee, on his return to Edmonton following a week's tour in Canada's favored country.

"We met several of the British families who were settled at various points throughout the Peace district under the 3,000 family scheme, and without exception, all these people are doing well, and are more than satisfied with their venture.

"Many of these men were miners, and few of them had any previous farming experience, but they are making good, and their experience shows clearly that given the will to succeed, lack of experience is no bar to success."

Lord Lovat found that over 2,000 homesteaders and settlers have gone into the Peace district this year, and everywhere there prevails a spirit of optimism for the future

New Plane Tested

Demonstration At Los Angeles Proves Automatic Loading Possible

Los Angeles.—A tiny plane constructed on a new vertical principle, made successful test flights here, demonstrating, observers said, that an aircraft can make an automatic landing.

Merle F. Kelley, who piloted the plane, was said to have taken the craft from the ground on 5½ seconds, soared sharply upward, cruised at 100 miles an hour and then landed with both hands aloft.

The new principle was described by A. A. Merrill, inventor, as tilting the wings, which are a single unit, in relation to the speed device in the cockpit.

The plane has a short fuselage and very little tail. In its construction the inventor was assisted by Dr Clark Millikan, son of Dr. R. A. Millikan; Dr. Harry Bateman, and Dr. A. L. Klein, all of the California Institute of Technology.

MOST OF BRITISH HARVESTERS ARE MAKING GOOD

Winnipeg.—"We are just finding out the slackers, the shirkers, and I am quite confident that the majority of the men are making good," declared Hon. Robert Forke, Minister of Immigration, following a conference regarding British harvesters, which he had with Thomas Bailey.

About six hundred have been sent back to England, Mr. Forke continued, and possibly two hundred more will go back as having failed to make good; but that left something like seventy thousand British harvesters in the western fields, who were not to be heard from because they were busy working.

He had talked with the physician who had examined 200 of the men on their way home and only one out of the lot had been really physically unfit, and he was subject to epileptic fits. The others could have worked had they not lacked the will

"There is plenty of work," said Mr. Forke, mentioning that 1,500 men had been wanted at Regina this morning

He had himself come back all the way from Ottawa to see that the five British harvesters on his own farm got a good start. He thought the farmers who cried the wages of British harvesters because of inexperience were a little shabby," at the same time he agreed that men new to the work were bound to be inferior to experienced hands.

The minister warmly praised the work of Mr. Gelley in handling affairs at the immigration sheds under most trying circumstances. "No one could have done it better," he said

All physically unfit British harvesters will be returned to the Old Country, Mr. Forke asserted, regardless of their desire about remaining here

A non-political commission for the supervising of British immigration is not held to be a probability by the Minister of Immigration

"I do not foresee any definite changes which would relegate the immigration question to a non-political field," he said. "It is likely that it will continue to be in the hands of whatever government happens to be in power."

A WONDERFUL TRIBUTE

Baby's Own Tablets Declared To Be Worth Their Weight In Gold

A mother has only to use Baby's Own Tablets once to be convinced that nothing else can equal them in banishing the ills of her little ones. Once used, always used, as long as there are small children in the home — that is the tribute thousands of mothers pay the Tablets.

Among the many happy mothers who are anxious to tell of their experience with Baby's Own Tablets is Mrs. Griffith, of East Hamilton, Ont. who writes:—"Shortly after coming to Canada I began giving the Tablets to my baby boy who was then six weeks old. The result was so pleasing that since that time I have never kept the Tablets in the house I have two children now and both of them are the picture of health. Baby's Own Tablets are the only medicine they have ever had and I really believe the Tablets to be worth their weight in gold."

Baby's Own Tablets are free from all injurious drugs and can be given to the youngest babe with absolute safety. They are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

Historically speaking the Glasgow Town Hall is a comparatively recent building in the Venetian Renaissance style, and the hall in which we were entertained is lofty, airy and in its sheer spaciousness magnificent. Three beautiful wall paintings command attention, one depicting the legend of King Roderick and St. Mungo, the representation of which is still part of the City's coat of arms; a second a Glasgow scene of the Middle Ages. And it was interesting to note that in this scene was portrayed a Clyde-built sailing ship, the proud ancestor of Glasgow's fleet. The third is the Lowlands on the stocks of the Clyde before her completion. For all its comparative modernity, the banqueting hall can boast a history. Queen Victoria, King Edward, Queen Alexandra, King George, Queen Mary and the Prince of Wales have dined in it. Every Prime Minister of Great Britain since 1850 has been the guest of the City there; and in July, 1914, three weeks before the war, the German Burgomasters dined there after having made the shipping returns of England and Scotland. Only two toasts were honored, "The King" and "The Kaiser," and the German and British National Anthems were sung. Soon after the King's message were hurrying home, leaving the Kaiser to the mercies of the Great War.

Sir David Mason and the Corporation entertained us in characteristic Scottish style. The Banquet was preceded by the Band of Highland Pipers in the full dress by the Corporation Police Band at the end of which ceremony Mr. Chapman, Burgh Police Master Gray, the Lord Provost refreshment, acknowledgment by the Pipe Major and the traditional response and a health to "our spoken to (sic)."

A little secret history attaches to the fine new leopard skin which was worn by the Pipe Major for the first time and in our honor. It appeared that Scottish dukes had compelled the Corporation to wield the economy axe, and in doing so, the head decided to cut out one pair of trousers from the annual outfit of uniformed city officers. It was proposed to spend twenty guineas on a leopard skin for the Pipe Major, but this would hardly have done in view of the incident of the trousers. Happily, however, the difficulty was overcome by a public-spirited citizen who presented the City with a properly mounted skin.

There were two musical programs. Scottish airs, marches, strathspeys and reels by the pipe band and selections by the City of Glasgow Police Orchestra who honored us by playing Canadian songs and dances. Glasgow indeed entertained us royally.

We spent one afternoon watching a football match as guests of the Corporation and thoroughly enjoyed the experience.

The European part of our official programme was now ended, but there was one unscheduled event for which the party was responsible. We had almost completed a wonderful tour. We had seen more in thirty-five days than perhaps any party of the same size had ever seen. Down to the last penny was no key, had been thrown open to us. Privileges jealously guarded and keenly sought had been freely accorded to the Canadian Farmers' Party, and the hearts of both high and low had been opened as well as doors. Throughout we had been cared for with something more than efficiency by those who had charge of us—the officials of the Canadian National and of the Globe Travel Bureau had become our friends. We would not part without returning thanks and expressing our appreciation. So we hailed Mr Way, the organizer of the tour in Europe, Mr. Bennett, organizer in Canada, and Mr. Strachan, Agricultural representative for the Canadian National Railways in Winnipeg, before a mock tribunal, apparently to try them for their sins, but in reality to present the first two with a silver salver suitably inscribed, and Mr. Strachan with a case of pipes. Mr. W. A. Wilson, of Canada House, who had been go-de, philosopher and friend on so many occasions; Mr. John L. Harvey, Mr. Thornton, and Mr. Whitby, of the Globe Travel Bureau, and the four train drivers, who had driven us and our baggage so many hundreds of miles in perfect safety were likewise brought before the "judge" (Mr. Arthur); Mr. Wilson, to receive a letter of thanks from the party, Mr. Harvey an illuminated testimonial, his colleagues each a letter of appreciation supplemented by a money gift.

When we had responded the "judge's" himself was placed in the dock and was presented with a letter and a gold watch engraved with an inscription: the party's tribute to the manner in which he had carried out the duties of the position so tender to which we had elected him. Mr. Arnold had responded to the speeches of great men on great occasions, but never had he found his task of replying so difficult as he did this night, so overcome was he with the surprise we had secretly prepared.

There were not all we thanked. There was Mr. Dan Johnson, Imperial Colonization Manager for the Canadian National Railways; "Bro-ney" (Mr. R. W. Brown), Mr. Johnson's assistant whose singing we shall never forget, especially the impromptu "How Do You Do" ong which pilloried members of our party, Mr. Frank England, Mr. Way's assistant, who, in the interests of Canada, saw that we were interviewed and photographed everywhere we went; and Miss Roberts, Mr. Way's secretary, who was always ready to type our letters however pressed with urgent work.

Another song from "Brownie," then "Auld Lang Syne," the last verse sung with arms crossed and hands clasped concluded a happy evening.

Sunday found us perhaps a little glum, for quite a number of our party was remaining to visit friends or relations. We had found that Canadians are Canadians wherever they are, whatever they may be. They hail from and it was with sincere regret that we parted between Greenock and Glasgow. Those who stayed behind, though we were off; the shores of Britain were lost in the oncoming night, and the five Ile Dominicale: now for HOME!

Explanations and Comments

Paul had been asked in a letter from the Corinthian Church whether or not one might eat meat which had first been offered to idols. The letter was not a real god, it did not matter if the food had been offered to it. The writers doctrines seemed to be known as "the doctrine of liberty of conscience, and probably for the Pauline doctrine of "conscience to me." Paul's answer follows in this eighth chapter.

Moffatt's version of Paul's words makes them so clear that explanations are unnecessary:

With regard to food that has been offered to idols. Here, of course, "we all possess knowledge!" Knowledge puffs up, love builds up. Whoever imagines he has attained to some degree of knowledge, does not possess the true knowledge yet; but if anyone loves God, he is known of Him. Well, then, with regard to food that has been offered to idols, I am quite aware that "there is no such thing as an idol in the world," and that "there is only the one God." (So-called gods there may be, in heaven or on earth —as indeed there are plenty of such both gods and "lords"—but for us there is one God, the Father, from whom all comes, and for whom we exist; but remember, it is not everyone who has this "knowledge." Some who have hitherto been accustomed to idols eat the food as food which has been really offered to an idol, and as their weaker conscience is contaminated. How more food will not bring us any nearer to God; if we abstain we do not lose anything, and if we eat we do not gain anything. But see that the exercise of your right does not prove any stumbling block to the weak. Suppose anyone sees you, a person of enlightened mind, reclining at meat inside an idol's temple; will that really "fortify his weak conscience?" Will it not embolden him to violate his scruples of conscience by eating food that has been offered to idols? He is ruined, this weak man, ruined by your "enlightened mind," the brother for whom Christ died! By sinning against the brotherhood in this way and wounding their weaker conscience, you are sinning against Christ. Therefore, if food is any hindrance to my brother's welfare, sooner than injure him I will never eat flesh as long as I live, never!

The mechanical equipment is to be the last word in the great line and comprises, to the smallest unit of the battery of eighteen Linotype and Linotype typesetting machines. The business and private offices will be located on the ground floor at the front of the building. The pressroom will be located also on the ground floor at the rear, and plate glass windows will provide an unobstructed

At the front of the third floor will be the editorial offices of the Western Farm Magazine, the first issue of which will be published on May. 10. At the rear of the top floor will be located the commercial printing department. A large community room is also to be located on the third floor, and this will be used as a general conference or board room. Adjoining the community room will be a completely equipped radio studio. This will include a radio room, a reception room and a broadcasting chamber. The new building will be served by two elevators, freight and passenger.

Carefully planned in all details, modernity has been the key-note throughout, and the Albertan building will conform in every respect to the very latest ideas in newspaper plant construction.

Tourists Should Be Informed

As the tourist reaches our country he should be given a card containing full particulars of the laws and highway regulations, the purchase and consumption of liquor and to reference to other matters with which he should be familiar, while he is a guest in the province. It is a hardship to punish a visitor for transgressing a law in regard to which he has not been informed. A difficulty which would be completely overcome by the introduction of some such plan as this.

Landsville District School Fair Greatest In Its History

The Landsville and district School Fair which was held on Sept. 5th was carried out under ideal weather conditions and was considered by all present a complete success. Although the farmers of this prosperous community were right in the midst of harvesting one of the largest crops on record, they appear to have halted operations and come with their families to enjoy the real holiday of the season.

At eight o'clock in the morning eager children began arriving with their exhibits and from then to 11.30 load after load arrived and were placed in position until the hall presented a most impressive sight, filled as it was to utmost capacity with vegetables, sewing, flowers, canned goods, cookies, grain and various art and other school work.

By noon all was in readiness for the judges to commence the heavy task of placing the colored tickets. The classes, which were closely contested showed great skill on the part of the teachers and pupils in their preparation. The entries in livestock, while not as numerous as they might have been, were of a very high order and the pupils were complimented by the Judges.

Many complimentary remarks were heard from the several hundred spectators when the different schools took the field for physical exercises, and the judges had considerable difficulty in placing the awards.

The following is a list of the prize-winners: Although five prizes were awarded, through lack of time in making up the list only the first three names are published.

Christianity's Next Task

The signing of (1), the Treaty of Versailles in which is incorporated the covenant of the League of Nations; (2), the naval treaties at Washington, and (3), the Kellogg anti-war declaration recently at Paris, were all hailed by press pulpit and public as important milestones along the road to permanent world peace and a better understanding among the races of the earth. Special services were held in churches to mark some if not all of these events, while thousands of columns of editorial matter were printed lauding these notable efforts to put an end to racial animosities. And every word written or spoken in praise and support of these great peace moves would was fully deserved.

But, now the Literary Digest the new programme for world-wide spiritual co-operation adopted by the International Missionary Council at its last meeting in Jerusalem may be considered as revolutionary in the ecclesiastical world as the above named three events are in the political world. All look to the promotion of peace but the Jerusalem Conference reaches a much deeper soil. The problem it faces is within the world and array nation against nation race against race, and, complicates the Literary Digest, while little publicity has been given to the deliberations and conclusions of the Conference held on the Mount of Olives, no bells rung or peans of praise offered up, yet so much was done that posterity may rank Jerusalem with Geneva, Washington and Paris in the onward march of mankind toward international amity and the ending of racial hatred.

Among the subjects discussed on the sacred mount outside the Holy City were the race problem, the rights of minorities, the protection of women and children in lawful relations between strong and weak nations, the land question intellectual and spiritual co-operation, relations between church and state and various other phases of world peace Specialists on race problems and international relations from the minorities section of the League of Nations and the Universities of London Harvard and Columbia, among other institutions were present to contribute technical knowledge as those problems were studied.

And with what result? Following lengthy and searching study of conditions as they now exist in countries all over the world, and the relation of society of Christian churches this International Missionary Conference meeting at Jerusalem Point blank the Church has not firmly and effectively set its face against race hatred rage envy, race contempt and against the national and racial pride set against the lust for wealth and exploitation of the poor or weak."

It was evident right at the beginning of the Conference that the old attitude of superiority of the West over the East, regarding of Nordic civilization and the Christian religions as one and the same, was not acceptable The idea of race superiority was not admitted for a moment, and the Conference indicated its belief that the basis of race prejudice is economic. In lands where races live side by side, participation by all in racial intermingling for social cultural, and religious fellowship was declared to be the natural expression of Christianity, and was welcomed as a step toward world-wide understanding

Who is there will deny that such belief and conclusions are in line with the teachings and spirit of the Founder of Christianity?

And does there not emanate from this Conference a special message for the people of Canada, and especially for the people of Western Canada? Our lots have been unfortunately riveted to ancient campaigns by which the classes of our people against other classes based solely on questions of race and creed Most unfortunate of all is the fact that many of the leaders in these campaigns, which are a denial of Christ's whole life and teachings, are recognized leaders in the Christian church

It is the fond hope and dearest ambition of many thousands of forward, looking, patriotic Canadians that this young Dominion reaching out in its new nationhood will become a power for good in the world; that its greatness will be found not alone in its wealth of natural resources, its fast growing cities and commerce, but in those spiritual and moral attainments and contributions to all mankind which, in the final analysis, are the true measures by which to estimate the greatness of any people or nation.

Tourist Trade Increasing

Figures For 1928 Will No Doubt Show Gain Over Last Year

While it was estimated that American tourists spent $200,000,000 in Canada last year, there is no doubt but that figures for 1928 will show fresh gains, stated H. K. Wolfe, assistant director of the natural resources intelligence service of the department of interior, while was in Edmonton in connection with affairs of his department.

Development of the tourist trade is of extreme importance to Canada and its value is fully recognized, said Mr Odell. In carrying on the work, the federal branch is co-operating with the provincial governments and other

ARE YOU RUN-DOWN?

All That Is Needed Is a Tonic To Build Up the Blood

There are many people who have been semi-invalids so long that they have lost their condition as a life burden. They have endured nervousness, broken sleep and a generally run-down feeling so long that they have given up hope of ever being well again. In most of these cases a well chosen diet, fresh air and a tonic is all that is needed to work wonders. And as a blood-building tonic no other medicine can compare with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. There is scarcely a spot in Canada where you will not find some formerly ailing person who has found new health through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. Mrs. Thomas Ahearn, St. Malo, Que., bears out these statements when she says: "I have great reason to be thankful for Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I was run down, weak and run-down condition. I felt ill most of the time and my appetite would vanish. I was almost impossible to get any nourishment. It seemed as if my blood had turned to water. At this time I was advised my condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and very soon I proved that they were helping me. In a few weeks I had taken a dozen boxes, by which time I found myself a completely new woman. My appetite was good my work without fatigue, a better appetite and a sense of cheerfulness and well being I had been despondent. For all this I owe a great deal to my work without fatigue, a better appetite and a sense of cheerfulness and well being I had been despondent. For all this I owe a great deal to my work Dr. Williams' Pink Pills." If you are feeling run-down, give Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial and new health and strength may be yours get the pills from any medicine dealer, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont

Canadian Grown Bulbs Replacing Importations From Holland

Canadian bulbs are rapidly displacing Holland grown stock, and the reason for this is apparent. British Columbia grown bulbs have been tested in every province of the Dominion on the experimental farms, and in practically every case the verdict was "as good" and in some cases "better than imported bulbs."

These results are fully outlined in Bulletin No 95 "Home Gardening in Bulbs" which may be had on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa

Tulips, narcissus, hyacinths, crocus etc. are bulbs that are planted in the fall and whether for the garden or the house orders should be placed immediately. The bulletin referred to gives suggestions and advice on soil, fertilizers, culture etc., and in addition, lists the best varieties by color The results of experiments are also given

A chapter on common bulb diseases completes a very exce lent bulletin, which also contains many illustrations including a colored plate of Darwin tulips.

Praises Canadian Progress

Ramsay MacDonald Makes Changes Are Almost Incredible

"I don't think Canada realizes what wonderful things she is doing," declared Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, former Premier of Great Britain, who paid his second visit to British Columbia in 21 years. "I am more in love with Canada than ever," he declared.

The former Premier described the material changes in Canada since his previous trip as "almost miraculous." Even the old Eastern townships have changed and in the west one cannot go to even greater changes, he stated, Mr. MacDonald was particularly impressed with the desire of Canadians to retain control of their natural resources and by the new movement of co-operative marketing among the farmers. That step will be imitated more and more in other countries and will yield more and more good.

The former Premier would not say he had seen or learned anything on this trip which might change his policy if returned to power. He was in very weak and run-down condition. The difference between strong and weak men would very loudly. It was almost impossible to "do" any business. It seemed as if my blood had turned to water. At this time I was advised my condition I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and very soon I proved that they were helping me. New Cure For Colds

Idea Now Is To Go Where Temperature Is Low

Food a cold and starve a fever" is an old folk-saying, but it seems that now the word "food" should be changed to "freeze," seeing that we have good authority for stating that the best place for curing a cold, next to the Arctic regions, is the refrigerating chamber of a cold storage warehouse. In short, the best cure for a cold is—more cold.

The members of the various Arctic expeditions associated with the names of Scott and Shackleton never caught cold when the temperature was forty degrees below zero and they put into a New Zealand or Australian port they began to sneeze. Ranchers and farmers in the North West of Canada will testify to the fact that "colds," are almost unknown when the cold is at its utmost, and almost from a considerable distance.

Thus, it is a possibility of the future that, instead of prescribing for some aspiring horse or isolation hospital, the influenza patient will call his surgeon and ask him to put up in Spitsbergen, Greenland, Iceland, or some other manufacture for coughs, colds, and influenza, and must not touch his lips, and to prevent this the milkman thrown his food into his mouth. Before drinking, he must hold the vessel aloft and pour the liquid down his throat as from a tap.

King Is Large Landowner

Nation Derived $5,500,000 From Property During Last Fiscal Year

One of the biggest landlords in England is King George V. He has lands comprising 274,000 acres, of which 180,000 are agricultural, the rest are house, store and manufacturing property.

But only is the king one of the largest but he is also one of the most efficient owners of land in the kingdom. From his lands he received derived during the last fiscal year the record sum of $5,500,000. Which is $1,000,000 more than in 1927.

The most profitable of the King's property is a large section of Regent Street, London, before the street was rebuilt, several years ago, the income was $720,000 It is now $1,500,000

The King's income however, is not the king, which has benefited through these increases. The king received from Parliament a grant of $2,850,000, this amount was determined, however, the royal domain income was only $2,400,000.

Canadian Farmers Favour Organization

This Is In Marked Contrast To the U.S., Where Wheat Pool Marketing Is Declining

The majority of the Canadian Wheat Pool, a farmers organization which now controls more than half the wheat crop of Canada, and its rapid growth, are a marked contrast to developments in the United States revealed by official figures received at Ottawa. For four years the percentage of the wheat crop of the United States co-operatively marketed remained constant, but the co-operatively organized organizations or wheat pools, has been declining. Last year it fell to ten per cent, nearly half the per cent of the whole in Canada it reached 179,950,242 million bushels, or 53.8 per cent of the whole

Queer Idea Of Indian Tribe

Look On Surveyors Of Mills As Holy Men

The Todas, a peculiar tribe in Southern India, regard their surveyors of mills as Holy Men, says a writer in Tit Bits.

The chief of these is the Holy Milkman, who has an official residence, the Sacred Dairy, which he is not allowed to leave during his term of office. The Holy Milkman, moreover, is usually a bachelor; if he married before being appointed to his high office, he must leave his wife and devote himself entirely to observing the strictest rites of the Sacred Dairy.

No ordinary person may touch him, for to do so would entile his exalted office and he would be compelled to resign. Another restriction is that Holy Milkmen must not be spoken to except on Mondays and Thursdays. On other days he is supposed to be shouted from a considerable distance.

The dairy-temples are usually built in conical form, and the milkman-priest must always sleep in the cowhouse, a draughty structure with a thin sacking roof. They do not live on the dairy, and a Holy Milkman is allowed to wear only one coarse robe. When he is retired he must not even touch his lips, and to prevent this the milkman throws his food into his mouth. Before drinking, he must hold the vessel aloft and pour the liquid down his throat as from a tap.

King Is Still Landowner

One of the biggest landlords in England is King George V. He has lands comprising 274,000 acres, of which 180,000 are agricultural, the rest are house, store and manufacturing property.

But only is the king one of the largest but he is also one of the most efficient owners of land in the kingdom. From his lands he received derived during the last fiscal year the record sum of $5,500,000. Which is $1,000,000 more than in 1927.

The most profitable of the King's property is a large section of Regent Street, London, before the street was rebuilt, several years ago, the income was $720,000 It is now $1,500,000

The King's income however, is not the king, which has benefited through these increases. The king received from Parliament a grant of $2,850,000, this amount was determined, however, the royal domain income was only $2,400,000.

Fire Replaces The Plough

Good Tight Obtained From Fields On Which Straw Was Burned

Experiments conducted by the Dominion Experimental Station at Swift Current, indicate that, to some extent at any rate, the use of fire may replace the plough on the prairie grain fields. The adoption of the combine thresher has resulted in heavy stands of straw remaining on the field after the crop has been harvested. Experiments conducted during 1927 to ascertain the best method of treatment of such land show that the largest yield was obtained from fields on which the straw was burned and a new crop planted without further cultivation. The yield in such cases was 25.5 bushels per acre compared with 21.6 bushels on land which had been ploughed, harrowed and seeded in the ordinary way.

These experiments apply to land from which has been taken only one crop after summer-fallow. If land lying after summer-fallow becomes uniformly it will affect a large labour saving in working, and a material sequent lowering of cost of production. It is also claimed for the burning process that it destroys many of the foreign matter more effectively than any form of cultivation.

Future Of the Airplane

Limitations Will Always Remain What They Now Are

Whatever may be done to increase the speed, lifting power, and radius of action of the airplane, its limitations will still remain what they now are. However fast an airplane can carry mail, wireless telegraphy will send it quicker; the irregularity of aerial navigation makes it impossible to contemplate a serious development of aerial passenger or cargo carriers. The serious implications of this are obvious to the military. Knowledge of an enemy's movements and intentions is the starting-point of all military tactics and strategy; every new feat of endurance in the air is a potential contribution to the art or science of military reconnaissance

The well-known woman preacher, Miss Maude Royden, is responsible for an amusing story which illustrates the advantages of compression in speech.

A little friend of hers had been asked to tell the story of Elisha, and her reply was:

"Elisha had a bear, and the children mocked him, and he said "If you mock me, I will set my bear on you, and it will eat you up." And they did, and he did and it did"

Asked by a policeman at the exhibition of antiques at Olympia to put down a piece of china she had lifted to examine closely, Princess Louise, Duchess of Argyll, the King's aunt, answered "You are quite right" After she had passed on, a bystander made the policeman aware of the Duchess' identity His reply was to the effect that "orders is orders."

Mill Producers Advocate Purchase By Test

Establishing Of a Testing Device Is Solution Of Problem

Representatives of milk producers have concluded that they are not getting fair treatment in the matter of milk distribution. This applies to those who live up to existing regulations, are regular shippers, and who produce milk of the highest possible quality. In other words these producers figure that they should be able to exercise a reasonable measure of sales control, which in the matter of fluid milk production is at present practically all angles in the hands of the distributing agencies.

In the matter of the test, the producer also no confidence in its present application, largely, it is admitted, because the actual testing is done by the distributing companies. No matter how carefully the test may be applied, the moral effect of a situation in which the buyer alone decides the test, may readily be understood. In fairness to all parties concerned, testing should be applied through a medium which producers are neutral. Payment on a quality basis is the soundest argument for producing a high class article.

A committee consisting of representatives of producers organizations has recommended that facilities be provided for the purchase of whole milk and cream by test through the establishing of a testing plant at which the producer would have the fullest confidence. Also that in view of the importance of sanitary inspection to the whole problem, that action be taken on the parts of the cities and municipalities to bring about uniformity of inspection services, both as regards requirements and application in a given area applying to the one market and as between areas where shipping overlaps

Cannot Dispute This Will

Man Had Copy Of Document Tattooed On His Back

A 200-word will bequeathing large sums of money to several people has been tattooed on the back of a man who walked into a tattooing establishment in Waterloo Road, London England.

He had the will written out on a piece of paper, and asked that it should be transferred to his back. He sat for five hours while the work was done, and the will was duly witnessed.

"He was a Colonial, and about 30 years of age," George Burchett, the tattooist, said afterwards.

"This is the first will I have ever tattooed during a long experience, and it was difficulty, tricky work."

Cleanliness In Dairying

Thorough Washing Of Dairy Utensils Is Most Essential

Probably the most important feature of dairying is the clean handling of everything used in the production of milk, right down the line from the barn in which the cattle are housed to the utensils in which the product is put.

A leaflet issued by the Experimental Farm written by the Bacteriologist, points out that there is no substitute for a thorough washing of dairy utensils. This should be given as soon as possible after milking, before the film of milk has a chance to dry on the metal surface. This milk residue should be removed by rinsing with cold or lukewarm water; hot water should never be used, because it scalds the film of milk on the metal, making it very difficult to remove. The utensils should then receive a thorough scrubbing with a brush, using hot water containing sal soda or any of the dairy cleansers. If a small wash vat is available, it will add greatly to the convenience of the cleaning operations, especially where a considerable number of utensils must be cared for.

The next process is sterilization which may be done by using steam, hot water, or chemical compounds. The latter method is effective and can be adopted on any farm. The Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, will send on application a copy of the leaflet on the washing and sterilization of dairy utensils which gives full directions for the use of this chlorine process

Successful Experiments Made

Bituminous Sand Has Proven Its Worth In Road Surfacing

Bituminous sand from the extensive deposits situated in the vicinity of McMurray, northern Alberta, was first used for paving in Edmonton in 1910, under the supervision of the then Provincial Department of Mines These demonstration surfaces remain in good condition. In 1926 Alberta Government Department of Mines and Resources undertook a test paving of a suitable heating and mixing plant

Vermilion School Fair Largest In Alberta

COMPLETE LIST OF PRIZE WINNERS

The Standard is in a position to publish the complete list of prize winners at the annual school fair this week and the same appears below. It is well to draw public attention to the fact that the Vermilion school fair is the largest held in the province of Alberta, with an entry list of 52 schools. Unfortunately three of the schools did not get their exhibits in. Regarding the number of entries, while there is no way of arriving at the exact number without counting them, the secretary informs us that over four entry cards were distributed and indications were that fully two-thirds of these were used.

Credit is due to Headmaster C. East, A. McKee, H. J. Payne and Miss Burr, the committee for placing school work, design and cooking; the committee with a lot of hard work in placing vegetables was left to Richard Good and Hayward Taylor as assistant. The live stock was looked after by West Jackson and W. D. Williams. Messrs. W. F. Daley and R. E. Burr were in charge of the gate. The following gentlemen comprised the sports committee: Messrs. Stewart, Tupper, M.G. Drinkwater and Maple. Miss Daley, in addition to assistant secretary duties, filled in serving in the booth which was run by the school fair association which turned over the profits to the general fund. Miss Stone also assisted greatly here.

Some criticism was heard in charging 15c gate admission. Upon enquiry we found that the 15c.00 entry fee charged each school does not even cover the prizes paid. Thus there are sports and other expenses which have to be met. No person receives any remuneration whatsoever for their time and work and no one should begrudge contributing a small admission fee to such a day for the children of the town and district. The school fair does not solicit subscriptions like several other organizations—it pays its own way and stands on its own feet.

The members of the Vermilion school of agriculture staff and Inspector H. R. Parker were the capable judges for the event

THE HIGH SCHOOL

This week the Literary Society of the V. H. S. is staging its career by announcing that a "Literary Meeting" will be held twice a month for the whole year.

Friday, September 28th, is the day set for the first meeting and a programme is assigned. At these meetings the students show their ability in speaking, in dramatizing a play, or, if musically inclined, in rendering a solo. Each student will be expected before the year is over to give at least one number for a programme. This idea is intended to help and encourage the students as much as possible in the matter of public appearance, and to also further the social life amongst the student body as a whole.

An invitation from the Lloydminster high school through the Vermilion Elks, was received by the Sports Committee last Monday. This invited all the athletic minded over school to attend a Field Meet at Lloydminster about the middle or October. It is to be worse out immediately and inquired as to the programme of events and the exact date. Here is hoping that we may bring home the "bacon"

A month or two after Christmas the High School is going to put on a play in the theatre, so every one keep his eyes open for further news

As music should be provided for our Physical Training and for social affairs, we have set out to buy a new Victrola (Orthophonic). This will cost us quite a sum of money but it will certainly pay for itself in no time

It is the intention of the High School to put on a V. H. S Tea in Mr. Kemer's new show room on Saturday, October 6th. Further notice will be given next week. Keep this date in mind and support your High School

Congratulations to Margaret Gallo way for winning the prize for her essay at the School Fair. We might remind our readers that this essay was published in the Winnipeg Journal of Sept. 22, 1928

Rush In Some At Dunsmuir Land Office At Edmonton

All previous records since pre-war days were exceeded during the week at August 9th to 15th, in the number of homesteads filed on at the Edmonton Dominion Land Office. The total for the above period this year was 114, while for the same period of last year only 59 entries were taken up. Local officials attribute the increase to several causes; the general improvement in conditions, the new regulations which permit a party who has previously proved up a homestead to obtain a Crown land, and to the large number of settlers now realizing the opportunity to obtain land closer to transportation and social activities than formerly

LARGEST AND FINEST OIL TANKERS SAIL UNDER CANADIAN ENSIGN

With the launching in England on C. O. Stillman." The three sea-going September 14th of the motor tank ship "Calgarolite" Canadian interests which already own and operate the world's largest tank ship, claim also the most modern and efficient of tankers, and a Canadian tanker fleet wins further eminence as one of the major oil fleets of the world.

The "Calgarolite" slipped from the ways at Hawerton Hill-on-Tees with Miss Eleanor Rose, daughter of Victor Rose, Vice-President of Imperial Oil Limited, acting as sponsor The "Calgarolite" is a 15,800 ton vessel with an indicated horse-power of 6,500, which makes her one of the most powerful and fastest tankers of her size. She is guaranteed a service speed of 12 knots. She is 540 feet long with a 70-foot beam and moulded depth of 37 feet 9 inches. Her tankers equipment will permit loading and unloading of 120 000 barrels of oil in twenty-four hours and so she will be almost continuously in transit, serving much as an "oil ferry" between Talara in Peru, Cartagena in Colombia, and Montreal and Halifax. She will establish new figures for economical transport of petroleum.

The "Calgarolite" is the last of three large modern sea-going tankers and one lake tanker which were laid down some time ago in British shipyards for Imperial Oil. Preceding her in launching were the "Wapella" for lake service and the "Victolite" and "Vancolite." The flagship of the fleet, in which she will serve is the world's largest tanker, the "C

Livestock Industry Prospers

Good Prices Now Being Obtained in Western Canada

A cycle of prosperous years faces the livestock industry of Western Canada, in the opinion of ranchers who are "fetching almost double what they were turned off for three years ago and hogs are going higher. Lamb and mutton are also selling at a worth-while price and good, heavy, well-broken horses are in active demand. A survey of the agricultural situation in the United States indicates a marked shortage of beef cattle making for strength in the Chicago market, so much so that Canadian producers find it profitable to ship there despite the duty of two cents per pound imposed on fat cattle. Stocker and feeder cattle from the Canadian prairies are also wanted in the middle west.

The Fellow Up Method

A new sign for motorists has appeared on an English road. It is in front of a traffic light apparatus effective in checking these motorists who are not too careful when on stretches of road under repair. A first notice gives the warning, the conventional "Slow Down, Road Under Repair." About 50 yards farther along is a large white signboard with the admonition. "You Have Been Warned," painted on it in large red letters

Mugs Merry-Go-Round

Gold Stream In An Old Ac Atlantic Ocean

The bugs Ocean stream, which moves more water than all the rivers of the earth combined, is not changing its course, the Panama Canal engineers report, commenting on statements of ship-captains indicating a possible reversal of currents.

There has been a gulf stream since there was an Atlantic Ocean and there will be as long as the ocean society reports, describing how the winds cause the huge current to an eternal flow directed at the rate of a tub of water will ever sail the water to swirl about.

The mighty waters of the Caribbean Sea, blown westward by the trade winds into the Gulf of Mexico swirl about and are carried out in the Florida Straits, whence the stream, 60 miles wide and nearly 3,000 feet deep moves with such momentum northeastward that it preserves its identity until it reaches Europe.

The Gulf Stream is a merry-go-round of the Atlantic. After it hits the British Isles, bulging is provide the Scandinavian countries and Iceland, by northern latitude, it divides, and one branch turns south to Portugal, where it strikes the westerly trade winds and returns to the Caribbean Sea. Another branch goes north of the British Isles and proceeds, considerably chilled, into the Arctic Ocean.

But for the great stream, England might have the climate of Labrador, and Norway, the bleakness of Greenland.

Record Cheese Shipment

Canadian cheese shipped from Montreal in a single week to foreign markets totaled more than 30,000 boxes, an increase of nearly 20,000 boxes compared with the same week a year ago. Prices paid at country points were records for the year to date.

The prices population of England and Wales has decreased from 39,000 to 10,000 since 1676.

A Growing Industry

Fish Reduction Plants In B.C. Doing Big Business

The growth of fish reduction plants on the west coast of Vancouver Island is shown in a report of the Dominion Department of Fisheries. With the lifting of the ban in 1926 fifteen plants began operations, and a production of 6,631 tons of pilchard meal and 1,898,721 gallons of pilchard oil were realized. Later season 19 plants were in operation producing 13,113 tons of meal and an oil production of 3,602,186 gallons. The movement is to the north, and the chief source of supply in 1927 more than 9,400 tons were shipped to Hamburg. The entire production of pilchard oil last year was shipped to the United States.

Unique Samples Of Success

New Canadian Awarded Prize For Best All Round Farm

Success in farming in Canada is not bound by any nice limitations of nationality. This was strikingly demonstrated at the standing grain and good farms competitions conducted recently by the Calgary Board of Trade in co-operation with the Provincial Department of Agriculture.

The prize for the best all-round farm in the district was awarded to Tosef Csesvary, of Cochrane, Alberta, who emigrated from Hungary a few years ago. This competitor also won the highest honours for a standing field of oats. The second prize winner was Oscar Anderson, from Sweden. The third winner, Messrs. Wright and Bond, of Irricana, Alberta, were from the United States; while the fourth, R. Nees, of Carbon, Alberta, was from England.

Of Tosef Csavcsesy's farm the judges said that it gave an impression of artistic taste combined with utility. The buildings were well built, well kept and arranged according to an intelligent plan, with everything in good order. Further, this Hungarian farmer's livestock was mostly pure-bred, and his fields were absolutely clean and free from weeds.

PAUL THE MISSIONARY

Golden Text: "Christ liveth in me." Galatians 2.20.

Devotional Reading: Philippians 4.4-8, 19, 20.

A Review By Means Of Allusions

There have been men like those Jews in every age and every land who have delighted in stirring up others. There is no community free from them.

"Nurse Cavell in Belgium was beset on all sides by a brutal soldiery, who gnashed on her with their teeth, and she was at one time bereft and tender and forgiving."

"When men refuse to retain God in their knowledge, they can hardly expect to be secure from the lamplighter's boy throwing stones at them, dismissing with themselves, whether they be running adventurers or heartless tyrants.—The Christian.

"Paul, the apostle to the nations in matter of Christianity, its cradle-song is that of sorgin, its death-chant the triumphant exclamation, 'Behold, I see the heavens opened.'"

"We are daily judging ourselves unworthy of eternal life in every act or refusal to accept and rely on it.—Lyman Abbott.

"There should a man of Belgium say me 'Come over and help us,' and we should not hesitate to leave home to answer the call."

"We cannot think of the vastness of the universe without feeling that we are dwarfed in our own self-importance. The whole conception of the universe should be more impressed by the order and the uniformity of the heavens.—J. Arthur Thomson.

"When came the Sabbath of worship and rest,
Out of the city, in reverent quest,
Tuesday by Tuesday, to the river-side
Where prayer was wont to be made in its name."

The world has often had its dreams of gods and goddesses, but also its likenes of men, and even of a divine influence pervading all things; but no ethnic religion has told how men may come to God. H. R. Fox.

"The talk of Leonine was overbearing and belligerent, as he brushed out threatening words from the end of the road to Genoa."

"What a thrill this note energy compared to that boundless supply of divine grace always available to the believing heart! Therein lies power to turn the world upside down, if only the people of God would receive and transmit. Shall he be willing to be slow! The Christian.

Manufacture Asphaltic Oil

Imperial Oil Company Erect Plant In Regina For Production Of Oil For Road Making

A new industry got under way in Regina a few days ago when there was erected a $35,000 plant by the Imperial Oil Company. It is for the manufacture of asphaltic oil, being used for waterproofing gumbo roads in Saskatchewan and also of asphalt for paving and other purposes The new plant has a capacity of between 200 and 400 barrels of asphaltic oil per day.

Shorter Names Suggested

The Society for the Saving of Time, a newly-founded efficiency organization in France, has decided in favor of the shortening of names. It wants to limit family names to five letters and other names to two. In this way, it is declared, the business world would save millions of pounds in correspondence yearly.

Mrs. A. J. Murray, Gull Lake, Sask., writes:—"Last summer my baby girl was cutting teeth and illness very weak with the effects of diarrhoea. I didn't have just what to do for her as she couldn't retain anything. At last one of our neighbors said to me, 'Mavis's yes say

Youths From Britain Are Returning Home With A New Vision of this Dominion

Coming here a month ago for a tour of Canada as "ambassadors of empire," fifty representatives of the youth of the British Isles, 23 boys and 25 girls, between the ages of 16 and 21, are returning to their homes in England, Ireland, Scotland and Wales, as real ambassadors for Canada.

Their enjoyment by the charms and challenges of the Dominion, and their intention to boost Canada on their return home, were declared at a luncheon tendered the party by the city of Montreal.

"We," said Lady Marjorie Dalrymple, in charge of the 23 girls in the party, "will tell of the wonders we have seen and the practical splendor of Canada, the warmth of Canada's welcome and hospitality, and the warmth of feeling toward us of the Old Land. We go back full of great memories and high ambitions. We can all do our bit. I believe that if people come out here with open minds and a willingness to work, they will be helped."

Kenneth Lindsay, M.A., Oxon, in charge of the 25 boys of the party, said "We are going back to set up fifty individual units of goodwill for Canada. We go back with hopes high and confirmed optimists. We go back with a new vision of Canada."

"We recognize this is a land of milk and honey but not for those who are not prepared to work," said Mr. Lindsay. "We are going home to preach the gospel that you must have services and not sideshows."

"We are not concerned about the 'peaceful penetration of the United States' in this country. We feel that all sides a very great and sincere love for the empire and we feel this scheme has in it a contributory part in that unity of empire which is one of the most potent influences in the preservation of the peace of the world.

"We came to Canada seeking the soul of Canada. We have seen something of the real Canada. We have visited typical Canadian homesteads; we saw the wheat fields, every boy had a small part in gathering the harvest; we have visited typical city homes; we have seen the gold and other mines at work; we have climbed your mountains; we have sailed your lakes; we have seen something of your vast industries and we have seen a great deal of your vast natural resources. And we go back home with a real knowledge of the progress of Canada. We feel that the thing of interest is your future."

Mayor Houde suggested Canada adopt a similar scheme, sending a group of Canadian youths to the British isles on a return visit to this one. The idea was praised by Mr. Lamont, who promised co-operation from the other side of the idea, was put into practice

British Woman Journalist Making Trip Through Dominion

Very Few visitors to Canada are impressed with the luxuries of the Dominion, but that is just what Miss Dilys Davy Cryer, London journalist, Unlike most journalists who visit the Dominion it is not the low-cost of the luxuries which are enjoyed here," Miss Cryar declared.

The women of the leisure class in England have no idea of conditions as they exist in Canada, according to Miss Cryar. "I am not referring to business women, but women of social life. They think this is a terrible country and feel sorry for women who have to live here. They have no idea of the luxuries which are enjoyed here," Miss Cryar declared.

Canadian plumbing was one thing which caught the attention of the British journalist. Your taps are so big. You turn on one and a whole stream of hot water comes pushing forth. Then you seem to indulge yourselves. You keep your houses warm, while in England we still depend largely on fireplaces which mean only a small portion of the house is hot."

Miss Cryar writes for the London Daily Mail under the pen names of "Man Gloucester." Following her trip in Canada which is partly a holiday one, she plans to go to Paris and Switzerland, following her series of articles for the London Daily News and London Daily Mail.

Following Regular Course

Nothing the Matter With Cold Stream Say Old Mariners

Two mariners from across the Atlantic have brought word to New York that, contrary to report, the gulf stream is following its regular course.

Some trans-Atlantic skippers had expressed the belief that the warmth-giving stream was shifting away from the British Isles, but this was disputed by Captain S. G. S. McNeil, of the Cunarder "Mauretania," and Captain Johnson, of the Columbus of the North German Lloyd.

"There has been no change in the course of the gulf stream," said Captain McNeil. "It has been running rather stronger this summer, and this has caused the counter current westward from the northern edge to run a little fusher.

"There are a number of people who have been crossing this ocean for twenty to thirty years and don't know that there is such a thing as current of the counter current. There is nothing wrong with the gulf stream."

Captain Johnson said he saw there was no change in the course of the stream. He suggested that for accurate information regarding ocean currents the ship be sent crim-cross over the range of the stream to establish accurate temperatures and to avoid it. Fast-moving ships are impracticable.

A Land Of Homes and Plenty

Comfort and Sound Life Of the People Of the Prairies

The development of this new prairie land, -Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta Has not only in its growing towns but in the countryside a wonderful degree of comfort and sound living. Life of the country people scattered all over its territory. It is a land of homes and plenty. If it is possible here to work hard, they find time also for sport and pleasure. Almost every farmhouse has its motor car, many house has its wireless, and nearly everyone keeps in touch with neighbors and the outside world by telephone. The prairies have long been trying to develop a new summer route through Hudson Bay to Europe, which will be long; journey across land from Montreal and will hasten the day when the great cities of Winnipeg, Edmonton, Calgary, Saskatoon, and Regina will be more and more the astonishment of the West.- My Magazine, London, Eng.

MOTHER OF FAMOUS RUNNER

Mrs Charlotte Williams, of Vancouver, was in Montreal to meet the sprinting sensation of the Olympic games who she is the proud and happiness mother in Canada's. Really I never thought I'd see the day when I would win that I had ever so much confidence I knew I could do it," said the runner. I felt sure that it would be possible to win. I thought so all the time. But I did not dare to say so. Last but not least Mrs. Williams who looked so young to be the mother of a girl who had won the Olympic championship thought at first she could be Percy's sweetheart She is sure he would get to universities in the United States but will attend the University of British Columbia.

Removal Of Fear Of War Greatest Factor In Development Of North American Countries

Splendid Feed For Stock

Soybean Makes Heavy Hay Like Clover But Needs Thorough Curing

The soybean, a crop well known in some parts of the United States and commencing to get a foothold in Canada, makes a very good class of hay, Officers of the Experimental Farms Division of the Department of Agriculture have written a pamphlet on Soybeans in Canada, that gives one a very good idea of the usefulness of the crop. The soybean, like clover, makes a heavy hay that is relished by live stock. It is ready for harvesting any time after the pods have developed until the leaves begin to turn yellow. C. P. McFarlane, Chief of the Forage Crops Division, says that the best time to cut is when the pods are well filled, for at this stage the highest yield and best quality is obtained. After being cut with the ordinary hay mower, it is left in the swath for about a day or until the leaves are thoroughly wilted. The practice in this respect is almost the same as with clover. When wilted it is raked into windrows where it is allowed to cure. After two or three days, if the weather has been favorable, it should be put into small cocks for further curing and drying. Thorough curing is needed to prevent spoiling in the mow. The hauling and handling required to do this readily done in order to preserve the leaves, which are the most valuable part of the feed, as much as possible.

Danger From Snakes

Experience With a Deadly Cobra In South Africa

One day my mother was horrified to see, through a window, her baby in this open space playing with a deadly cobra. Little Billy was sitting in front of the snake poised ready with its fangs at the quivering body of the child; the snake had reared its head, and was looking at the child, with its head close to the child's face. It was a critical time; if the snake was in any way startled, or angered, it would strike at once, and the child would be dead in a few minutes. What was the best thing to do to rescue the child? My mother did the very best thing she could have done under the circumstances. She took up a mouth organ which was near her, and played softly music on it. This attracted the attention of the snake, and for a moment it left the child, and then, still playing, my mother approached the baby; the snake crawled away, and the child was brought to the house. Gamkrauw was the only town in which the child could have been saved.

It is wonderful how many people escape death in a country or town of snakes As I am writing this, the papers tell how a boy put his hand into a hole in a wall to rob a bird's nest, but the snake had been before him, and was still in the nest, and when the child had reached the place where the bird's eggs should have been, it touched the snake, which struck, and the child was dead in a few minutes Dr. S. P. Impey, in South Africa Cape Times.

Explore Barren Lands

Airplane Survey Finds Northern Tundra To Be Sixty Per Cent. Lakes

The barren lands of the far north were explored recently by a party of three men in a Super-Universal Fairchild airplane of the Western Canada Airways. The four-thousand-mile journey took twelve days.

The party was from Winnipeg with Churchill and Chesterfield Inlet as objectives. They made Baker Lake, which is at the western limits to Fort Smith Wallace Lake, Schultz Lake, Gold Lake and Beechey Lake.

The party was composed of Sgt. Hall, of the R.C.M.P., Corporal Gilbert, and Pilot Wallace. The latter is the pilot who piloted the Fairchild plane which carried Vilhjalmur Stefansson on his Arctic flight.

The object of the flight was to survey the country between the Arctic coast and Hudson Bay. Of the 1,000 miles covered, 600 miles was over barren land. Of this 60 per cent. was lakes and 40 per cent. land.

The party reported that the country was flat, with no hills or mountains. The lakes were found to be shallow, with many islands. Fish were plentiful, and caribou were seen in large herds.

The party left Winnipeg on August 1st, and returned on August 13th.

Renunciation of war is symbolized by the Canadian-American border, says the Washington Post, in an editorial commenting on Premier Mackenzie King's speech, at Geneva.

"All the arguments for peace find support, all the objections to the world peace treaty are reduced to unconvincing postulate, by the relations which have existed between the two countries for more than a hundred years. The old Rush-Bagot treaty has simply set the method for the custom. The international joint commission is the agency for the settlement of the ends at issue, and it always finds support for its judgments."

The Post comments that the "most quickening thing" said by the Canadian Premier, at Geneva, was his confidence that the removal of the fear of war had been the greatest factor in the development and prosperity of the North American countries. It adds: "The growing world opposition to war cannot now lose sight of the example set by the two neighbor countries of North America through the removal of fear of war. Unfortified boundaries have been maintained in the face of wars that have time and again altered the face of the earth. This is an old story to Americans and Canadians, but it had a strange sound to many of the representatives of the war-wearied states. The psychology of peace, which has been the basis of permanent goodwill between Canada and the United States and which has conduced to bring prosperity, can be obtained by all nations, if will make a habit of renouncing war. This will remove the fear of war, and fifth fear eliminated, armaments can be reduced and abolished."

The Control Of Pests

Measures To Be Taken To Overcome Attacks By Field and Garden

The greatest nuisance to agriculture is the large number of insect pests, which with very little encouragement spread at an alarming rate. Those are particularly prevalent and persistent in gardens, and unless control measures are instituted soon make crops of vegetables and flowers a total loss.

Injurious insects may be divided, roughly into two classes, by the nature of their mouth parts, "biting" insects which bite and chew their food, such as cut worm, leaf eating beetles, etc., and "sucking" insects which suck up their food by means of their beaks, such as aphids, the true bugs, the scale insects, etc. For the first a poison poison is necessary and for the second a contact insecticide is

"Insects of the Flower Garden and Their Control," is a new bulletin of the Department of Agriculture, No 99, now in print. This may be had on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, and in it will be found a very full treatise on the cultural practices for the control of insects, also the formulas for insecticides and the way to apply them. Arthur Gibson, Dominion Entomologist, has covered the control of destructive insects in a very full and complete manner in this bulletin and the work is fully illustrated

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE PEOPLE OF ALBERTA

Since the inauguration of the Peace Time Programme of the Canadian Red Cross, the Alberta Division has spent hundreds of thousands of dollars within the province. This money has been spent in relief work, out-post hospitals, Nursing service, immigration work, Junior Red Cross in the schools, general health education work, and in connection with the Crippled Children's work, on which work alone $100,000.00 has been spent.

As a result of the former spent, a quarter of a million, in fact has been given to us in annual grants by the National Office in Toronto, who believe in the work the Alberta Division was doing was worthy of that support. The funds at National office however, have become depleted, and this year our grant was cut to $45,000.00 and next year we will have to be self supporting.

This situation brings the question of the establishment of Red Cross services in Alberta squarely up to the people of the Province. We need $65,000 yearly to carry on our work. Over $50,000 of that sum must be raised by voluntary subscription. Unless therefore you rally to the support of Red Cross and by each doing his or her share, enable us to raise this amount, Red Cross must discontinue the services it has been giving.

This means stopping our immigration and health work, reducing our outpost hospital work, and most of all curtailing our crippled children's work. Are you willing this should happen?

As President of the Alberta Division I feel that Red Cross services are too valuable to lose, and I believe that when the people of this province really realize that Red Cross must have greater support or it ceases operation, there will be no question of their answer.

There will be a provincial-wide campaign starting at once. I appeal to all to do their share. Join as a life member, at least $1.00 and become a member; give more if you can. If you would rather you can give a grain donation, to all elevator agents will issue a grain or storage ticket at the basis of the price per bushel and forward them to us for you. Do what you can to assist those in charge in your district and get your membership or donation in at once. If you prefer, send your membership or donation direct to my Civic Ward, Edmonton.

The main thing is give your support in every possible way. Don't let Red Cross fail!

Yours faithfully,
W. EGBERT, Lieutenant Governor and President,
Alberta Division, Red Cross Society

FUNERAL OF OLIVER CRITCHLEY

The funeral of the late Oliver Robert Critchley, who died at the Vermilion municipal hospital Thursday morning last, took place at a tractor accident, was held on Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Services were conducted at the Anglican church by the Rev. A. R. Sage, many friends and sympathizers attending. There were a number of floral offerings upon the casket. At the conclusion of the service the Dead March was played by Mr. J. Warine. The remains were laid to rest in the Vermilion cemetery, the Elks, in their capacity of service givers, acting as pall-bearers and assisting in other ways. The passing of the unfortunate young man have been dead for some years, but he is survived by a sister and brother residing in England. The deceased came out from England seven years ago and for the past five months worked in the district.

DEATH OF MRS. FRANK DAVIES

The funeral of Evoline, beloved wife of Frank Davies, was held from Rumyia Baptist church Sunday afternoon and was largely attended by friends and residents of the district. In the absence of the minister Mr. W.S. Cash of Vermilion conducted the service and interment was made in the adjoining cemetery. Arrangements were very carefully carried out by J. Warine

Mrs. Davies came from Bolton, Lancashire, England 18 years ago to become the bride of Frank Davies, and they lived together on the farm of Rumyia, while of a retiring disposition she was liked and respected by all who knew her and was always ready to help those in need as far as her power lay. Yet her chief concern in life was to her husband and family —three girls and two boys, whom she sought diligently to train in the nurture and admonition of the Lord. She was a faithful mother of Christ's church. Though suffering intermittently for the last ten years and more severely during the past nine months, her troubles were met with a smile, believing "that all things work together for good to those who love God." She fell asleep in Jesus in the early hours of Friday morning the 21st of September, being just one week from 48 years of age.

Beautiful floral offerings were received from Husband and Children, Rumyia, U.F.A.; Missing Circle, Mrs C. A. Parsons, Miss Dean, Mr and Mrs. Geo. Dew, Grahe Family, Ed Mayhew and Family; Mr and Mrs H Armstrong; Mrs. W. J. Mayhew, Mr and Mr. H. F. Mayhew and Family, Mrs. Parker, Mr. Cruise and several other friends.

Mr. Davies and Family wish to thank all kind friends for their expressions of sympathy and help during the past few months.

The Canadian Legion will hold a Whist Drive and Dance at Memorial Hall on October 17th at 8.30 p m sharp. Sherbark orchestra. Valuable prizes to be awarded at McWilliams & Dawson's. ISLAY

A very sad accident took place at the farm of E. J. Coleman, about twenty miles south of Islay.

A Scotch lad, named John Grant Young, eighteen years of age, fell in front of the mower he was driving and was fearfully run about the head and body. He was brought to the Islay Municipal Hospital on Friday and died on Saturday.

Mr Coleman got into touch with a friend of the boy, Robert Alexander, a young printer at Kevrobert Rash who was the employer Mr Powell returned up to the funeral. The boys were friends at home and came to this country together. John Young came here and found employment Mr. and Mrs Coleman thought a great deal of the boy, who was thoughtful, kind, and very manly, knowing no evil, living up. His father and mother are dead but he has a sister in Scotland. The funeral took place from the Islay United Church, and was conducted by the Rev. T. A. Bowes.

Miss Mabel Nelson, formerly of the Hospital staff is back again after a holiday, and is stopping at the home

Experiment With Flax Straw

Two Tons Threshed Flax Straw From Saskatchewan To Be Used To Glasgow

Experiments to be conducted with two tons of Saskatchewan threshed flax straw in Glasgow, Scotland, may result in the establishment of "several factories" in this province.

This is the prospect pictured by R. L. Pritchard, director of the Pritchard Flax Fibre and Pulp Company, Ltd., Glasgow, Scotland in a letter to the provincial authorities

Mr Pritchard asks that two tons of threshed flax straw be shipped to his firm. He wants the straw baled in the smallest possible bulk in transportable bales of two to four hundredweight, each and put on rail to the nearest Eastern Canadian port and shipped to Glasgow.

We desire to have this waste flax straw after threshing with which to experiment and make flax tow from it," writes Mr Pritchard. "We feel that the economic value of this waste flax cultivation of your North West will gain your co-operation in ascertaining what value there is in these short lengths of flax straw which are of no practical use at present."

"In the working of this waste there is no rotting or scutching by our processes the operation of fine fibres in short pieces is only mechanical. We would like to know what quantity of this waste flax straw could be procured throughout Saskatchewan, what distance the growers would desire it at the most opportune time after their harvest is finished and what price per ton would induce the growers or threshers to save it and deliver it

"If the quantity and cost of procuring it in bulk on railway cars to the company, we would establish several factories to work the straw into fibre in Saskatchewan so that the fibre only would be required to be transported which would greatly lessen the freight."

The provincial authorities will take steps to secure the required quantity of flax straw and the information sought by Mr Pritchard and do all that is possible to encourage another industry to locate in the province.—Regina Leader

Indian Show Interest in Red Cross

Blood Brothers Of Alberta Impressed By Exhibit Shown At Lethbridge Fair

At the annual fair in Lethbridge, Alberta, where the Provincial Red Cross had an extensive health exhibit, large numbers of Indians from the Blood Reserve were interested spectators at the booth. Squaws gay with blankets of many colors and beaded children's brilliant hue gathered round to hear the story of Red Cross among the sick and crippled children of the province.

The old chiefs were especially impressed by the fact that some of their own tribes had sent children to be treated patient, while the son of Two Guns is waiting for a vacancy in the wards

At fall, princely looking young brave, Mountain Horse, offered to assist the Red Cross in its annual campaign for funds, and his mother came forward with a promise to send some hand-made beaded moccasins as her contribution to the little sick children in hospital.

"I bought two handkies," added Sir Gilbert, "and tried the same effect I am a very bad sailor, but when I travel now I tie one of these handkerchiefs over my eyes, eat very little for the first two days, and I haven't been seasick for the last 27 years Now, when I am dictating, I like a handkie over my eyes as well The world is shut out. The handkerchief keeps the nerves of my eyes quiet, and so I can dictate for one or two hours without fatigue."

Reliable Weather Forecasts Predicted

Accurate In Almost 200 Years Says Boston Meteorologist

Weather forecasts may be expected to be accurate in about 200 years, according to George A. Loveland, Meteorologist of the United States Weather Bureau at Boston. Mr. Loveland also says that with the passing of two more centuries sufficient data will have been collected to make reliable forecasts possible.

Forecasts at present are about 85 per cent correct, he declares. The system is controlled directly by the sun. He says, but while astronomy is an exact science which has been studied for more than three quarters of a century

When the effect of the sun's heat on the earth has been studied for two centuries more, Mr Loveland thinks the meteorologist can with accuracy predict the weather far in advance

World Collects Relics Of Cabin Built Back Days

Four Bondsmen Of Past On Old Caribou Road

Efforts are being made at Kamloops, B.C. to preserve for posterity some of the few remaining relics that marked the picturesque gold rush of the old Cariboo Road.

The road is now a motor highway becoming increasingly popular with tourists, but a few years ago it was traversed by covered wagons, on pack mules and pack trails, while during the height of the Cariboo gold rush camels were brought into use as beasts of burden.

Before the country was opened up by the Pacific Great Eastern Railway and the automobile, practically all the freight was carried in huge wagons hauled by a dozen or more horses or horses. But today the highway has been completely motorized and there are few reminders of the past, except the old log-built roadhouses that years ago were the only outposts of civilization in wide stretches of rolling country.

Isaac Lehman, of Ashcroft, possesses one of the huge freight wagons, which, filled with a couple of others behind sixteen or twenty oxen, could have been seen winding its devious way along the Cariboo road in the old days. It is one of the few that remain and Lehman will give it to anyone who wants it.

Lying along the roadside between Quesnel and Barkerville in the old gold country of northern Cariboo is one of the famous B.X. Express Company's wagons, stung on leather thorough-braces the days of steel springs. It is rapidly falling into decay. In Quesnel is the famous old coach in which governors-general and multi-millionaires rode to the goldfields. No effort is being made to preserve it.

Representations are to be made to the provincial government to have these relics collected and restored so that they may serve as a reminder of the province's most romantic pioneer era

Treatment To Control Scent

Result Of Experiment Conducted By O.A.C. Expert

Experiments conducted in Kent County by a member of the staff of the O.A.C. have reported as follows: In addition to formalin, nine different substances were tried for the control of oat smut, some in the form of dusts and some as liquids. The smut in these plots varied from 1.5 per cent. to 12.4 per cent., except the formalin spray which had only a trace of smut. The untreated plots had 24.6 per cent. loss. Seed treated with formalin both as the spray and sprinkle methods and with copper carbonate dust. Bluestone dust has had been used there was germination injury, where copper carbonate dust was used. Bluestone formed a trace of smut and where no treatment had been given there was 39.3 per cent. smut.

Class "A" Fairs

Western Canada's Five Big Fairs Were Most Successful This Year

On the whole the five big western fairs this summer were an unqualified success. The first of these, at Brandon, was seriously hampered by frequent rains, and while this could not affect the quality of the exhibits, generally, it did affect attendance. Everything nothing meanwhile to the comfort of the visitors at any time. The remaining four shows had the finest of weather, and new attendance records were created at each of them. Featuring the livestock exhibits on this circuit were outstanding entries from outside herds in the beef cattle classes. A uniformity of type and quality seldom attained in widely separated herds was particularly noticeable in Shorthorn classes, and the competition in both Shorthorns and Angus with American entries provoking an international aspect was especially keen. Dairy herds from five provinces were strongly in evidence and a number of dairy breeds and here again competition was of the best. At all points local entries from the United States and overseas in stock were fewer than might be desired, this being perhaps less true of the Regina Fair than of the others. Competent critics declared the Regina Fair to be outstanding in regard to its stock attractions.

The fast named Calgary stampede attracted visitors from all parts of Canada and the United States and the popularity of this event continues to grow. A perfect week of hot weather lasted the gala at Edmonton. Saskatoon experienced only one deluge of rain and this proved no deterrent to the large crowds. New buildings and equipment replacing that lost through fire earlier in the season were appreciated and ready for the big event, and the Saskatoon management are to be congratulated on their initiative and enterprise which they displayed.

Ancient Castle In Ireland Keeps Up Interesting Custom

On the north shore of Dublin Bay stands Howth Castle, an ancient Irish stronghold. It is now owned and occupied by a retired naval commander and a former shipmate of King George when Prince of Wales, and they are said to keep up old traditions. At every meal, for instance, an extra place is provided at the table, and is reserved for any stranger arriving.

The origin of this interesting custom dates from the time when, during the heir of one of the Lords of Howth was kidnapped by gypsies, and for many years afterward visitors, upon his had been used there was germination injury, where copper carbonate dust was used. Bluestone formed a trace of smut and where no treatment had been given there was 39.3 per cent. smut.

The Influx From Overseas

Steady Stream Of Settlers Coming Into Western Canada

Settlers have been coming into Western Canada in a steady stream since the beginning of the year, and nearly all have come direct to the farming districts to take up land or to take employment with farmers. Many came to join relatives or friends already settled. Since January 1st, to the end of August, 61,201 settlers from overseas passed through the Winnipeg office of the Colonization and Agricultural Department of the Canadian National Railways. Of this number 6,000 were British workmen who came out to take part in the grain harvest, many of whom, it is expected, will remain in the country for the purpose of taking up land. The others were mostly agricultural folk from Great Britain, Scandinavia and other northern European countries. Approximately, In addition to regular trains, it required 83 special trains to transport these people from the boarders, and inspectors of the department who meet all trains carrying immigrants, looked after the latter and had duties in the performance of their duty. In addition to the influx from overseas, a large number of settlers and others have come to Western Canada from the United States this year. Not a few of these are attracted by the mining developments.

Four hundred years ago King Henry VIII. built the oldest tennis court in England in this country. The Old lake and river district is one of the most beautiful parts of British Columbia and the pioneer settlers are establishing some very fine farms. The country abounds in game and the finest of trout and other fish are found in every lake and stream.

English Housewife Is Indicted In 1626, Tells About the Episode In Autobiography

In answer to the claim made recently in Germany to the effect that the copy of the "Augsburg Avisa," dated 1609, now on exhibition at the International Press Exhibition at Cologne, is the oldest newspaper in existence, J. W. C. Bastiaan, 214 East Broadway, a collector of rare manuscripts, has produced a copy of the English Mercurie, printed in 1588 which he claims is the oldest original newspaper in the world today.

The English Mercurie, which was printed in Whitehall, Eng., on July 23, 1588, carries an account of the sighting of the Spanish Armada off the coast of England.

It is 7½ by 9½ inches in size, contains four pages and is printed on hand-made paper. It was printed during the reign of Queen Elizabeth by Christ Baker. Her Majesty's printer.

Bastiaan also has a copy of The Weekly News, printed in London in 1606 for Jeffrey Mayrlin, is also been sold at Chorlten's shop at the west door of St. Paul's Church in London.

It was printed during the week of Monday, January 31, of that year, and contains an account of the execution of Guy Fawkes and seven other persons who endeavored to blow the House of Parliament during the reign of King James.

The account is headed "Chapmonday, Tydings from all parts." The following papers were purchased thirty years ago by Bastiaan in England at which time he also secured an English prayer book which was printed in 1598.

Bastiaan also has a copy of The News, printed in London in 1665, containing an article describing the great plague which that year returned to that city during that year. It was published by Thomas Newcomb, of London.

THE GOOD DRIVER KNOWS THESE RULES

Rarely Is Driver In Trouble Who Uses Good Judgment

By ERWIN GREER
(President Greer College of Automotive & Electrical Trades, Chicago, Ill.)

"What are the characteristics of a good and safe driver?" That was the question recently asked by the Connecticut Automobile association of several nationally known traffic and safety experts.

1. The good driver has a high degree of self-control at all times, this control manifesting itself in various ways.

2. The good driver always maintains his car in such shape that it responds easily and quickly, thus assuring control of the car, so far as the purely mechanical equation is concerned.

3. The good driver regulates his speed in accord with the conditions of the road over which he is traveling, and never travels at such a rate that he cannot stop it within the "clear distance ahead."

4. The good driver invariably exercises due regard for the rights of others and always applies the simple axioms of courteous behavior

5. The good driver accepts the safety of the pedestrian as a primary consideration

6. The good driver keeps his mind on the road ahead, as day-dreaming or chattering at the wheel causes many more accidents than are caused by bee stings.

If you are hitting on all six, you are doing your part to promote safety, insofar as your personal responsibility is concerned. The points stressed are not intended to be exhaustive, but they certainly embody some of the most moral and physical factors involved in safe and sane driving. By taking them to heart the average motorist can do much to relieve himself and other users of the highways of the multiplicity of laws and regulations which instead of curing the accident problem is proving a serious impediment to progress. As I see it, the universal acceptance by the motorists of a high degree of personal responsibility is fundamental.

SHORT POINTS

The Vermilion Standard has added seven new subscribers to its mailing list in the past week.

Postmaster Bell has had to install over 100 additional boxes in the Post Office in order to keep pace with the ever-growing mail matter of the town.

The C. N. R. evidently decided to be "in the swim" also by re-painting the depot, and they made a real job of it.

Real estate activity in Vermilion is keen and depicts the general feeling of optimism and prosperity that is in the air around town; no less than five residences are in course of construction while there have been sales of other houses reported in the last two weeks

J. Gordon Wilson has found his few of three trucks decidedly inadequate for the demands made upon it these days, so one day this week he had it bolstered up with seven other trucks, all engaged in hauling grain to the elevators.

DEATH OF W. H. AXLEY

In the sudden death from heart failure of W. M. Axley, while going for the cows between four and five o'clock Tuesday afternoon, the Islay district mourns the passing of one of its oldest and most highly respected pioneers. The deceased was found on the main road shortly after having left the home of his son, Ben, by Mrs. H. Hinder who was on her way home from Islay in a car, and she phoned from W. Landels to Dr. Knapp of Islay informing him of the circumstances. The doctor immediately notified the family and the body was conveyed to the house. The late Mr. Axley was in his eighticth year. The funeral is to be held this Friday from the United Church, Islay, at 2:00 o'clock in the afternoon, interment in the Islay cemetery. Born at Dunoon, Illinois the deceased came to Canada in 1907 settling six miles north of Islay and has made his home for a number of years between his two sons, Ben and Will. For the past year he had been residing with Ben. Only the two sons survive him, and the sympathy of the district is extended to them in their loss.

Elusiveness of the Dollar
Demonstrated on Main Street

Anyone who doesn't believe that the dollar bill is hard to grasp, just ask Grant Badgero his opinion of it. Grant ought to know because he chased one for half a block on main street Saturday afternoon, and the numerous times he overtook, it the bill managed to gain renewed momentum and slip from his very grasp. However, he did finally retrieve the opposition... And the onlookers went back to work.

An Inspiring Sight

The province of Western Canada during this year of grace, 1923, have nothing to be ashamed of in the early summer following the June rains the tender young growth of the spring—now grain crops presented a restful picture full of promise of the future. As week followed week of almost ideal growing weather with not an occasional storm affecting restricted areas, and a series of hot and almost perfect days the early promise of a bountiful crop grew steadily into a certainty.

Inspiring as the prairies were in early spring and the first days of summer, and fair as the prairie wild flowers were, the crops became taller and the heads began to develop and fill out as they escaped to the passing breeze. It is in the late summer and early fall no doubt that the West really comes into its own and presents a picture which few places in the world can rival and none surpass.

This article was written in mid-August, when days of unsurpassed sunshine made great soil, each day changing the landscape a glorious sunset the promise of still another day of perfect harvest weather. The writer has just completed a motor trip through hundreds of miles of grain fields. And what a sight! If the promise of the early summer could make such a trip surely there is something more than could be desired.

Speaking again of perfect roads, albeit only well graded dirt roads whether one prefers an level as a billiard table, or with the feeling of a bird flying and skipping as the car swings over the undulations of country dropping into a valley here and winding up through the hills only one sight reaches the eye and that panorama extends unchanged as far as the eye can reach—a seemingly limitless expanse of yellow golden grain. The whole country is a golden yellow

And no great industrial city in the world can show a scrap of greater activity for all sides can be heard the click and clatter of the binders as they cut down the ripened grain and with automatic carelessness toss the bound sheaves to one side, ready for the stookers. With amazing frequency the whirl of windmills of the newer combines can be seen and heard, while in the weather attachment others threshing the grain as the big machines move onward with the irresistibility of a tank in modern warfare. In some fields the harvest hands are busy in grubbing the sheaves and loading them on the road a threshing gang is at work, horses hauling great racks of stook-loading machines, pitchers, engineers firemen, drivers, all covered with dust and working at high pressure to accomplish a maximum of work before daylight fails

And on one speeds along the road it becomes a necessity to slow down and there are few of every few miles one does not pass a loaded wagon or truck headed to capacity with the wheat being hurried to the elevators, there far from artistic but essentially modern and practical adjuncts to twentieth century grain raising and marketing. Every road is alive with them, great wagons drawn by teams, double teams, horses three abreast countless new motor trucks, strings of wagons hauled by a tractor, driven by old men and young, boys hardly in their teens, women and girls, all headed to the nearest railway station

And these small prairie towns and villages through which we pass every few miles present the same scene of tireless activity. The loads of grain wagons and trucks are lined up awaiting their turn to reach the elevators, while the "put, put" of the engines lazily to the energy with which the elevator operator is serving to keep up with the golden stream pouring in upon him. At the same time is heard the "hiss" of the grain as it is emptied through the elevator chutes into the waiting, freight cars. All night long the elevators struggle with the gigantic task before them and through the night the long trains plunge through the deafness hurrying the proceeds of the farmers' toil to the hungry markets of the world.

And where are these tens of thousands of harvesters from Eastern Canada, British Columbia, and the miner-harvesters from over the sea, which only a few days ago thronged our cities and larger town distributing circulars? Scattered singly or in groups they have been swallowed up in the grain fields of Canada's prairie provinces. They have been merged into and lost in the mass as part of the Epic of the West. They are working hard, but they are, too, catching a glimpse of a new life and it is inconceivable that they will fail to become imbued with some of the courage, the optimism, the vision of the great new land

September days in Western Canada! Glorious days, health-giving, wealth-giving days

A New Wireless Wonder

Apparatus Supplies Heat Without Apparent Direct Contact

The latest performances by which wireless is employed consist of supplying heat to bodies without establishing apparent direct contact between the heater and the heated body and lighting lamps without any apparent electrical supply

These are done by power obtained from a new short-wave vacuum tube. High frequencies are produced of high power, using a short-wave tuner.

Broadcast have been enclosed in a glass tube and hung from the end of a metallic "aerial" that receives the transmitted power and conveys it to the food in the form of heat and cooks it.

New methods in electrical treatment are always being hailed for by doctors. Perhaps in the future this new apparatus will be used for imparting heat to the body to produce artificial "fever," one of Nature's most prevalent factors in recovery from many diseases

A carrotier Of Pulmonary Troubles. Many testimonials could be presented showing the great efficacy of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in correcting disorders of the respiratory processes, but the best testimonial is the money and the Oil is recommended to all who suffer from these disorders with the certainty that they will find relief. It will allay inflammation in the bronchial tubes

The exact altitude of the bronze tablet on top of the monument is being determined and will be available a little later. Mr. Sinclair has written to the Standard and given the elevation of their bench mark on the public school, which is 2023.4 feet above sea level. The bench mark's position is a copper bolt, ¾ inch in diameter and is located in the east stone foundation wall of the wing extending east from front of school. It is in the fifth course of stonework below the watertable course of concrete and is 7 feet from the S. E. corner of the wing.

DEWBERRY BUDGET

Mr. Alexander Ewen, who took over the barber shop and pool room business from Mervin Childs a few weeks ago, is now well established in the premises. In spite of the busy season the tables are generally occupied in the evenings.

The combines are busy and doing good work. On the farm of T. Porter and sons, two men run the tractor and combine while Fred Battle has charge of the "bus" service and makes the hunt fly between the machine and the Pool elevator. "Watch the corner posts, Fred."

Mr. Fred Clark, who sold out to Frank Bowman last fall, was in the district last week visiting old time friends. He has now returned to Vancouver.

In spite of the frosty nights and some cold days, a butterfly was seen in town last week. Evidently a member of the Optimist Club.

All three elevators are kept busy these days, and good grades are reported considering the frost

BOOHER FOUND GUILTY OF MURDER

Sentenced To Hang Dec. 15

Vernon Booher must hang.

Found guilty of the murder of his mother, his 24-year old brother Fred, and Gabriel Goremby and Wasyl Bozuk, two hired men, on the Booher farm at Mannville on July 9 last, the 20 year old hockey player will hang in amateur leagues in Alberta, was sentenced to explate his crime on the gallows at Fort Saskatchewan jail on Saturday morning, December 15 just Chief Justice Simmons, who pronounced the sentence Friday morning kept his face from his seat, his face set, only to sink back again as in a closure tone Foreman McPherson pronounced the dread word "Guilty."

A deathly hush fell over the courtroom, and all eyes were turned on Booher as he put his head down in the prisoner's box. Chief Justice Simmons sorted the papers on his desk, then turned to the prisoner

"Vernon Booher, have you anything to say before sentence is passed in conformance with the verdict of the jury?" he asked.

Standing erect between two husky provincial policemen, Booher faced back a sob and then answered clearly.

"Yes, the only thing I have to say is that I am not guilty," he said quickly, gulped two or three times, and repeated the exact sentence.

For an hour and a half after the jury retired Vernon Booher sat in the A. P. P. cell below the courtroom. Occasionally he jumped to his feet and walked around the cell, but for the most part he was fighting for self control. When the summons came to return to the court-room he was waiting at the cell door, and as the jury came in he steamed each face eagerly. Apparently unable to find any comfort there he whispered to his attorney, Neil D. McLeod, K.C., whose masterly defence was one of the features of the sensational trial

As the jurymen answered to their names called by Clerk of the Court Thomas Henderson, the accused again kept his eyes fixed intently on the jurymen

"Gentlemen of the jury, have you agreed upon a verdict?" intoned Clerk Henderson Booher straightened in his seat and Herbert McPherson, foreman, rose and answered "We have."

"How say you? Is the defendant guilty or not guilty?" Annis Booher had risen from his seat, his face set, only to sink back again as in a closure tone Foreman McPherson pronounced the dread word "Guilty."

A deathly hush fell over the courtroom, and all eyes were turned on Booher as he put his head down in the prisoner's box. Chief Justice Simmons sorted the papers on his desk, then turned to the prisoner

The fall meeting of the Vermilion Presbytery of the United Church of Canada was held in the First United Church, Vermilion on Thursday and Friday, the 27th and 28th of September. Automatic Gear Shifting

New Device Developed in England To Solve Motor Troubles

The London Daily Mail says that a "motoring development of first rate importance" in the form of an automatic gear-shifting device has been adopted by one of the leading British manufacturers after successful tests over 30,000 miles.

By this device a driver moves a pointer on a quadrant on his steering wheel to the desired speed designation, steps on a pedal, and the gear changes automatically, smoothly and silently.

WILL FILL IMPORTANT ROLE

Britain's First High Commissioner To Canada Should Be Helpful To Both Governments

Sir William Clark, who has arrived in Canada to serve as Britain's first High Commissioner to this country, will fill a very important role and one that gives promise of being valuable to both countries concerned. As Sir William himself has declared, he will serve as an additional channel of communication between the Ottawa and London governments, "two governments" he adds, "serving equally the same king and governing nations within one and the same Empire."

Britain's High Commissioner to this country should be able to offer important advice to the British Government as to Canada's powers of absorption, as to just what type of immigrant this country requires, and the best way to get it. He should be able to advise with accuracy, and with a full knowledge of all aspects of the situation, both the British and Canadian Governments on this important question. In fact, it is just possible that this new link between the two countries which has been created is just what is necessary to render a problem no longer a problem.

On other matters, too, Britain's High Commissioner to Canada should be of distinct service. Sir William Clark gives promise of being an ideal man for the post and Canada will welcome him heartily to her shores.

An Interesting Collection

Figureheads Of Old Warships Can Be Seen In England

At Chatle's Yard, Millbank, England, is preserved the most complete collection of figureheads of old wooden warships some of them dating back to Nelson's time—extant in England today.

Here may be seen figureheads from the Hood, Crecey, Bristol, Collingwood, and many other famous ships, carved out of timber and painted and gilded by men who were artists in their craft.

One very fine example is the Highlander that once belonged to H.M.S. Edinburgh. Another is a gigantic head of the duke of Wellington, measuring nearly four feet from forehead to chin. The ship which this adorned was launched on the day the iron Duke died. Another interesting exhibit came from the Fighting Temeraire, the original picture of which hangs in the Tate Gallery near by.

Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture at Ottawa, following a visit to Saskatoon, stated that it was the intention of the Federal Government to establish, during the latter city a seed cleaning station similar to that operated at Moose Jaw, and that it hoped the new station would be operating in time for the farmers to take advantage of it for the 1929 crops.

The Peace River

Success Being Achieved In All Branches Of Agriculture

The crops of agriculturists are now turning to the Peace River country, where the winters appear to be comparatively mild, and where grain oats, and timothy seed can be grown and take prizes in world competition in this wonderful stretch of country offers by the middle of April the winter grains and grasses are greening. And the first week in May sees the tulips and hyacinths in full bloom.

Summer temperatures range around 90, and though early frosts are at times experienced, harvesting is usually well in hand by the first week in September. Some splendid wheat yields were reported a year ago in the Grande Prairie and Valcartier districts, ranging from 42 to 50 bushels to the acre.

The work done on the Beaverlodge Experimental Sub-Station is fully set forth in the report of that station which is available for distribution and may be had on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. The Peace River country is developing very rapidly, and the agriculture practiced is very diversified. Success is being achieved in all branches including grain, dairying, poultry and beekeeping.

Externally or Internally, It Is Good.—When applied externally by brisk rubbing, Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil opens the pores and penetrates the tissues, touching the seat of the trouble and immediately affording relief. Administered internally, it will still the irritation in the throat which induces coughing and will relieve affections of the bronchial tubes and lungs, relieving croup. Try it and be convinced.

British Harvesters And Red Cross

In War And Peace The Red Cross Is Still Serving

"Ready for service" is the proud boast of the Red Cross the world over, and in countless ways, exemplified by the man in the street, the Red Cross is found to be "still serving."

A large party of British harvesters en in the west found themselves stranded in the city of Calgary. Their immediate need was shelter for the night and the friendly hand. Cool weather and early frost necessitated the provision of warm bedding for these strangers within the gates.

The Red Cross of Alberta gladly came to the rescue and was called to cooperate with the Salvation Army in the problem of getting the men comfortable for the night, including the piping each and all with warm bedclothing.

Thus in the unknown byways of the world by little deeds of kindness were these weary travellers reminded that the Red Cross, their friend in war time, was still anxious and ready to be their friend in times of peace.

People seldom improve when they have no model but themselves to copy after.

SUMMER COMPLAINT

Nearly Lost Her Little Boy

Mrs. Theodore Rivett, Anthony, Ont., writes:—"Last Fall I nearly lost my little girl as she was suffering badly from summer complaint. She became so ill that I thought I had no hope, and could hardly walk across the room without falling down. I had my mother advised me to get a bottle of and after she had taken a few doses she was relieved.

I also found it a good remedy for cramps, and would not be without a bottle of it in the house for anything."

This boon on the market for over 80 years, put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

OCTOBER 7

PAUL IN EPHESUS

Golden Text: "We are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God afore prepared that we should walk in them." —Ephesians 2.10.

Lesson: Acts 19.1-41; Ephesians 4.14.

Devotional Reading: Ephesians 3. 14-21.

Explanations And Comments

The Fortefied Chance, Acts 19.8, 9. On his third missionary journey Paul came to Ephesus, where he followed his customary method of speaking first to the Jews, and then to the Greeks. For three months in the synagogue he reasoned and persuaded as to the things concerning the Kingdom, the subject of Jesus' teaching. But instead of heeding his message, the Jews hardened their hearts, and some of them even spoke evil of "the way" (verse 9), the term by which Christianity (recall Acts 9.2), that was obliged to break with the Jews, leaving the synagogue for the lecture-room of Tyrannus, where many of them followed him. Tyrannus was probably a Gentile who had a school of philosophy, and may have seemed to the Ephesians to be one of the wandering professors of philosophy who were so numerous in the Greek Empire. In the lecture-room of Tyrannus, from eleven to four, after the philosopher had finished his lectures, Paul proclaimed unto his hearers the first word of life.

Two Fruitful Years, Acts 19.10. —"This continued by the space of two years." In the school of Tyrannus, and in the Jewish synagogue Paul heard the word of the Lord, both Jews and Greeks." Within easy reach of Ephesus were the other cities of the Roman Province of Asia (on the peninsula of Asia Minor), during these years were probably found the fruits of the labors of Epaphras (see Col. 1.7, or Revelation 1.4, 11.

Seven Jewish exorcists who had practised magical arts came and, publicly renouncing their deeds, burned their books and burned them in the sight of all. "Those were books of formulas for compelling the appearance of spiritual beings, or securing the affection of a beloved, or for inflicting pain and spiritual torment." —A. B. Pasha. The cost destroyed properly valued at fifty thousand pieces of silver, or the equivalent of for fifty thousand days' labor. Probably there were few copies of the magicians' scrolls, and to them very high value was due their valuation.

2 cups Borden's St. Charles Milk.
1 cup hot water.
8 tablespoons cornstarch.
4 eggs.
½ teaspoon salt.
¾ cupful cold water.
¾ cup orange juice.
2 tablespoons lemon juice.
Grated rind of one orange.
1 cup sugar.

Mix cornstarch, sugar and salt, stir into with cold water. Add to scalded milk and hot water, stirring constantly until mixture thickens, afterwards occasionally; cook fifteen minutes. CARAMEL CUSTARD (Serves 6)

1 tall can Borden's St. Charles Milk with enough water to make 1 quart.
6 eggs.
½ teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon vanilla.
½ cup sugar.
¼ teaspoon nutmeg.

Gradually sift sugar into a hot skillet, shaking the skillet vigorously all the time to prevent burning. The sugar should melt about as fast as it is sifted into the pan. When it turns to an amber color (a light rusty color) pet on back of stove and add milk, being careful that milk does not bubble over, as is liable on account of the high temperature of sugar. As soon as the sugar is melted in the milk, add mixture gradually to eggs slightly beaten. Add the salt and flavoring to egg and milk mixture. Bake in custard cups in a moderate oven.

THE TOOTH "NERVE"

You know, of course, that a tooth is not solid right through, but is hollowed out like a lead pencil for a chamber; and because of and experience most people call this chamber the nerve.

Many of the converts who had practised magical arts came and, publicly renouncing their deeds, burned their books and burned them in the sight of all. "Those were books of formulas for compelling the appearance of spiritual beings, or securing the affection of a beloved, or for inflicting pain and spiritual torment." —A. B. Pasha. The cost destroyed properly valued at fifty thousand pieces of silver, or the equivalent of for fifty thousand days' labor. Probably there were few copies of the magicians' scrolls, and to them very high value was due their valuation.

When the tooth erupts, the pulp chamber is proportionately large, but with the tooth fully grown and perfected, the need for tissue forming elements is largely past. So the blood supply to the pulp is cut down with a progressive narrowing of the pulp chamber, until in dread life, it is sometimes altogether obliterated.

This accounts for the fact that tooth decay can more quickly do harm to a child's than to the dentist than in the adult's.

You dread the dental engine, and at the first touch of the "drill" to the tooth, you say that the dentist has struck the nerve because of the pain you feel.

However, this sensation is being carried merely by minute fibrils that lie in the dentinal spurs that wells the pulp containing the nerve proper has gone undisturbed.

Remember this: that the power of feeling in the pulp is very low and once infected, the chances of its recovery to health are extremely slight.

For which reason you should be on your guard to head off tooth disease in its earlier stages.

"What sort of face powder does your mother wear, my girl?"

"Angelus and will cover up a black eye, sir."

Scientists Eagerly Awaiting The Near Approach of Mars In Hope of Solving its Secrets

Mars is again approaching the earth, and soon the planet of the Martian's track, is getting excited over the prospect of at last winning from the reddy planet one of its most profound secrets—the existence of intelligent beings.

Two years ago, when Mars was in a very favorable position, changes were noticed compared with the observations of 1924. The large area of vegetation, known as the "lake of the Sun" had completely altered its shape and shifted several hundred miles northwards. The "canals" had also changed their configuration.

Was it due to Martian agriculture on a colossal scale or was it the result of a catastrophe of nature? asks the Daily News. The extraordinary fact remains, however, that the "canals" as seen in 1926 had reverted to their appearance in drawings made half a century ago.

In December, when the planet will be at its nearest again, scientists hope to solve many riddles and to gain some clue whether rational intelligence lies behind the movements of "The Lake of the Sun" and the "canals."

Dr. R. L. Waterfield, the News' astronomical correspondent, writes that the approach of 1926 was probably the most remarkable since those of the late seventies and early 'eighties, when Schiaparelli made his discoveries of the Martian "canals." For two years previous to that opposition, Mars that had never happened before. Certain prominent features of the planet's surface, the "canals" and the "lakes" as seen in 1926 had reverted to their appearance in drawings made half a century ago.

Rose Gardens In Bulgaria Furnish Precious Attar

Bulgaria's far famed Valley of Roses has once more captured the world's markets for precious otta.

As far as the eye can see a red carpet covers this enchanting region and the peasants smile because they see the end of a long period of depression. Eighty-five per cent. of the world's supply of rose essence, the base of all perfumes, is produced in the Valley of Roses, between the Balkan mountains and the Rhodope mountains in Europe.

The delicate rose vines suffered severe damage in recent earthquake, but this has been overcome, and the crop this year will be only 20 per cent. under normal. There are 42,000 rose gardens in Bulgaria. A hundred thousand Bulgarians and 14,000 families have no other means of livelihood.

The roseleaves are shipped to 300 distilleries. More than 4,000 pounds of buds are required to yield one pound of attar, which sells in the United States for $250.

The peasants are still depressed by one factor They believe that the Russian girl is lovelier than ever ever before. The latest figures for the export of attar of roses to the United States bear out their employment."

Tablet Recently Found in Athens Impressed Youths At Play

Everyday occurrences are being made with regard to ancient people.

When some workmen were clearing out the rubbish from the base of the walls of the Acropolis in Athens, for which, by the way, Themistocles built the walls, they found a tablet, the same across two marble tablets sculptured in relief. And one of these tablets represented two youths holding hockey sticks in their hands ready to hit the ball, which lies between them, whilst a third is in the act of giving the signal to begin.

The latter place, just inside the Quebec boundary, had a previous finish of fame as the community from New Zealand Rose was sent to Whale. There were 20 dogs in the shipment handled by the Canadian National Railways

The dogs were removed to Quebec by the S.S. The regular monthly meeting of the school board was held last night with all members in attendance. Two special meetings were held during the past month in connection with matters bearing upon the new school. High school enrolment was reported as 160 and public school 247. Owing to the shortage of work on the primary teacher, the placing of a class of six pupils of the 4B in the room to the west room was sanctioned. Twelve new desks are being ordered for use in the high school. It was decided to close the entrances to the anteroom of the two classrooms in the gymnasium to eliminate drafts and add to the heating of the premises until they can be varnished. With a continuance of the fine weather for another couple of weeks, the public works department of Alberta will have the last link in the gravel highway from Edmonton to the United States border completed. Gravelling is proceeding satisfactorily on the main highway between Macleod and Cardston and the road should be in operation by the middle of the month. A BOOK ON THE BARR COLONISTS

Harry Pick, one of the original Barr Colonists, is the author of a book recently published entitled "Next Year," a romance of the Barr Colonists in Canada. The book presents the history of a number of the Barr colonists in story form and pictures the hardships, humors, bravery and idiosyncracies of typical members of the colony from their coming into the Great West in 1902 and settlement at Lloydminster. While the Barr Colonists themselves will doubtless appreciate the true-to-lifeness of Mr Pick's characters in "Next Year," it is as well a book which will appeal to the general reader for the humor and romance of its story alone. This book makes another useful contribution to Canadian historical literature which is helping to build up a real Canada

Before long Vermilion will have an abundance of electrical power, as the installing of the new mills is going on space in the new power plant build is for the building itself is now being completed, as latecomers could not be secured previously.

Vermilion's power plant is carrying a load these days as heavy as the heaviest loads of last winter—an indication of the increase in juice consumption already this fall.

Former Vermilion Lady Passes

(From the Del Norte Triplicate)

Thursday, September 20th, Mrs. Emma Anna Childs died at the family residence on Pueblo Avenue, Del Norte City

The deceased was born in the town of Durham, Greene county, New York on the 10th day of February, 1875, and was 53yrs-8mos years, seven months old at the time of her passing. At the age of three years her parents moved to Indian Falls in the same county and state, where she grew to womanhood. On the 28th day of December, 1898, she was married at Indian Falls to E. H. Childs, and one little child, Lora Louise, remains to mourn with her father the loss of her loving mother

At an early age the deceased joined the Methodist Episcopal church at Indian Falls and since that time remained true to her faith. At the time of her death, she was a member of the Methodist church at Crescent City.

She leaves to mourn her death, besides her husband and daughter, three brothers, Charles and William Funke, who live at East Pembroke, and George A Funke, who resided at Batavia, NY.

Mrs. Childs was educated wife and mother, a loving sister, a kind and accommodating neighbor and a sincere friend She was a member and associate matron of the Eastern Star chapter at Crescent City, which order took charge of her funeral at the Crescent City Masonic cemetery Tuesday, Sept. 25th at 2 o'clock p.m. The services at the house were conducted by the Rev. A. J. Irvin of the local Presbyterian church.

The large concourse of people who attended her funeral and the abundance of flowers banished tear and actions of the high esteem in which she was held by all who knew her. The bereaved ones have the sympathy of a host of relations and friends.

An effort is being made to establish an airport at Banff Alberta. Government officials have inspected a site near the present golf links and the prospect that a field will be prepared within the next year is bright.

A further supply of airplanes and airplane parts arrived in Montreal recently when the Canadian Pacific freighter "Beaverford" brought over Dr Haviland Moth planes, one case of wings and two cases of spare parts.

A call for tenders for a large elevator with a capacity of 1,500,000 bushels has been sent out by the Saint John Harbor Commission The new structure is to be erected on the Colwell Fuel Company's site, in West Saint John, the work of construction to be got under way as soon as possible.

A Cadillac sedan equipped with rubber insulated steel flanged wheels has been specially designed for the degree House of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Montreal for the use of the electrical engineering department of that company on inspection trips. The machine has an electric braking system operated by the steering wheel and can make as great a speed on the rails as it can on the highway Over seventy miles an hour was made on a trial run.

A big black bear tried to stop a Canadian Pacific freight train the other day near Arcadia station in Northern Frontenac county in Ontario, and when the encounter was over there was not enough of the bear left to make a pair of mitts. Brain evidently saddened on to the tracks during the night and was mashed by the glare of the headlight. Black bear are found throughout Frontenac County, but are not often seen, except during the berry season, as they are night prowlers.

Addressing the Board of Trade of Vancouver, recently, E. W. Beatty, Chairman and President of the Canadian Pacific Railway, stated that present prosperity in Canada is clearly indicated by forty main factories, employed of railway car loadings (showing the volume of business of the whole range of activity which they reflect The gross earnings of the railway, he said, would had been greatly increased how ever by reduced freight rates

A unique piece of railway equipment is now in service on the C.P.R. constructed by the Angus shops for the Canadian Pacific Rail-a-Car. The opportunity to introduce it the public was taken by the company at Toronto exhibition, when it was placed on exhibition. It is driven by a gasoline engine and is operated by one man. It is designed to run on the highway as well as on the railway, and is equipped with rubber tires. It is expected that the development of the Rail-a-Car will be the means of the new "one" movement for portion of the C.P.R. in the largest cities in the British Empire.

The High School

The Literary Society of V.H.S. held its first meeting last Friday, September 28th, and it was one grand success. The meeting opened with "O Canada" followed by a piano solo by Isobel McKeon. The next item was an orchestral concert put on by the Grade XI students. The nine speakers were: Caroline Green, Gwendolyn Dunsmore, Ruth Cash, Margaret Roebuck, Jean Cameron, Isobel Shields, Velma Walker, Helen Baker and Winnie Rose. These students exercised themselves in this. Different topics were discussed and each was handled with surprising ability. Mr. Markle awarded prizes to the three best, the prizes being the other two teachers, Mr. Tupper and Miss Mangham. The students who received the prizes were Caroline Green (1st., Gwendolyn Dunsmore (2nd), Ruth Cash (3rd); congratulations to them all. Madelon McLean then favored us with a piano solo. Lois Whitby recited an amusing French-Canadian poem. "Quartette" by the "Famous Trochaeors" took down the house. It was originated by Bill Elliott and he also took part in it. The meeting was closed with "God Save the King."

We regret to announce that our Tea, advertised for October 5th, has been postponed owing to the Presbyterian Ladies Aid having that date. But watch for further notice.

The Cadet Corps is getting in a fine training course these days. Bill Elliott has been chosen Corps Leader and Russell Brown and Art Wiebe are the section leaders. We are now beginning to wonder how we are going to get uniforms for our spring inspection.

Our next Literary Society meeting on October 11th will be opened to the public A small admission will be charged.

During the drill period the girls playing basket-ball and baseball have chosen teams while the remainder take drill from Miss Pettington.

We are glad to see Margaret McKenzie back at school. She will come with her Grade XII course.

Our registration has increased one since last week, making 109.

Fine weather is still with us and thrashing operations have made great headway. Another two weeks will be required under present favorable conditions before the bulk of the big grain crop is threshed.

Mysteries Of Life

British Scientist On Verge Of Discovery Of Many Hidden Secrets

Science is on the verge of discovery of the difference between life and death. Prof. Frederick G. Donnan told members of the British Association of the Advancement of Science

"At the very gate between life and death, the English physiologist, A. V. Hill is on the eve of a discovery of astounding importance if indeed he has not already made it," said the lecturer.

"It appears from his work that the organized structure of nerve cells requires oxygen and therefore oxidation to preserve it. The organization is always tending to run down and approach disorganization.

"The life machine is therefore totally unlike ordinary mechanical machines: they bring cell is like a battery which is constantly running down and requires constant oxidation to keep it charged. I believe these results are of enormous importance. For the first time in the history of science we begin, perhaps as yet a little dimly, to understand the difference between life and death and therefore the very meaning of life itself.

Life is a dynamic molecular organization kept going and preserved by oxygen and oxidation Death is a natural breakdown of this structure, when present and easily checked off by the structure preserving the action of oxidation."

Dust Travels Long Distance

Rice Brew Carried By Wind As Far As 2,500 Miles From Place Of Origin

Winds charge the atmosphere with billions of tons of dust every day and it is often carried to great distances before it settles to the earth. In China, an area of some 200,000 square miles is covered to a depth of thousands of feet with a fine yellow silt soil called "loess," which is supposed to have been brought by winds from the deserts and dry steppes of Central Asia. In March 1934, a series of dust storms occurred in the northern part of the Sahara Desert, in Africa, and the dust, after being carried upward by cyclonic winds to great heights was eventually deposited over most of Western Europe to a distance of 2,500 miles from the place of origin. German scientists estimated that not less than 1,500,000 tons of the deposit fell in Europe and over the Mediterranean Sea. On the African coast the deposit is supposed to have amounted to 150 000 000 tons

Remarkable Bath in Iceland

Water Conducted Through Underground Passage From Hot Spouting Fountain

One of the great heroes of Iceland was Snorry Thuriestun. He wrote a book about the kings of Norway, and he built a remarkable bath which is still preserved after more than seven centuries. The bath which is circular in form and about 15 feet in diameter is built of hewn stones well fitted and held together by a fine and durable cement. Around the inside rim of the basin runs a stone bench capable of seating thirty persons. The water for the bath is brought from a hot spouting fountain, and is conducted for a distance of 300 feet through an underground passage. An aperture which lets in the water can be closed at will, while another opening in the bottom of the bath (also capable of being closed) with a sluice allows the water to flow out in this way the bath is kept perfectly clean

Women Smoke

Jack Miner Comments On Use Of Tobacco By Ladies Generally

Jack Miner, Canada's noted naturalist, has the following interesting comment to make on women smoking:

The other morning, while on the train en route from a lecture tour in New York City and Boston, Mass., while waiting for my breakfast to be served, a morning newspaper was handed me which, on the front page in capital letters, read these words: "Henry Ford Hospital Nurses Discharged for Smoking Cigarettes" I then thought of several requests I have had to put in print the importance and need of Mr. Ford. I say this alone shows you the caliber of Mr. Henry Ford and his interest in the moral side of life and in the born and unborn generations and this fact, connected with the character of Mr. Henry Ford, will go down to history

If more men will take Mr. Ford's example and have a backbone instead of a wishbone, it will help slow this world up a bit and children a century from now will have healthy parents to train them. So many men ask me why I am so opposed to women smoking, and in reply will say: "Tis cigarettes and smoke before they are born Right here let me say to the world, I will give more for any child's moral and mental health or education before he is born than I will say nine years after. I think every human being wants to see the world take a step forward and not backward, and who in the name of God can say by women smoking it makes this world better.

Fruit and Vegetable Wholesalers

List Of Firms Dealing In Fruit and Vegetables

A publication of interest to fruit and vegetable growers and distributors has been issued, after being revised and brought up to date, ready for distribution. It is a list of "Wholesale dealers in Fruits and Vegetables in Canada."

The list covers wholesale dealers in apples other domestic fruits, potatoes, onions, and other domestic vegetables. It is divided showing firms dealing in carlots at marketing points and at distributing points, and those handling tan carloads or more per year at production points. Firms dealing in greenhouse business indicated as such.

The publication is bulletin No. 101, "List of Wholesale Buyers in Fruit and Vegetables in Canada," and may be had on application to the Publications Branch, Department of Agriculture, Ottawa. In distributing this list the Department assumes no responsibility as to the financial standing on any of the firms listed.

A Most Important Lesson

True Sympathy Possible Only When Sorrow Is Shared By All Men Are Alike

This is the most important lesson that a man can learn—that all men are really alike; that all creeds and opinions are nothing but the mere result of a chance and temperament; and that no party is, on the whole better than another. that no creed does more than shadow imperfectly forth some one of the truth; and it is only when you begin to see this that you can feel that pity for mankind, that sympathy with its disguises, its pretensions and follies and its naive human hopes, which have such a little time of growth and a sure season of decay.

Commemorates Lost Village

England's lost village, Ercles, that now lies beneath the waves of North Wahlenn, Norfolk, was commemorated a few days ago by a service which was held on the lonely foreshore at North Walsham by a surpliced clergyman and a little congregation of villagers and holiday-makers. Encroachment of the sea submerged the town and church many years ago

Went Not Redhibited

The World's Great Banks

Five Largest Are All Located In London, England

Perhaps it is wholesome in this period of our rapid financial growth to be reminded that other English speaking nations possess banking institutions as large as, or larger than those of which we boast. The newspapers are so filled with accounts of purchases and amalgamations, and the size of our major banks is so fully swelt upon that the importance and magnitude of similar concerns in other parts of the English-speaking world are but scantily realized. A recent compilation by the California Bank of Los Angeles of 150 of the largest American, British colonial and dominion banks is striking evidence of the huge growth of these countries.

Ninety American banks have resources now—this $10,000,000,000 on deposit, whereas only 60 banks in the British Commonwealth of Nations have more than $18,500,000,000. The five largest banks are all located in London. Of the five which come next, two are the Royal Bank of Canada and another is the Federal Reserve Bank of New York. In other words, of the semi-governement institution be left out, we have only three in the first ten.

Eleventh in rank is the Bank of Montreal, and twelfth is the Bank of Australia, and two other Australian banks are found in the first 20. A Liverpool bank ranks twenty-sixth and one in Manchester is thirty-fourth.

The colonies and dominions are not the rather weak lands which the ignorant American sometimes carelessly supposes. Though it is true that London and New York deserve the late the fact that the sixth, eleventh and nineteenth banks are in Montreal and Toronto, the thirteenth in San Francisco and the sixteenth and twenty-first in Chicago shows that other centres are great reservoirs of funds.

Pelicans in Old Rome

Were Four Commoners and Received Much Treatment From Patricians

Roman commoners were called Plebians and were originally forbidden all political rights. They were for the most part poor, and not allowed to inter-marry with the Patricians. They served in the army without pay, and could into slavery for debt, and could even be cut up in pieces for distribution among their creditors. Plebians could not intermarry with Patricians. After the lapse of about 200 years the disabilities of the Plebians were almost entirely removed.

Thunderstorm Causes Strife

Hot Hour Of Good Radio Reception Also Its Time

Thunderstorms are guilty of the production of the static that occasionally interrupts radio reception, especially in summer. They also cause the formation of cathode rays in the rapidly moving electrons or atoms of electricity, that cause X-rays when they are stopped by a heavy metal.

This was the announcement made at Glasgow, Scotland, to the section of physics of the British Association for the Advancement of Science by R. A. Watson Watt, British Government radio engineer. But even though this static is the bane of good radio reception, it has its use, said the speaker. The weather observer can use it to locate distant thunderstorms, and he told the scientists here he had developed a special form of radio direction finder for the purpose. An experimental receiver of this kind has been erected by the U.S. weather bureau, he said. Several years ago, when the U.S. navy was testing a receiver for getting wireless maps from the air, he, among similar experiments were made. The weather map received, the invention of C. Francis Jenkins, of Washington, was attached to a direction finder, and the course of the tropical hurricane later struck Miami was recorded.

Rapidly Becoming Obsolete

Country Store' Is Becoming Modern In Every Way

The country store is passing. It is going to join the covered wagon, the town pump and the ox team, descriptions of them still keep their old estate, but in other thousands glittering fixtures, plateglass showcases, gilt cash registers and electric heat have supplanted the wood stove, the up-ended nail-kegs, the cracker barrel and the dry goods box handy for the wrjtitler's hinds.

With its mingled smells of new rope, kerosene, rubber soles, coffee, cheese, pickgurel and calico, the country store is an institution as characteristic as green corn and apple pie. It is the will of the ruthless gods of commerce to destroy this institution. It will be the greatest loss and the greatest regret of the vast rural population of the nation.

Rural Canada is in process of transformation, and every step in that process brings nearer to obsolescence the country store of song and story, of the jester's fling and the cartoonist's pencil. The hot-dog stand, roadside garage and tea-house can never take the place of the country store.

"No," replied the rustic shortly I haven't—not since I signed the pledge."

Extensive Survey Hunt Completed

Investigators Of Department Of the Interior Are North Of Great Bear Lake

Investigations by officers of the Department of the Interior to determine the reindeer grazing possibilities of the great northern plains of Canada, reaching to the Arctic ocean are nearing completion. The study of these areas was undertaken in 1926 by the then West Territories and Yukon Branch by Messrs. A. E. and R. T. Porsild, botanists and biologists, in order to decide the practicability of establishing herds of reindeer as a source of food and clothing for the Eskimos and Indians of the far north. A recent report from the investigators stated that they were working in the area north of Great Bear Lake. This part of the survey will be completed this autumn after which the party will return to Ottawa to present a descriptive report on the two years' work to the Department.

The problem of securing new sources of food and clothing for Canada's native population in the far north has engaged the attention of the Dominion Government for some time. Our wild life, driven back into the great hinterland by the advance of civilization, is fast disappearing from the south, has had to face new menaces from the introduction of modern firearms and hunting methods among the natives. Consequently this source of food supply is gradually diminishing and the need of providing a supplementary source of supply is becoming more pressing. The successful introduction of the reindeer among northern aborigines in other parts of the continent suggested the possibility of their being utilized in Canada for the problem in Canada. Early reports from the Mounts. Porsild stated that in immense areas of country there was covering about 15,000 square miles lay to the east of the Mackenzie River delta and inland from the Arctic ocean, which it was estimated was sufficient to provide grazing for 250,000 reindeer.

A Scotch Indian

New Way Of Getting Message Sent For Nothing

This particular Scot stepped into a telegraph office and picked up one of the blanks. He looked at the clerk behind the counter.

"How much," he asked, "is a telegram to Chicago?"

"A wire to Chicago," responded the clerk promptly, "will cost you five cents a word for ten words. There will be no charge for the signature."

The Scot looked reasingly at the clerk.

"There will be no charge for the signature?" he repeated after a pause.

"That's right," said the clerk.

The Scot rubbed his forehead with the pencil.

"Well," he finally stated, "suppose I just use the word 'my signature.'"

The clerk grinned

"All right," he cried, "I'll do that. Now how much is that?"

Another pause on the part of the Scot.

"Well," he finally murmured, "I many not look it, but I'm an Indian. And my name is I-Won't-Be-Home-Till Friday."

Rooms For Two

J. Dawson Ovens, for years a member of the famous Northwest Mounted Police of Canada, had a biting humour all his own.

He followed a pompous individual to the hotel register one day, toting a little valise that contained all the clothing he deemed necessary for a short stay The man ahead was accompanied by a heavily laden servant

"B. Allway Brace and valet" signed the pompous one.

Ovens glanced at the signature, reached for his fountain pen, and without the trace of a smile, added to the list of register:

J. Dawson Ovens and valise.

Bee Stores For Winter

Forty Pounds Needed For Each Hive During the Winter

To survive the winter and to resume brood rearing in the following spring, bees require a considerable amount of food. While the amount needed for the milder months is not large, consumption increases very rapidly in the early spring when brood rearing is resumed and before the weather is suitable to open the colonies. It is, therefore, a wise plan to give the colonies enough food in the autumn to carry them well on into the following spring. Each colony should have not less than forty pounds when put away for the winter, In addition to what is in the hives it is also advisable to carry over a few well-sealed combs of honey for emergency feeding in the spring.

The Dominion Apiarist, at the Experimental Farm, Ottawa, in discussing this question in "Canada Illista," says that healthy bees eject waste material only when flying and that therefore, in the dormant condition, they have it accumulates in the intestines. If the amount of waste material is large, dysentery and death may follow, hence it is important that the food given to the bees for the winter be such as to cause indigestible matter as possible. Clover and buckwheat honeys are good but sugar syrup is the best for providing a supplementary source of supply is becoming more pressing. The successful introduction of the reindeer among northern aborigines in other parts of the continent suggested the possibility of their being utilized in Canada for the problem in Canada. Early reports from the Mounts. Porsild stated that in immense areas of country there was covering about 15,000 square miles lay to the east of the Mackenzie River delta and inland from the Arctic ocean, which it was estimated was sufficient to provide grazing for 250,000 reindeer.

British Women For Canada

Large Party Coming To Join Their Husbands and Families

Five hundred and fifteen British women destined to join their husbands and families, are "coming to Canada in one large party on the Anchor-Donaldson liner "Athenia." These women are proceeding under the auspices of the Society for the Overseas Settlement of British Women, which is supervised by the Church of England, and has been recognized as the women's branch of the Overseas Settlement Committee. Since 1919 this society has carried on the work of former women's migration societies in Great Britain. Through their efforts many hundreds of women and children from all parts of Great Britain are settled in Canada, coming out in special parties under the care of trained conductresses.

The ship S.S.B.W., realizing the need in Canada for well-trained domestics, has been making arrangements of test examinations in household work in centres preceding to Canada, and other Dominions. The society conducts investigations here as to the conditions for house-workers, and supplies its findings to training the right kind of women for settlement. They also keep women and children to meet their men-folk already settled in this country

A Matter Of Discipline

Music was prohibited during certain hours in the precincts of the college, but one undergraduate found the saxophone more engrossing than the studies. Next day he received a note from the higher authority: "Much against my better judgment, and for purposes of discipline only, I am compelled to regard your saxophone playing as music."

The next day, dressed in light clothing and a pair of tennis shoes, Donald went around Stanley Park. Wishing to condition himself, he ran the distance there and back.

Spring comes early in Vancouver as compared with the East. In January the buds are bursting and the fairy flora. The balmy sea air, scented with earthy odours from the deep woods, seemed to Donald to possess magic properties. The blood sang in his veins. Overhead, big white seagulls screamed and wheeled, equivocal, retreated in chattering flight as he raced down the road, and over all was the sound of the booming surf. The wind rushed past his ears, and he shouted aloud from sheer exuberance of spirits and the joy of living.

Donald covered the distance from English Bay to Granville Street at a jogging trot, and by the time Kerrigan's mansion came after being in the open. The big Australian fighter was in the ring with some of his sparring partners. The slap of gloves was like music to Donald's ears.

"Just in time," welcomed Andy as he led him to the dressing-room, where he quickly shifted to fighting togs and then walked over to the ring.

A crowd of boring-fans sat by the ring-side watching the big fellow work out. Donald's entrance caused a stir. His lithe, muscular body was the attraction of all eyes

"Up in," commanded Andy

While an attendant was putting on his gloves, Donald studied the big man he was to help train. He would weigh at least two hundred pounds. His shoulders were enormously broad and square, and the muscles of his arms stood out in knobs and bunches His face was a pasty colour, as though his training had been done inside His jaw was square and strong, his eyes a mild blue, and his nose looked as though it had received a solid punch. "Strong but slow," Donald decided.

When Andy introduced him Hagin merely grunted. To the fighter Donald was simply one more punching-bag

Donald turned to Andy "What do you want me to do?" he asked.

"Oh, knock the blighter out of the ring," rejoined Andy, with just a touch of sarcasm

"Do you mean that?" queried Donald quickly

Andy nodded

Hagin came to the centre of the ring, assuming an awkward crouch. His arms wound about his face. Donald circled him warily. The big man feinted with his left. Donald danced within range, and the Australian let lupse a terrific right swing that would have felled an ox. Donald sidestepped, jabbed his left twice to his opponent's face, and for the first time Hagin's jaw by the fraction of an inch. A surprised look came over the big man's face. A murmur of applause came from the audience.

"Strike me pink! What a left 'and!" ejaculated Andy. Hagin scowled and tried to bring the fighting to close quarters, but was easily avoided by the lighter opponent.

Donald now took the aggressive. His left found weak spots in the big man's defence, and repeatedly shot out in stinging jabs that drove his adversary's head back with a snap. Try as he might, Hagin could not get away from that whizzing left. It is a bitter pill to be beaten by one's sparring partner. So far the Australian had been given a boxing lesson He forced Donald into a corner and made for him savagely. Donald deftly eluded under the fall-like swings, and shot a left upper-cut to Hagin's jaw. The latter staggered weakly to the ropes Donald was after him like a flash. Just then he saw Andy gesticulating wildly and shaking his head. Hagin hung forward and Donald fell into a clinch. The gong rang.

"What's the trouble, Andy?" asked Donald as he walked to his corner.

"Strike me hucky!" whispered Andy hoarsely, "you're punchin' me out of ticket. You're makin' a blankin' boob out of me 'easywaight."

"You told me to knock him out of the ring," reminded Donald.

"Sure I did. But 'ow the 'ell did I know that you were a blankin' amateur? Strike me blind, a left 'and like that I 'aven't seen since I 'spelled Young Griffo."

"What shall I do in the next round?"

"Tyke a punch and go down 'ert your 'and or anything to quit. But for 'eaven's sake don't mess up me 'easyweight any more! If the public 'ears of this our big fight is ah off"

In the next round Donald dropped to the floor as they broke from a clinch in the centre of the ring He rose to one knee, holding his hand and making a wry face

"Too bad," sympathized Andy as he ordered him to the dressing-room.

As Donald stepped from the ring he was intercepted by a curly-haired youth whose brawny eyes sparkled with enthusiasm "My golly, I want to know you. My name's Douglas Rennie. My, but that was a wonderful fast exhibition you gave us. Can be ejaculated, gazing at Donald with undisguised admiration

Donald flushed "I appeared fast," he explained modestly. "As I was against a very slow opponent I knew nothing of that game, but I should have to be very clever to beat the Australian"

"Clairvoyance is fast and carries a knockout in either hand

"I'm sorry for Andy's man if that is the case as any kind of a bit will hurt Hagin Come to the dressing-room" invited Donald.

A moment later Andy entered and sank dejectedly to a locker seat

"You look rather blue, Andy, oh servel I said.

"I am. All 'ell's a poppin'," admitted Andy.

"What's wrong"

"I've lost me 'easyweight 'E's quit."

"Why"

"Said I framed on 'im by sending you in this afternoon. Said I 'ert 'is pride"

"Pride?" echoed Douglas sarcastically. "You've been treating him too well. I never thought much of him as a fighter. You're too good a trainer to be wasting your time on third-raters."

"Maybe you are right," conceded Andy, "but look what a blankin' mess I'm in now! 'Ere I am in the 'ole three hundred bones for training expenses, and I've put up a forfeit with the promoters for appearances. I'll lose the 'ole lot." He threw out his arms with an air of resignation and sank back in his seat.

Little Andy presented a pitiful figure as he sat hunched in the corner – his jaunty manner gone; his blond head, usually held at a saucy angle, sunk on his chest. Gloom, deep, impenetrable gloom, enveloped this bright spirit from the Antipodes.

Donald knew now that – for all Andy's munificent manner of yesterday, the three dollars to "eat on" and his benefit in trouble, How could he help him? He crossed the room, sat down beside Andy, and placed his hand on the little man's arm.

"Andy, take me on. I'll fight Gerriera for you."

Andy came to his feet with a jump and seized Donald by the shoulders. "If you'll do that, me lad, I'll be your pal for life. Strike me pink, did you 'ear that? I've got a real fighter at last! 'Ooray!" The little fellow was in transports of joy. "Wait 'till I tell 'em," he went on excitedly, "and then I'll tyke you to the Styties, and than to Australia."

"Hold on," interrupted Donald, laughingly, "looks like you intend to put me in matrimonial pug out of me. I'm doing this to help you, Andy, and," flushing in spite of himself, "I've broke."

Andy glanced over Donald's tall figure with a professional eye. "You are a week to get fit, and 'ow you 'aven't kept in condition I don't know. But you'll be 'ole in that time."

"May I work out with you?" asked Donald eagerly.

"Glad to have you," replied Donald.

A few minutes later the young men were ushered to the street. Douglas seemed loth to go

"Will you come to my home for dinner?" he asked Donald.

Donald hesitated It seemed ages since he had entered a private house. He could be at his study and work which was rather seedy, then looked up, to find the usually roguish eyes of his companion fixed upon him seriously

"Thanks old man I hope I may be the pleasure at some time, but I can't do it now."

"You said you were broke," began Douglas hastily, "you—"

"No, no, I'll see you tomorrow," interrupted Donald, turning abruptly and walking swiftly down Granville Street.

Douglas stood watching him until he disappeared. "A mighty good sport," he said softly

Censored The Temperature

Chinese Newspapers Decreased Figures So People Would Work

The temperature was censored in Hankow recently. A hot spell caused a newspaper controversy over the heights attained by the mercury, the editor of one paper made that the figures were deliberately decreased.

Each day the weather apparently was getting hotter, and each day the public scanned the temperature in the newspapers, only to find that the figures were down below the previous day. Finally the public was driven to investigate and the Chinese authority informed him that the figures at more than 100 the public will think it is hot and not work as hard

This was duly published. The next day the aggrieved authority refused to give out any figures on temperature or water marks, and for a day the public had to depend upon their home thermometers However an outcry in the public press forced the censorship to be suspended within one day

These extraordinary proceedings were submitted at the meeting by one of the members.

(2) That the new one be used in the present position.

(3) That the old bridge be left standing until the new bridge is completed

CANADA'S POPULATION

Latest Figures Show That It Is Nearly Ten Million, and Is Steadily Increasing

The latest official estimate of Canada's population places it at 9,658,000, an increase of 139,000 more than a year ago. Prince Edward Island is the only province to show a decrease. The population of each province is as follows, according to a statement issued recently by the Bureau of Statistics:

	1927	1928
Nova Scotia	512,500	517,000
Pr. Edward Is.	96,700	96,600
New Brunswick	411,000	416,000
Quebec	2,604,000	2,647,000
Ontario	3,167,000	3,208,000
Manitoba	647,000	655,000
Saskatchewan	826,000	851,000
Alberta	617,000	631,000
British Columbia	575,000	583,000
Yukon	2,417	2,500
N. W. Territories	9,000	9,000

When the last Dominion census was taken in 1921 the population was computed at 8,788,000. The increase in the last seven years, therefore, was 870,000, or an average of 124,000 a year. The increase in population between 1911, the previous census, and 1921 was 1,542,000, an average of 154,200 a year. This period included the war years.

Of the western provinces, Saskatchewan, with a population of 851,000 today, has almost doubled since 1911. Manitoba has added about 200,000 since 1911, and Alberta now standing at 631,000, had only 376,000 people 17 years ago.

It is predicted that the next ten years will see a growth of population much greater than in the last two years and that a substantial part of this increase will come in the northern part of the provinces where there was nothing but a wilderness at the turn of the century.

WHEAT POOL NEWS BULLETIN

During the month of August, 1928, a total of 2,961 contracts were received in head office. This number of contracts involved a total of 472,784 acres of wheat or an average for 27 working days during this period of 112 contracts and 16,116 acres per day. Since the issuing of the Second Series contracts 10,938 new members have been added to the association.

Deliveries to Alberta Pool elevators reached a high water mark on September 20th when over one million bushels of grain were reported

British Columbia wheat growers are joining the Alberta Wheat Pool. They find it much to their advantage to do so.

Leighton McCarthy, K.C., a Toronto lawyer and financier, said in a speech delivered in Calgary that the Wheat Pool was Canada's largest commercial undertaking, and remarked that western farmers appear to be realizing the advantages of close organization.

The six leading Pool elevators in the matter of handlings from the 1927 crop are.

Vulcan	632845 bus.
Carmangay	606,311 bus.
Warner	576,390 bus.
Coaldale	575,745 bus.
Provost	573,276 bus.
Bindloss	532,911 bus.

By the end of the present year the total number of Alberta Pool elevators will be 207, or an addition of 117 houses during the year.

WHAT IS JUNIOR RED CROSS?

In the minds of many people today there is unfortunately a sad state of ignorance as to the real nature of Junior Red Cross in the province. To explain its aims and organization the Alberta Division has issued an excellent little publication "What is Junior Red Cross?"

A little lame girl her legs in splints, smiles from the front page, in company with a roly-poly baby with club feet. These two pictures, in themselves make a striking story when one reads the words "Alberta Juniors are helping them both to health and strength."

The definition of Junior Red Cross is simply given, that he who runs may read. It is "a movement to enlist teachers to inculcate better health habits, citizenship and service to others, in those under their care."

Last year in the twelve hundred schoolrooms where Junior Red Cross branches are found, thousands of our children boys and girls were learning the secrets of good health, practising the daily hygienic habits which will assure them of long life and a good constitution, as well as contributing to the maintenance of those of their fellows who have the misfortune to be sick or crippled and are patients in the Calgary and Edmonton Hospitals under Junior Red Cross Flag.

Hon. Perren Baker, the Minister of Education, heartily commends Junior Red Cross to all who have to do with child-training, saying "To have organized a branch and successfully carried out its program is to have had a part in a great world movement for the lessening of sickness and suffering."

All interested in the health of children should write to the Superintendent Junior Red Cross, for information and health literature, 407 Civic Block, Edmonton, Alberta.

Auto Is Self Steering

The heading of this article is not intended to mislead. The high power sedan pictured above is all of that and more as the "steering wheel" gets only as a front wheel brake. It was the first car to bridge the most remarkable fast in connection with this handsome automobile is that it was turned out, just as it appeared when the Canadian Pacific locomotive works at Angus. There you have it! The wheels are flanged, with rubber tires between the steel tires. A series of country lights comply with railway regulations. There are eight of the regulation flags, a powerful headlight and a siren. Canadian Pacific engineers will use this car for inspection purposes.

Seed Plant Will Again Operate

Principal Elliott of the College of Agriculture has handed the Standard the letter published below, which speaks for itself. Any of those who have seed grain and who would like to have same handled through the seed cleaning plant at Edmonton would do well to get in touch with Mr. Stephen for particulars.

"Dear Sir:

"We have just received from the Dominion Seed Branch, Calgary, a list of the Field Inspections that were made this year in connection with Registered Seed crops. We are taking the liberty of writing those farmers who have had inspected fields of Marquis Wheat, Victory and Banner Oats to advise them that the Government Cleaning and Grading Plant, Edmonton, will again operate this year.

Paid up members of the Alberta Seed Growers' Association are given first chance to ship their grain to the Plant. After that, providing we have not received all the grain that we feed that we can handle, we will accept Seed from the public at large.

If it is your desire to ship seed to the Plant you should be well advised to make application to do so at once, for the reason that we accept grain in the order in which applications are received.

As you know, the capacity of our plant is limited owing particularly to the fact that there is only a limited amount of Registered Seed that the public wants each year. We would ask you to keep this in mind and not delay in making application. Space will be reserved for members of the Association until November 1st, after which time the Seed will be accepted from the public at large in the order in which applications are received, until the capacity of the Plant is filled.

"We would ask prospective shippers to as quickly as possible send a one-pound sample of their grain to the Dominion Seed Branch, Calgary, for a Germination and Purity test. At the same time send to the Government Cleaning and Grading Plant, Edmonton, a three-pound sample, representative of the amount you have on hand. When you receive your Crop Registration Certificate from Ottawa, and your Control Certificate from Calgary, and providing your sample is of sufficient-ly good quality to warrant us to take your grain into the Plant, we will advise you as to whether or not we can accept your Seed. Providing we accept it we would like you to hold it until advised to ship, by so doing you will assist us very materially as far as the labor is concerned, and at the same time eliminate the cost in connection with any outside storage that we might otherwise be required to obtain.

"Yours very truly,
"W. J. STEPHEN,"

Real Foundation of Modern Business

The so-called practical man of business, the financier, the farmer, during the many decades of the past has been inclined to regard the scientist as hopelessly unsafe, a dreamer a faddist. Within more recent years market change in this respect has taken place and today the specialist the scientist the laboratory research worker, is recognized as holding the most practical and essential of the world's workers.

To the great universities of the world, and to Governments must be credited in large degree the recognition now accorded to the scientist, while many of the world's foremost industrial concerns now regard their research departments as being among the most profitable departments of their great enterprises.

A recent article by Dr. F. B. Frese in "Chemical Markets," New York, declares that science came to the United States more than thirty billion dollars a year richer, nearly half of the national income. It has, he says, enabled the people to live more and more comfortably and to spend more leisure time. Continuing, Dr. Frese says: "Surely the business men of America ought to be convinced by now that it is worth while to exhaust every one of science's industrial secrets. The surprising fact is not only that many resources are inexhaustible but that only a small fraction of them have been put to work. Not a tenth of the facts that scientists know are being used. The rest of them lie idle in the heads of professors or in the unread pages of scientific books.

Some years ago a gentleman named Dudley became a chief chemist of one of the large American railroads. He devised methods of testing coal and coke and thereby in one year saved millions of dollars for his road. He helped the steel people find out how to make more lasting rails. He invented cheaper and better paints. He suited the available water supplies to the engines and saved millions of dollars' tubes from being burnt out or corroded. It is estimated that the scientific improvements devised by Dr Dudley and his successors on railways have saved more money than all the railroad wages ever paid in the United States

Sometimes a scientific problem solves itself as if by magic. The origin of the potash industry is an example. The salt miners of Germany a few generation ago were bothered greatly by some bitter evil-tasting stuff mixed with the salt they were trying to mine. This bitter stuff had to be taken out, but if they piled it in great heaps it would melt and run down into the rivers where it spoiled the water and poisoned the fish. Then a great chemist, Dr Justus von Liebig happened to hear about this worthless stuff. He found out there was potash in it. He knew that crop planks need potash that it could be used as a fertilizer. He suggested this to the farmers of Germany. Now the potash industry is one of the greatest in the world. The useless, bitter stuff became the chief assets of the mines

Tons of sulphuric acid and arsenic used to be blown out of the smoke stacks of copper smelters sometimes killing animals and crops on neighboring farms. A scientist said, an electric apparatus which collects these poisonous particles out of the smelter smoke. The apparatus is now in use all over the world, and the sulphuric acid, instead of floating out to damage the farms, is used in chemical industry, while the arsenic has become the chief resource of the scientists who are fighting the boll-weevil, which threatens the destruction of the cotton plantations of the southern states

In like manner we have the story of the botany professor who cleared the western United States thousands of acres of weed that was choking them and compelling the farmers to employ a man night and day to clear the snake of the pips line "Suspend a few crystals of copper sulphate in the ditches or little streams," he advised. The weeds died and disappeared in a week. This scientist knew that copper was especially poisonous to that kind of weed His practical knowledge increased the wealth of the whole irrigated region

In Saskatchewan a clay-working industry was having trouble with its raw products One of the professors of the University of Saskatchewan was called in and as a result of his knowledge investigations and tests he found that the correct mixture of clays was not being made. He found a remedy and the industry is now on a paying basis and expanding its operations

The battle against rust in wheat and other parasites, the removal of moisture from wheat without impairing its milling and baking qualities these and other important subjects are receiving the attention of the scientists of Canada, and their solution will mean hundreds of millions of dollars to the farmers of the Dominion

All of which only goes to demonstrate that every industrial interest in Canada, whether it be in the manufacturing class or in the work of production from the farm the mine the forest or the fisheries, should strongly support the present move for larger and more extensive research work in this Dominion And of all classes the farmer will probably prove to be the greatest gainer

Alberta Crop Yield

It is estimated that the crop yield for the southern portion of Alberta Canada has taken out a Dominion will amount to 40,000,000 bushels It therefore with the purpose of acquiring has been estimated that the total control of the Columbia Match Company yield for Alberta will be in the neighborhood of 100,000,000 bushels, but some officials say that it will be 000 bushels will be the extent of the yield

New Match Company

The Columbia Match Company of Canada has taken out a Dominion with the purpose of acquiring control of the Columbia Match Company, operating a plant in Montreal

Honor For Lost Fliers

Monument On French Coast Dedicated To Memory Of Nungesser and Coli

A monument honoring the memory of Captain Charles Nungesser and Captain Francois Coli has been dedicated at Etretat, where the French airmen left the coast of France on their ill-armed attempt to fly to New York more than sixteen months ago. It bears the inscription

"To the First Who Dared."

At the base of the column, which resembles an obelisk, are marble figures, three times life size, representing the two flyers. The monument has been erected on the cliffs at Etretat at the point over which Nungesser and Coli in their plane "White Bird" passed on May 8, 1927, before they disappeared in the west On the front are engraved the words

"Nungesser and Coli, May 8, 1927."

The inscription on the reverse side recalls their attempt.

WEAK AND NERVOUS

A Condition Always Due To Thin, Watery Blood

Thin blood and weak nerves generally are found together Red "bloodcorpuscles" are what the blood is chiefly composed of. The reason is that the blood feeds the nerves and keeps them toned up to do the work nature intended. When the blood is thin and weak it fails in this important function and nervous trouble follows. The following case will interest those who need a tonic for the blood and nerves

Mrs. D. Venn, Union "Square, N.S. says: "With a feeling of gratitude I write to tell you what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills did for me. I had become badly run down, in fact I decided to take Dr Williams' Pink Pills, nothing else, because I was not feeling at all good. I got a few boxes of these and before they were all gone I decided to take Dr Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, because I was not feeling well. My nerves seemed completely shattered and I was always nervous and upset. I was subject to nervous headaches and my blood was very thin and pale. Perhaps I would get an hour or two sleep, and then I would lie awake for the night. I had reached a stage when I actually feared I would lose my mind, but by the time I decided to take Dr Williams' Pink Pills, nothing else, because I was not feeling at all good. Canadian Pacific Uses High Power Sedan For Inspection Work

A high power Cadillac sedan specially equipped with flanged steel tired wheels has just been issued from the Angus shops of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Montreal for the use of the Engineering Department of the company. Capable of travelling on the rails at as great a speed as upon the road, the machine will be used for inspection trips on C.P.R. lines throughout the country.

Service conditions are harder on the tracks for braking, and there are three systems on the car: the ordinary foot brake operating on the rear wheels, the conventional emergency brake, and a special suspension brake applied by turning the steering wheel, acting through brakeshoes on the front wheels. The axels have been changed, the front and being rigid and more rugged, and the rear axel, instead of being mounted in connection with the differential, has had the differential removed and replaced by a one-piece alloy steel axel. The gear ratio by the engineering system, moreover, has been supplemented to comply with railroad requirements.

The car is a comfortable sedan model and will enable officials of the Engineering Department to cover great distances in a short time on their inspection trips under any weather conditions. It is the only machine of the kind at this time officially in the company's service, although several motor cars on rails have been improvised in other parts of Canada

On the subject of trans-Atlantic flight Sir Eric said an ocean service was not commercially possible because the machines could be fitted with sufficient petrol for whereas on the projected Empire service the machines could be refuelled at the halting places. The Atlantic flyer had to take all the necessary fuel with him

Happiness and misery are the banner of two extremes, the utmost bounds whereof we know not.

To break a cold harmlessly and in a hurry try an Aspirin tablet. And for headache. The action of Aspirin is very efficient, too, in cases of neuralgia, neuritis, even rheumatism and lumbago! And there's no after effect; doctors give Aspirin to children—often to infants. Whenever there's pain, think of Aspirin. The genuine Aspirin has Bayer on the box and on every tablet. All druggists, with proven directions.

Physicians prescribe Aspirin; it does NOT affect the heart

Aspirin is the trade mark (registered in Canada) indicating Bayer Manufacture. While it is well known that Aspirin means Bayer manufacture, to assure the public against imitations, the Tablets will be stamped with their "Bayer Cross" trademark.

PROVINCES WILL CLAIM RIGHTS TO WATER POWER

Ottawa.—Dominion and provincial rights to water power will be argued in the Supreme Court of Canada next week. Recognized as one of the most important questions with far-reaching ramifications which has come before the courts in years the matter undoubtedly will be carried to the Privy Council in England for final adjudication.

Development of the potential water power of the St. Lawrence international and interprovincial in character, development of water power on the Ottawa river and a number of other power projects, all these are vitally concerned in the points to be decided respecting Federal and provincial jurisdiction. The case probably will extend over two months.

The Dominion government and at least five of the provinces, Ontario Quebec, Manitoba, Saskatchewan and British Columbia, will be represented.

Ontario and Quebec, through counsel, will take the leading part in opposition and will be supported by British Columbia. Manitoba and Saskatchewan probably also will be heard in argument in answer to the claims of the Dominion.

These provinces, broadly speaking, will contend that the water powers were vested in the provinces before confederation and were not transferred to Dominion Domain by virtue of the British North American Act. A further contention would put forward on behalf of the provinces that the Dominion has no right to deal with water powers which, but may truly respecting an international waterway must subordinate to the British North American Act.

Saskatchewan has its own legal representative at Ottawa who has already rendered considerable service to the province in the brief of the counsel of agriculture.

Canada's representative has not yet been selected but an announcement with respect to the selection will be made later. The conference has to do with civil aviation.

London. — Germany's new trans-Atlantic dirigible, Count Zeppelin, will start its first flight to America not later than October 10, says an Exchange Telegraph despatch from Berlin. Peking.—More than 2,000 Chihli cheating soldiers have been killed opposite the Shantung province, and Chefoo, and there's no after effect; doctors give Aspirin to children—often to infants. FEDERAL AID FOR HIGHWAYS SHOULD CONTINUE

Regina. — That federal aid for highways should be continued with additional aid to the various provinces was the view of the delegates at the annual joint meeting of executive of the Canadian Good Roads Association who dealt with many other matters of interest, which are unanimously chosen president of the associations and other officers were elected. Seven invitations were presented for next year's meeting place and, while, no decision was arrived at, Prince Edward Island would seem to be in favor with the delegates.

When the subject of Federal aid for highways was under review the discussions arising from this topic were crystallized in the following resolution:

"Resolved, that in view of the very marked and acknowledged benefit which Canada as a whole has been because of the large investments being made in the highway construction and maintenance by various municipal and provincial bodies, such benefit being of a far reaching nature and affecting many branches of Dominion government service; and whereas the Federal government has collected in excess of $200,000,000 during the past 10 years which can be directly or indirectly traced to highway; and in view of the fact that the Federal government recognized its interest in highways by a first grant of $20,000, which has been expended; and, in view of the increase in highway travel throughout Canada, this association, in annual convention assembled reaffirm its oft-stated belief in Federal aid to highways and that additional aid should be granted at the earliest possible moment to the various provinces and the executive committee is hereby instructed to make every reasonable effort to have this resolution made effective."

Williams spent two days in Seattle and returned home in order to discuss all angles of his situation with his friends here. He had been invited to attend the Washington institution.

"He is remaining in Vancouver for the year because he feels that it would be unfair to those who welcomed him so wonderfully and who have been so good to him here," a member of the committee said.

Anglo-French Naval Pact

United States Government Rejects Agreement In Note Sent To Bull Powers

Washington, Sept. 26.—An unqualified rejection of the so-called secret Anglo-French naval accord as a basis for renewed discussions on naval arms limitations is understood to be contained in the United States replies to Great Britain and France which were forwarded to Paris and London.

A separate note for each government was sent the American ambassadors for transmittal to the foreign offices.

It had been expected one note would be sent to both governments Although it was learned the notes are not identical in form they are understood to be similar to each other in their essential facts.

It is understood both notes comprise a lengthy discussion of the American stand on naval disarmaments with respect to cruisers and submarines. This subject has been the centre of disagreement between the United states and Great Britain and is held to have caused the failure of the 1927 Geneva conference

As indicated at the White House it is expected the note will reiterate the United States stand on naval disarmaments as outlined at the 1927 Geneva conference

MAKING EVERY EFFORT TO BRING BRITISHERS HERE

Winnipeg. — That there was no foundation for the charge made by Sidney Lloyd of Saskatchewan at a luncheon here "that there has been and is today a deliberate attempt to keep the British out of Canada," was the declaration made by Hon. Robert Forke, minister of immigration.

Speaking over the long distance telephone from his farm at Pipestone Man., Mr Forke said: "We are doing every thing possible to bring to Canada Britishers whom we think are willing and capable of working on Canadian farms, no matter what district they come from.

"We are assisting ourselves, with every good organization, having the British people's best interest at heart, to advance the settlement of British in Canada and we are doing nothing for members of any other nationality who are coming into Canada.

What else should we do in all consciousness that we are not now doing"

Agricultural Schools Will Open October 29

New $200,000 Dormitory at Vermilion Will be Ready

Alberta's four agricultural schools at Vermilion, Olds, Claresholm and Raymond are preparing for opening day, which is scheduled for October 29. The new dormitory building at Vermilion, which is now practically completed, will also be officially opened at that time. Erected at a cost of $200,000, this building will provide residential accommodation for about 200 students, slightly more than in the dormitory at Olds, which is the only other home in connection with the four schools of the province.

Prospects for the fall and winter terms at the four schools are reported good and it is expected there will be an aggregate enrolment of 700 or more, a substantial increase over last year. All parts of the province will be represented in the student list.

A number of new appointments have been made to the teaching staffs of the schools, by way both of filling vacancies and providing for the increased classroom work of the institutions. The list is as follows:

W. J. Harper, B.Sc., instructor in animal husbandry and farm manager at the Claresholm school.

Wilfrid Robinson, B.Sc., agronomist at Claresholm

Miss Letitia Reed, matron and dietician in the dormitory at Vermilion.

Range Cattle From Alberta Bring Large Prices in Chicago

Ninety-three head of dry cows from the McIntyre ranch in Alberta were recently consigned to Chicago in exchange for a $10,000 cheque. Cattleman looking over the shipment claim that it is one of the finest of its range cattle ever forwarded from Calgary. The heaviest animal in the lot topped the scales at 1,300 pounds and the ninety-three averaged 1,200 lbs. These cattle come from one of the few remaining old-time ranches which is running a herd of upwards of 2,500 Herefords.

Reduce the Acid

PHILLIPS

Sick stomache, sour stomache and indigestion usually mean excess acid. The stomach nerves are over-stimulated. Too much acid makes the stomach and intestines sour.

Almost kills acid instantly. The best form is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia, because one harmless, tasteless dose neutralizes many times its volume in acid. Since its invention, 50 years ago, it has remained the standard with physicians everywhere.

Take a spoonful in water and your unhappy condition will probably end in five minutes. Then you will always know what to do. Crude and harmful methods will never appeal to you. Get prove this for your own sake. It may save a great many dangerous hours.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting these acids. Each bottle contains full directions for using.

Federal Submarine Crews

Italian Has Invention That May Prove of Great Value

Cesare Borghetti, inventor of an apparatus for saving the lives of submarine crews in case of danger, has succeeded in interesting the Italian government in his invention and we gives the press some details of his amazing invention.

Signor Borghetti's apparatus consists of several hollow cylinders attached to the sides of the submarine in such a way that they do not impede its passage through the water. The number of these cylinders depends on the number of men in the crew.

The outer chambers are reached by two doors from the interior of the vessel. Inside of each of these cylinders is another airtight chamber with four compartments holding compressed air.

When the shipwrecked crew is inside the inner chamber and the doors are tightened, a lever releases the outer cylinder which is firmly attached to the sides of the submarine. The cylinder containing the men is constructed in such a manner that it will float, automatically, to the surface even from a depth of 600 feet.

Opening of Bay Roads

Suggestion is Made to Hold Monster Excursion From All Parts of Canada

By way of establishing an "entente cordiale," W. Moss Thrasher, secretary of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section, suggests that the opening of the Hudson Bay trade route to Great Britain be celebrated by a huge excursion from all parts of Canada, the mid-western states and Great Britain, the meeting place to be on the shores of the bay.

Mr. Thrasher also suggests that at the same time the Federal government should take steps to eliminate all trade restrictions with the Mother Country and bend every effort toward contracting the huge purchasing power of western Canada in Great Britain, where, he points out, the western farmers sell the bulk of their products.

He believes that this would be the first logical step towards solution of western Canada's immigration as well as industrial problems, and that something should be done when the west is more closely linked with the Old Country by the opening of the Hudson Bay route.

"Western Canada sells its surplus products in Great Britain," he says, "and accordingly should buy manufactured products required from that source. No country can carry on successfully by selling to one market and buying from another. Someone will have to suffer. The lack of balance will eventually be felt."

Thousands of People Attended Air Mail Service Inauguration

The first aerial mail service between Canada and the United States was inaugurated October 1 at St. Hubert aerodrome, near Montreal, when a grand aerial pageant, in which fifty planes took part, commenced at 9 o'clock in the presence of thousands of spectators. SPIRITUAL GIFTS

Golden Text: "Now abideth faith, hope, love, these three; and the greatest of these is love."—1 Corinthians 13.13.

Devotional Reading: 1 John 4.7-16.

Explanations and Comments

Spiritual Gifts are Diverse, But the Spirit is the Same, 12.4-7.—There was rivalry among the Corinthians as to which of them possessed the greatest gift for God's service. The tendency at Corinth was to estimate spiritual gifts by their showy rather than their solid character. The reverse was Paul's way.

"The things we consider most remarkable may, after all, be least important. An ecstacy is pleasant, but strength to endure with fidelity is more significant. The touchstone and test of any Christianity is the mind of Jesus Christ. If in our souls we own him Lord we are possessed of the Spirit of Life."—John Gardner.)

There are different gifts, Paul wrote the Corinthians, but the same Spirit reveals himself in them all; there are different ways of administration, but back of them all is the same Lord: there are different sorts of activities, but they are all wrought by the same God. The Spirit has given his manifestation of the Spirit for the good of others.

Then in verses seven to eleven Paul mentions various spiritual gifts and regards them as different. All are one, they are alike in source, the Spirit apportioning them as he wills. Paul does not disparage spiritual gifts, he realizes their value, but he realizes also the need of unity and co-operation in the church, and this he enforces in verses 12-30, by his figure of the body and its members; as all of the members are different but essential to the body, so it is with the church and its members.

Descriptive Atlas of Canada

100,000 Copies Distributed in School Children in Old Country

School children in the British Isles will this year receive over 100,000 copies of a descriptive atlas of Canada, provided by the Department of Immigration. This is part of an intensive publicity to induce migration to Canada.

The atlas is distributed free to students in the Old Country, through the central office of the department in London. Agents of the department travel through the country in demonstration vans, carrying exhibits descriptive of Canadian industries, and they lecture at the various schools. Copies of the atlas are left with the schoolmasters. Large wall maps are also provided.

The book comprises eighty pages and is stated to compare favorably with the geographies used in Canadian schools. Besides a large number of colored maps, it contains literature dealing with the physical characteristics, climate and industries of the various provinces. Special emphasis is placed on the opportunities open to those who wish to settle on Canadian farms. The maps have been prepared by the National Resources Intelligence Branch of the Department of the Interior, and are stated to be of the most modern type.

The atlas is eagerly received by teachers, officials indicate, and is claimed to have very much to do with the increasing desire by young people to look towards Canada as their future home.

Large numbers of the book are also in demand in the United States and thousands of requests for copies have been received from American schools. In congratulating Canadian officials on the excellence of the book, teachers over the border admit that geographies used in their schools give a very restricted and often inaccurate conception of this country. The atlas is particularly in demand in the farming areas in the central States.

Canada Offers Opportunities To Immigrants From Old Land Who Are Willing to Work

John Wheatley, Labor M.P. in the British Parliament, at a meeting in Glasgow, declared it was extremely cruel to send people to Canada for farm work, as they would be exploited and would "soon find themselves helpless and friendless in an unpeopled land." It may be that this critic of the Dominion is convinced he is giving good advice and that he speaks the truth. Nevertheless he is wrong, and facts may be advanced to prove his error. Mr. Wheatley claims a strange place to sound his warning, for from Glasgow and other ports of Scotland have emigrated men who have been treated more than generously in this "ungenerous land" that Mr. Wheatley abuses. Last year Mr. Donald left the streets of Glasgow with his parents and within just a few years became President of the Dominion of Canada, the first prime minister after Confederation. Macdonald made his mark in the new country of his adoption; he had brought nothing from Scotland. Canada was generous to him. In the same period Alexander Mackenzie emigrated from the same Scotland and became the second premier of the Dominion. He was a stonecutter without fortune, but Canada was generous to him. From Scotland also came thousands of other men, women and children to become contented and prosperous in that part of the new world. For instance, there was Donald A. Smith, a Hudson's Bay Company clerk, who played a foremost part in the life of the Northwest and later on of the East, and eventually went to London as Canada's representative there. He worked hard, very hard, served the country well in a dozen capacities, was elected to Legislatures in the West and to Parliament from Selkirk and Montreal, and, in fact, made his mark in politics, industry and social life. The Dominion was not ungenerous to him although for a generation he was in what was then a wilderness. From England and Ireland likewise came men without any other wealth than their strong bodies and sound minds who made homes and names for themselves by starting at many junctions on the land that John Wheatley, M.P., decries. Their careers are a contradiction of his uncalled for words.

Critics like Mr. Wheatley may say that conditions are less favorable today than in the past, but again they can be answered. Hon. Charles Cunning, Hon. Robert Forke and Hon. Peter Heenan, from England Scotland and Ireland, respectively, are outstanding examples of the opportunities Canada offers to men of intelligence who enter her portals with the intention of working hard and making progress. The opportunities were never greater and the newcomers will find themselves helpless and friendless, contrary to what Mr. Wheatley declares.—Montreal Gazette

Opportunities Are Waiting

Many Chances For Men Who Are Determined To Succeed

The Sunday Express has received a despairing letter from a young Englishman who complains that there is no chance for him in this country. He is right. There is no chance for him so long as he thinks there is none. The man who says "I can't" never can. The man who says "I can" invariably can. There is a chance for every young man in this country and he knows very much to do with the increasing desire by young people to look towards Canada as their future home.

Large numbers of the book are also in demand in the United States and thousands of requests for copies have been received from American schools. In congratulating Canadian officials on the excellence of the book, teachers over the border admit that geographies used in their schools give a very restricted and often inaccurate conception of this country. The atlas is particularly in demand in the farming areas in the central States.

Not Merely Descriptive

Japanese Have Reason For Using the Word "Maru"

Those interested enough to read the maritime news must have observed the frequency with which the word Maru follows the names of Japanese shipping lines, or even the name of the ship itself. Ever since the Japanese flag appeared in foreign ports this word "Maru," the Brandon Sun observes, has been generally taken as meaning "ship," or more recently "steamship. But well-informed Japanese shipping men explain that to "Maru" originally, and is still, attached a connotation more important than for mere descriptive purposes. It may be taken as meaning either something "beloved" or "greatly treasured," as frequently a "stable," more especially the inner core or citadel of a castle or stronghold. In ancient days a Japanese nobleman would often add the name "Maru" to the given name of his first-born if it happened to be a boy, the term in itself being of the masculine gender. In this respect the generous custom of the appellation of vessels differs from the usage of English-speaking nations, where a ship is always referred to as "she."

The combination of the two definitions of "Maru" is probably responsible for the maritime use, Japan, as noted above, being particularly dependent upon the sea. Therefore, to add the term "Maru" to a ship's name lends to it as much as possible a sense of veneration. As for the "castle," a vessel might be regarded as a floating building. As intensifying exception to the general rule is that of warships, none of these taking "Maru."

Coyote Fur Farms

Prairie Wolf Can Be Raised In Captivity and Fur Sold At Good Profit

Another animal has been added to the growing list whose raised under domestic conditions for their fur. Two young boys living 80 miles northwest of Edmonton started raising coyotes in 1927 by digging young coyotes out of the ground and confining them in pens. Their first 140 young animals and when the skins were mature sold them for $12.00 each.

The animal nevertheless spoken of as the prairie wolf, but has little in common with the real wolf. He will not attack human beings or other animals; indeed, he had attained no distinction at all until K was discovered that he could be raised in captivity and his fur sold at a good profit.

Intensive Cultivation Bound To Increase Production Says French Farmer

The Canadian farm is good farmers and they certainly raise wonderful crops of wheat, but I believe that they can obtain even greater production from their lands if they will follow a course of intensive cultivation, recommended Pierre Tournier, assistant farmer mayor of Courcelsville, France, Chevalier of the Legion of Honor and commander of order of agricultural merit, after a stay at Jasper Park.

Mr. Tournier, who is himself the owner of considerable land and a practical farmer, expressed himself particularly impressed with the small plots of the West, but is a keen believer in mixed farming.

Western Canada Tobacco

Leaf Of High Grade Quality Can Be Grown In the West

Any possibility of a tobacco famine seems to be averted by the discovery that tobacco can be grown successfully on the plains of Western Canada, already famous as the world's greatest source of wheat supply.

Excellent results have been obtained on experimental plots in Southern Manitoba and Southern Alberta. The leaf produced in the West shows topnotch yield and excellent quality.

The expansion of the industry in the Okanagan Valley of British Columbia last year was phenomenal. The commercial production leaped from 67,000 pounds from cured leaf in 1926 to 2,000,000 pounds in 1927.

In the whole of Canada the acreage devoted to tobacco culture increased from 22,322 acres in 1922 to 44,025 acres in 1927. The annual yield increased from 21,000,000 pounds to 42,000,000 pounds, and the value of the crop from $2,313,000 to approximately $10,000,000. During the same five years the annual export of leaf increased from 1,000,000 pounds to over 6,000,000 pounds.

Great Loss of Life As Well As Property Loss Results From Explosions Caused By Dust

You would not expect a bottle of milk or a cork to explode, would you? And it wouldn't so long as it stays a bottle of milk or a cork, but if it becomes dry milk dust or fine cork dust floating in the air it most certainly will explode upon any reasonable provocation, writes H. H. Sheldon, M.A., Ph.D., Professor of Physics, New York University.

Perhaps you might be somewhat timid about putting a match to a few quarts of nitroglycerine, and yet we are told the author hasn't tried it, that if it is an open vessel, so that the gas can escape, it will burn rapidly but will not explode. It takes a sudden jar to cause it to explode.

You might also be surprised that a barn standing in three feet of water as the result of a flood would probably not burn even though it were, and burn to the water level. And yet that, too, has happened. These may sound like occurrences of nature distorted land where nothing happens as we expect, but such occurrences are actually fairly common. How does it all happen?

There are two kinds of explosions which are commonly classed as physical and chemical. A physical explosion is of the type of a "blow-out" of an automobile tire. The explosion of a steam boiler or of a tank of compressed gas is similar. A large quantity of gas under pressure is suddenly released.

A chemical explosion is the same as a fire, but takes place more rapidly. In this case internal combustion with oxygen, which it may obtain from the air, to form a gas and usually an ash. If the gas is formed steadily it will escape as it is formed, but if it is formed rapidly it will develop all its heat before it has time to expand. The former is a fire, but the latter is an explosion.

If we pour up such gases as "glyceryl nitrate," "cellulose nitrate," "picric acid," "trinitrotoluene," every workman would have all the explosive even though he had not the slightest idea what the substances might be. But if the signs say "flour," "metallic dust," "milk dust," "chocolate dust," "woodduct," "sugar" or "rubber dust," the workmen see that he is familiar with three things and would light a match for smoking without hesitation

The danger lies in the fact that is attested through the air as dust in a particle has in the neighborhood plenty of oxygen for rapid combination or explosion. But do these things ever happen?

By David J. Price of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils in an address before the University of Pennsylvania said: The research work of the Bureau of Chemistry and Soils indicates that when mixed dust clouds of proper proportions combustible dusts of practically all types can be readily ignited by external sources of heat or flame. The dusts that are inflammable include 70% of those ex-amined, in the form of sheets, powder or in the air-suspended condition. In 1926 and 1927 explosions and fires in 76 dust explosions 154 were killed and in 296 explosions 525 were injured in 144 cases the property loss was estimated to be $7,000,000, an average of nearly $246,000 for each explosion. The economic importance of this problem can be more readily appreciated when it is realized that at least 28 000 industrial plants employing over 1,500,000 persons and manufacturing products of an annual value in excess of $10 000,000 are subject to the hazard of dust explosions.

Of the area studied by the bureau one was due to pulverized sugar on automobile bodies flakes were sulphur dust, four hard rubber dust, sixteen starch, nine dried, twenty-seven wood dust, six cork, two aluminum dust, six fertilizers, three spice, two grain dust, one resin, two powdered milk, two chocolate and cocoa, two cellulosic and three cotton dust. Nearly all harmless sounding names.

The causes of these explosions were not so varied as one might expect. The majority resulted from sparks due to operation of machines, caused by hard foreign material getting into the grinding equipment. Running a close second to this cause was sparks from static electricity caused by belt running over pulleys and so on. Occasionally the cause was a direct open flame A broken electric lamp bulb caused a few more, and in one case overheated bearings were responsible

The cause of spontaneous combustion" is the same as that of explosions, but in this case the oxidation begins slowly Having begun, it produces heat and this, raising the temperature of the surroundings, increases the rate of oxidation And so the process accelerates until fire occurs

ISEAY ITEMS

A little lad of three years of age named Gillett was brought into Islay last week by his parents, who live some 8-cent of town, and who admitted into the municipal hospital. The little boy was badly cut up by the leader. He had wandered into the wheat field where his father was cutting, and as it was almost dark the father did not know he was near until he heard him crying. He stopped the binder and found the little fellow under the binder table, badly cut about the hands and legs. One leg was broken. Dr. Knapp's report is very hopeful of complete recovery.

Mr. J. Warner of the Canadian National Railway section department left last night for a well deserved holiday in old England, his former home.

Petition for Use of Water Sleighs Being Circulated

A petition for the use of water sleighs is at present being circulated among the people of the district, the argument in favor of their use being that by this means the roads would be kept open for the heavy hauling by motor trucks, and for the general use of motor vehicles. Now that practically every farmer owns a car or truck this should meet with hearty endorsation, there are always times when a sleigh has to be used, and if these were widened it would greatly simplify keeping the roads open and at hape for motor traffic.

THE YEAR OF HOMEGOING.

The steamer Empress of Australia is homeward bound, and the home of the Empress of Britain, Empress of Canada and Empress of Japan, on the Pacific.

There has been a record crop. The West will contribute to the Dominion's wealth, a few years of struggle with nature has been rewarded. Thousands will reap many months, more cars, more machinery, more stocks and goods and homes and studies. A brighter trade, more industrial activity is the outlook for the West, and our readings per month. Every vessel turning all over the country.

The Empress of Britain, launched by the favour of Providence has been mainly responsible for all this. She is doing that, he has taken the place of other things than wheat and rain and frost and and wonderful, and the rail and steamship companies are contributing his thought. In a few weeks now, there will be a Jewish passing of hands, a handing of children, a passing of new hats and shoes and a rush for the trains.

This, say the transportation officials will be the year of the home-going. The English, the Jersey islanders, the Scots and the Irish and the Canadians. The Canadian Pacific officials foresee a great deal, that they have already planned other special trains out of the West, and many steamship sailings which will facilitate the movement and ensure Christmas and New Year's with the old folk and an immensely busier in comfort and luxury.

The Minnedosa will give the more fortunate ones a sailing from Montreal on November 28 for Glasgow, Belfast and Liverpool. On the eighth of December the Metagama and Montclare will sail from Belfast John, now for Cherbourg, Southampton and Antwerp and the other for the Liverpool run. The Melita, the Scandinavian, will step on route at the Metzler with a large number of home-going Channel Islanders and the Duchess of Atholl sailing on the fifteenth will take the last of those going home for the holidays via Glasgow or Liverpool. The sailing of the Montrenal on the twenty-first is for those to be with New Year's means more.

Just as illustrate to what great extent a good eastern crop affects industry; one printing establishment alone was kept busier than usual for some time printing an extra order of Canadian Pacific travelers guides and folders and booklets. This office, as official said, be sent or carried by homegoers to practically every quarter of the civilized world. Whatever the world crop conditions may be, the Canadian crop will be appreciated also at wherever men eat bread.

Fresh from his exercises and shower, his cheeks red, his dark eyes shining with the clear glow of health, his step springy and free, Donald was a picture of rugged health and strength. Except for all this apparent outward brightness, inwardly he felt rebellious. Douglas' invitation had brought a great longing for the comforts of his past life. Why should he assume the role of a pugilist to eke out an existence? Why wear shabby clothes and even know the pangs of hunger? He had but to wire his father that he was destitute and plenty of money would be forthcoming.

A big steak at "Old Joe's" furnished him a hearty meal. As he selected the money from his meagre supply of cash to pay his check, Old Joe bent his grizzled head to whisper, "Don't go hungry; come in any time."

"Thanks, Joe."

Donald was in a dark mood. He heard the sound of happy laughter coming from a saloon on the corner. There behind these swinging doors was momentary recess from worldly cares. He stood in the door of the restaurant and looked across the Island at the twin peaks, known as the "Lions," which guard the entrance to Vancouver's harbor. The sun was resting in a mass of fleecy clouds; the clouds became a luminous gauze, and a golden splendor spread over the water. The mountains were suffused in violet, while the snow-fields took on a faint shade of rose. Donald's face glowed as he watched.

"Some country!" he breathed. He turned to catch a friendly smile from Old Joe as he worked over his range. "And some people!" he added fervently.

Once more he turned to the mountains. The glow had vanished into the lame cloud of twilight. The peaks stood clear sky. The massive snow-capped peaks seemed to impart a new strength to his being. "I'll not quit. I'm going to make good," he said grimly.

CHAPTER III.

While on his daily run around Stanley Park the next afternoon Donald was attracted by a horse and rider standing on Prospect Point. The rider was interested in a huge white liner plowing her way through the Narrows, bucking a head tide The horse, a noble animal, with full mane and tail, was restless, rocking and prancing in his eagerness to be off.

When Donald lifted his eyes to the rider he saw a beautiful, haughty face with skin of a milky whiteness, a heavy mass of dark brown hair, neatly coiffed under a trim riding hat, and a pair of wonderful brown eyes that suddenly grew cold.

A shower of dirt and pebbles stung Donald's face as the horse was almost on him. Donald, on a pivot and with his rider was off like a wind.

"A thoroughbred," he exclaimed, as he watched the rider until she turned a corner in the drive. "Two of them. And she thinks I am a low-down mashes," he added ruefully.

That afternoon he went through fifteen rounds of boxing, finishing strong and fresh to tackle pulleys and punching-bag.

Andy was joyful. "It will never go twenty rounds, me lad. That straight left of yours alone would stop 'im in 'arf that time."

"This is my last day of road-work," remarked Donald to his friend on Friday afternoon, as he stipped on his running shoes.

As he and Douglas neared Prospect Point Donald's thoughts turned to the girl of yesterday. "She was haughty as a princess." Unwittingly he had spoken his musings aloud.

"What's that?" queried his companion.

"I was talking to myself," laughed Donald.

"Bad sign! You are either to love or old age has overtaken you. Tell me," Douglas wagged his head sadly.

"I may as well tell you," confided Donald; "I saw a Greek goddess mounted on an Arabian charger yesterday."

Douglas threw out his hand tragically. "Donald, my poor friend! I am afraid that I hit you too hard down in that last round," he said in a voice of mock compassion.

Donald stopped short. "Look!" he cried, pointing excitedly. "There she is!"

"I'll be jiggered!" exclaimed Douglas.

"Don't blame you, but isn't she a peach?" said Donald admiringly.

Douglas burst out laughing. "Do you know who that is?" he asked with a peculiar inflection.

"I told you — a Greek goddess mount—"

"That's my sister, Janet," interrupted Douglas.

Donald's mouth opened. He stared at his friend. "Your what?" he repeatedly.

"Oh, I forgot! Poor fellow!" said Douglas, solicitously, as his face assumed a mournful expression. "I'll certainly have to pull my punches hereafter." He leaned toward Donald and placed his lips close to his ear. "B-l-e-i-c-e," he spelled slowly. "Does the old bean grasp it?"

"Cut the comedy," growled Donald as he jerked Douglas to the side of the road out of sight of the equestrienne. "Good heavens! Your sister! He groaned, "and she thinks I am a masher."

"Why should she think that of you?"

Donald told him of yesterday's occurrence.

"This is great!" chuckled Douglas "Come and meet my sister, Donald. I'll tell her that you can't help flirt ing, and that will fix things up all right. I'll call her." He grinned facetiously.

"Don't you dare! You —." Donald warned.

Douglas avoided Donald's wild clutch, ran to the centre of the road and waved his arm.

"Oh, Janet," he shouted.

Donald shook an angry fist at his tormentor and sprang to the shelter of the trees. There was a thud of hoofs, a spattering if gravel, and the sound of cracking leather.

"What in the world are you doing here in that dress, Doug?" asked Janet.

"Janet," said her brother in a low, mysterious voice, "I've got the fellow that tried to flirt with you yesterday; he's in there." He pointed to the bush. "The poor fellow is a condemned flirt, has it in its worst form. I beg of you, Sister, be lenient, be merciful. He thinks you are a Greek goddess." He tapped his forehead significantly.

Donald cursed the irrepressible youth's sense of humor. If he could have reached the humorist at that moment he would have pitched him into the inlet without compunction.

Janet eyed her brother with disapproval. "What are you talking about, Doug? Have you taken leave of your senses entirely?"

"I will bring forth the erring knight for you to censure," rejoined her brother, bowing low in exaggerated deference. "Her" he shouted, leave thy woodsy bower, Sir Don, the goddess awaits thee."

Beetling inwardly, Donald tried to appear dignified as he stepped to the road, but the attempt was a dismal failure. How could one approach anything like dignity when dressed in a pair of running trunks, a torn and frayed jersey, socks turned down over a pair of dirty tennis shoes, and without hat or coat? All this added to the fact that he faced a battery of two big brown eyes, who thought him a masher. The greatest actor in the world would fail to register dignity under such conditions. He had a confused remembrance of a jumble of words that went for a formal introduction. He felt his face hot, and knew he was blushing furiously, which did not add to his composure.

The girl looked down curiously, but not without interest, at the embarrassed young man.

Donald finally mustered courage to glance up at the face above him. The deep brown eyes regarding him held just a trace of humor. The full red lips were parted to show a flash of white, even teeth.

"It is a pleasure to meet you even under such inauspicious circumstances," stammered Donald. He turned to glance at the grinning cause of his discomfiture. "I would suggest, Miss Renais, that you have a doctor waiting at your home, as I intend to commit mayhem on the person of your brother as soon as you have gone."

Inspiration From Commonplace Things

Door-Knocker Gave Beethoven Idea for Glorious Concerto

To an ordinary mind it would be scarcely seem possible that much music could be got out of a door-knocker. Yet it was this sound which is said to have inspired Beethoven's glorious violin concerto in D. As the musician lay awake one night shaping the concerto in his mind, his meditations were interrupted by a selfish neighbor who was endeavoring to arouse his housekeeper and get her to come down and let him in. Beethoven heard his persistent knocking for admission—four slow, deliberate knocks at a time. The constant repetition gave the composer the idea he sought and those four knocks are heard all through the opening movement of the concerto which begins with four unaccompanied D's on the drum—seemingly as unmelodious and unpromising an opening phrase as one could imagine. In commenting upon the circumstances Sir George Grove has said "those four nocks were to Beethoven what the bolt of Jupiter Tonnans was to Turner, or the daffodils to Wordsworth—commonplace in themselves but transmuted by the fire of genius into an imperishable monument.

TOOTH TURNS BLACK

Your white pearly teeth have perhaps excited the admiration of your friends and your pride in them is fairly paradoxical.

But one day a tooth that you had been listening to have "fixed" ceased to bother you until by and by you noted with some little alarm that this tooth was quite dark in contrast to its fellows

Or, perhaps, your dentist because of your neglect found it necessary to remove the pulp from a tooth, following which operation you found with some dismay that it had changed color, and noticeably so.

Now, what has caused it?

Contrary to your idea, possibly, a tooth gets its shade, not from the outer enamel covering, which is almost colorless, but from the array of colors in the underlying body of dentine.

As a sequence to pulp death and decomposition, we have a disintegration of the blood elements with the production of pigments or color compounds. These permeate the dentinal structure through its many little tubuli and are reflected through the almost transparent enamel, giving the tooth its shade; this is the principal source of discoloration.

A less frequent cause is from the use of remedial agents employed in tooth treatments, many of which have the property of staining the dental substance

Now, unfortunately, as you can see, all of the scouring that you may do is of no avail—like the historic spot of "Macbeth"—it will not "out."

However, your dentist by employing bleaching agents within the tooth cavity can with fair success restore the shade, if the discoloration has not remained too long.

THANKSGIVING DAY

Thanksgiving Day will come this year on Monday, November 12th, which will also be observed as Armistice Day. The date has been announced at Ottawa as a Dominion holiday and will be gazetted in each of the provinces to make the observance uniform throughout Canada.

ALBERTA'S MOTOR CAR TOTAL NEARING $13MC

Auto registration in Alberta for the current year will likely hit the $6,000 mark, according to information recently given out at the provincial government offices. The total up to the present is 82,500 and it is felt certain to increase by 3,500 during the remaining months of the fiscal year. Last year there were 78,364 car owners in this province, which is a substantial gain in revenue for 1928.

Revenue from registration last year was $1,319,162, while for 1928 it is estimated at $1,500,000, or a gain of upwards of $500,000. The yield from gasoline taxes can only be estimated as the gasoline consumption is dependent to the season, but officials figure that this should bring in at least $850,000, the per head at the rate of three cents per gallon.

Lumping of these items gives a revenue total of $2,500,000 that the provincial government will take in from the automobile owners of Alberta, and from tourists through the gasoline tax. This huge sum is naturally going to revive discussion among motorists in regard to the desirability of the province ever marching all such revenue for the purpose of improving the highway system in this province.

RADIO MOVIES SUCCESSFUL

A short time ago a small group of radio's most conspicuous leaders met to view the reception of the world's first radio-movies. The demonstration was a complete success, the pictures being broadcasted from the Westinghouse station KDKA and reproduced on a screen of glass across before the scientists, clearly enough to permit the reading of the subtitles. It was contended by all present that within a short time the radio listener will be able to sit in his home and have that popular form of entertainment—motion picture, projected by his own individual receiver.

The Westinghouse Company, pioneers in radio, alternating currents and innumerable other electrical developments is taking the lead in this new field. It is scarcely half a year since the idea came to Dr. Conrade of the Westinghouse engineering staff, yet within this short time the developments have been so rapid that today the Westinghouse Company have definitely decided to broadcast pictures from KDKA in the near future and anticipate putting those receiving machines on the market to be sold by Westinghouse dealers.

BOUNTIES PATROL BORDER IN POWERFUL MOTOR CARS

Will Try to Stop U. S. Bandits Raiding Prairie Towns

REGINA, Sask., Oct. 8.—With the co-operation of United States forces, a Royal Canadian Mounted police patrol, heavily armed, today began a patrol of the international border of the three prairie provinces, with a view to ending raids of United States bandits on the Canadian side.

The mounted police are using fast motor cars and a thorough patrol will be conducted until the arrival of heavy snow makes travel too difficult for highwaymen to use their speeding automobiles to advantage.

During the past few months raids have been made on half a dozen towns along the Canadian boundary; banks and postoffices have been robbed and the intruders have been able to escape with thousands of dollars in cash and securities. The patrol is intended to put a stop to this and to protect the small communities where large sums of money are being carried at this season of the year because of the heavy grain movement.

A VISIT TO THE CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL

One of the "show-places" of the capital city of Alberta is undoubtedly the Red Cross unit at the University Hospital, where the sick and crippled children of the province are receiving the best surgical skill and nursing care.

First to attract attention is the fine spacious sun-porch with its huge glass windows and doorways to admit all the strong Alberta sunshine that is possible.

Rows upon rows of little cots, many with the names of donors, are arranged within and the visitor stands amazed at the beauty and completeness of those baby dare wards.

Flowers are everywhere with their message of cheer, and goodwill. Radio receiving sets, local speakers, etc. all of the kindly hearts that are ever planning for the comfort of the children.

The visitor passes at the entrance while a student-nurse comes forward with a white gown which must be worn while visiting the patients. The little nursery wards are right at the door, and through the glass we see wee tiny babies with little pink toes poking out from their plaster casts. The diminutive cots invariably draw forth admiration from women visitors, to whom the sight of a new baby with crooked limbs is indeed a tragedy.

The young patients in the boys' and girls' wards come from the northern and central part of the province, and are found to be of many nationalities. An Indian girl and a negro lad are amongst the many types seen here, each and all with a smile for the visitor and a word of hope that they will soon be well enough to get out of bed and walk. The cures take a long and often tedious time, but the hospital days are filled with many interesting tasks, such as weaving on a little bedside loom articles of use and beauty, or making little boxtoiveres of beads of many colors.

The Red Cross cordially invites the public to inspect their new unit at the University Hospital in Edmonton and see what service it is they are asked to support during the present campaign.

MAKES GLOOMY FARM PREDICTION

FREMONT, Neb. Oct. 9.—The prediction was made by Senator Smith W. Brookhart, in a Republican address last night that unless the farm problem is solved within the next ten years all farms will be operated by corporations and the farmers reduced to peasantry.

"The farm problem is the real problem," the senator said. "Since 1922 the value of farm land has decreased $20,000,000,000 and in the same period 1,500,000 farmers lost their property and farm bankruptcy has increased 1,000 per cent."

Senator Brookhart blamed the federal reserve law which, he said, "takes money from the farmers for use of stock gamblers."

He also blamed high railroad rates under the Federal Transportation Act.

URGE GRAVELLING JASPER HIGHWAY EAST OF EDMONTON

That a concerted drive will be made during the coming months to make certain that the Jasper highway will be ready to handle heavy traffic next season, is indicated by activities on the part of towns east of Edmonton. One of these is Vegreville, where the board of trade is organizing a large delegation to interview the Minister of Public Works regarding the need of gravelling of the road from Edmonton to Lloydminster being definitely placed on the program for 1929. While it has been assumed that this will be done, car owners and business men in that eastern district wish to have the government's explicit guarantee that such an improvement will be carried out.

The value of the tourist movement along this highway is fully realized, while it is felt that 1929 will see the volume increased from both east and west. While considerable work has been done by the public works during the present season in making this a standard road, the need of a hard surface to meet the growing demands is emphasized by civic officials in the various centres affected.

Completion of the link on the western part of the highway has been under way this season, but there is still a feeling that considerable expenditure will be required next year. One Jasper business man, when recently in Edmonton, declared that while the present season was expending around $1,000 per mile, an outlay of $10,000 per mile would be required before the road would be considered modern. The park would be fairly comfortable for driving over.

Completion of the Jasper highway has long been stressed by the Alberta Motor Association, and that body will give full support to the requests of interested parties along that route in seeking to have the road improved. When dealing with this matter at its annual meeting, the association went on record as urging the provincial authorities to commence work on the last 27 mile link without delay and to push it to completion

BISHOPS CHARGED WITH CONSPIRACY

League of Loyal Churchmen Asks Action by Premier Baldwin

LONDON, Oct. 9—A statement issued last night by the League of Loyal Churchmen in connection with the policy of the bishops toward the rejected prayer book, charges the bishops with "seditious conspiracy."

The statement declares that although the house of commons twice rejected the prayer book, the arch bishops and bishops of the Church of England officially declared their policy as sanctioning and promoting the use of the rejected book of 1928.

"They thus committed seditious conspiracy," the statement asserts, by

The Progress of Canada

Canada is [illegible] rapidly to the front among the nations of the world. In all things that count it is making great growth. Its [illegible] are never before and as a result [illegible] of industry is active. The country has just harvested one of its largest crops in its history, mining discoveries and operations are progressing on an unprecedented scale, factories are working overtime building, engineering in all parts here are reaching totals hitherto unrecorded. [illegible] are [illegible] wages [illegible] and population increasing.

[illegible] is gratifying as the material growth and prevailing prosperity is to our people a matter of vital matter to Canada is whether the Dominion is likewise making progress in those other directions which are essential to the upbuilding of a nation in the truest sense. Are the Canadian people becoming merely a nation of money-seekers, measuring their success in terms of dollars and cents, or are they utilizing the larger advantages and increased power which material prosperity is conferring upon them to encourage and develop those arts and amusements [illegible] which [illegible] a people, as truly advancing to greatness?

We [illegible] to point to the fact that the people of Canada are taken as a whole, more intimately interested to-day in the spiritual, intellectual, moral growth of this country than at any previous period; that in fact these are deeply concerned and very determined that the [illegible] shall be developed at a high level.

[illegible] concerned in the subject of immigration. [illegible] His spirit considered solely from a material standpoint, Canada to enormously increase its population. Economically Canada would probably [illegible] were the United States. But Canadians are insistent that [illegible] in our country shall be of a character which [illegible] people would be hard to muster a corporal's guard of outstanding men—the [illegible] policy of United States annexation.

Canada's [illegible] attention is being given to the [illegible] the non-British peoples within our borders into the [illegible] Canadian life. [illegible] people only a spirit as unfriendly and unwise [illegible] to that [illegible] to extend [illegible] work, but they are creditable to the generosity of Canadians. More and more is it being realized that these people are making a real contribution to the [illegible] life of Canada. In spite of [illegible] music, poetry, traditions and handicrafts which are enriching this Dominion

The increased attention being given to musical festivals and gymnasium competitions, to the establishment of art galleries and museums, to scientific research, to literature and the rapidly increasing number of libraries, and to the steady improvement in Canadian magazines and publications are of a better class, all go to prove that the people of Canada are not wholly materially minded.

The wonderful success which has attended the application of co-operative principals in the solution of production and marketing problems, as also the provision of public services for the use of all the people, is having its inevitable effect upon the minds of all people. To an ever increasing extent they are beginning to realize the benefit of thorough loyal co-operation [illegible] can remedy material evils and advance their individual and corporate welfare through the acceptance of the same principles and their application to all phases of commercial, provincial and national life they can greatly advance the welfare of the country as a whole.

[illegible] of [illegible] in the [illegible] or antagonism. Sympathetic consideration and helpful co-operation will produce better than hatred and bitterness, better than [illegible] and [illegible] in the practical work of co-operation the Canadian people are learning that there are two sides to almost every question; that people with many differences of opinion can agree, that the road to ultimate success is open and the greatest good to the greatest number lies along the path of friendly compromise rather than in continual enmity and warfare.

Canada's progress is, therefore, a well balanced progress, and because of this gratifying fact the people of the Dominion may look to the future of this [illegible] gratifying fact the people of the Dominion may look with unbounded confidence to the future if their great country.

RHEUMATIC MISERY

Relief Can Only Come Through Better Blood—Liniments of No Use.

In no other disease, does the blood become thin so rapidly as in rheumatism. Not only does it become thin but it is loaded with impurities—lactic acid poisons. Without the proper treatment these poisons increase, the inflamed joints swell and the patient becomes a cripple. Most treatments simply aim to keep down the pain, hence only very unfavorable condition a renewed attack follows.

To get out of rheumatism the blood must be enriched and the rheumatic poisons cast out with the natural secretions of the body This can best be done with a course of Dr. Williams Pink Pills, which have a specific action on the blood, giving it new richness and redness. Thousands have tried this treatment with beneficial results That every sufferer from rheumatism who does not try this most hopeful means of recovery is [illegible] the statements of Mrs. David Carroll, Pictou, N. S., who says "For a long time I was troubled with rheumatism. The pains were not continuous, coming and going, but they kept getting worse. I tried so-called electric belts and many remedies, but did not get more than temporary relief. Only then did my attention be being given by the [illegible] from this trouble will realize what I suffered at times. I had begun to think that I would be a cripple for life, when I urged me to try Dr Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People. I could find this medicine helping me so I gladly continued taking them. In a few weeks I found that every trace of the trouble had disappeared, and since then my great improvement in my general health. It is now two years and I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and I have not had the least twinge of the trouble in that time. That is why I confidently recommend the pills to other sufferers."

You can get these Pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Company, Brockville, Ont.

Kritic—Do you think you've improved "Richard III" much by rewriting it?

Playwright—Sure. It was way out of date, for instance, where Richard [illegible] "A horse! My kingdom for a horse!" I have him shout, "A plane! A plane! My dictatorship for a plane!"

The Poor Man's Friend.—Put up 25 small bottles that are easily carried in the vest pocket or by mail. Use a few drops of Thomas' Eclectric Oil possesses more concentrated action. Its cheapness and the varied uses to which it can be put make it the poor man's friend. No dealer's stock is complete without it.

Twenty years ago half of the population of Canada was illiterate. Now in China bad crippled feet, but today almost every village has a women's club and the principal [illegible] Amateur golf tournament will be held next year over Pebbles Beach links, Calif., September 2 to 7. While these dates now definitely assured it is also possible to stage positively the Canadian Amateur championships will be held over the Jasper Park Lodge golf course next year between August 30 to 31. The fixing of these two important dates in the golfing program for 1929 leaves an interval of a full week between the Canadian and U. S. Amateur events and it is more than likely, therefore, that the Canadian championships will attract a large number from the gallery of stars in the United States and other countries who will be westward bound for the U. S. event. Should these hopes be fulfilled, and every effort is to be made by the Royal Canadian Golf Association and the Canadian National Railways to bring them to fruition, the 1929 Canadian Amateur championship will be the greatest event in the history of golf in Canada.

To Aid Farm Workers

Clearing House to Furnish Winter Farm Employment May be Established

While no definite decision has been reached yet, a central clearing house from which British miner-harvesters will be furnished winter employment may be located in Regina. The establishment of such a bureau, though not necessarily in this city, is expected to be the outcome of a conference held at the Parliament Buildings, Regina, on September 12, attended by representatives of the Federal and Provincial Departments of Colonization, those of the two great railways the Government Labor Service and the Unemployment Service of Canada, Saskatchewan section.

RHEUMATISM

Proposed to Form Branch of British Empire Parliamentary Association

"To the United Empire, at least, it would be a real junior league of British nations," stated M. A. MacPherson, K.C., for the Province of Saskatchewan, when speaking of the proposal of the government of Saskatchewan to consider the desirability of forming a branch of the British Empire Parliamentary association.

The Regina member further expressed his opinion that such an organization, having as it does, the aim of trying to bring the different nations and colonies of the British Empire into closer understanding and contact with each other, would most certainly be a splendid one for the province to adopt!

It is supposed that at the next sessions of the legislatures of the four provinces of Ontario, Saskatchewan Alberta and Manitoba, this may be presented to the members of the respective assemblies and with their favorable vote the work of organizing such an association be definitely undertaken.

The Oil for the Farmer—A bottle of Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil in the hands of every farmer means a big saving for the doctor. It is not only good for the children when taken with colds and croup, and for the mature when [illegible] and stomach, but there are directions for its use on sick cattle. There should always be a bottle of it in the house.

Canadian Amateur Golf Championship

Will Be Held at Jasper Park Lodge Next Year From August 30 to 24

Authentic information was received at Jasper National Park by the visiting Senior Golfers from Great Britain that the United States National Amateur golf tournament will be held next year over Pebbles Beach links, Calif., September 2 to 7. While these dates now definitely assured it is also possible to stage positively the Canadian Amateur championships will be held over the Jasper Park Lodge golf course next year between August 30 to 31. The fixing of these two important dates in the golfing program for 1929 leaves an interval of a full week between the Canadian and U. S. Amateur events and it is more than likely, therefore, that the Canadian championships will attract a large number from the gallery of stars in the United States and other countries who will be westward bound for the U. S. event. Should these hopes be fulfilled, and every effort is to be made by the Royal Canadian Golf Association and the Canadian National Railways to bring them to fruition, the 1929 Canadian Amateur championship will be the greatest event in the history of golf in Canada.

Junior League of British Nations

Proposed to Form Branch of British Empire Parliamentary Association

"To the United Empire, at least, it would be a real junior league of British nations," stated M. A. MacPherson, K.C., for the Province of Saskatchewan, when speaking of the proposal of the government of Saskatchewan to consider the desirability of forming a branch of the British Empire Parliamentary association.

The Regina member further expressed his opinion that such an organization, having as it does, the aim of trying to bring the different nations and colonies of the British Empire into closer understanding and contact with each other, would most certainly be a splendid one for the province to adopt!

It is supposed that at the next sessions of the legislatures of the four provinces of Ontario, Saskatchewan Alberta and Manitoba, this may be presented to the members of the respective assemblies and with their favorable vote the work of organizing such an association be definitely undertaken.

Canadian Amateur Golf Championship

Will Be Held at Jasper Park Lodge Next Year From August 30 to 24

Authentic information was received at Jasper National Park by the visiting Senior Golfers from Great Britain that the United States National Amateur golf tournament will be held next year over Pebbles Beach links, Calif., September 2 to 7. While these dates now definitely assured it is also possible to stage positively the Canadian Amateur championships will be held over the Jasper Park Lodge golf course next year between August 30 to 31. The fixing of these two important dates in the golfing program for 1929 leaves an interval of a full week between the Canadian and U. S. How French Police Work

Use Soundless Whistles to Give Alarm to Floodgunners

Policemen in most of the large French towns can summon help without being heard. They are supplied with whistles whose notes are far too high-pitched for the human ear to detect. These inaudible sounds waves are picked up by microphones skilfully camouflaged throughout the city, and an alarm is flashed to central police headquarters.

A policeman who sees a burglar at at work can summon reinforcements without alarming the suspect. He can, too, direct the sending of aid in blows code by using the soundless whistle.

Good-bye Asthma. Persons suffering from that extremely trying trouble known as asthma know what it is to long with all their hearts for, escape as from a tyrant. Never do they know when an attack may come and they know that to struggle against it is vain. With Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy at hand, however, they can say good-bye to their uneasy and enjoy life again. It helps at once.

What would really have settled the whole thing is for Mr. Kellogg to have written into his peace pact that no nation should in war could borrow money of the United States

Becoming Great Industry

Tourist Trade is Not Far Behind Wheat Exports

The Federal bulletin, Natural Resources, puts in a graphic way the importance of what it describes as "a new giant of Canadian business," being the second among five. These are Canada's wheat, exports, valued last year at $289,614,000, expenditure of tourists from abroad estimated $275,000,000; mineral production, $264,430,000; pulp and paper mills, $219,338,000, and building permits $154,613,000. A few more years and the tourist trade will be our greatest asset!

The whole world knows Aspirin as an effective antidote for pain. But it's just as important to know that there is only one genuine Aspirin. The name Bayer is on every tablet, and on the box. VISCOUNT PEEL VOICES THANKS OF EMPIRE PARTY

Sydney, N.S.—Delegates of the Empire Parliamentary Association have bade their farewells to Canada. "We have been treated like princes. We have been received like old friends," exclaimed Viscount Peel, chairman of the delegation, addressing a final dinner given by the Canadian club and city of Sydney. And to his words of farewell and gratitude were added those of representatives from every parliament in the Empire.

In their journeyings through Canada, Lord Peel felt, members of the British delegation had been able to observe conditions at first hand, and thought in some quarters apparently that the Empire marketing board was an instrument for pushing British goods in Empire markets. In reality it was designed to push Empire goods in British market and, the cost fell on the British taxpayer. It had been thought, in some quarters, that the unemployment insurance, muscled the dole, was decorralising charity. In reality the employee paid his own way in part and was entitled as of right to his insurance payment when the curse of unemployment fell upon him.

"We have heard it suggested," Lord Peel added, "that we desire to bind Canada with inefficient unemployed.

"I repudiate with all my force this infamous suggestion, but there are I am convinced, many unemployed in Canada, with good organization, for substantial numbers of able and willing workers. Food, for example, who will form a fine type of Canadian citizen. We further discussed the opportunities for the extended investment of capital from Great Britain and the other Dominions and our speakers urged the need of a necessity for accurate information so that there will be no disappointment to the investor.

General Alleaby In New York

British Hero Honored By Official Salute Of 17 Guns

New York.—Field Marshal Sir Edmund H. H. Allenby, so-called last crusader, who conquered the Turks in Palestine and Egypt for the British, was welcomed on his arrival here for the American Legion Convention to be held soon in San Antonio.

Arriving on the liner Majestic with Lady Allenby, the famous soldier received an official salute of 17 guns from the army reservation on Governor Island and Mayor Walker and Joel Macom carried him from the liner to the battery at the Southern tip of Manhattan Island.

The British hero spoke of the growing tendency toward "open diplomacy" among nations. He said he looked for great disarmament at present.

"I do not believe there is anyone in the world who does not want peace if they can get it," he said. "However, one has to be ready for war, for you do not keep burglars out by leaving the door unlocked."

Brandon, Man.—Four persons were burned to death when the farm home of Alex Wilson, near Moore Park, Man., was destroyed by fire.

The dead: Mr. and Mrs. Alex Wilson, Mervin Wilson, their son, and Miss Sarah Wilson, Mr. Wilson's sister.

The fire was discovered by I. M. Harrison, a neighbor, when he was awakened by the reflection of the flames upon his windows. He put on his clothing and rushed out to discover that the Wilson house was on fire. The blaze was too far advanced at the time to permit rescue work.

W. E. Mann, general storekeeper at Moore Park, father of Mrs. Wilson, was also quickly on the scene, but the heat was so intense that he could not get near the building.

All of the bodies were recovered. The cause of the fire is a mystery. The barn, garage and other buildings on the farm were unharmed.

TO INVESTIGATE MARKETING OF CANADIAN WHEAT

Winnipeg. — Conditions surrounding the marketing of the wheat crop of the Canadian Prairies will be investigated by W. R. Motherwell, federal minister of agriculture, who was here in connection with the Canadian National Exhibition.

Immediately following his arrival in the city, Mr. Motherwell went with the Board of Grain Commissioners to the Grain Exchange for a meeting with the inspection staff. He spent a day at Fort William inspecting the handling of grain there. The minister indicated that investigation into some conditions pertaining to the marketing of Canadian wheat was in progress, partly as a result of complaints which had been made in the British Isles during his recent trip in connection with the marketing of last year's crop.

In his investigations abroad, Mr. Motherwell was guided by the relations which have been built up with the trade to that of the countries he visited, keeping a sharp lookout for anything which might be of importance in Canada, and opportunities for marketing of Canadian products. He has returned to the city with a more optimistic sentiment for empire products, built, as far as Canada was concerned, on reason quite apart from politics. He intimated that Canada could market four or five times as much dairy produce by handling the product now and upgrading the surplus over consumption

While in Winnipeg, Mr. Motherwell plans to visit the Meat Research Laboratory at the Agricultural College, and he will consult the members of the staff with the various branches of the department here.

Believes River Under Control Of Dominion

Hon. N. W. Rowell Says Federal Rights Not Limited To Tidal Waters

Ottawa.—The Dominion parliament has authority to declare the existence of a public right of navigation over any river navigable in fact. Before the Supreme Court of Canada, Hon. N. W. Rowell, K.C., counsel for the Dominion, made this further contention on the question of federal and provincial control respecting navigation and water power.

"If a public right to navigation does not exist, as Ontario suggests, on the Great Lakes and the western portion of the St. Lawrence, Mr. Rowell proceeded, then although the Dominion has power to take action to the interest of having a national waterway for trade and commerce in Canada what the fine was about, he also suffered a slight bruise when he struck his head on the lower part of the engine.

"If a public right to navigation does not exist on Ontario waters, on the North America Act and the powers of the Dominion in the matter of navigation and shipping, the Dominion must have power to take action to the interest of having a national waterway for trade and commerce in Canada My contention is that the Dominion has absolute control over navigation and shipping."

London, Eng.—At the recent Labor conference, Ramsay MacDonald made an important speech saying. "We must create our own diplomatic policy.

France is bound to take notice of this declaration on British policy from the leader of the opposition. The country has not yet any clear knowledge as to whether the present government is re-establishing the alliances with France, but unpublished agreements as to armaments on land seem to imply a new entente.

Ramsay MacDonald proposes to drag a declaration from the government when parliament meets next month There are reports that the British government will send out to publish all correspondence on the naval side of the agreement. The understanding as to land forces is said to have been expressed only verbally

Teachers To Meet At Vermilion

Interesting Program Arranged

Dr. R. C. Wallace to Speak

The annual convention of the Vermilion Inspectorate will be held on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 8 and 9 in the auditorium of the Vermilion centre school.

A very interesting and instructive program has been planned by the executive, commencing at 9:30 a.m. Thursday, when registration takes place. Following the invocation by the Rev. A. Ross Sage, the teachers will be welcomed to the town by Mayor Fabler and Chairman Morrison. Those will be replied to by Mr. V. A. Oberhout of Mannville, and J. F. Swan of Streamstown. After the keys of the town have been tendered the visitors, Rev Father O'Sullivan will give the address of the morning

The afternoon session of the convention will be an open meeting in the assembly hall of the School of Agriculture, when Dr. R. C. Wallace, newly elected head of the University of Alberta, will address the gathering. This interesting feature commences at 2 o'clock.

The Friday morning program consists of a lesson taught to Grade VIII on the Concept of Responsible Government, by J. B. Topper B.A., of the Vermilion high school, and an address and discussion under the supervision of G. F. McNally, supervisor of schools for Alberta. The last afternoon will be taken by Mr. Parker, B.A. I.P.S. for the Vermilion Inspectorate, who will give talks on the new writing course, an Inspectors' Seminar, and also teach a lesson on Grade IX literature. The convention will be brought to a close with a business session.

There will also be a dance in the Community hall on the Thursday evening.

Visitors are welcome at all sessions

Fourth Floor Finished To Meet Demand

The new dormitory which was provided for the Vermilion School of Agriculture has been filled to capacity for over a week. Realizing the situation, the Honorable George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture, has announced that the fourth floor will be finished, thus providing for about thirty more girls and a similar number of boys.

This addition of a fourth floor will provide for an enrolment of over 200. There are proportionately more boys registered than girls although there are 75 girls registered at the present time, but the added accommodation ought to provide for nearly all who wish to attend. The new additions are that the boys' wing will be completely filled, and if registrations come in from girls as they have in the past ten days, that wing will also have its full quota.

We would recommend that all boys and girls over 15 years of age who desire to take the Agricultural or Home-and-Science courses at the Provincial School of Agriculture, Vermilion, send in their applications at once as the courses start October 30

Big Night Held By Local Elks

One of the most memorable gatherings in the annals of local Elkdom took place in the Community Hall on the evening of Thursday, October 11, when the Vermilion Lodge of Elks was honored by a visit from the Grand Chaplain and Deputy Grand Exalted Ruler, Mr. W. H. Hellor

Besides a strong local representation, the attendance was augmented by the presence of nearly thirty visiting members from the lodges at Wainwright, Vegreville, Lloydminster and Edmonton, and it can safely be said that "a good time was had by all."

At the conclusion of the usual business meeting, the Grand Chaplain and Deputy Exalted Ruler were escorted to the platform by a committee consisting of Exalted Ruler Bill Hellor and Secretary Jack Bowie, and were presented with a gavel and mallet respectively, made from wood of an historic character.

The entertainment committee was responsible for the following numbers: Vocal duets by Messrs Sherbark, F. Keys and A. Lyons; and musical selections by M. W. B. Elford.

Speeches by representatives of visiting lodges, in which high tribute was paid Vermilion lodge's Exalted Ruler, Mr. Don Taylor, and other chair officers for their efficient display of degree work, brought to a close an evening that will long be remembered

HONEY PRODUCED OF UNEXCELLED QUALITY

The editor was the recipient of a case of delicious comb honey from H. W. Lee, proprietor of the Irma Times. Mr Lee was over the beginning of the week and disposed of a considerable quantity of bait to the several merchants with the idea of introducing the product of his apiaries into this district. This season with around 100 hives he gathered nearly 4 tons of honey most of which was disposed of locally. As a test to quality, an exhibit of this honey shown at the Westminster fair but one bottle only one-quarter of a point from it but awarded first premium. The flavor and quality of this Alberta product will class with the very best

A Double Escape

Another Toronto home provides evidence of how a simple cut, scratch or bruise, may prove the way to deadly blood-poison, and how vital is the need for keeping Zam-Buk always handy!

When called upon at 5, Rosborough Avenue, Mrs. J. E. Loxley, daughter of the late Mr. Peter Neal, of St. David's, S. Wales, said: "My husband Alfred met a sad fate big with the bean tag of a street car. A heavy pressed-brick delivered and it dished all the usual contempts. Hearing splendid reports about Zam-Buk I decided to give it a trial. To my great relief, the brain soon ceased boiling to let it. All inflammation and poisonous matter was quickly removed by Zam-Buk, and it healed the sore without leaving a scar.

"Again when I fell over a steel fender and injured my knee badly, Zam-Buk alone saved me. My daughter, a nurse, was of the opinion that only an operation could remove the cause of inflammation and pus. But I again pleased my faith in Zam-Buk, and it cleansed and healed the wound."

All druggists and stores sell Zam-Buk at 50c per box. Equally valuable for eczema, pimples, cuts, burns, etc.

Mr. John Molloy, Fenner, Man., writes:—"I am a returned soldier and when I came home from overseas I suffered greatly with dysentery. Value Of Tourist Traffic

No Official Figures On Amount Of Money Spent Have Been Given Out

How much money do people from the United States leave in Canada every year? No official figures have been given out, but guesses run all the way from $100,000,000 to $400,000,000. The Royal Bank of Canada estimates that $275,000,000 was left by United States visitors to Canada in 1927, compared with $140,000,000 in 1925.

This year traffic has been unusually heavy. In Quebec, which 3 430 cars from the United States entered in 1925, 425,000 cars were expected to enter this year. Ontario showed a much larger figure, but the length of stay is less.

It is estimated that 3 000,000 cars from the United States will have entered Canada before the close of the present year. Canada, seeing what is ahead, is busy spending millions of dollars for good roads.

ARE YOU AFRAID OF YOUR MEALS?

Proof That the Stomach Is Weak and Needs Toning Up

Are you one of the many sufferers who dread meal time? Hungry and yet afraid to eat, because of the pains and discomforts that follow. When the stomach is out of order the whole system suffers and as the blood becomes thin and watery it becomes increasingly difficult to correct the indigestive disorder. There is no tonic for the stomach that is not a tonic for the whole body; thus a blood-building tonic such as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills not only relieves indigestion, but adds to the general strength. Mr. D. J. Shaw, Selkirk Road, P.E.I., has proved the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills in a severe case of indigestion and relates his experience for the benefit of other sufferers. He says:—"I suffered from indigestion for a number of years. My case was not so bad that words fail to describe it. My appetite was gone, constipation was present, and my nerves were all to pieces. I could not sleep well at night, and the world was a dark spot for me. I tried a number of remedies, but without any benefit. Then Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were recommended, but without much faith, after so many failures, I decided to try them. After taking three boxes I noticed a change for the better. Then I got three boxes more and found I had a genuine remedy. I continued the treatment, took moderate exercise, could take plain food without suffering as formerly, and proved that these pills make good blood, and that the good blood will restore the stomach and nerves. Anyone suffering from stomach or nerve troubles will make no mistake in giving Dr. Williams' Pink Pills a fair trial."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are sold by all medicine dealers or will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box by The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont. Write today for a copy of the free booklet "What to Eat and How to Eat."

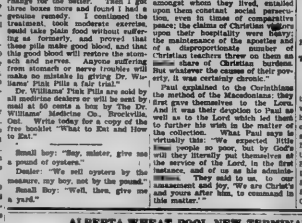
ALBERTA WHEAT POOL NEW TERMINAL ELEVATOR



That the Alberta Wheat Pool is anticipating its future years the great trade of Alberta's crop will reach the world's markets by way of Pacific tidewater is evident from that organization's activities in building and acquiring terminal elevator space at Vancouver and Prince Rupert.

Just recently a great new terminal has been completed for the Alberta Pool, at Vancouver, by the Northern Construction Company and J. W. Stewart, and with C. D. Howe & Company, recognized as one of the foremost designers of terminal elevators, as the engineers. The capacity of this new terminal is approximately 2½ million bushels which brings the total storage controlled by the Alberta Pool on the Pacific coast up to 3,500,000 bushels.

The new Alberta Pool terminal is located adjacent to the Second Narrows railway bridge on the city side of Vancouver Harbor. There its workhouse towers 200 feet into the air. Flanked with huge bins 123 feet high, no material testimony to the foresight of the Alberta Pool farmers.

When the Pool organization started its venture into the elevator business in 1928, it at once took plans for the securing of an elevator site at Vancouver whereupon to build a terminal which would be operated in conjunction with the Rue elevator system to be developed throughout Alberta. At the present time the Alberta Pool has over 300 country elevators scattered through the length and breadth of the province and controlling terminals at the great bending the one just built. At Prince Rupert the Pool has under lease Canadian Government terminal elevator with a capacity of 1,250,000 bushels. At Vancouver another government terminal with a capacity of 1,500,000 bushels is also under lease. The combination of line and terminal elevators provides a well balanced elevator system which is greatly in favor with the Pool membership of the Province of Alberta.

The Alberta Pool elevator system works on a patronage basis, that is, excess earnings are distributed to the pool farmers who ship through pool elevators, or direct, their loaded cars to pool terminals. Approximately one million dollars excess earnings from the elevator operations during the 1927-28 crop year were returned direct to Alberta Pool elevator patrons.

Artificial Clouds a Success

German Invention Makes Country Entirely Invisible From Air

Experiments in making cloud screens capable of hiding an entire country side from airplanes have been concluded near Stuttgart, and the results were pronounced highly satisfactory.

Flame throwers of the same type employed during the war were used for distributing gas which, upon striking the air, becomes heavy and opaque. The purpose of the test was to determine if an entire industrial section could be made invisible to hostile airplanes. The flame throwers were mounted on the ground on all sides of the area around which it is desired to lay a screen. Thus a section could be hidden regardless of the direction of the wind.

Planes flew over the region after the cloud was laid and observers declared they were unable to detect a single building through the gas cloud. Photographs returned with plates which proved worthless as far as identification was concerned. The composition of the cloud forming gas was kept secret.

Rockefeller's Idea Of How To Get On In World

From New York comes a new story concerning John D. Rockefeller, the multi-millionaire.

A young man asked his advice as to how best to get on in the world.

"Work hard and set yourself to buy a gold watch," was the reply.

"Tut," queried the fortuner, "and when you've bought the gold watch?"

"You don't buy a gold watch," replied Mr. Rockefeller, "you buy a gun-metal one and start all over again for a motor car."

"And when you've got the money for a motor car?"

"Well, you remember the watch, if you're not a fool, and go on walking on Nonsense."

A training school for the encouragement of home industries is being talked of in Winnipeg, following the Pakheng Festival held in that city recently under the auspices of the Canadian Pacific Railway Montreal, it may be noted, has had for some years classes to teach their native handicrafts to children of foreign-born parents, who would otherwise be likely not to acquire the skill they would be developed in their own country.

W. M. Scott, a tanner and glazer of Wingham, Ont., who had the unique distinction of finding two different pairs of bobbed antlers during his career, was a recent visitor to the General Tourist Department of the C. P. R. at Montreal. Bobbed antlers are very rare, and one of the two pairs discovered by him are so firmly interlocked that they cannot be pulled apart by two strong men, and to be separated would have to be cut.

"To all my supervisors I have not previously found my general's knowledge of complete confidence in this country and its possibilities as was observed in the cities and districts where we made stops and had an opportunity of talking things over with their representative citizens" was the statement made by F. According to information given out by the General Secretary of the League of Nations Society in Canada at Ottawa the membership of that organization has grown in three years from less than a thousand to almost fifteen thousand in number. Although strongly supported by women's organizations of all sorts and descriptions, its character is by no means feminine as over half the members are business men and in British Columbia 55 per cent are men.

Word was received from the U.F.A. convention by the Edmonton Board of Trade on Thursday morning that it is the unanimous decision of the annual meeting of the United Farmers of Alberta in Edmonton, providing that suitable arrangements for a hall, headquarters and such things can be made. A committee from the U.F.A. executive at Calgary is coming to interview the Edmonton board of trade regarding arrangements for the convention.

The date has not been set for the annual convention of farmers, but it is made sure will be held in the week preceding the first Monday in January.

WHEAT POOL NEWS BULLETIN

The Alberta Wheat Pool has made its final payment, this being 2½c per bushel for wheat delivered to the 15th of September, and for a few mixed grades. The total value of this payment was $1,256,482.54.

Final payments for the Pool paid the following prices for wheat delivered from the 1927 crop:—1 Northern 81.35½; 2 Northern 81.35¼; 3 Northern 81.35¼; No. 4 81.31½; No. 5 81.01¼; No. 6 91½; Feed 63½c.

When the Wheat Pool distributed its second interim payment last July, over $3,000,000 was paid out, provide for elevator reserve, commercial reserve and administration cost. It was found 24½c per bushel would be required for these purposes so the 2½ cent balance was included in the final payment. Of this 24½c, 22c per bushel received from the central selling Agency

The administration costs during the past year were also twenty-five of a cent a bushel, the elevator reserve deduction was 3c. per bushel, and the commercial reserve was one and one-twentieth cent.

The elevator reserve now totals approximately $5,656,000. This amount has been used to pay for over 300 elevators and the Alberta Pool's share in the terminal elevator at the head of the Lakes. The commercial reserve now totals approximately $1,750,000

The reserve funds are required to develop the physical facilities of the Wheat Pool that the organization is so rapidly capable of in the present time. An aggressive elevator building program is being carried out

Each member is credited with his share of the elevator reserve and commercial reserve according to the number of bushels delivered. Interest at the rate of 6 per cent is paid to each member for cash in this way a real asset is being built up for the growers and at the same time the organization is building a comprehensive and modern elevator system.

The issuing of the final payment for the 1927 crop ends the business of the Wheat Pool's first 6 year contract period. During that time the Canadian Wheat Pool handled approximately 750,000,000 bushels of grain, with a turnover of one billion one hundred million dollars.

The Pools are entering the second contract period with a splendid membership, increased confidence and $20,000 per day in physical assets. They are now handling the bulk of their own grain and are working steadily and speedily on organization plans to develop Pool facilities all along the line

In making this final payment the Alberta Wheat Pool issued 47,000 cheques. This required the labor of 40 employes for three weeks. Before cheques are issued the ledger accounts have to be balanced in bushels and in dollars and cents. Then the cheques are issued and balanced in this way the number of errors are at a minimum

NEW COURSE FOR TECHNICAL STUDENTS

Work Now Combined with General School Training in Alberta

Technical school work in Alberta is now being combined with general school training, leading up to diploma, and a number of pupils in both Edmonton and Calgary are taking advantage of the opportunity. A new course of studies has been issued for special grade 7 and 8 classes in pre-vocational or technical high schools, built on the general arrangement of 50 per cent of the student's time being given to practical manual subjects and 50 per cent to general training subjects. Students who successfully complete the course will be given diplomas equivalent in every way to the regular grade 8 diploma.

The practical subjects thus covered in the course include woodwork, metal work, printing, drafting, electricity and concrete, for boys, and homecraft or domestic science, and crafts work for girls. In the general subjects such adaptations of the course have been made as will admit of their being covered in the shorter time at the student's disposal. English, arithmetic, geography, and history will be the main subjects under this head.

SHY LAD TO SHARE $5,000 IN TREASURE TROVE

LONDON, Oct. 10 — A Hornsey coroner's jury has decided that the 85c Roman coins—probably 1600 years old—found at Grumley Gardens, Muswell Hill, were treasure trove and directed George Cooper, 15, the person to hand them over to the Treasury. The coins were found by Gerald Percival Grimshaw, 12, only boy, who was digging "just for fun" in the garden.

"This is my first case of the kind in 20 years' experience," said the coroner. "The Treasury now returns to the finder of treasure-trove 20 per cent of its selling value, but the penalty of not reporting the finding is imprisonment and a fine."

The young lad referred to in the above is a second cousin of the Rev. A. B. Sage of Vermilion

ANOTHER "HOLT" TRIUMPH

Three weeks ago we published in this paper an invitation urging you to investigate what HOLT COMBINED HARVESTERS were doing in your District.

We asked you to make comparisons between the SWATHER and WINDROW PICK-UP System of the HOLT method as against other means of handling grain, and also competitive machines.

You found that our statements were correct — that HOLT was the only 100 per cent perfect system — that users of this method had successfully harvested their crops while deales were still out in the field — that their grain averaged as high as that gathered by any other method — that they had saved from ONE to THREE bushels per acre in handing and from 15 to 18 cents per bushel on operating costs.

That the ORIGINAL COMBINE -- the "Holt" --- wins again over all competitors and imitations.

That users are convinced that harvesting by the HOLT method is the solution of the farmers' problems in Canada.

This is the reason why we urged you to investigate while the season was on and we trust you will get an order in early for your HOLT COMBINE FOR THE 1929 SEASON.

Reward and Garnet, New Wheat Varieties, Now Holding Attention of Western Growers

Mr. L. H. Newman, Dominion Cerealist of the Experimental Farm, returned to the East recently from an extensive tour of Western Canada. During the trip practically every wheat growing area was visited. Mr. Newman states that the newer wheats, Reward and Garnet, are holding the attention of the western growers.

Some 467 farmers are this year testing Reward wheat. The variety is reported to have done well, though actual figures on yield, etc., have not yet been compiled Mr Newman stated that it had been impossible to determine anything definite with regard to this variety's rust resisting qualities because there was practically no rust in Manitoba and very little elsewhere. Conditions generally in the west Mr. Newman describes as distinctly above the average.

Particularly good are the reports on Garnet wheat, one of the originatings of the Experimental Farm. Writing on the subject of this remarkable wheat early this year, the Dominion Cerealist stated "The history of Garnet wheat is almost an epic in the realm of scientific achievement. It was only after a quarter of a century of patient but determined effort replete with discouragements and disappointments that it rewarded ultimately by definite and indisputable gains."

In 1914 Garnet wheat was included in the regular variety test-plots at the Experimental Farm. In 1919 it was tested at the Experimental Farms in the Prairie Provinces. In 1923 the branch farms were able to how 236 acres from which 9 bus. produced about 9 700 bushels.

In 1926 some 6 934 bushels of Garnet seed were delivered to prairie farmers, with a four-bushel limit. Some 2,926 farmers, including 962 soldier settlers, received two to four bu'hels lots and this together with seed from increasing test samples by two or three seed growers, made a grand total of some 14,000 bushels, or enough to seed 12,900 acres.

This year Garnet wheat was observed growing in all parts of the west. The section east of Prince Albert and north of Tisdale is practically a Garnet country. It is an early maturing variety, and produces a high proportion of grain to straw. This season serious frost in Saskatchewan on August 29 damaged the immature wheat, but Garnet demonstrated its ability to mature before the frost. It usually ripens a day or two before Reward, from six to twelve days ahead of Marquis, and three or four days before Ruby. This variety has also behaved well under drought conditions.

In 1923 it was reported wheat would never grow in the Peace River country This year Garnet was being cut here on August 21 Crops were observed as far north as the Peace River district than further south, and some of the world's finest crops were seen there Dr J H Grisdale, Deputy Minister of Agriculture, and Mr L. H. Newman, driving through the Sas Grande section of the Peace River on August 22, were able to identify 21 varieties of wheat, and of these 20 were Garnet. 7 Marquis, 3 Huron, 3 Turkey Red, 1 Ruby and 1 Reward.

This indicates the way in which Garnet wheat is spreading in the west. As an early maturer and good yielder, it is equal, if not superior to the Experimental Farm Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture can also be credited with the epoch-making contribution to Canadian agriculture

Expropriation Proceedings Under Way to Secure Property

Preliminary arrangements for expropriation proceedings in regard to property at Fort Churchill are under way in Ottawa. Judge H. A. Robson, of Winnipeg is acting for the Dominion government and the private owners are the descendants of William Beach, well known Winnipeg oldtimer who was granted a baliwer in the Fort Churchill terminus to the Hudson Bay Railroad that he bought a large tract of territory at this point many years ago.

The Beach estate owns the narrow strip of land running between the harbor and the sea and it is along the inner shore of this peninsula that the harbor works are being constructed.

Hon. Chas. Dunning decided last year, when Churchill was selected as the port, that no private interests should be allowed to own land there, as summer resort, and expropriation proceedings accordingly were begun.

English Paper Gives Weird Account of Primitive Conditions

The woman's page editor of the Vancouver Province says: "There isn't a Canadian who at some time or other doesn't lament the fact that Canada is regarded at the 'Land of Beyond' by English people. Nearly every person has some amusing story to tell of an Englishman who came to Vancouver looking for bears, or who showed surprise at the discovery that this country is in no way different from any other as far as conveniences are concerned.

"It is somewhat surprising to pick up a well-known English daily and see in staring headline, 'A Bridge Party in West Vancouver; How an English Hostess Makes the Best of Her Primitive Home in the Wilds.' Add there follows a long account of a trip to the wilds or West Vancouver in a harmless brisge party where the guests regaled themselves on sandwiches, seated on packing boxes or bads.

"No one would argue about the truth of the affair. It may be no nicer way a resident of British Columbia should undertake to send Home to England stressing the primitive state of this part of Canada is not understandable. So, perhaps, our education needs to start at home, before we try to impress our importance on other countries."

Tells How Rare Ore Discovery Weakened Case of Shown

At the Central Experimental Farm at Ottawa a large collection of specimens of "corn" are successfully matured out-of-doors each year. In this regard for 1927, the Dominion Apparat tells how the bees are protected and fed. The canes used are four-colony and two-colony and single canes are also used. In packing, planer shavings are used of which three inches is placed under the hives, four or five inches about their sides, and six inches to eight inches on the top. Thirty-eight colonies were wintered on honey and forty-four on sugar syrup. Of those wintered on honey, thirty received shallow food chambers, and eight received deep ones. The bees were also to fly on until November 2 and after February 24. Towards the end of April when the colonies were examined it was found that those wintered on honey were in worse shape than those of the sugar syrup fed group. Eight of the colonies died, of which six received honey and two received syrup. By the tenth of May the latter were ahead in all the five colonies the number of frames covered by the bees averaged 6.2 per colony.

Brisbane Who Said

Ninety-Five Per Cent of Statements From Britain Boys Made

Notwithstanding the concentrated efforts of a well-organized even highly-financed band of anonymous liars, ten thousand British miners came to the prairies, and an unexpected number of them are still remaining to meet the challenge that is Canada's. That challenge of this great Dominion is to them and to the winner the best there is in life, exemplified by the fact that an immigrant of two decades ago is a senior member of the federal cabinet.

Less than five per cent of the ten thousand miners have gone back, among these are some physically unfit, others mentally disqualified. Some came with the purpose of making the trip a vacation junket, many others came with "communist instructions to foment trouble — and, yet 95 per cent remain.

It's an outstanding defeat for the power of communism and a victory to bring discredit upon both the British workers and upon the Canada that harbors all the dregs of Europe with much too tolerant kindness. -Canadian Finance.

A Billion Bushel Crop

Prediction is Made That Canada Will Produce Into Much Wheat Annually in Short Time

The 350,000,000 bushel Indianapolis crop which Canada is harvesting this year leads the "Grain World," of Chicago, in a recent publication to predict that in a comparatively short time the wheat production of Canada will total 1,000,000,000 bushels annually.

If this happens, and the estimate is based on a consideration of the trend of wheat production during the last decade, it will entail a tremendous expansion in railway building, elevator construction, the use of agricultural machinery, and general manufacturing. The total wheat production of the world this year is estimated to be 3,608,300,000 bushels or 50,000,000 bushels more than last year.

With Russia still importing wheat, the Oriental demand growing, the demand for wheat increasing, and with the growth in population, it is logical to assume that the wheat production in Canada will continue to increase.

The story of his misfortune got around and one day a business acquaintance asked him, "I know you heard anything about your wallet?" "Yes," replied the owner vicariously, "I have, morning—noon—and night!"

"All right," murmured the tramp sleepily. "Don't slam them, will you."

Janet laughed. "I will go now to give you the chance." With a playful flick of her veil she left Howard Douglas who was off like an arrow.

Donald turned to his friend. "I hope that you are satisfied now that you have made an ass out of me."

"Quite happy, old dear. I didn't find it a hard job."

Donald laughed "I'll race you to the gym."

As the bout was to take place on Monday, this was to be the last day of training. The fans who had flocked to see Donald in his work-out at the gym. had been well rewarded, but would be unable to stay the twenty rounds with the formidable Garrison. The verdict of the knowing ones was that it would take more than a manager to put a dent in the laurels from the champion who possessed the virtue of the terrible punch.

To the boxer training is a trying ordeal. The daily grind of road-work, bag-punching, rope-skipping and punch work becomes monotonous. The nerves become frayed, and if the weight has to be materially reduced the boxer suffers intensely. This is anything but a cheerful companion.

As Donald prepared for bed that night he thought with relief that the next morrow would be a day of rest. "I'll be glad when it's over," he mused. His meditations were interrupted by a rapping on the door. In answer to his invitation to come in, the door opened and a small man of unprepossessing appearance entered

The visitor was indeed a most repulsive man, of uncertain age and with skin of a sickly yellow. One eye was slightly-ness, which he sacrificed to an accident during a football game. Those familiar with his shady past averred that it was caused by the vigorous application of an adversary's blunt during a bar-room brawl.

"I'm Garrieau's manager," he said importantly.

"What do you want?" demanded Donald shortly

"Now, see here, Kid. We've got a deal cinch to rop de change. It's dis way. Youse is a smachner widout a chance in de world to beat de Slugger. Get me? Well, dere ain't a bit of sense of de Slugger beatin' you up for nuttin', so we framed de bout. De beary bettle will be on de Slugger, so we fixed it for de Slugger to go 'till about de tent' round, so's to give de fans a run for dere money. We gets all de money dat we can beg, borrow and steal and puts it on you to win at de long odds and you lose fight. You can take de drop a couple of times, and den down goes de Slugger. De fans will just eat it up. De tent' round will find you stannin' too to toe, den de last minute you sends some de fake step-punch. De boobs will t'ink it's on de square. Den in a mont' we gets a return fight and we splits de bangup stuff and we both packs de house. Of course, we have to win den, and all our money will be placed on de Slugger. Dat means dat we cop de change twice. Get me?" His ugly-ripe period to what he intended as an ingratiating smile. "You come up to de club tomorrow and we rehearses de whole t'ing. Get me?"

Donald's face turned pale with rage. "I 'get you,' you damned little rat!" he rasped. Seizing the surprised Pursell by the collar, he jerked him to his feet, dragged him to the door, and threw him out with such force that he struck the wall with a thump, and fell in a heap in the floor.

Pursell rose with a snarl that showed his yellow teeth. A look of bestial hate shot from the one gleaming orb. "We'll bill you Monday, you ——" The air was filled with the vilest objurgations.

Closing the door, Donald walked to the windows and opened them wide, as though to rid the room of the air his visitor had breathed. "I never dreamed there was so much rotten-ness in the shape of a human being," he said disgustedly.

At the same hour, at the other side of the city, Douglas was also entertaining a visitor, but of a very different type He had just entered his room when he heard his sister's voice

"May I come in a minute, Doug?" Janet came to the point quickly. "Who was that Mr. McLean who was with you today?"

"Oh, that was er Donald Mc-Lean," he replied evasively.

"You know what I mean. Who is he? What is he, Where does he come from?"

"I'll look him up in Bradstreet's."

"Be be serious, Doug."

"I am serious matter, Sis?"

"I think he is interesting," she replied hesitatingly

"So do I. I liked him the first time I saw him," said Douglas warmly.

"Well, you haven't answered my question yet," persisted Janet.

For all his fluency of speech Douglas was for the moment nonplussed. "Let's see er— what was the first question?" he asked, stalling for time.

"Don't quibble, Doug. Where did you meet him?"

"I've known a long time ago through an intimate friend by the name of Pettray McLean is his partner Firm Enhancement, in London, England."

The event interest in which was increased by an advertising topic recently attached the esteem around the interest of thousands of Londoners, who gathered on the Strand to watch the arrival of the obelisk from Alexandria, towed by the Channel tug Anglia

The tug hailed signals came John Dinan put the Needle in position in about half an hour At 2.30 it was straight, and a while later from the crowd as the Union Jack and the Egyptian flags were run up or flagstaffs erected at the base.

A railway guide, Rubies in ordinary language, a feeding bottle a razor a pair of boots, a packet of a box of hairpins, photographs of a dozen pretty Englishwomen presented by the Australian Henry Curtis, a pair of corsets, a pound weight a foot measure and sundry articles of female adornment were among the articles deposited

Queen Victoria was so interested that when the obelisk arrived at the official statement was issued that she was "much gratified by the safe arrival of the Needle."

Although brought to England only 50 years ago, Cleopatra's Needle, which has no connection with Cleopatra, was presented to the British nation by Mohammed Ali in 1819

The Needle of pink granite now black through exposure was erected at Heliopoli by Thtmes or Thut-mes III a monarch of the 18th Dynasty about 1501 B.C. and dedicated to Tum of Heliopolis.

Iron Ochre Discovery

Valuable Find Is Made In Northern Saskatchewan

Discovery of deposits of iron ochre estimated at 50,000 tons has been made near Makwai Lake, Saskatchewan by William O. Neal, of Kerrobert, who has staked claims under the Dominion quarts mining regulations

Makwai Lake is almost due north of St. Walburg, the end of the steel on the Canadian National Railways It can be reached by automobile over rough trails The ochre deposits were found just south of the south east arm of the Makwai Lake and a rough estimate suggests that something like 50,000 tons of rich red iron ochre varying in depth from three to five feet are available

Iron ochre has many uses It is used extensively in the manufacture of paint, for coloring flours, for coloring card board, and a filler in the manufacture of rubber goods paper oilcloth for coloring match heads and for coloring stuffs.

Both the quality and quantity of the iron ochre deposits discovered in the Makwai Lake district add to its commercial development Samples are now being tested for the Department of Mines, Ottawa, and Indications to determine the various properties of the ochre

BULLETINS ON "CHOOSING A LIFE WORK"

The Technical Educational Branch of the Department of Industry recently published four bulletins on "Choosing a Life Work." Two of these bulletins deal with the building trades, one being on bricklaying and the other on carpentry. The other two bulletins deal with Office Work.

These circulars are intended to inform young Canadians regarding the nature and requirements of occupations open to boys and girls of the "born day." The immediate purpose is to create an interest in the study of occupations and in excursions young people in a way of thinking about work so that they will know how to make a decision when selecting a vocation and how to fit themselves for the work they choose. It is also hoped that the study may be of value to teachers and counsellors in giving information about the occupational world. They may be used as text material for or supplemental groups or as suggestions for reading for interested individuals.

The bulletins on the building trades deal with the nature and importance of each trade, emphasizing the nature of the work, the material and tools used and the operations performed by the workers. The conditions under which the work is done are also described. This includes a discussion of such topics as hours of labor, wages, unemployment, health conditions, industrial accidents, etc. Another section deals with the requirements for entering the trade and a final section describes the opportunities for advancement.

One of the bulletins on Office Work deals with general office conditions. The other gives occupational information covering the positions of secretary, stenographer, dictaphone operator and typist. The description of each position includes an account of the conditions of employment, the duties of the employee and training required, the physical and personal qualities which will ensure success and the probable means of securing a promotion.

The booklets are attractively printed and well illustrated. Copies of Educational Branch, Department of Industry, can be secured on application to the Town of Labour, Ottawa.

VOCATIONAL TRAINING IN EVENTAIN FOREIGN COUNTRIES

A revised scheme for the improvement of vocational training in ordnance and clothing factories has been sanctioned by the Government of India. It is proposed to select for training a limited number of boys 12 to 17 years of age, with the object of producing skilled workers from whom a higher grade of temporary supervision than is now obtainable will in time be available. So far as possible, the boys will be recruited from the families of workers in the factories, and the period of training will be normally four years. It is also proposed to give to a small group of carefully selected 'apprentices' in certain trades recruited from every race and creed found suitable for the work required, a sufficiently thorough training to make them capable of becoming foremen or assistant foremen.

In Rumania, the training of apprentices was first undertaken by the government in 1920. In 1927 there were 141 schools for apprentices in industry or commerce with a registration of 16,815.

Poland, in 1927, had 1145 schools or courses for vocational training in industry or agriculture, with 153,800 pupils in attendance.

In France, a few years ago laws raise the age limit for apprenticeship from 16 to 18 years, and regulate apprenticeship contracts.

FROM THE OLD LAND

The career of the recent moderator of the United Church of Canada, Rev James Endicott—born in Devon, converted to the Christian faith and baptized in China, and honored in all Canada — is being used as a text for advocating the betterment of more young British folk in the Dominion in the task of bringing Old Country lads to Canadian farms. The United Church began to take a hand this year distributing several large parties from its new hostel at Norval, Ont., under direction of its Board of Home Missions. Next years program is not yet decided on

WHOOPING COUGH

Whooping cough is very dangerous to children and sometimes fatal to grown ups, more people die from it than from Scarlet Fever.

The mother whose children have had whooping cough does not need to be reminded of its symptoms. She can remember her child running to her gasping for breath, catching hold of her skirt for support and finally breaking into that awful rasping cough. Whooping cough starts with a slight cold, running at the nose, eyes and a dry cough. The eyes get blood shot. After a week the cough gets worse and the child vomits after a long spell of coughing. It becomes pale and draws in his breath with a shrill, scraping sound. This is the whoop. In some cases this is not always present.

If a child shows the first signs of whooping cough call the doctor and follow his directions absolutely.

The child frequently vomits because of hard coughing. As a result many children lose weight and become weak. In this condition they easily get T B pneumonia or other serious conditions. We not give the child heavy foods. Give them easily digested Milk and eggs are very good. Give an egg with beaten in milk every time he loves a meal.

All discharge that comes from the mouth and nose while the child is ill, should be received in a piece of rescued linen or rags and burned. It is through carelessness in this that the disease is spread. Keep separate cups, glasses, plates, and spoons so the child while he is ill. See that the child gets plenty of fresh air. Keep the room well aired night and day. Unless it is raining, take him out every day, in the yard, or—on the park.

Keep the child away from others even after the whoop has stopped he can give the disease to others. Well until the cough is gone as well. Remember that whooping cough is very catching. Be sure that your child does not spread the disease and possible death to others.

Pamphlets on communicable diseases can be had from the Canadian Red Cross Society, 606 Civic Block, Edmonton.

BISHOP'S PROPOSAL IS "NOT CRICKET"

Presbyterian Moderator Discusses Prayer Book in Chester Cathedral

CHESTER, Eng., Oct. 16.—The interesting spectacle of Professor Canon Selbie Principal, moderator of the Presbyterian church in England, addressed by invitation a gathering within the precincts of Chester cathedral and charitably and decisively condemning the latest proposals of the House of Bishops of the Church of England, was witnessed last night

"To use the best ecclesiastic term," said Professor Simpson, the bishops' proposals are 'not cricket,' for they are attempting to go behind their contract with the state. If they really believe in spiritual freedom, let them negotiate constitutionally, which would mean their being the heads of the free churches and at least the respect of the nation.

He was referring to the statements by the Archbishops of Canterbury and York, following the deliberations of the House of Bishops two weeks ago, to the effect that during the present emergency clergy might use such revisions to the old common prayer book as they desired, within the limits approved by the church assembly They were rejected by parliament

The Farmer and the Research Worker

The prairie provinces of Canada have completed the harvesting and threshing of the greatest grain crops in the history of Canada, judged from the standpoint of volume. It is conservatively estimated that the wheat crop alone will not be less than 500,000,000 bushels, and that the other four principal grains, oats, rye, barley and flax, will add close to another 800,000,000 bushels to the total bringing Canada's grain yield for the first time within measurable distance of a billion bushel crop.

In almost every respect the season of 1928 was ideal from the standpoint of seeding, growing, cutting and threshing and the acreage seeded showed a substantial increase over former years. There was an absence of rust and other parasites, ample moisture, taking the country as a whole and generally an absence of those conditions which result in a lowering of yield. The only fly in the ointment was the killing frosts of the third week in August which caught the later sown crops and those which from one reason or another had not matured. The result was disastrous from the standpoint of grades, and consequently materially lowering in prices of a large part of the total production.

According to a rough estimate of the Saskatchewan crop it is stated that about one-third of the wheat will be of the contract grades of 1, 2 and 3 northern, that another one-third will grade number 4, and that the remaining one-third will grade below that figure.

It is within the power of our farmers to partly offset the losses occasioned by dry seasons through the adoption of the most scientific methods of farming; they can increase yields and grades by using good, clean seed and by waging continuous warfare on noxious weeds; they can insure their crops against hail But they stand helpless before the icy clutch of Jack Frost.

Addressing the annual convention of the Saskatchewan Division of the Canadian Weekly Newspapers Association, at Regina, recently, Hon. W. R. Motherwell said he knew of only one way to beat out Jack Frost, and that was to get ahead of him. That is by the development of wheat with earlier ripening qualities. In this connection he made mention of the valuable tone gained through the development of Marquis over the old Red Fife, and brought the cheering information that as a result of the experiments this year with Garnet and Reward, there was every expectation that a further notable advance would be made. According to Mr Motherwell where Garnet wheat was grown by farmers it was ripened in time to get under arrangements with the Department of Agriculture, in over 90 per cent. of cases Reward was safely in stook before the August frosts. He expressed himself as quite hopeful that western farmers would yet be in a position where they could and would beat out Jack Frost.

Experiments have been conducted for some time past to determine to what extent the drying processes for damp wheat affects milling and baking qualities, and recent announcement is to the effect that, on the whole, the quality of the wheat is not seriously affected.

How the Universities of the three prairie provinces and the Dominion Research officials are engaged in determining the effect which frost has on milling and baking qualities Hundreds of farmers this year have had the experience of marketing wheat, weighing the full sixty pounds or more to the bushel but which, because of frost effect on the chaff, has been graded every below what would otherwise have been obtained. Rightly or wrongly there is an impression that this frost, while marring the appearance of the kernel, does not seriously affect the quality and that the producer is sustaining a loss all out of proportion to the amount of damage done the grain. That, in a word, while the farmer produces the finest grain possible he only secures good milling wheat at a much less cost The scientists are now striving to get at the real truth of the matter

There are research workers for Governments and Universities working hand in hand with the farmers in endeavoring to advance the interests and prosperity of agriculture,—through the development of earlier ripening grains for the elimination of rust, and in determining the actual effect of moisture and frost on the true commercial value of grain The effort is to save hundreds of millions of dollars to the agriculturists of Canada.

Canada is spending more money than ever before in scientific research work, and the Dominion Government announces that such expenditures will be still further increased. No body of men in the Dominion stands to gain more from such work and expenditure than do the farmers of the West. The whole weight of their influence should be back of this enlightened policy.

Made Commander In Royal Naval Reserve

Canadian Awarded V.C. in Great War Receives Promotion

The promotion of Lieut Commander Ronald Neil Stuart, V.C., D.S.O., a Canadian, now in the Royal Naval Reserve, to the rank of Commander, recalls the thrilling exploit of his participation in which Commander Stuart received the V.C. decoration for bravery in the gift of his sovereign. Stuart was one of two Canadians awarded the Victoria Cross while serving in the Royal Navy during the great war, the other being Lieut. R. Bourin, of Nelson, B.C.

The action for which Commander Stuart was honored was published in the London Gazette, dated May 10, 1918, seventeen months after the event, and it was under provision 12 of the Royal Warrant which empowers a ship's company to select members of their personnel for the distinction that the Commander was the recipient of decoration by ballot. Commander Stuart was a colleague of no less a redoubtable fighter in the war story of British bush ships than Captain Gordon Campbell, V.C., the mystery man of the "special service"

The bush ships were a product of anti-submarine campaign They comprised sailers, freighters, merchantmen, yachts and even fishing smacks carrying concealed armaments and specially selected crews

Not a New Business

Evidence of rum-running 113 years ago has been discovered at the customs house in Mobile, Alabama. Customs agents, searching through old records, found a tiny scrap of paper — evidently the last paragraph of a letter—informing federal officials of the seizure of 6 quarts, presumably liquor, submerged in a marsh.

Crop Average In Canada

The total average in Canada of crops in bearing in 1927 was 1,627 acres, or practically double the 824 acres produced in 1926, which was quite the largest acreage up to that time. The average yield per acre was 1,275 pounds and the total yield 1,425,875 pounds, or 7,292 bales. The average price received per pound was 37 cents, making the total value of the 1927 hop crop $456,380, as compared with $367,346 in 1926

Shortage Of Butter

Canadian Production Not Keeping Up With Domestic Requirements

J. A. Coubler, President of the National Dairy Council of Canada, tells the delegates to the annual meeting of the Dominion Agricultural Investments Association, that Canada this year would be 15,000,000 or 20,000,000 pounds short of supplying her own butter requirements. The dairy industry has not kept pace with increased population, he said, and Canada had the highest per capita consumption of butter in the world—approximately 28 pounds a year.

Those who thought that mining was an underground operation will be surprised at the growing use of aeroplanes in that industry.

HARVESTER PLAN WAS A SUCCESS STATES AMERY

London, England — Satisfaction that the great majority of British mine harvesters were employed under satisfactory conditions and that reports of generally bad treatment cannot be substantiated is expressed by Right Hon. L. C. M. S. Amery, secretary of state for the Dominions, in a letter to Right Hon. Arthur Henderson, chairman of the Labor party, made public here.

Mr. Amery's letter was in reply to one from Mr. Henderson in which the former had expressly said the attention of the national executive committee of the Labor party had been called to "various serious statements" regarding conditions under which the miners were employed and the treatment they received in Western Canada.

An officer was sent from England to Canada, and what was still there, to deal with sickness and disease, and also personal misfortune, Mr. Amery said. He mentioned that no complaint was adversely affected under the

"No doubt some cases of hardship have occurred—and indeed ability to face some degree of hardship is indispensable—but I am satisfied that no general complaint of bad treatment can be substantiated," Mr. Amery wrote.

"I am also satisfied that the great majority of harvesters got work under satisfactory conditions."

"The men were in the Hudson's Bay area seeking minerals and are believed to be members of a party being transported by airplane to a mine field, on what is known as the North Star. The machine was forced to land, it is understood crashed on a

Unemployment Insurance

Question To Come Up For Consideration When Ottawa Home Meets

Ottawa, Ont.—Unemployment insurance, which was the subject of investigation by the industrial committee of the House of Commons last session, will be given further consideration when parliament convenes again. This assurance was given by Hon. Peter Heenan, Minister of Labor, who stated that the majority of the provinces of the Dominion already had declared themselves upon the proposal.

In its report the industrial relations committee accepted and endorsed the principle of unemployment insurance, based on compulsory contributions derived from the state the employer and the employee. The report further pointed out that the responsibility for such legislation primarily rested with the provincial governments.

On the basis of the committee's findings the department of labor communicated with the various provincial administrations which it was would be prepared to consider adopting the proposal and to what extent. Only Ontario replied during the present time. Mr. Heenan intimated that these replies would be submitted to the committee at the next session. The minister refused to divulge the views of the provinces in the matter

Winston Churchill Joins Union

Chancellor Of Exchequer Is Identified With Building Trade Workers

London, Eng.—Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, who made public confession that he was a layer while handling a trowel in the building operations at his home in Kent last summer, has made himself one with his fellow craftsmen by joining the Amalgamated Union of Building Trade Workers. The chancellor who paid his entrance fee by cheque will receive his union card shortly.

Notifying the new recruit to trades union ranks that he will be pleased to enroll him as a member, James F. Lane, divisional secretary, wrote Mr. Churchill a copy of the rules emphasizing the entrance fee of five shillings and a weekly contribution of nine pence.

"This," Lane wrote, "entitles you in addition to trade protection to one pound a week should you be called out on strike and to additional unemployment benefit should you at any time fall out of employment."

Under the regulations any one employing the chancellor as a bricklayer in the future must pay him the minimum wage.

New Varieties Of Seed Wheat Ready

Demand For Garnet and Reward Greater Than Supply

Ottawa.—Nearly 25,000 bushels of seed wheat of the Garnet and Reward varieties will be provided by the Dominion Government this year, it is learned. The demand is stated by officials to be greater than the supply.

The new varieties were developed by L. H. Newman, Dominion cerealist, at the experimental farm here. The grain ripens from seven to ten days earlier than other varieties.

Last year's sale of seed grain amounted to approximately 2,000 bushels. So satisfactory have the results of the 1927 crop been that a demand for the progress made to date in building up an equally satisfactory crop of Garnet and Reward, we hope that our efforts will be assisted in the future by the addition of many million bushels more of Saskatchewan wheat, now marketed outside of the Pools."

Tuberculosis In Cattle

Disease Being Eradicated By Means Of Restricted Areas

Ottawa, Ont. — Tuberculosis in Canadian cattle is rapidly being eradicated through the operation of the restricted area plan, Dr. George Hilton, veterinary director-general at the department of agriculture, declares.

Where in some areas as high as 7.9 per cent. of cows had been found infected on the first tests, re-tests have shown a general falling of to approximately one-half of one per cent.

There is a persistent and increasing demand upon the department for restricted areas," Dr. Hilton said.

"Farmers have found that by replacing infected animals with high class stock they receive greater financial returns with less work."

Antarctic Broadcast a Success

Chamberlain Will Travel Across Canada

Reaches Victoria October 29, and Starts From Quebec November 15

Ottawa.—Sir Austen Chamberlain's Canadian schedule has been given out here. He will arrive at Victoria on the afternoon of Monday, Oct. 29, remaining there until Wednesday, Oct. 31, when he leaves for Vancouver, where he spends Wednesday night. Sir Austen will leave Vancouver for Banff on Thursday morning. He will leave Banff on Sunday, Nov. 4, and arrive in Toronto early Wednesday morning, Nov. 7.

The next evening he will leave for Ottawa, arriving in the capital on the morning of Friday, Nov. 9. His stay in Ottawa will continue until Tuesday, Nov. 13, when he leaves to spend one day in Montreal. From Montreal, Sir Austen goes to Quebec arriving in that city on the evening of Nov. 14. He will sail from Quebec the next day.

FINAL PAYMENT OF WHEAT POOL FOR 1927 CROP

Winnipeg.—Cheques for the final payment of 2½ cents per bushel on the 1927 wheat crop are now in the mails, Pool members in Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. Of the total amount distributed, amounting to $4,722,165.89, Manitoba's share is $381,873.83. The Saskatchewan Pool received $2,870,820, and Alberta, $1,600,143.72.

"The final payment this year is a flat payment on all grades of wheat," said Secretary R. B. Ramsay, general manager of the Central Selling agency. "As all marketing costs and deductions for commercial and elevator charges were made from the last interim payment, the Pool's final price for the past year on No. 1 Northern Fort William, was $1.45 per bushel, as compared with $1.42 paid last year, $1.45 in 1926, $1.66 in 1925, and $1.01 paid out by the Alberta Pool in 1924."

Regina.—President A. J. McPhail commented on the fact that the payment this year is somewhat earlier than the final payment from the 1926 crop, which was made on October 19th last year.

"A detailed report of the operations of the Pools for the crop year 1927-28 is, of course, not yet available, and will not be available until the annual meeting of delegates which takes place on November 20, but it is sufficient to say at this time that the Pools management will be satisfied with the showing made during the past year. They are confident that many Pool members did not expect the final price to be so generally satisfactory, and I can only repeat what I have already stated on previous occasions, that the Pool organization, as a wheat marketing agency, can only be effective to the extent that it is both efficient in management and in control of the largest possible volume of the total marketable wheat from Western Canada. It is, I think, generally admitted that the Pool organization is to be commended for the progress made to date in building up an equally satisfactory crop of Garnet and Reward, we hope that our efforts will be assisted in the future by the addition of many million bushels more of Saskatchewan wheat, now marketed outside of the Pools."

Many Killed When Building Collapses

Faulty Material and Hasty Construction Blamed For Accident

Prague.—The catastrophic collapse of a newly-constructed seven-storey building here may have taken a toll of 64 lives or more, it is feared

Most of the victims were workmen putting the finishing touches on the building. Faulty materials and too hasty construction are blamed for the collapse.

The architect in charge of the construction of the building committed suicide when informed of its collapse.

A woman pushing a baby-carriage was buried beneath the avalanche of brick and masonry with her child A chauffeur passing in a motor car suffered the same fate, as did two coachmen and the four horses pulling their vehicles. About a hundred workmen were in the building when it collapsed.

Washington, D.C.—Order eighty-six of the United States immigration department may be formally repealed within the next week or so, Promulgated on April 1, 1927, the order caused international turmoil until the Supreme Court of the United States technically nullified it by refusing to review the judgment of a New York circuit court of appeals, setting aside its previous ruling. A WELCOME FOR SETTLERS FROM THE BRITISH ISLES

London, Eng "No bigger untruth was ever uttered in respect to a nation and a country than to say that Canada does not wish to have emigrants from the British Isles," declared Mackenzie King of Canada declared emphatically in the course of a lengthy speech on Canada's immigration question and diplomatic representation abroad at the annual banquet of the Canada Club.

"Not only do we wish to have but we are prepared to advance money for their passage and indeed in some cases pay the entire passage for those whose labor we specially need," the Canadian Premier stressed after outlining the prosperity of Canada at present and the exceptional opportunities the Dominion held for migrants.

Hon Charles Dunning, minister of railways for Canada, followed Premier King with a statement that he believed many of the British mine-harvesters who went to Canada this fall would remain in the west

This experiment was merely the extension to Britain of the practice followed in Canada for years past, he remarked Eastern Canadians had been going west on harvest excursions for two decades and many had settled permanently in western Canada.

The speaker strongly deprecated the idea that any considerable proportion of people without experience in Western Canada could be expected to start immediately to become successful farmers on their own account Assisted settlement schemes would not in this way be wisely extended he added

A certain type of propaganda appearing from Canada in the British press conveying the impression that Britons are not wanted in Canada was strongly condemned by the minister

Farmland To Stardom

Gordon McLeod, New Touring West, Once Worked On Saskatchewan Farm

Winnipeg, Man.—A former Saskatchewan farm hand is now visiting the west under circumstances which will be described as decidedly affecting several varieties of vivid contrast Years ago, as a lad, he was one of hundreds who worked at the Indian Head Experimental Farm. He also, during that portion of his career, worked for the late Lord Lansdowne at Hertel Barns. At this moment, he is a stage celebrity

The ex-harvester and student of the evening chores is Gordon McLeod now heading his own London Follies company on a transcontinental theatrical tour after being pitchforked into fame last year when he took Sir John Martin-Harvey's place on one hour's notice. Sir John was stricken ill in Toronto, and young McLeod had the benefit to unanimously that a number of Canadian financiers came forward and offered him the means to go into stardom.

Between the date of his earlier exertions at Indian Head and his present success he had become well known in plays and musical comedies in London. During the war, he served under General Smuts in the campaign against German East Africa and later, as a junior lieutenant in France

He has previously been starred in London, but this present year makes the first occasion on which he has sealed the theatrical heights for an international tour.

Death Of Prominent Grain Man

Edmonton, Alta. —Hartley Mansell Peterson, general superintendent of elevators for the Alberta Wheat Pool, who was taken ill at Chauvin several days ago, passed away in an Edmonton hospital Mr Pearson was exceedingly well known in the grain trade, and previous to joining the pool some two years ago, was with the John R. McFarlane Grain Company of Calgary for 20 years.

Robbery Motive Suspected

Saskatoon — Belief that Mike Harrison, whose body was found on blood-soaked newspapers beside the C.N.R. tracks near Saskatoon, was the victim of foul play, was strengthened when it was discovered he had received $193 pay from a farmer a few days before his death. There was only 15 cents in his pocket when he was found dead, his skull badly smashed, and wounds on his hands.

MAN SETTLEMENT PLAN

Lord Melchett, formerly Sir Alfred Mond, who is in Canada. He proposes land grants to settlers by the Dominion and the financing of the undertaking by Great Britain as a solution to the British unemployment problem.

RATEPAYERS

Owing to unavoidable delay the electrical equipment was not shipped from the factory until the first of this week. The large unit should be in operation the first week in November. In the mean time may I ask for the co-operation of all good citizens that we might get through without mishap. We would especially request that as far as possible, no motors be used during the hours of 5 o'clock in the afternoon until 11 o'clock p. m., that no lights be used except what are absolutely necessary during the same time. If you will use only what is absolutely required, we can get through. To make temporary provision to take care of the load during the next three weeks, it would cost the Town three or four thousand dollars. We believe it is in the best interests of the Town to save this money and put up with slight inconvenience.

Your co-operation will be greatly appreciated. Everything humanly possible is being done to get the plant in operation at the earliest possible moment.

We may find it necessary to discontinue with street lighting at times.

OUR AGRICULTURAL SCHOOL DORMITORY

The new dormitory erected in connection with the School of Agriculture will be taken over by the Government in the course of a few days. The building occupies a splendid view of the town and valley of the Vermilion river. In order to make way for it, the residences of the principal and farm superintendent had to be removed. It was about the middle of May last that representatives of the Bennett & White Construction Company of Calgary arrived on the scene and began their operations which have resulted now in the completion of this magnificent structure dedicated to the boys and girls of the northern portion of Alberta who have chosen agricultural pursuits as their life avocation. The building is of brick and tile construction with stucco finish and artificial stone trimmings. These stone trimmings were made on the job and it would defy anyone to detect the difference from smooth sharen sandstone. The building is in the form of the letter E reversed with the middle bar slightly extended backward. This "bar" houses on the second floor the gymnasium 50 feet long by 50 wide, with girls and boys dressing and shower bath rooms at the end. Steel trusses support the roof which is about half take-up with heavy glass lights it is understood that the kitchen, dining hall and staff rooms are located. Owing to the unexpected area crowding of the building it has been found necessary to adapt the gymnasium as the Assembly Hall. Two large four foot wide galleries run along each side.

Over the main entrance of the building is the coat of arms of the province in stone also made here along with the stone trimmings. One wing is designated "Girls" and the other "Boys." There are separate entrances. There are no meals of consideration between the two wings except through the dining hall. To the left of the main corridor is a room 13 by 16 feet and which has been set apart as the post office. There are some 800 lockers, the keys to which will be held by the individual students. There are as well two or three offices on this floor and a spacious library, 65 feet by 30, lighted up with windows and electric lights to the last minute. The rooms set apart for the Assembly hall is now being converted into a class room. The class rooms are 8 up to 24. The hospital will have six offices in the dormitory.

The front of the building is 262 feet wide and the wings extend back about 115 feet. Each is about 25 feet wide. At the end of each wing and on the first floor are hospital wards consisting of one large room and two smaller for bath and other purposes. These rooms are cut off from the main building by doors so that absolute quietness will be secured to the patients. The will be nurses in charge of each ward.

Bath and toilet rooms are placed on each floor. These rooms with the kitchen floor are of terrazzo and were made by the Empire Marble and Tile Company of Edmonton. The large stoke room set into form three but the plumbing and finishing touches were put on here by the skilled workmen of that Company. The effect is very pretty and the durability is practically everlasting.

The kitchen is complete with electric dish-washers, potato peelers and other such like devices and immense lens made necessary because from here will be fed some 300 healthy boys and girls with keen appetites and who will expect to be served in rapid strong order. The dining hall is on the ground floor and is 90 feet long by 36 wide and will seat at least 200, probably more on a push. It is brilliantly lighted. At one end is a kitchenette and an alcove dining room. Girl students will be placed in charge of this kitchenette as part of their training in domestic science and household economics.

The building contains about 6-70 feet of wall radiation. This installation was by A. J. P. Pitzerald of Edmonton along with the plumbing system. He also installed the two boilers, of Canadian make, the product of the Port Arthur Shipbuilding Company of Port Arthur, Ontario, and are said to be of the very latest type of construction. F. W. Peters of Calgary had the contract for the painting while the Electrical Engineers of Edmonton and Calgary did the wiring and installation of electric light fixtures. The work here was in charge of Mr F. Morris. The plastering was done by H. Ward of Calgary. H. Marriott of Vermilion was foreman of the brick work.

In connection with the building of this dormitory there has been erected a 60,000 gallon steel tank rising above the buildings some 80 feet. Pipes have been laid connecting the dormitory, the College proper, barns and residences and it is expected that next year all these buildings will be heated from the boiler room of the dormitory. This will do away with a lot of janitor service as well as the heating system of the school building.

The construction of this building was under the supervision of Mr. Nicholson of Calgary, the assembly hall was let to A. J. Macdonald at a figure of [illegible]. Mr. Macdonald is [illegible] the Dominion [illegible] the [illegible] year will be [illegible].

SNOW FENCING FOR MAIN HIGHWAYS

Snow fencing is to be done along some of the main highways in the province in order to keep the highways clear of snow during winter months. Poor railroads or special forms material are now on their way from eastern manufacturers and on arrival the work of erecting fences will begin under the direction of the department of public works. The sections to be covered will comprise a total of about 11 miles scattered along the most heavily travelled main roads of the province.

DEATH OF WILL H. GOULD

W. H. Gould, prominent farmer and early settler of Pleasant Valley district, Islay, passed away at the family home on Wednesday morning, October 24th at the age of 49 years. Funeral services will be held at Pleasant Valley Anglican church, at 2 o'clock this [illegible] afternoon, Rev. [illegible] officiating. Interment will be made in the Vermilion cemetery.

Mr. Gould was born in Ontario and came to the province of Alberta as a young man, settling in the Islay district, where he soon became well known throughout the entire community, and deservedly so, for he was a public spirited citizen and a staunch supporter of all movements for the betterment of his district. He was also a member of the Masonic lodge at Vermilion.

Besides his wife and family of eight children, he is survived by his mother and one brother, Ralph, Mable, Jessie, Frank, Ina, Lorne and Gordon, the eldest twenty-one and youngest nine years old, all living at home. Mr. and Mrs. Wyndham Gould, both residing with their son Bert on the farm, Islay district, are brothers and sister visitors. Here Mr. Gould's brother-in-law, James W. Islay, Mrs. Islay, Mrs. Eli Coombe, Islay, Mrs. [illegible], Edmonton, Mrs. Arthur Chase, Edmonton, and Fred Islay.

The Gould family resided at Cypress River, Manitoba, for eighteen years, where they raised their farming operations, originally coming from Kent, England. In the year 1901, Harry and deceased (the second son) located on land at Pleasant Valley and the next spring, all the family settled in the district, being [illegible] the first real settlers' efforts to come over the railway. The late Mr. Gould was married in 1906 to Miss Nellie E. Clare, daughter of Frances Clare, N. Edmonton. In his farming operations he devoted much time to experimental work with many varieties of grain in which the results were very successful. The year from 2 acres of Reward wheat he obtained 115 bushels. This is the variety now generally grown in Manitoba. His crop of Garnet wheat yielded 2,500 bushels. In the death of Will Gould, the district has suffered the loss of a highly esteemed and progressive pioneer and a kindly friend and neighbor.

Soundings Will Be Continued In Spring

Progress Made In Survey Work On Great Slave Lake

Soundings of Great Slave Lake as far as navigation will be recommended as soon as spring opens, according to H. L. Leadman, engineer of hydrographic survey branch of the federal department of marine, who recently arrived at Edmonton from the far north. He has been in charge of operations in the vicinity of Fort Resolution during the past season, assisted by W. R. Young, of Winnipeg, and a crew of four men.

Commercial fishing offers great possibilities on Great Slave Lake, says Mr. Leadman, but he thinks that mining will also be necessary to support a population of any size. He also looks forward to considerable mining activity, and states that aeroplanes carrying prospectors were often seen in pass over on the way down the Mackenzie River. With the opening of additional transportation for that country, he felt certain of a period of market expansion.

Seventy-One Million Dollars Invested In Cars In Saskatchewan

Over $71,000,000 has been invested in automobiles by the people of Saskatchewan. According to the Motor Vehicle Service monthly, in 1928, for the eight month period a total of 113 684 cars was licensed by the province. Automobiles, 99,501; livery cars, 835, trucks, 13,354.

Figuring one class of car at a valuation of $800 each and the rest at only $1,000 each, on the 1927 total of 104 909 motor vehicles licensed, this meant a grand total considerably in excess of $71 000 000 invested by the people of Saskatchewan.

Some new breeds added to mares suitable as brood mares in the production of this type of horse. This class is open to mares four years old and over, owned in Canada and vouched as being registered in the Canadian Suffolk Horse and Pony Improvement society. The mares will be judged on the basis of their conformation, performance as hunters, saddle horses and army remounts. The sections of this class are for heavy weight mares 1,250 pounds and over; middle weight mares, 1,150 pounds and under 1,250, and lightweight mares, 1,050 pounds and under 1 150.

Mrs. A. J. Murray, Gull Lake, Sask., writes "Last summer, my baby girl was cutting teeth and became very weak with the effects of diarrhoea. I didn't know just what to do for her as she couldn't retain anything. A last one of my neighbors said to me, 'Mavor's is your

OCTOBER 28

PAUL'S LAST JOURNEY TO JERUSALEM

Golden Text: "Remember the words of the Lord Jesus, that He Himself said, It is more blessed to give than to receive."—Acts 20.35.

Lesson: Acts 20.1-21.17; 2 Corinthians 11.26.

Devotional Reading, John 10.7-17.

Explanations and Comments

Paul Reviews His Ministry Among the Ephesians. Acts 20.17-21. Paul had sailed past Ephesus, for he could not take the time to stay there as elsewhere in the province of Asia, as he had been engaged for being in Jerusalem for the day of Pentecost. But when he reached Miletus he sent a messenger to the elders (or presbyters, Revised Version) at Ephesus, bidding them come in Miletus to say farewell. In the churches he founded Paul had ordained the offices of deacons and elders after the model of the Jewish synagogue. Paul speaks sometimes of elders and sometimes of bishops using the latter term, which means literally overseers, or superintendents, in churches where there was a large Gentile element.

As the reverence known from the first day that I set foot in Asia, after what manner I was with you all the time"

Thus Paul began his address to the Ephesian elders upon their arrival. The first day that Paul set foot in Asia is recorded in Acts 16.6, 7, but his first preaching there was later, Acts 18.19. He came to Ephesus again on his last missionary journey, Acts 19. "The manner of his life" he proceeds to tell in the next three verses.

Paul first reminded them how faithfully and how humbly he had served the Lord while his heart was filled with anxiety for them and his own life was threatened by the plots of the Jews (see 1 Cor. 15.32; 2 Cor. 1.8-10); and how he had told them all things profitable for them to know and had taught them in public and in private the essentials of religion, repentance toward God and faith toward Christ. Fear of giving offense to the Jews and therefore of endangering his own life had not prevented him from preaching a crucified Christ and the gospel for Gentiles as well as for Jews.

"Repentance toward God and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ"; there is no other way but by repentance and faith. First, realize your sin; second, confess to Jesus Christ; and third, live as you think you ought to live."

Nothing Else But

A well-known comedian is very proud of his three beautiful and talented daughters.

One day an acquaintance and admirer of the comedian was talking to him about the family.

"A funny thing," he remarked, "you have nothing but those three girls."

The comedian looked at him frowned in astonishment.

"Nothing but girls!" he echoed. "Why, my dear old chap, I wish you were right. As it is, we've nothing but boys all over the place."

Static Forerunner Of Storms

There is a relationship between static and storms. There are storms. It is true, that are accompanied by little or no static. There are other storms, accompanied by static, which are nevertheless difficult to locate because the static appears to come from no definite direction. But, as a rule static accompanies a storm and gives in advance of the arrival of the storm definite indication of the direction of approach.

A Remarkable Magnet

Steel Alloy Raises Thirty Times Its Own Weight

A new steel alloy possessing remarkable powers of magnetization has been discovered by a research engineer. It is cobalt steel alloyed with tungsten, and in the form of a horseshoe magnet it is claimed that it will raise a par thirty times its own weight. Spectators at a recent demonstration were amazed to see a bar of alloy floating in the air. The explanation lay in a similar bar suspended above the floating one. Magnetised with the poles opposite, the two bars were kept apart by the magnetic repulsion between them and as the repulsion was greater than the force of gravity, the upper bar floated!

SAVE THE VALUABLE "POKER HANDS"

In appearance the champion very much resembled an ape. His bullet-like head was close cropped. The small piggish eyes were set under deep overhanging, bristling brows, and the nose was flat like a negro's. His lips were thick, with a repulsive twist that gave his face a sinister look. His massive jaw was purposely left unshaven to give the tender skin of his opponent's shoulders in the clinches. His enormous barrel-shaped chest was covered with a thick growth of hair. His shoulders were broad and his disproportionately long arms, heavily muscled, terminated in two thick ham-like hands. He gazed confidently at Donald's corner.

A pasteboard box containing the gloves was tossed to the centre of the ring. There was a stir as the announcer pushed his way through the ropes. Andy crossed the ring to examine the champion's hands for tape and to test thoroughly the new gloves for any trace of sewed in shot or lotion that would cause the eyes to smart. One of Garrieux's seconds was making a similar examination in Donald's corner.

A big man in a wide-brimmed hat, with a muckraker coat over his arm, came walking down the steps of the arena. The look of astonishment on his face gradually gave place to one of joy. He ran to the ringside

"Donald!" he shouted joyously, as he sprang through the ropes. With a thrill of pleasure Donald held out his hand to Jack Cillis. The big man's face was beaming. "Just got in," he said. "Looks like all over town for you! I come to the fight and —holy mackerel! here you are one of the fighters!"

Andy noted the glad look in Donald's eyes and he spoke sharply to Donald's seconds, who were for silencing the boisterous visitor out of the ring. The word "psychology" was foreign to Andy, but he knew that Donald's mind had for a moment drifted away from the fight. Donald was surprised to see Douglas greet Gillis warmly as the big man left the ring.

"I have two good friends in the audience, anyway," whispered Donald to himself.

Andy leaned over him, talking in a low voice giving him comfort and advice. "It'll try right along, Donnie, to get your goat by cursing and using vile language, but don't listen 'im, and don't lose your temper. I'll fights with 'is chin tucked in the hollow of 'is left shoulder and 'is neck muscles rigid. It's mighty 'ard to land on 'is jaw with a right. Now the first round," Andy went on, "you just jab 'im light with your left; don't 'it 'ard, just a good snappy punch. It'll think you 'ave no sting in it, and the next round 'e'll get careless and let you 'it 'im so's to get a punch. Of course, if you see a good opening, let fly with all you 'ave, but don't open up until 'e tries you out a bit. Watch the dirty blighter in the clinches; 'e'll fool you if 'e gets a chance. Another thing, this is to be twenty rounds, an 'ighyear time. Now is everything clear to you, Donnie?"

"Yes, Andy."

Andy patted Donald's bare shoulder encouragingly.

The contestants stood in their corners as they were introduced. The referee beckoned them to the centre of the ring for instructions. As Donald slipped the enveloping bathrobe from his shoulders and stepped forward, a murmur of admiration swelled from the crowd. His leanness and his splendid muscular development to advantage in the bright light. The long, flowing muscles rippled under the skin when he moved, like those of a panther. Loud applause came from all over the arena. Garrieux, thinking the ovation was for himself, turned and duchied his head with a motion that was intended for a bow. A roar of laughter at his mistake added: "Aw! that wasn't for you, you big stiff!"

The bridge and the dentist turned and looked at each other. The eyes of the latter seemed to say, "I told you so." The judge smiled and nodded.

A fat man, who could not have been more than thirty-five years of age, yet with rolls of fat at his waist-line, a bulbous nose and florid face, pushed his way to the ringside. "I'll bet a hundred to fifty!" he ejaculated, "that man is perfect." There was a look of admiration and envy on the red-cheeked eyes. Thus do men admire the strong, well-kept body of the athlete, even though their own physical self has degenerated to mere paste.

"Five to one that Garrieux wins in the first round!" announced a voice Douglas covered the bet at once.

"Now, son," instructed the referee, "remember, it is to be five rounds. You are to fight clean breaks. You can hit with one arm only, but remember, hold with one and hit with the other. When I say 'Break' I want you to break at once and step back. Do you understand fully? Good! To your corners."

Donald glanced at his friends, who sat with their eyes upon him. He saw Jack Cillis upon his feet, and gently stroking his arm, yet he could not suppress the trembling in his limbs.

"Good luck, jungle all right Donnie," whispered Andy softly

The gong rang

Garrieux assumed the crouch Andy had predicted, his chin resting in the hollow of his shoulder, his eyes seeming to retreat into his skull under the overhanging brows. This was the champion's famous "fighting face."

"Fruity boy, ain't you?" he scoffed. "I'm goin' to knock dose pretty teeth down yer throat, you—"

Donald snapped a light left at the ugly face and danced out of range. The champion's thick lips parted in a snarling grin. "My mamma's a boy" has a terrible punch!" he derided.

Donald continued his dazzling footwork, keeping the champion in a dull and contending himself with occasional left-hand jabs that kept his opponent's head rocking. He shot glances at intervals to his corner for instructions from Andy, who nodded his head in approval of his tactics.

The round finished in the challenger's favour by a wide margin on points. The champion had landed only a single effective blow during the round.

The action of the first round caused Donald to forget his nervousness. Andy crowded between his shoulders and gently massaged his body all the while speaking words of commendation and counsel.

Now, listen, you did fine! You can win it easily with your left walk, no for encore. If I see that 'e's opens up, I'll give you the sign, and shoot your left with all you 'ave. If 'e swings again with 'is left, try for a head basket. You understand me, Donnie."

"Easiest thing I've picked yet," chuckled the champion as he rubbed his corner

"He may be adding cautious and his celebrated manager.

Huh!" grunted the champion. I can take all he has in me left and never feel it. I'm goin' to open up on him de last part of de next round."

The gong rang for the second round.

TOOTH DECAY

You do not allow your child too many sweets first they spoil his teeth, and, wisely, you did not let him know their taste too early. But where the harm?

Note as you have read my booklet, so called tooth decay is a disease that is inspired by bacteria. These micro-organisms have the power of setting up fermentative processes in left-over carbohydrate matter in the mouth, producing acids which attack the tooth substance to dissolve it. In this manner, these organisms gain access through the hard enamel covering.

You perhaps did not suspect the presence of bacteria in your mouth, did you? Yet, a noted authority states that more than a hundred different species could undoubtedly be obtained from a single mouth at one time or another.

None of course it is neither preferable nor possible to cut off the readily digestible food supply, nor to rid the mouth of bacteria for any length of time.

However, nature herself is not helpless in the matter. In the secretion, for the acid formed is as a rule taken up by the saliva and dissipated before it can do injury excepting where it can be unfavorable as in deep pits or fissures, or beneath food particles that remain. In the latter case when proper mouth toilet is not observed.

But you must do your part by avoiding excessive use of carbohydrate foods such as sugars, starches and allied substances, for the use or abuse of these foods is the chief factor, quite a condition that can be just overcome by proper mouth toilet is not the daily rule.

Donald caught a glimpse of Purcell's face as he crouched in the opposite corner. Such a look of victorious hate shot from his one gleaming eye that Donald shivered.

The rough element began to boo Donald for his running tactics. Some fans feel that they are being cheated out of the price of admission unless they can witness the spectacle of two heroes slugging toe to toe until one goes down. Science counts for nothing with this small minority.

"What do you think this is, a marathon?" they shouted.

"Powder-puff punch!" derided another.

Garrieux suddenly tore in, letting loose a terrible right that would have stopped the best right that it had landed.

From a clinch Donald looked to his corner. Andy went up on his toes excitedly, shouting a straight left. Donald nodded.

"Powder-puff punch!" again shouted the crowd.

"Did ye hear that?" hissed Garrieux, twisting his mouth into an apish grin. "Ye can't hit 'ard enough to break a egg. I'm goin' to do dose teet' for you now." He leered brutally at Jack Cillis. Donald disdainfully

Donald stepped abruptly in his flight and shot a lightning left across the face of his opponent. The champion saw it coming, but too late to block it. He threw his body into reverse, robbing it of the full punch. Donald followed to the top of a tall bamboo and jumped off with two umbrellas to the ground. Very likely that is true. With a roar the spectators came to their feet as one man. The gong saved Garrieux.

The crowd gave Donald a deafening ovation as he walked to his corner. He looked at his friends and saw Douglas and Gillis locked in an embrace and dancing madly in the narrow aisle.

A LAUGHING BABY IS A GREAT JOY

What can give more joy in the home than a laughing baby? Nothing! The well child makes everyone happy with his merry prattle and his happy ways. It is only the sickly child that is fretful. Trying To Eliminate Hazards Of Submarines

U.S. Navy Will Make Test Of Rescue Apparatus

Stirred by undersea craft disasters that have taken the lives of scores of American officers and men, the navy is making strenuous efforts to eliminate the hazards of submarines by devising and perfecting rescue apparatus

Many experiments are being made and yet more are planned for the future tests to ascertain what happens when a submarine is stricken and is unable to rise. Another problem is what marine dwellers, wherein the craft was totally disabled and flooded while under water and must be rescued before it can be taken up by the surface vessels.

In addition to laboratory experiments the bulk of the submarine skill will be put to them to their credit. After the tests conducted by the Poland-der-ager Paulding off Provincetown Mass. December 17 1927 will be used in rigorous tests off Cape Charles Va. in October. These tests are to be conducted by Lieut. C. H. Madsen submarine expert and diver

Attempts will be made to learn methods that will stand up the strain of submarine rescue operations, by methods of counteracting and preventing them. Naval divers will replace inside the hulk which will be sunk and flooded. They will then escape through hatches and come to the surface by using the navy's new breathing device the lung and other rescue apparatus developed during the last few months.

There's been a revolution in the science of battery building—Eveready has found a way to give you more battery for your money than you ever bought before!

The new Layerbilt principle can be understood by anyone. It simply gives you more current-making elements by packing flat cells like crackers in a box, instead of using many round cells with waste space between.

You actually get the equivalent of a much bigger battery and, of course, it takes much longer to use it up. That's why you should buy Eveready Layerbilts and save money. Now selling at new low prices. Ask your dealer

Bronchitis Yields To Quick Relief

Persistent Cough Relieved In Short Time By Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup

Bronchitis is an inflammation of the bronchial tubes, which are the air passages leading to the lungs. The inflammation causes a cough, which is at first dry and hacking, but soon becomes loose and severe. Sometimes the cough is worse at night, and the patient is unable to get a good night's rest. Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is a quick relief for bronchitis, as it soothes the irritated membranes and loosens the phlegm, thus relieving the cough. Mrs. Wm. Hall, Bridgetown, N.S., writes: "I was troubled with bronchitis for a long time, and could get no relief. I tried Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup, and found it to be the best medicine I ever used for bronchitis. I can highly recommend it to anyone suffering from this trouble." Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup is put up only by The T. Milburn Co., Limited, Toronto, Ont.

PASSING OF A WESTERN PIONEER STOCK BREEDER

Very much sympathy is felt throughout the Kitscoty, Tofield and Vermilion districts for Mrs. Rudolph Oldenburg and family by the somewhat sudden death of her husband, Rudolph Oldenburg, one of the best stockbreeders in western Canada. He took what seemed to be a slight attack of erysipelas on Saturday, October 6th, after delivering a shipment of cattle. The disease developed into a serious condition and Dr. Rich of Kitscoty was called, his decision being erysipelas, but it became so serious that two nurses were brought from Edmonton. Dr. G. L. Cook from Lloydminster was called and did what he could along with Dr. Rich. Then Dr. Knapp of Islay and Dr. Knoll of Vermilion were called. Every available means was resorted to to arrest the disease, when pneumonia set in. As a last resource a specialist was brought from Minneapolis. Mr. Oldenburg passed away as the specialist arrived at the house, on Tuesday, October 16th at 6 a.m.

The deceased was born in Holenburg, Province of Baden, Germany, fifty six years ago. He was eight years of age when he, with his parents had their eight children, immigrated to the United States. He migrated many years ago to southern Alberta. After spending some years in the south, he moved again and in the Tofield and Northeast districts he became one of the largest ranchers and stock-breeders, besides farming, in Western Canada. He also owned a half section in the town of Kitscoty, where with his family, he made happy retreats now and again.

The funeral service took place on Friday, October 19th in the town hall, Kitscoty, which was filled with many people had come to pay their last respects to their fellow townsman. Rev. Mr. Mitchelson, of the Methodist church, conducted the service, preaching a helpful and comforting sermon from the text: "I Tim. 4th. 7, 8." Many floral tributes showed how and the glorious appearing of the great God and our Saviour Jesus Christ," and that Mr. Oldenburg had fought a good fight; I have finished my course; I have kept the faith, henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness which the Lord, the Righteous Judge, shall give me that day."

The preacher said in effect, the spoil in like a ship leaving the harbour fully equipped, the sails unfurled, the anchor the sails unfurled, the anchor hoisted, the ropes let go. She sails out to the ocean sea. The sad passing away of the body into the full expression of our Lord's promises to our great inheritance beyond the veil for on Calvary's cross. By His death and resurrection He has gone to prepare a place for us that where He is there we may be also. This assemblage here today, said Mr. Mitchelson, is an indication of the esteem, respect and love in which he has held among us. Rudolph Oldenburg's name is known all over this western country, and he will be sorely missed as one who has risen to that distinction or peak by sheer determination. As a business man he had rare qualities of foresight combined with systematic assiduity and industriousness. As a neighbor he was kind, obliging, willing to assist in any way, and would even suggest better means to better end. His home was open to all comers along with a bountiful table. He was an affectionate father, attached to his children and their future welfare at his heart, and a tender and loving husband.

The hymns sung at the service were "Nearer my God to Thee," "Rock of Ages," and "Abide with Me." Mrs. G. H. Malcolm, Kinsmen district, presided at the organ and sang Tennyson's Memoriam.

The casket was covered with beautiful flowers. Over fifty cars wended their way from the hall to Kitscoty cemetery where a short service was held and Service's beautiful hymn was sung.

There are left to mourn his dear his wife, Mrs. Oldenburg, (nee Sadie J. Ted), and five children. Charles Hopp, Dorothy Elma, Lena Marion, Clifford Meethal, and Hey Rudolph, also three sisters and three brothers of the deceased. The pall-bearers were as follows: Messrs. George Hind, Harry Bullock, Henry Mcriver, Fred Turnbread, Wm. McLeod, and Earl Clark.

Floral offerings were sent by the following: Wreath, The Oldenburg Family; G. H. Hinds and Family; Mr. Collens, Earl Clark, Kitscoty United Church Ladies' Aid; C. H. Smith, R. Strongbow and sister Freda; Mr. & Mrs. J. Boatman and Family, Mr. & Mrs Wm. McLean; Vernon Sheriff and Staff; Mr. & Mr. Mcriver; Mr. & Mrs. Ted and Family; Mr & Mr Ray Phillips and Family; Mr. & Mrs. John Dale; Mr. & Mrs John Malone, Mr., & Mrs. Howard Hind; one somewhere one anonymous.

Congregational Banquet

On Monday evening, the 22nd, the members and adherents of the United Church association about two hundred strong at a congregational banquet in the Community Hall. The minister acted as chairman. After everyone had done justice to the splendid programme provided by the ladies, a program of song and speech followed. Mrs. Lorne McLean, Mrs. Newbery and Mr. Tom Watts each rendered a very acceptable number. Principal Elliott of the School of Agriculture spoke on the work of the local church, commending especially on the R. E. and the choir, and the new opportunity for service presented by the enlarged church accommodation.

Dr. Laird, treasurer of the United Church, then gave a very able and inspiring address on the work of the United Church throughout the Dominion, some facts and figures of which fell below. Mayor Fallow moved a well deserved vote of thanks to Dr Laird, the speaker of the evening, which was heartily and carried through so successfully this altogether unique and successful banquet.

Among other things Dr. Laird said: "The spiritual conquest of the peoples of Canada is the task of the United church. A powerful agency working towards this end is the Board of Home Missions of the United Church of Canada. That board has under its care 1511 aid-receiving fields and in them 1500 pre-theological students. The progress of the work since Union has been very inspiring. In harmony with the policy of the board a movement for self reliance and self-support in the past two years 376 fields have become self-supporting. This released for the thousands of dollars which went to these fields in annual grants and enabled the Board to open 200 new fields in districts not heretofore occupied by any church.

"The board is also at work among the "new Canadians" at 100 different centres in all peoples' missions, hospitals, school homes and settlements all mainland. The response is most gratifying, but much more could be accomplished in establishing evidences of good will among the racial groups of Canada and in preaching to them the gospel of Christ were more men and more money available.

"For the Home and Foreign and Social work of the United church and for all educational institutions and programmes $2,400,000 are required annually. Alberta's share of this is $185,000. Last year Alberta only raised 76.6 pc. of what was expected of her and an earnest plea is being made this year for 100 per cent of the amount. The church in Alberta has 251 aid-receiving charges and home mission fields and expects to raise $200,000 per year on this work alone. The Conference authorities are challenging their churches to move on every field to self-support that larger amounts may be available for those vast Canadian spaces where multitudes are today without the teaching and influence of the church.

"Not only has the United Church made marked progress in the unities of its forces, the consolidation of its work and in spiritual fellowship, but the gifts of the people to the missionary and maintenance fund have also daily increased. It is estimated that the people now in the United church have given on the average in the past two years $9 p.c. more than they gave annually before Union. Three gifts are not yet sufficient for a work that is insistent in its demands for expansion. With team-play and devoted efforts in every congregation the prospects are that 1928 will be a banner year both in income and the quality and magnitude of the work done."

Activities At Elk Point

—A great deal of activity has been in evidence during the past summer on the new townsite and several new buildings have been erected or are under construction, while most of the buildings in the old town have been moved to the new location nearer the C.N.R. station. The list of buildings including a fine new station, hotel, three good general stores, hardware, garage, meat market, lumber yards, cafe, realty and insurance office, millinery and dressmaker shop, new post office and other business places, besides several new residences. The large municipal hospital is nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy about November 1. It is a large stucco finished building and fully modern, containing four wards of four beds each, besides private rooms and nurses' quarters. Under the able management of its two very efficient surgeons, Dr. F. G. Miller and Dr. A. W. Ross, it is expected to be a source of great service and pride to the large district it serves. A modern two room school is in course of erection and work is progressing on the basement of the new United church.

Compulsory Marking Of Eggs

Buyers in England Would Know Product Was Canadian

In consideration of the fact that there is apparently a growing demand in the British Isles for Canadian importations of agricultural products —especially butter and eggs, the Minister of Agriculture and Fisheries of the United Kingdom has now appointed through the committee appointed to deal with such work, that an order in council should be made prohibiting the sale of eggs in foreign countries for export to England unless they are marked.

The regulations as to marking are that every egg shall be marked distinctly in ink at least one eighth of an inch high. Every egg shall bear this mark—the name of the country from which the eggs are to be shipped. This information was received from a bulletin issued by the Saskatchewan Department of Agriculture.

Further this report states, the motive for such an action is to assure the buyers of the Old Land that they are getting products which have been produced in the United Kingdom. There is actually a growing demand for this trade, and in view of the fact that the Dominion government have recently taken steps to make such restrictions as will invariably result the standard of the Canadian product, there is every likelihood of there being a huge increase in the trade in agricultural products in the near future.

This increased interest on the part of the consumers should be appreciated by Canadian this report intimates, in view of the fact that up to date the exports of such commodities have been rather few as compared with other countries in the Empire or without.

"This action was taken by the Empire Marketing Board to encourage the egg consumers of the Mother Country by Canadian products, and that this idea of marking them with indestructible ink so that the name of the country would not be destroyed even after the egg was boiled, would assist them in their natural desire to patronize Empire products," quoting this report further.

Figures showing Canada's exportations to the United Kingdom for July this year show the following results: Dressed poultry was exported to the value of $5,060; butter to the amount of 4,485 cwts.; and eggs to the value of $47,165, as compared with a total importation value of $1,900,000 for the United Kingdom of $5,825,570.

Fish From Northern Lakes

Thousands of Pounds Shipped From Outlet Lake, Manitoba

The map of Canada is being rolled back so far as the economic handling of fish from the northern lakes is concerned, according to the progress made in the shipment of Lake Athabasca trout and whitefish to such markets as Chicago, New York and Toronto, says the Financial News. The fishing being carried on by two companies at Lake Athabasca, in Alberta, constitutes the most northerly commercial operation in Canada, the extent of which is indicated by R. T. Redd, Federal Inspector of Fisheries, who on his recent return from an inspection trip stated that 62,000 pounds of trout and 4,000 pounds of whitefish were taken from the lake in the first three days of the summer fishing season.

First Grain Shipment to Spain

The first shipment of wheat from Montreal to Spain left the other day —201 122 bushels. Wheat shipments to foreign countries last month amounted to 118,227,726 bushels from Montreal, but not a single bushel was exported to Spain among the seventeen countries to which grain was consigned. This is said to be the first shipment of grain ever made to Spain.

Canadian Cattle for Australia

Shipment of Purebred Stock to be Sent from Brandon, Man.

The Australian government has just completed a deal for eighteen foundation heifers and two bulls from J. H. McGregor and Sons, the well-known Aberdeen Angus breeders of Brandon. The animals will be selected from Mr. McGregor's Glencarnock herd by the head herdsmaster of the Australian government and shipped by the Canadian Pacific Railway by way of Vancouver. This shipment, apart from some purebred dairy cattle for the Orient from British Columbia, is said to be the first exportation of purebred cattle from Canada overseas.

Conditions Have Changed

The pioneer who came to Canada 100 years ago, cut all his bridges behind him. He spent his last cent to get here, hundreds of miles of forest and stream divided him from the coast and there was a six weeks' ocean voyage after that. The only way out was to work, to work for thirty, forty, fifty years and some day he might revisit his homeland at his own expense

Scientist Denounces War

Always Leaves Something To Be Settled, Says Sir Oliver Lodge

Sir Oliver Lodge's recent discourse on war created considerable attention throughout England due to the scientist's strong language.

"War is ugly, disgraceful, dirty, objectionable business," he said in a presidential address to the Federation of Southern Counties Brotherhood.

"We ought to be ashamed of it. Digging ourselves into the mud and pretending to be civilized people. Crawling about under the water and sinking each other's vessels is no occupation for gentlemen.

"Disputes must be taken to somebody that settles them. War does not settle anything, but leaves something to be settled."

Russian Colony in Paris

Refugees Fleeing From Bolsheviks Accepted Work in France

The Russian revolution added to Paris a foreign colony which now contributes more to the flavor of the city than any other alien group. France was the first European country to offer wholesale asylum to the millions of the Russian nobility when they poured across their borders afraid of the Bolshevik terror. France offered these gaily born and reared people work, and they accepted it eagerly. Some 300,000 eventually established themselves in France, about one-fifth of us in Paris.

Canada Has Easiest Volcano

Geologists Working in B. C. Say Eruption Occurred 200 Years Ago

Less than 200 years ago Canada possessed an active volcano, in the opinion of explorers who have been studying the mountainous north of Alice Arm, in the northwestern section of British Columbia.

The volcano, according to authorities, is now definitely dead, but there is now no danger of further eruption. There were apparently two periods of eruptions which have left their traces and they were separated by a period long enough to allow the lava to cool. The first explosion blew out a crater about 400 yards in diameter. After it period of quiescence sufficiently long to form a hard and level floor in the crater there was a second eruption which formed a cone or mound of cinders, within the original crater, 300 feet long with a crater 250 feet deep. It was from the lava of this cone that the lava now proceeded.

When the volcano the lava flowed down a rough valley in a stream 300 yards wide until it entered the valley of the Texas River. Crossing this valley at right angles the stream dammed the stream, forming or enlarging a lake nearby. The lava here is from 50 to 100 feet deep. Entering the valley of the Texas in a stream 2,000 feet wide, as far as the Naas River the time it reached the Naas the lava had lost much of its fluidity and, the great river was not able to carry it away, but it poured out down the left bank for six miles.

Indians living near the extinct volcano tell us that at least seven or about 150 years ago, but geologists discovered trees 170 years old growing on the surface of the lava. They place the time of the eruption at about 300 years ago.

Cost of Raising Dairy Heifers

Record is Kept at Experimental Station in New Brunswick

An accurate record of the cost of raising dairy heifers was kept at the Fredericton, New Brunswick, Experimental station. One lot of three heifers including one Ayrshire and two Holsteins, were kept from birth to pasture from the time they were one year old. They were fed on whole milk until from four to six weeks old and then gradually changed to skim milk. When the calves were three months old they were fed, in addition to the skim milk, one part of flax seed and four parts oat meal cooked and made into a gruel. Each calf was fed from one-quarter to one pound of this gruel per day, the amount fed depending upon the ages and condition of the calves. They also received hay, roots and some dry oat meal. The composition of the grain mixture was varied from time to time but was made up chiefly of three parts bran, two parts crushed oats, one part oil cake, and one part brewer's grains. The aim in feeding was to keep the calves growing and to avoid a setback. The superintendent of the station, in his 1927 report, published by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, shows the detail of the feeding and the cost of the feed, which amounted to $65 for the three calves during the year.

Made Fortune in Northland

Prospector Taking Trip for First Time in Thirty-Three Years

Hector Morrison, from the silver camp, at Keno, Yukon Territory, is bound for the outside world for the first time in a generation.

Morrison has relatives back in Woodstock, Ont., and many of these he has not seen since the beginning of the present century. Others have been born and grown up since he went away in the spring of 1895 to seek his fortune in the northland.

Morrison was there for the first gold boom and in 1896 he camped on the site of Dawson, which was to become the hub of the mining universe. Since then he has lived continuously in the Yukon, following placer mining in the Dawson district until 1918, when he went to Keno and staked a quartz claim the following year.

"Yes, I've enough of the world's goods to keep me from worrying," admitted Morrison, who cleaned up a fortune when he sold his holding to the Treadwell Yukon Limited. "But I'm not quitting the Yukon. I'll never feel rich enough for that. Money can't always buy happiness and I'll be happy only in the north."

Six months of civilization, Morrison thinks, will be enough. Then he'll hit the northern train again

No Waste in China

People Are Extremely Careful and Make Things Last Indefinitely

As a nation we are rather inclined to be unmindful of waste. The Chinese are just the reverse. They waste nothing, and seem to have the knack of making household ware, for instance, last indefinitely.

As a result of this craze for economy crowds of tinkers, cobblers, and menders of all kinds are able to earn enough money to supply their few needs.

A mender of china ware is called Pao Koli, and through the streets he wanders in his happy-go-lucky way, seeking work. Across his bare shoulders is suspended a box of tools at the end of a long bamboo pole, and as he goes he cries out his calling in shrill accents.

Every now and then a door opens and the owner of the house gives the Pao Koli some dishes or other household crockery to mend. A look of content spreads over his face, for he depends largely on his customers for his morning and evening bowls of rice, which to him mean all the difference between happiness and the reverse.

He sits down then and there, quite oblivious of the fierce sun that beats down upon him while he performs his task.

"Well, Algy. I hear you have taken up walking as the doctor ordered. How does it go?"

"Seems a bit awkward at first without a windshield." — Sheffield News.

Planning Against Air Attacks

Considering Means to Counteract Effect of Gas Bombs in London

Novel measures to counteract the effect of deadly gas-bombs dropped by aeroplanes on London in possible future wars are being considered, but such expedients as are suggested would cost enormous sums and would provide only a small measure of protection against such a destructive force as could be launched, judging by the recent mock air attack that London experienced.

Emergency supplies of gas masks for every man, woman and child would be one measure of safety. Another would be the installation at every air-inlet of the ordinary house of "smoke" of chemical antidotes, which would render each house gas-proof. A third precaution is the training of special gas squads, men wearing gas proof clothing and masks and equipped with a spraying mechanism to lay and neutralize gas clouds in the streets.

And the provision of "community" deposits of eggs guarded by exhilarating motor companies to build four and five-storey garages underground on the condition that these could be used as bomb-proof shelter in time of war for large numbers of people

Even if the verdict of the giant mock attack causes many gloomy predictions, it is estimated that in actual warfare at least 1,000 tons of bombs would have been successfully launched on the capital. Although some raiding formations suffered heavy losses from anti-aircraft fire and the defending fighters, more than half the "enemy" bombers evaded the defence. The time factor is stressed by those who figure that at least 11 attacks were by squadrons before the enemy planes had been in sight of London for more than an hour.

Devoting Time to Writing

Sir Conan Doyle Giving Up Lectures for Spiritualism

Sir Arthur Conan Doyle, noted English spiritualist and parent mind of Sherlock Holmes, has abandoned his vigorous missionary campaign on behalf of spiritualism.

The rapidly increasing strain which the growing demands upon his time for lectures has brought during the past few years has resulted in his partial retirement from the world of Octiplasm, he says.

Sir Arthur's retirement was foreshadowed in the international Psychic Gazette, and he confirmed the report declaring he desired to devote more time to writing.

"My resumption of writing on a larger scale, however, does not mean the resurrection of Sherlock Holmes," he said

"I am simply abandoning my lecturing and church work due to the demands upon my time. It must not be taken to indicate that I have lost interest in spiritualism."

Sir Arthur will sail October 25 for South Africa, the only English-speaking section of the world where he has not yet lectured, and will give a series of talks there—"to complete my life's work," he said.

First Shoes Were "Straights"

The "made in Canada" shoe first appeared in 1907. For several years Canadian-made shoes were in the form of "straights" and it was not until 1656 left and rights were introduced into Canada's shoe industry. As late as 1900 "straights" were still manufactured in Canada.

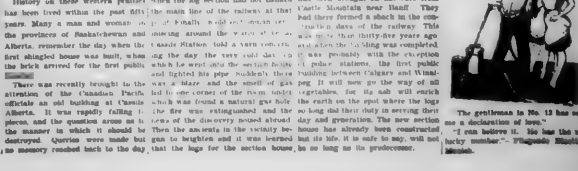
An Ancient Landmark makes way for Progress

History on these western prairies has been lived within the past fifty years. Many a man and woman on the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta, remember the day when the first shingled house was built, when the brick arrived for the first public building.

There was recently brought to the attention of the Canadian Pacific officials an old building at Cassils Alberta. It was rapidly falling in pieces, and the question arose as to the manner in which it should be destroyed. Queries were made but no memory reached back to the day when the log section had not flashed through the mind of the railway men that this was a station. Some one suggested that it be burned down, and the order was given. A wag standing around the yards of the Cassils Station told a yarn concerning the day the very cold day it was probably with the exception of a pale station, the first public building between Calgary and Winnipeg It will now go the way of all vegetables, for its ash will enrich the earth on the spot where the logs so long did their duty in serving their day and generation. The new section house has already been constructed but its life, it is safe to say, will not be so long as its predecessor.



The gentleman in No. 13 has sent me a declaration of love."

"I can believe it. He has the unlucky number."—Tllgende Blaetter, Munich.

One of the finest harvesting and threshing seasons that the country has experienced for several years is now in the final stages. In fact with the exception of the threshing season the whole year has been ideal for general growing and farm work, the cool and wet weather which was the rule in the early part of August and which blackened the grain from being ripe enough to withstand the early frosts, marred an otherwise perfect season. One half day of fine curing and a one day stop in the threshing was all that the weather necessary for in most cases in this particular district.

WEST ALWAYS LAND OF OPPORTUNITY.

Sixteen years ago, the Rev. Father Bernard Vaughan, interviewed at a Mission Jew regarding his impressions of the West, said: "To my way of thinking three never was a land more ready to give a living wage to anyone who is willing to give in exchange for it an honest day's work. My advice to old countrymen coming here is 'Go' here will be. Leave your eye-glasses at home and your knickerbockers and your hyper-critisism and get yourself a pretty pair as a pair of overalls, pull off your coat, roll up your sleeves and put your back into your work till you have thrown it in. Then instead of being all in, down and out, you'll never set on top and not at all a bad advertisement for the old country."

The commercial apple crop of Canada this year is estimated at 3,167,300 barrels, the largest in any year since 1923. The largest crop in the Dominion where the crop is some 37 per cent bigger than in 1927. The crop in number by Nova Scotia by 4 per cent, New Brunswick 20 per cent, Quebec 3.3 per cent, and Ontario 1.3 per cent. According to the Dominion Government Bureau of Statistics the 1928-27 average crop is 2,185,345 barrels, which places the 1927 crop 31,955 barrels above the five year average. The potato acreage of 581,300 acres indicates a two per cent increase over 1927.

The High School

V. H. S. — Thursday, Oct. 18th.

The High School held its Literary meeting on Monday, October 15th. It was opened by singing "O Canada." Clifford Donnelly favored us with a piano solo. Then Mrs. J. D. Reynolds gave us a talk on "Greek Tragedy and Sophocle's Oedipus Rex." She compared the Greek tragedies to our English tragedies and then told us about one that was put on in Edmonton some time ago by Martin Harvey. We all enjoyed this item; it was not only interesting but educational. The music given by Dilbert and Maxwell Brimacombe were fine. The meeting was closed with "God Save the King."

The High School wish to thank Mr. F. C. Long for his presentation of a scrap-book to the High School.

It is the intention of the High School to put on a Halloween Party. There is to be a short programme, followed by Halloween prankis and other games. We are looking forward to having a good time.

Bertha Forbes has gone east and Elsie Tilson has left school. Both McCree has just started, so our registration is now 108.

Did you know that we have a Gold Medalist in Grade IX? Muriel Green has received the Governor-General's medal for getting the highest mark in Grade VIII in the Edmonton Inspectorate. We believe this is the second medal Muriel has obtained. A glance at the recent test lists indicate that these will not be all this promising young lady will receive.

ISLAY ITEMS

Islay, October 17th, 1928.

W. H. Barnes and wife returned Monday evening after their holiday, taking an auto trip to Westlock to visit Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Trayers, then to Veteran to visit Mr. Barnes' father before he goes to the coast for the winter. On the way home they got their motorists theft medal it impossible to go more than 15 miles a day for two days, but altogether they say they had a good trip.

The first sign that the Canadian Utilities Corp. means business came the other day when surveying and post holes equipment loaded at the station.

The Misses Kennedy have rented the Gilchrist house opposite the United church and have moved in. One is employed as junior teacher, and the younger sister as day-call girl in the government tel-phone office.

A meeting of the Curling Club was held in the Hayward Lumber company office Monday evening. Dr. Knapp was elected president and D. C. Nelson secretary. Plans were made to dig a ditch west and south to carry off surface water and to bank the build-ing all around before the frost sets in. We have lost about eight curlers since last season but hope to get a few in their places.

As we were on our way to post this correspondence, news came that Mr. Frank Collins, an old-timer in the Wainwright district, was suddenly killed in one of the elevators. He was knocked down by one of his horses and his jaw broken and skull badly fractured.

Cecil Bowman and Bob Wood of Wainwright, who left here three weeks ago for Rosebud, Sask., stopped off at this point to visit the former's father and the latter's brothers at Dewberry who were formerly of Wainwright.

Mr J Allen and wife are planning to leave shortly to spend the winter in "Auld Scotia" — a well deserved holiday.

Miss May Young, last year Grade IX student, has taken the position of night operator at the Government telephone office.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

A healthy woman is always good to look at, even although she may have no particular claim to beauty. A clear skin, bright eyes, vital hair, and a well-set-up figure cannot fail to attract and this can be obtained by guarding your health.

Doctors advise the daily drinking of at least six tumblers of water, one first thing in the morning, and one last thing at night! The water helps to cleanse out the system, leaving it thoroughly drained of all impurities.

Then the best foods to eat are green vegetables, fruit of all kinds, including oranges, lemons, and apples, eggs, milk, butter fish, and wholemeal bread.

In winter the daily diet should include fat in some form or another. Diet experts agree that meat is not a necessity. Fish is a good and sufficient substitute.

With the fine chilly winds of autumn many women insist on keeping on extra clothes, but this is not the best way to avoid a severe cold coming. The clothing both for summer and winter should be sufficiently porous to enable free circulation of the skin to take place. Fifty years ago it was customary to wear six or seven underarments, three or four of which were composed of flannel. Today our clothing is much lighter and sonsier, and everyone agrees that we are the healthier for it. The best plan is to wear light under-clothing, and don heavier outer clothing when the weather is cold.

So that the skin can play its part in the right way, it is necessary to wash frequently. If the pores are allowed to get clogged up with dirt or perspiration, little pimples will result. To avoid this, wash thoroughly first with warm water, and then with cold, finally with cold. It is not too cold to bath every day, but hot baths should be taken just before going to bed.

C.P.R. President Visits Wheat Champion.

Herman Trelle is one of the men of foreign birth who is doing things for Canada. Born in Germany, he is now the owner of a fine farm in the Peace River country near the town of Spirit River. At the Chicago Live Stock Exhibition of 1926 he won the prize for the world's best wheat, and he is working on the development of a new early-ripening wheat which, he says, will revolutionize farming throughout northern Canada. When E. W. Beatty, and his party of Canadian Pacific directors were in the Peace River country recently they visited Mr. Trelle's farm where the important work of threshing was interrupted long enough to have the above photograph taken. Mr. and Mrs. Trelle are in the centre, on the right is Mr. Beatty, and on the left is Sir Herbert Holt.

Sixteen Years Ago Today

Interesting Items gleaned from the Files of The Vermilion Standard
OCTOBER 23rd, 1912.

The first snow of the season fell the end of last week and is going slowly Sunday night 21 degrees of frost were registered. Threshers have left the stooks and turned their attention to stark threshing. A great deal of threshing has been done in the district.

W. H Cameron of the firm of Cameron & Co., real estate dealers, Battleford, and an old-timer of this town, spent a day or two here this week. Mr Cameron has put through some of the biggest real estate deals in Battleford this summer.

All telephone wires have transferred from Brunscombe Bros. store into the new building recently completed by M. A. Brimacombe for this purpose.

Last month Andrew Anderson, the model farmer of Alsask, Saskatchewan threshed 69,300 bushels of wheat from 1,700 acres, an average of 29 bushels per acre. Average production for the Alsask district will be about 22 bushels per acre. Unfavorable weather in August reduced the prospective yield considerably. Last year Mr. Anderson's wheat crop yielded 50,000 bus

Mrs. M. Atkinson and son Frank, who have been on an extended visit among friends in eastern Canada and the States, returned home last week At the regular monthly meeting of the town council Monday night, Geo E. Hayward was present re obtaining permission to put in a spur track to his lumber yard from the electric light plant siding. The matter was placed in the hands of Councillors McLay, Craig and Mackenzie to report. Councillor Mackenzie tendered his resignation and Mayor Rose-borough also verbally informed the board he would not be a candidate for re-election. As Councillors Brimacombe, McKee and Cooper finish their terms of office this year, there will be an election for four members of the board, and mayor.

A crop report issued by the Alberta Department of Agriculture under date of September 1, states that the average wheat yield in that province will be about 25 bushels per acre. The estimated area in wheat is 6,987,451 acres, so the total production for the province this year will be about the same as last year

The Grading of Wheat

The heavy frosts which descended upon Western Canada during the third week of August had a most disastrous effect upon a large portion of the wheat crop of the prairie provinces, with a resultant lowering in grades which, in the aggregate means a loss of many millions of dollars to the farmer-producers of the west. Just how great the loss is will probably never be accurately known, but thousands of individual farmers will, more or less correctly, estimate what it means to them. Volume of production remains the greatest in the history of the country, but grades, and consequently prices, are seriously affected

Under the circumstances it is but natural that an outcry is raised against the whole system of grading, and some very rash statements are indulged in. The farmer who gets Number Three feels he ought to have received Number Two, and the man who is given Number Four contends he ought to have had Number Three, and so on down the line. This is but natural, but the result is that elevator operators, whether in the Pool or line elevators, are charged with taking advantage of the situation and grading too low. Governments both federal and provincial, are held responsible for the system of grading in vogue, although, as a matter of fact, provincial governments have nothing to do with grading, which, as a matter of trade and commerce falls solely within the jurisdiction of the Dominion. If there was any truth in the charge that the Liberal Government in Saskatchewan is responsible for low grading this year then the Farmer Governments in Manitoba and Alberta are equally responsible.

The truth of the matter is, of course, that neither Liberal, Conservative, Progressive nor United Farmer Governments are responsible. It may be that the present system of grading requires revision but even that cannot be accomplished without Canadian wheat occupying an enviable reputation in the markets of the world and because of that reputation commands a good price That reputation is based on the quality of our wheat, and that quality is guaranteed through our system of uniform Government inspection and grading

It may well be that as a year like the present, a reputation in grading would result in a larger proportion of our wheat being placed in higher grades and better prices received by the growers On the other hand, a lowering in the standards might very easily result in a general lowering of all prices, so that the final result would be much the same

But assuming that this did not happen this year, the undoubted effect would be injurious to the reputation of Canadian wheat and any gain derived at this period would be more than offset in other years because of the loss of reputation for all our wheat that would result. The reputation of Canada's wheat abroad to the biggest asset we have in the British and European markets, and it must be retained at all hazards And to tamper with grading solely in order to meet climatic conditions in any one year would be fatal to that reputation.

There is this, however, to be considered. Does frost, which mars the appearance of the wheat kernels, and results in lower grading, actually impair the milling qualities of that wheat, and the baking properties of the flour made from such wheat? In other words, does frost affect the real quality of the wheat to the extent that our present standards of grading would indicate" If it does not, then it would seem that our grading need not be quite so drastic without affecting the established reputation of our wheat.

This, however, is a question that can only be determined through study, research and experimentation. It cannot be decided in a day or two, or answered by keen eye estimate The Dominion Government is fully alive to the importance of this question, and the Government Research Laboratory, working in connection with and in co-operation with all Western universities is engaged in the task of ascertaining the actual facts and the full truth. In this important work the three provincial governments, the Wheat Pools, and the United Farmer organizations are all assisting.

Pending the result of such searching investigations it is a mistake and unpatriotic for anybody to seek to influence public opinion out of an unfortunate condition resulting from the vagaries of the weather which no man, or body of men, could direct or control. We should every man and every organization having the best interests of Canada at heart do what lies in their power to assist in the great work to the end that all may benefit.

Wheat Tariff On Berries

B.C. Fruit Growers Want Reasonable Tariff On Importation From U.S.

A request for a reasonable tariff from May 15 until July 31, yearly, to apply on importations of berries from the United States strawberries to prairie points in advance of the arrival of British Columbia fruit was made by a delegation of Saanich fruit growers in representations made to Hon. W. D. Euler minister of national revenue and Hon Dr J H King minister of health, in a conference at Victoria. Mr. Euler asked if it was the intention of the delegation to ask for a high tariff that would prohibit all buying

They explained that the growers wished a reasonable tariff, not necessarily a high one, but one that would apply between the period from May 15 to July 31.

The request was one that would require careful consideration and special legislation to bring into effect commented the minister, who promised to lay the matter before Hon. J A Robb, federal minister of finance, on his return to Ottawa

Explorer Planning Seppelin Flight Between Europe and United States

A Zeppelin flight between Europe and the U.S. by way of the Arctic regions in order to determine the practicability of that route is now being actively prepared by a committee under the chairmanship of Fridtjof Nansen, noted polar explorer. It is believed that weather conditions will be more favorable to the dirigible over the regular North Atlantic course.

Proves Airship Practicable

Zeppelin's Flight Shows It Superior To Plane For Ocean Crossing Says Expert

Captain Walter Brune, noted aviation and Zeppelin expert, is of the opinion that the voyage of the Graf Zeppelin from Germany to the United States, has conclusively demonstrated the practicability of the airship for trans-ocean commercial service.

"Such a collection of bad weather as the Graf Zeppelin encountered," he said, "of course is not an everyday occurrence. In normal weather, the Zeppelin should span the ocean easily.

"From an expert viewpoint, it would be an interesting thing to have the worst weather imaginable, for it proved that the airship can do what the aeroplane cannot—possibly do, go a long distance out of the way of a storm; or, if caught in it, merely drift until it blows over. The Graf Zeppelin was delayed in its journey longer than expected. But what of it? Why apply different standards to an airship than to an ocean vessel. The big greyhounds recently have been from 83 to 88 hours late. Yet nobody has started a fault-finding cry.

"No airplane can afford to fly great distances in evade storms, because its fuel supply is too limited. And it cannot have conveniences for weather observations which the gondola of an airship affords.

Asked whether he thought Dr Eckener had possibly yielded to pressure and started on the trip unfavorable time, Captain Brun replied: "I don't think so; on the contrary, Dr. Eckener is not the kind to yield to himself. I can only get the Zeppelin out of the hangar, I can fly in any kind of weather."

A Remarkable Invention

Metaphone Emits Noise When Doctor Comes Near Metal

An invention made to take by a new invention, called the "metaphone," which is being perfected by its discoverer Mr. W. S. Clayton. This remarkable new instrument, which resembles a wireless receiving set emits loud noises when the "detector," which is connected with it comes near any metal.

The possible uses to which the "Metaphone" may be put, says the London Sunday News, are almost innumerable. It can be used to detect sunken submarines ships, and even treasure at the bottom of the sea, and with a small set it is possible to detect the presence of a gold watch, or, bunch of keys or cigarette case in a person's pocket.

Although the invention is by no means fully developed, Mr. Clayton has already conducted some satisfactory experiments on an off Vancouver of British Columbia. The lighthouse, carried on board a salvage steamer, detected the discomforts and some iron wreckage well below the surface of the water. Either carbon or steel can be detected at a great distance in connection with the invention

HAS PLAN TO AID PRODUCTIVITY OF WESTERN SOIL

Toronto.—The rehabilitation of the soil of the western provinces through the use of nitrate fertilizer developed by electricity, possibly in Manitoba, is envisaged by Prof. J. Watson Bain head of the Chemical Engineering branch of the faculty of applied science, University of Toronto.

Addressing the Toronto Electric Club, Prof. Bain said that by passing the component parts of water and air through a simple chemical process, ammonium nitrate, the best and most concentrated fertilizer known, could be produced in unlimited qualities. By the fusion of rock phosphate and coke a compound of phosphorous used in the fertilizing process was evolved.

"I believe," he said, "that before many years pass we will have to apply fertilizer to the west. They have been 'doping' the ground there in the production of wheat. In Germany, to-day, how important fertilizers are to Canada, it is not uncommon to produce forty bushels of wheat to the acre. In Ontario we get twenty-five."

Asked whether he thought Dr Eckener had possibly yielded to pressure and started on the trip unfavorable time, Captain Brun replied: "I don't think so; on the contrary, Dr. Eckener is not the kind to yield to himself. I can only get the Zeppelin out of the hangar, I can fly in any kind of weather."

Heroism At Sea

Harrowing Tale Of Fire Aboard Ship Related

Vancouver.—With seven of her crew painfully burned and scalded, the Blue Star Line steamship, "Tropic Star," Capt. C. A. Griffiths, arrived here with a harrowing story of fire on board while the steamer was off the California coast on the night of October 12.

William P. Teuscon, Hull, Eng., fireman aboard the ship, was burned to death and his body buried at sea.

The fire broke out at 6.30 p.m., October 12, when an oil jet burst in the stokehold, trapping eight men of the engine room force in a wall of flame that sprang up in an instant.

Second Engineer Sydney P. Hosman and Fireman James, according to the ship's officers, were chiefly responsible for the safety of the engine room crew.

Seeing that the way to safety on deck was barred, Houston led the men into the bilges under the ship. The flames roared above them and for three hours and thirty minutes they lay there in all save slight of the plates growing hotter and the water in which they lay steadily approaching the boiling point. Assisted by his cheery conduct and singing of songs, aided his comrades while maintaining reason, Houston remained temporarily insane from the heat and rushed back to the engine room again, where he collapsed.

Only an act of providence stopped the disaster. A big steam pipe in the engine room burst, releasing a huge cloud of steam into the compartment, finally smothering the fire and permitting the rescue crew to reach the imprisoned engine room crew, who were smeared from head to foot with oil, smoked in water, blistered and partly gassed.

They are all recovering.

LOOK FOR BIG GOLD RUSH IN NORTH ONTARIO

Winnipeg, Man.—Valuable gold discoveries made during the past summer and the fall at Crows River by the Northern Aerial Mineral Exploration Company probably will bring a number of prospectors rivaling that to Red Lake a few years ago, Capt. H. A. Oakes, operating manager of the company, stated Crowe River is near the Patricia mining field to Northern Ontario.

At least 200 prospectors are awaiting their chances to make Crowe River before the frozen-up, and scores are installing to be there in the dead of winter. The more fortunate will go by airplane, but the majority will take the next best means of getting to their destination — by canoe or dog team.

"We have every proof that the Crowe Lake strike is a good one," Capt. Oakes stated, "and our groundwork including engineering and other technical experts will be on the scene, possibly the entire winter."

The company will continue to carry on operations this winter by plane, although this branch of its service will not function in any other territory but Ontario.

The machines have been brought to Winnipeg for housing during the winter, and four more Fokkers and Fairchilds will be flown here by the end of the week. Captain Oakes and Al Cheeman, chief pilot, brought two of them here the beginning of the week.

The plant will rank at Chesterfield Inlet on the Hudson Bay recently has been salvaged and will be shipped here about another two months. It will have remain at Churchill until freeze-up as the only means of transportation is the railway is by tractor. The crew will come also

All planes which operate this winter would be equipped with skis Captain Oakes said, as there would not be facilities for machines with wheels.

This Harvester Well Satisfied

Considers Time Spent in Canada As Sojourn in Paradise

October 20th, 1928.

Dear Editor,

May I express my feelings as a harvester recently from England. To read the unfounded rumors about this harvesting scheme makes me feel it my duty to cry and dispel the lies that are being told.

During my forty-nine days in the harvest fields I have been treated like a King and never in my life have I met better people than those of the Lamenville district where I worked. I would like to stay here forever, but duties at home forbid me doing so, but I shall certainly return in the near future I leave tomorrow for England and feel as if I were leaving Paradise. After I express my views in England, perhaps better results will be obtained.

I wish in thank all the people in Lamenville for their kindness and hospitality during my stay here and I leave with my heart contented.

I am, yours truly,
JOHN W. THOMPSON.

Numerous Farm Settlers Will Be Brought In

Results of C. P. R. Colonization Scheme Seen at Vermilion

New colonization schemes for placing British settlers on farm lands in Canada have been undertaken by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company through its Department of Colonization. The Overseas Settlement Committee of the British Government is co-operating in the arrangements. The details of these schemes were heralded during the visit to Canada of Lord Lovat, Under-Secretary of State for Dominion Affairs and Chairman of the Overseas Settlement Committee.

One undertaking provides for the building of one hundred cottages by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company for the use of British families. The immigrants will be selected and brought to Canada by the Department of Colonization and Development, placed in farm work and established in [illegible]. After entering the necessary apprenticeship they will be assisted to settle on their own farms. The cottages thus erected will then be available [illegible] colonists.

[illegible] announced [illegible] the past few years in [illegible] Canadian Pacific Railway Company adopted a scheme of [illegible] which [illegible] 400 farms were laid out, houses and barns erected, properties fenced with [illegible] a portion of the land [illegible] cleared, harrowed, and seeded to crops before the arrival of the settlers. In 1925, through the financial assistance rendered by the company, the establishment of the Clan Donald Colony in Alberta was made possible and one hundred farms were prepared ready for occupancy on the arrival of the selected families. This year the company is providing $40,000 for the improvement of twenty additional farms as an extension of this scheme. Under yet another agreement with the Overseas Settlement Committee, the company is preparing one hundred farms in the Vermilion district, the company providing the land and $1,200 to be expended on each farm, while the Overseas Settlement Committee [illegible]

A Successful Experiment

Plan Of Bringing British Harvesters To Canada Has Been Fully Justified

The Montreal Star in a reference to the British sailor-harvester scheme remarks that when the idea of bringing thousands of British miners, out of work in the Old Country, across the Atlantic to help with the Canadian harvest was first mooted it met with considerable cynical comment. Doubt was freely expressed as to the likelihood of success. "The protest of a very small but vociferous number of grumblers when they arrived in the West served to provide the cynics with more material for comment, but this has been overwhelmingly offset by the fact that the vast majority of the miners were well established, did their work to the satisfaction of the farmers, and did not gravitate to the city. The first small contingent on their way home have arrived in Montreal and express themselves as very pleased with their experience. They are returning with money in their pockets and they have enjoyed their experience.

"So far, so good," continues the Montreal paper. "Those miners will have good things to say about Canada when they reach England, but the bulk of the army that came over still remains in the West. It is reported that many of the British miners have already turned to pick and shovel work since the conclusion of the harvest. If these men can be persuaded to stay here Canada will have gained a substantial and very useful body of settlers who will become good Canadian citizens. Even if only a small percentage of them remain, however, the big experiment will still have justified itself. Those who do will without doubt let their kinsmen at home know why they are staying and also how they are getting on."

Goose Raising

Fall Is the Proper Time To Select Geese For Breeding Flock

The autumn is regarded as the proper season to select geese for the establishment of a breeding flock. In a circular on goose raising issued by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, the author, Mr. A. G. Taylor, recommends securing well developed birds from good flocks before the seriously period commences in the fall. Stock from this year's hatchings are not likely to do as well as birds a year older. The geese should be housed together even before New Years, and should be kept on throughout the winter and the breeding season in the spring. Close housing is also required for goslings as a rough shed is sufficient provided it is supplied with dry bedding and protection from draughts and cold. Circular No. 68 published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, gives as a good winter ration for geese, equal parts of barley and wheat and about twenty-five per cent. of green feed, such as clover or alfalfa hay Cabbage mangels or turnips, finely cut up make an excellent green food ration. The circular gives explicit information on feeding during the laying season, the methods to be followed in rearing the goslings, and marketing the stock.

Windbreak Needed Around Soo Straw

Not Only Protects Them In Winter But Prevents Drifting

Protection from strong winds is very necessary about the hay-yard. Not only is protection all important in winter time to shield the colonists from the cold piercing winds which so quickly exhaust animal heat and cause losses, but also in all other seasons and order to prevent the drifting of the hay and to facilitate the work in the yard, writes A. H. W. Birch, Soo Junction, Central Experimental Farm, Illinois.

All experienced beekeepers are agreed on the point that the importance of a good windbreak can hardly be overestimated. Some even consider it of more importance than packing and prefer a windbreak without packing to packing without a windbreak.

Though well packed, colonies frequently die of exposure, therefore, in thinking about preparations for wintering, about the construction of your winter cases and the amount of packing required, do not forget that all important thing—the windbreak.

If, in a short time, a cold wind chills your hives they will clothed, what will it do during a winter to your unprotected bees?

There are various kinds of windbreaks, some natural, others artificial. The natural ones are preferable, created in protection from the north and west winds by thick woods, groves of trees, or dense shrubbery. Artificial windbreaks, on the other hand, must be used where natural ones are not available or where they are being established.

Though a good impromptu windbreak may be made by standing corn fodder or other such material against a fence on the windward side of the bee-yard, the artificial windbreak is most common one is that which is made of wood and which is similar to the snow-fences used by the railroads.

This fence is made in panels 12 to 16 feet long by 6 to 7 feet high, the boards of which are spaced 2 to 3 inches apart and nailed to 2 by 4 inch posts. In erecting this sort of windbreak, stakes should be driven into the ground and nailed to the braces to prevent the fence being overturned by strong winds

Cultivation Of Your's Work

Farmer Forgets Worry When Last Load Of Grain Is In

There is something very satisfying about having completed a task, but it is doubtful if anything gives more delight and satisfaction at bringing in the last load of grain. It is the culmination of a season's work, the rewards of faith in a kind Providence to give seed-time and harvest. Preceding the bringing in of the last load there have been many days of toil in plowing, cultivating, sowing and reaping. Possibly a little worry has crept in as unfavorable weather or pests have threatened the crop. But all this is forgotten as the last load is being stored in the barn or in stacks or forked into the machine. The satisfaction is all the greater if the assurance that the yield will be high and the quality of grain of the best. While man has no control over the weather he is a big factor in determining just what that last load will be.

Made Both It

Madden Soon, the great surgeon after apologizing for her cold, said: "I'll hang my hany on a weeping willow tree—e- ee, oh"

Her voice cracked on the high note and she tried again.

Then came a voice from the back of the hall "Try hanging it on a lower breach"

Many Take Free Homesteads

Demand For Land In Western Canada Is On the Increase

An indication of the increasing interest and demand for homestead lands in Western Canada is given in the official figures for homestead entries for the first eight months of this year. From January 1st to August 31st a total of 31,154 entries were made on land offered free by the Canadian Government in blocks of 160 acres in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and in parts of British Columbia. This is an increase of 4,325 over the total number of entries made in the first eight months of 1927. For the period under review the total of entries have been made on homestead land in Manitoba, 2,811 in Saskatchewan, 4,976 in Alberta, and 623 in British Columbia. All homestead lands are offered by the Canadian Government to British subjects and those who declare their intention to become a British subject on payment of registration fee of $10.00, and proof of settlement duties improvement and residence duties by the settler before the title to the land is granted. The homestead land is in some considerable distance from the railways but there are also still millions of acres of good farm land near railways, markets and schools at prices from $15.00 an acre upwards.

Meat Prices to Soar

Ranchers In Western Canada Look For Expansion Of Cattle Industry

Ranchers in Western Canada only prepare for the expansion of the cattle industry on an unprecedented scale, while Canadian beef exports to countries with those of the United States may expect a long period of high meat prices, according to officials of the B.C. Department of Agriculture. The United States faces an acute shortage of meat, they say, and with 1,250,000 beef animals below normal, is looking to Canada to supplement. This demand for beef across the border is being felt in Western Canada already with soaring meat prices and extensive plans for movement of live cattle to American points for fattening.

At the recent Canadian National Exhibition, in Toronto, Manitoba took 47.8 per cent. of all prizes offered under the group system and 84 per cent. of all first placings.

Aged York Lions Century Old Record and Black Young Again

Save Age, at the age of 187, has sacrificed his mustache and beard for his country's good.

Dave holds a minor municipal job. He responded to the city edict urging all employees to be clean shaven. It took Dave more than a century to cultivate his splendid whiskers and he relinquished them with a sigh, but was consoled by the improvement it made in his appearance. He looked half a century younger.

Dave thereupon decided to replenish his stock of wives, three of whom have died of old age, leaving him only one. To his dismay he ran against the new law prohibiting polygamy.

In an interview Zaro explained his hopes for the future. He is eager to start life anew in a fresh job and improve his standard of living, he said.

A "social climber" had been abroad in Europe. Upon her return she was asked by a lady accustomed to travelling: "And you saw much of the Pyrenees of course?"

Social climber (hesitating only a moment)—Oh, yes, indeed, we dined with them on several occasions.

Griggs—"Why don't you report it to the street?"

Briggs—"He's the one that took it."

Speaker—"Didn't you think my talk on politics was well-timed?"

Heckler—"Yes, it was. People in audience kept looking at their watches."

Peace River Country Fertile

Immense Area Of Good Farm Land Three Hundred Miles Northward Of Edmonton

Three hundred miles north and west of Edmonton lies the Peace River Country, which now occupies so large a place in public attention as a new field for settlement and agricultural development. The area of the Peace River District is approximately 67 million acres. It is over six times as big as Belgium, and exceeds the combined area of the six New England States. It lies in the same latitude as portions of Scotland and Denmark.

The Peace River country enjoys a combination of favorable climate, moderate precipitation, and deep fertile soil. It lies in long easy slopes watered by the Peace River and its tributaries, well drained and well adapted to cultivation by the 20-second season the crops in the Peace River District have been not only among the highest in Western Canada but among the earliest harvested. Yields of wheat in many instances have run as high as 47 to 73 bushels to the acre.

It will be remembered that it was the Peace River district that Bernman Trelle, in 1926, produced the wheat and oats both of which captured the world's championship at the International Livestock Grain and Hay Show at Chicago.

British Motorist Did Not Resent Damage To Car

Lieutenant-Colonel R. C. Fielding, D.S.O., told of an incident both amusing and pleasing to Mr. Justice Avory when his car into vacant place in a parking place in the West End accidentally bumped into a vacant car and tore its mudguard. He left his card with that watchman to pass on to the owner of the damaged vehicle and await developments. In due course he received a letter from the injured party. This is how it ran: "Dear sir,—Your card was handed me by the car watchman in Avery Row stating that you had damaged the right-hand mud-guard of my car. I am only writing to tell you that the damage you have done to the mudguard has now made it the same as the other three, thus again balancing the design of the car. In face of this, I extend to you my apologies for causing you any anxiety in the matter." And they say sportsmanship is dead.

Will Benefit Canadians

May Live In Canada and Work On U.S. Side Without Interference

Canadians who have been in Canada or elsewhere, may live in the Dominion and work on the United States unhindered under the United States immigration laws. This is the effect of the refusal of the Supreme Court of the United States to review the judgment of Mr. Justice Hazel of the New York federal circuit court in Buffalo a few days ago in granting Canadians the right to commute across the border daily to transact their business.

Leave to appeal was asked by the United States department of immigration, but the Supreme Court adjourned without deciding whether the case was arguable The Supreme Court decided it was not arguable, thus making the decision of the lower court supreme.

SASKATCHEWAN GOVERNMENT'S OIL-GRAVEL ROAD SURFACING EXPERIMENT

Mechanical measures of varied shape and strange device have been brought to Saskatchewan in connection with the important experiment being conducted by the Provincial Department of Highways, in the road-ing-gravelling process of surfacing "gumbo" roads.

The principle is similar to that which has been found successful and satisfactory on roads in Minnesota and North Dakota, and, if successful on the highway between Prince and Pilot Butte, will furnish the solution of Saskatchewan's highway surfacing problem.

Asphaltic oil spread over the pleased road surface before the gravel is applied, forms a waterproof coating impervious to rain so long as it remains intact, which also prevents the gravel from being "eaten up" by the gumbo. Tests of the waterproofing have been made and, if the surface withstands the wind, frosts and spring breakup, the treatment will have proved successful. The Saskatchewan experiment is first of the kind in Canada and the results are awaited with interest by highway experts and other Provincial Governments.

The mechanical equipment employed in the road experiments, alone, an investment of approximately $135,-000. Some of the machines used are depicted above.

No. 1 This is a view of the great Caterpillar Tractor which drives the gravel crushing machine.

No. 2—Shows the Government gravel pit, situated near Pilot Butte, and the $60,000 dragline excavator which "loads" the coarse gravel to the crusher.

No. 3—The Russell gravel screening, crushing and loading machine, purchased by the Provincial Government at a cost of $12,000. It grinds the coarse gravel to the required "pea" size, and loads the crushed gravel into trucks.

No. 4. Here is seen the Barber Green loader transferring gravel from a string of flatcars into trucks.

No. 5—The giant oil sprinkler, the tank of which has a capacity of 800 gallons. It travels under its own power, and, by a heater attachment, keeps the oil mixture at the required temperature.

No. 6—The final process. A blade grader, following in the wake of the oil sprinkler, spreads the gravel over the freshly oiled surface.

Acid Stomach

Excess acid is the common cause of indigestion. It results in pain and soreness about two hours after eating. The quick corrective is an alkali which neutralizes acid. The best corrective is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. It has remained standard with physicians for 50 years since its invention.

One spoonful of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia neutralizes instantly many times its volume in acid. It is harmless and tasteless and its action is quick. You will never rely on crude bicarbonate of soda, sweet salts, or other powders when you learn how quickly, how pleasantly this prenier method acts. Please let it show you—now.

Be sure to get the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia prescribed by physicians for 50 years in correcting acid conditions. Each bottle contains full directions—any druggists.

THE CRIMSON WEST

"Pretty near got me that time, Donnie," cried Andy gleefully. "If you an get 'im to hit 'is jaw off 'is shoulder, send in your right." Andy's hands were shaking with excitement, while Donald was cool and collected.

"Let me go after him, Andy," he hissed. "I can whip him at his own game."

"No, no!" admonished Andy, "keep on as you are. Don't try to swop punches with 'im!"

Garrieau's seconds were working over him feverishly. Pursell leaned over the heavily-breathing champion, his evil face sick with apprehension.

"What'll I tell 'em?" he entreated.

"They've stuck a ringer in on us; dat feller ain't no smacknoof! If he beats us we're both done. Tell 'em to go round, for de——"he finished with a savage oath.

At the beginning of the third round Garrieau charged his elusive adversary like a mad bull. Donald easily side-stepped him and he plunged into the ropes. As he rebounded, Donald landed a left and danced safely away without reprisal.

"You can do pretty footwork," snarled the champion with a look of Simian ferocity, "but I'll get you, you——" There followed a burst of wild cursing. He tried to rush Donald to the ropes, feinted for the wind and let loose a powerful right for the jaw. Paying no attention to its feint, Donald dashed the lower and countering shot his left to his opponent's mid-section. The champion grunted aloud, fell into clinch, and in hung on grimly. The referee pried them apart. Again the crowd came to their feet to shout in a frenzy of excitement.

Garrieau fell into a clinch, then wrestled about until he placed his opponent between himself and the referee. He loosed his right in a terrific upper-cut that missed, but his left smashed with fearful force into Donald's groin the most brutal foul that can be delivered. The referee did not see the blow.

Donald's nerves quivered with agony. A wave of torment and the awful nausea that follows such a foul swept through him. His face writhing with anguish, his gloved hand clutching his groin, he crashed to the floor. His left leg twitched convulsively for a moment, then lay still.

The crowd came to their feet and howled with mingled rage and delight.

TOWN STORE BURGLARIZED

The hardware store of Nelson Hill was broken into last Friday night and some $25 in cash was taken from the till. That was the usual amount left in the register to begin the next day's business. The entrance to the store was gained by forcing a basement window at the rear and forcing also one of the doors between the back warehouse and store proper. Nothing but the cash was taken, although the back on the day tank at the front of the store had been tampered with. So far no clue has been found as to the perpetrators.

Special Trains For Christmas Sailings

Canadian National Railways Announce Overseas Excursions

Not many weeks from now, with a wild jingle of bells, Santa Claus will urge his reindeer over the snowy northern skies. Already Christmas is in the air, for thousands of Western Canadians are busily making their arrangements for the annual holiday trip to the Old Country. The Canadian National Railway passenger department, announcing the dates of the special trains to the seaboard, states its expectation of one of the heaviest exoduses for some time past.

Special sleeping cars will leave Vancouver, Edmonton, Calgary, Saskatoon and Regina, being consolidated at Winnipeg into special trains to the Atlantic ports. The first train out of Winnipeg will depart at 8.00 a.m., November 20, for Montreal, to connect with the Megantic, sailing for Southampton, Havre and London. A day later will leave the following morning for the sailing of the Andania and the Ascania to Glasgow, Belfast and Liverpool, Plymouth, Cherbourg and London, the third will leave on November 22, to connect with the Lancastria, Baltimore and Belfast, and so from that date forward.

Through sleeping cars will be operated from western cities to Halifax for the sailings of the Bergensfjord, the Drottningholm, Oscar II, Gripsholm and Polonia, the Canadian ports. Passengers on the Oscar II, sailing November 26 from Halifax and on the Frederik VIII, leaving Halifax Dec. 10, will take part in personally conducted tours.

The new Canadian Pacific liner, "Duchess of York" has been launched at Clydebank, Scotland, by Her Royal Highness the Duchess of York. H.R.H. the Duke of York and other notables were present. The vessel is 20,000 tons gross, and is the fourth and last of the "Duchess" quartette of steamships built for the service of the St. Lawrence route.

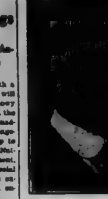
Two hundred Chinchilla rabbits passed through the city on Saturday bound for their twelve thousand mile journey from Auckland to New Zealand were transferred to the Canadian Pacific express at Chinook. The little animals were bred in Auckland and are the first to be a success of a rabbit far farm in Auckland. As a rabbit is a rapid breeder in the Antipodes special arrangements had to be made to get them to and from the steamer.

George Jbavice, son of the Prime Minister of Czecho-Slovakia, is the latest addition to the long list of notable farmers, led by H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, whose E. P. ranch is only one regal domain among several, including that of the Duke of Sutherland, Queen Victoria, and lately in years of age, has settled near Lethbridge, where he is gaining knowledge of farming. Mr. Jbavice is Daniel before heading out for Canada.

Thirty-five visits and departures of Canadian Pacific steamships will be made in the Montreal harbor, the Saint John during the coming winter, it was announced yesterday by Mr. and April Hills, it is officially announced. This represents an increase of three over the previous season. The two new vessels, the first steamer, the "Duchess of Richmond" and the "Duchess of Bedford" will make their appearance on the sailing list, the former being due in the New Brunswick port on May 7th and the latter on March 30th.

The promotion of two of Canada's well-known citizens to important posts in the service of his Canadian Pacific Railway has been announced by the hotel department of the company. F. B. A. Reed, manager of the famous Frontenac at Quebec, has been appointed assistant manager of the new 1,200-room skyscraper hotel in Toronto, the Royal York, which will be opened to the public next summer. His place in the great hostelry at Quebec will be taken by John Johnston who has been assistant manager at the Chateau for some time.

The distribution of dividend cheques totalling over $1,000,000 to shareholders of industrial and commercial enterprises in Canada runs into many millions of dollars a year. The money goes to an army of people throughout the country, many of whom depend on it for their living and it has much to do with the continued prosperity of Canada. About 50 companies are on the Toronto Stock Exchange, a good part of the total number of these making regular dividend disbursements in Canada, but for the third quarter of this year these 50 companies distributed to dividends over twenty million dollars, of course the hundreds of other companies brought the total up to $7,000,000. This was by far the largest distribution by any one company for the next largest being $961,000. The number who regularly benefit by these distributions of profits is increasing every year, thus showing a more general tendency on the part of the Canadians to invest their savings in the stocks of well established and sound industrial enterprises.



R. A. Reed, popular manager of the Chateau Frontenac, who succeeds Mr. Reed as manager of the new Royal York Hotel in Toronto, which will be opened in the early summer. Mr. Reed's new position is the highest position in the Canadian Pacific service to Canadian Pacific service to the hotel department from the Province of Quebec's office in Montreal.

Exhibition Assoc. Will Help Country Fairs

Challenge Cups Will Be Presented to Class "B" Shows

Challenge trophies to augment the prize lists at northern Alberta Class "B" fairs probably will be donated next year by the Exhibition Building association. Feeling that closer relations should be established between the large and the smaller shows, President Percy W. Abbott, K.C., recommended such action to the executive of the association at a meeting held last Wednesday night, and recommendation will be made to the board of directors that the plan be put into effect.

There are five Class "B" fairs in the northern section of the province—Red Deer, Camrose, Vegreville, Vermilion and Lloydminster. President Abbott's idea is that in each of the next four years commencing 1929, a challenge trophy of substantial value should be donated to each fair mentioned. It could be allocated to such classifications as the fairs themselves might decide, and if the Edmonton exhibition directors approve, certain conditions could be drawn up at once.

By the end of 1932, Mr. Abbott points out, each fair would have four trophies for annual competition, and a closer interest as between the small exhibitions and the larger show in Edmonton would be fostered thereby.

NEW LEAGUE OF GREAT POWERS NOW PROPOSED

Geneva, Switzerland.—A new League of Nations composed of great powers only and including the United States, was proposed by Ralph D. Blumenfeld, editor of the London Express and head of the British Journalistic Mission touring this country under the auspices of the Carnegie endowment for international peace.

The present League of Nations, he said, has become hopelessly ineffective and a danger to international relations.

Blumenfeld said the League was hamstrung by its own cumbersome constitution and was now a "germ carrying balking machine, an overgrown international debating society" which is a fulcrum for every crank idea."

In its place, he proposed a League of Nations which would be the result of spontaneous agreement between great powers, failing which Great Britain, without elaborate treaties. Each of the powers, under his plan would keep order among the minor states.

"There's no country in the world that wouldn't welcome such a plan," he said. "It would be unanimously and cordially received. Great Britain, the United States, France, Germany, Italy, Japan, Russia, Poland, Belgium, Holland, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Norway, Denmark, Switzerland, Czecho-Slovakia, Roumania, Greece, Turkey, Egypt, Persia, Abyssinia, Liberia, Mexico, Brazil, Argentina, Chile, Peru, Bolivia, Uruguay, Paraguay, Ecuador, Colombia, Venezuela, Cuba, Haiti, Dominican Republic, Nicaragua, Honduras, Salvador, Guatemala, Costa Rica, Panama, Siam, China, Japan, Afghanistan, Nepal

SUTHERLAND 1905

Published every Thursday Afternoon at the Office, Main St.

S. & P. CHIPPEN, Editor

Vermilion, Alta., Nov. 1, 1928.

A plebiscite is to be taken on Monday, November 12th of the ratepayers affected, in connection with the declaring of a considerable area from the Vermilion Municipal hospital district as well as the Islay municipal hospital district, with the intension of embracing those in the Elk Point municipal hospital district. Taken also together the territory which is proposed to be detached is considerable and while such a request is provided for under the Municipal Hospitals Act, it is not to be assumed that the official boards of either the Vermilion or Islay municipal hospital areas will be favorable in losing those lands. While it is quite true that the areas in question are situated on the extreme northern boundaries of those two hospital districts they are much more accessible to the local hospitals, being all situated south of the North Saskatchewan river, which has to be crossed by ferry. At the present stage of settlement it has been proved, if taxation is not to be excessive, that proper equipment and maintenance of municipal hospitals demands strategical location in a fairly large surrounding area; as years pass and population grows with increased settlement of our lands, the necessity for maintaining the larger territories will become less urgent. The question also arises of shrouds being made on our municipal hospital territory from the south, which would prove a serious menace. However those who are asking to be detached with the exception of the ratepayers resident in Islay, who will use their ballots on Monday, if they are in favor of detaching the territory and the other asking to be left as they are in favor of adding it to the Elk Point hospital district

ISLAY ITEMS

A dance was put on last week in Moore's Hall by an orchestra from Lloydminster and the affair was attended and thoroughly enjoyed.

A box social was staged in Holyrood school during the week and both the social and dance were successes. Some of the boxes went as high as $5.00. The proceeds are for the Christmas Tree. Nothing like being on time.

Mrs Neil McEachern and her daughter Mary returned from Edmonton, both improved by the loss of effected limbs.

Mr. Purvis is moving the store once owned by W. H. Barnes. Part of the building is going out to Wm. Farrel's farm, somewhere and the part that remains on the old site is to be occupied as a laundry.

The L.A. of the United church are putting on a Chicken Supper in the church on Monday evening, Nov 12th. The anniversary services will be preached on Nov. 11th by Rev. M. H. Wilson of Edmonton.

THE PREMIES ARE GETTING IT

The town woke up and rubbed its eyes on Thursday morning, the cause of the sudden move being a beaming bunch of college freshmen, roped together by a long line and clad chiefly in pajamas. Those were in charge of a smaller bunch of second and third year men, who saw that the freshies remained themselves in a manner becoming their stage in college life.

TO THE PEOPLE OF VERMILION

I wish to take this opportunity to thank each and every one for the courtesy and good times shown me while in your city. Also wish you to know that I hope your wonderful little city shall grow to be one of the largest centres in the Empire, and trust that every citizen will put his shoulder to the wheel and help their patriotic officers and officials to make Vermilion one of the cleanest and best inland cities in Canada.

I also wish to take the opportunity to wish every citizen a "Very Merry Christmas and Prosperous New Year" and God bless all and a fond goodbye.

WHY CANADA FIRST
BY MISS MARGARET GALLOWAY, VERMILION HIGH SCHOOL

First Prize Essay, Vermilion Schools Fair, and Winner of Set of Books, Awarded by J. W. G. Stevens, Chairman Vermilion School Board.

We Canadians have a great heritage and a great future. Canada's past has been blameless, and no other nation can boast of such unanimal history. The great traditions of our forefathers have been handed down to us. Love of country, loyalty, love of justice, and love of freedom — these are part of our heritage.

When foes are firing and bombs are playing, when guns are roaring, and we realize how much our country means to us. The broad bottoms of our fair-long land seem doubly dear to us.

But our love of country should be woven into our everyday lives as well as our holidays. The greatest and most enduring fame is that which has been won by men who forgot the mark of self in the great work of some lasting nation. To-day let us make that great decision — to put our country first! We have much to do, and with purpose Canadians who sleep beneath the poppies of France, we realize that we do not make the sacrifice which they died for their country! Surely we can live for her!

We are Empire builders! Let us be worthy of the name! Canada needs upright men and women. Those with vision and with high ideals are needed as Empire builders.

Canada is a glorious country, and indeed "a land of golden opportunity". Perhaps the statement made by Earl Grey when he said — "Canadians are building up two Old Atlantic and Pacific the greatest Empire that has ever been."

Canada is indeed worthy of our love and toil, and we may well look for a glorious future

"Here is no starveling — Heaven's forsaken —
Shrinking sodes where the nations throng;
Proud as the proudest among them —
Worthy is life of a noble song

Nowhere in the world is there the same number of people such uncommon undeveloped natural resources at their disposal. Canada's resources are the theme of a continent. They consist mainly of agricultural lands, forests, fisheries, minerals, waterpowers, and our far-flung railroads. Canada's growth is fed from many sources. Almost every means of economic growth is open to her. Her international position also is steadily climbing upward

The agricultural industry is first in importance. Canada is known to other nations by reasons of her bumper grain trade. Canadian wheat has long been the standard for the world. Manitoba is famous for No. 1 hard wheat, which commands the highest prices. In 1906, three small cities — towns let Quebec carrying our export trade to the West Indies. Now we could not count the ship loads of wheat exported from Canada.

From wheat alone a year's trade seem was exported in 1926 fourteen millions dollars worth of grain. As the years go by and more land is added to being brought under the plough. This fact is strikingly proved by the fact that in the Peace River Country, "Our Last Great West", went the 1927 championships for both wheat and oats. There are over two hundred and fifty million acres still open for settlement in Canada. Canada has the largest wheat belt in the world. This belt is four times that of the United States. Today Canada holds the world in export of wheat and flour. When so much has been accomplished in the past, what cannot be looked for in the future! Canada has developed a great flour milling industry. Today at Port Colborne she has the largest flour mill in the British Empire. More and more of our wheat and flour is being demanded by the far East across the Pacific. Canada's opportunities in this industry are almost limitless!

Besides wheat and oats, barley and rye are of great value, and the volume of their production has been overwhelming. Many special field crops such as corn, field peas, potatoes, grass and clover, are being grown. World championships have been won by Alberta, timothy and grass, Tobacco, flax and sugar from the sugar - beet, is also produced

Canadian soil and climate in parts of the Eastern provinces and British Columbia are adapted for fruit growing. The Annapolis Valley, the Niagara Peninsula, and the Okanagan districts are renowned the world over. Tremendous shipments of apples are made from the Annapolis valley and adjacent districts every year, and their quality is not excelled anywhere. The best eating apple in the world is the Wealthy Red, which grows to highest perfection in Canada. Pears, plums and peaches have made the Niagara peninsula famous.

Canadian fruits have won in almost every international competition. No other country with so short a history has ever made such a record with its products at world shows and in commercial competition.

The livestock and the dairying industries have made great progress. Canada's total dairy products are valued at over two hundred and forty million dollars a year. The meat industry is carried on to as great an extent. Every year our cattle export trade with Great Britain is increasing. The raising of high class livestock is receiving great attention, and fine prizes is being made.

Although Agriculture holds the premier position in Canada as regards value of products, the forest continues to hold its place as the second great natural resource of the Dominion. To-day Canada has the largest paper making industry in the world. She exports 80 per-cent of the world's pulp and paper The other branches of the lumbering industry are capable of great development. Canada is now the principal source of softwood supplies in the British Empire. One third of Canada's area is forest. The vast extent of her forests alone ensure her a wonderful future.

No other country in the world can boast of greater or finer mineral resources than Canada. They comprise a wide and rich variety of mineral, many that even now are of world importance. Already Canada produces ninety per cent of the world's asbestos, and fifty five per-cent of the world's cobalt. She is rich in mica, zinc, copper, feld spar, and graphite. Her coal, iron and petroleum resources are of great importance. By far the greatest silver mines in the world are in Canada's northern ore dominions. The Nothinger gold mine is the world's greatest gold producer. Nickel is found in greater quantities in the world's largest lead and zinc mine. At Trail, in the same province, are the world's greatest non-ferrous metallurgical works. Several rare minerals, such as lithuim, are found only in Canada. Canada is first in importance as a producer of nickel, and in the production of mining tools; and but a few years she will have developed other branches to as great an extent. Her undeveloped resources will be a source of untold wealth

Our domain is a land of great rivers and mighty waterfalls. The vast turbines now being turned by the waters of the Niagara river already produce over one million horsepower. Power and lights is being supplied to hundreds of towns, cities, and factories. Yet there is only a beginning. Canada possesses three million horsepower from harvesters, but twenty seven million still remain undeveloped. Waterpower is one of Canada's great assets, and for magnitude and distribution, few rivals can be found to rival Canada's power resources Waterpower is available at almost every great centre of industry throughout the coast. The Dominion holds the first place among nations in the generation of electric power, per capita.

Canada's fishing grounds are the most extensive of any country in the world. They comprise both great sea and inshore areas. More important still, Canadian cod mackerel, halibut herring, whitefish and salmon are the finest of any in the world owing to the coolness and purity of the water

The fur trade is still a valued asset to Canada. Manufacturing has increased, and a new industry has arisen in that field.

Canadian manufacturing has made tremendous strides. With such rapid development of her natural resources, it is certain that such progress should take place, and it is natural to expect that Canada will be a world leader in her manufacturing industries. The relative expansion and development of Canadian trade has never been surpassed by any country

Canada's railway mileage is greater per head of population than any other country No other country in the world has better developed facilities for the handling and transport of grain. The Canadian government now owns the largest amount of trackage controlled by any one corporation

Canada has three hundred ports on harbors on two oceans, and on the Great Lakes. Montreal, though inland, is among the great ports of the world. And Vancouver is among the finest harbors

Canada's banking system is one to be proud of, and compares favorably with any other system in the world Canadian banks have a great reputation, and to them credit should be given for the wonderful development and progress to be seen everywhere in Canada.

Canadian believe in government "of the people, by the people, through the people" and on this belief is based one of the finest and most solid constitutions the world has ever known. Our government has been blessed with almost complete peace, but in time of trouble it would not fail, because it is "built on a rock."

A Canadian national literature, both prose and poetry, has come into being, and many Canadian artists and musicians have won world fame for their country. As the country grows older and more rich in history, Canada's sons will build up an even greater and more distinctively Canadian literature and art.

From early times religion has been a great influence on the character of the Canadian. It has made a wonderful advance, and never were churches more crowded or ministers wielding the life of the nation than they are today

No more striking advance has been made than that in education. Our schools, agricultural colleges, and universities, are doing a great work. It will surely result in a broader view, and a clearer vision, making Canada's sons and daughters indeed worthy to be Empire builders!

Surely Canadians have cause for rejoicing. To them belongs a great clean new land, which to Kipling is a land "Of Youth". To them have been handed down the British traditions. Before them lies the opportunity of building up the greatest and most enduring civilization the world has ever known. First in the hearts of her people, Canada may well be confident hope to be first among nations.

Canada! Maple Land! Land of great distances!
Lakeland and riverland! Land 'twixt the seas!
Great as God, beauts that are large as our heritage,
Spirits as free as the breeze.
Last born of Nations! The offspring of Empire!
Hoty to wide prairies, thick forests, red gold!
Grant us, God, wisdom to value our birthright,
Courage to guard what we hold!

UNIVERSITY STEERS READY
AS IN PREVIOUS YEARS SHOWS

As in previous years a number of steers fitted for the show ring by the department of animal husbandry at the University of Alberta, will again compete for honours at the Toronto Royal show and the Chicago International Live-stock exhibit animals including representatives of the three principal breeds will be found in the list this year where it is hoped they will equal the high mark set by Alberta entries in former years

Included in the set animals contributed to the University for this purpose by the following Alberta breeders: W. M. Parkyn, Calgary; Wm. Sharp, Lacombe; J. L. Walters, Clive, T. Suddaby, Leroy; C. H. Richardson, Dewdney; W. McIlmoyle, Jarvis; W. H. Macdonald, Grainger, and D. J Ursulin, Stavely, the remaining eleven head having been bred on the University Farm. Arrangements are being made for an advance showing of these cattle at the University barns at 2 o'clock, Wednesday afternoon, November 7, when all livestock breeders and others interested are invited to attend.

ALBERTA WHEAT YIELD AVERAGE IS REDUCED

In the fields of acreage reported by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics from threshings in all sections of the province it appears that the average yield per acre of wheat in Alberta will be 16.4 bushels lower than the estimate of the Provincial Department of Agriculture. Although this figure is more than 5 bushels lower than the estimate of the Provincial Department of Agriculture, it is still 2 bushels higher than the average yield per acre for the last ten years. The total production of wheat in Alberta is placed at 57,000,000

Minister: I wish to announce that on Wednesday evening the Ladies' Aid will have a rummage sale. This is a chance for all the ladies of the congregation to get rid of anything that is not worth keeping but is too good to be thrown away. Don't forget to bring your husbands.

Man: Just acquitted, to counsel: "Thanks very much. What on earth should I have done without you?"

Canadian Club Activities

Extension Of Speakers' Itineraries Is Planned At Ottawa Meeting

Extension of speakers' itineraries for Canadian clubs, enlargement of the Canadian Club Magazine, radio programmes, and organization policy were discussed at Ottawa, at the first meeting this autumn of the executive committee of the Association of Canadian Clubs. C. G. Cowan, of Ottawa, was re-elected chairman of the executive.

Miss Kathrine Evans formerly of Winnipeg, was appointed to the permanent staff of the association. She is a daughter of W. Rexford Evans, M.L.A. one of the two founders of the Canadian Club movement.

The executive issued instructions to the national office to arrange 1,000 meetings for the 120 Canadian clubs during the season and discussed the use of the radio for broadcasting Canadian club addresses and concerts. A National Canadian Club Radio committee will be appointed at the next executive meeting, to make arrangements for the broadcasting.

London Solves Garage Problem

Cars Are Sunk Into Concrete Pit In Garden

To sink a car underground and make it reappear, when wanted, by pressing a button, is the latest contribution to the garaging problem. Many even of the post-war houses in London, have not sufficient side-space to erect a garage, and "building-line" regulations prevent structures being put up in the front garden. The new invention overcomes these difficulties. A concrete pit is sunk in the desired position, and machinery is installed for raising or lowering a platform carrying the motor car. A canopy is fitted to the platform so that when it is sunk to the level of the ground it forms a weather-proof shelter for the garage. The device, it is claimed, is both burglar-proof and fool-proof, the mobility being operated from inside the house by simple control push buttons.

Marie "If you could have two wishes, what would they be?"

"The rest, the note at the bank and the instalment on "my car," growled his dad.

Factories On the Prairie

Western Canada Becoming An Attractive Field For Industrial Enterprise

Factories are beginning to dot the prairies of Western Canada. The process of industrialization which has gone on in other lands is noticeable in Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta. In these provinces, usually regarded as purely agricultural, there are now 2,210 factories, with an invested capital of $233,857,370. The employees number 36,626; the annual wage bill is $46,178,949, and the value of manufactured products $163,252,180.

Manitoba leads the three prairie provinces in the volume of its manufacturing industry, with an annual output of $152,718,652. Alberta follows with $43,425,831, and Saskatchewan is third with $47,108,097.

Flour mills contribute a large share of the total production, with an annual value of $51,118,136. Slaughtering and meat packing follows with $22,005,504. Dairy products account for $23,422,578. These industries are the natural outcome of farm production. Next in importance are the lines like these: Railway rolling stock $10 286,727; electric light and power distribution, $8,623,000, and gasoline $5,077,684, petroleum products $8 434,434.

With increasing prosperity and increasing farm production Western Canada, as the figures disclose, is becoming an attractive field for industrial enterprise.

Prove It For Yourself

Write down the number of your living brothers and sisters. Multiply it by two. Add three. Multiply the result by five. Add the number of living sisters. Multiply the result by ten. Add the number of dead brothers and sisters. Subtract one hundred and fifty from the result. The right figure will be the number of deaths, the middle figure the number of living sisters, and the left hand figures the number of living brothers.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

NOVEMBER 4

WORLD'S TEMPERANCE SUNDAY

Golden Text: "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor; love therefore is the fulfilment of the law."—Romans 13.10.

Lesson: Romans 13.1-14.

Devotional Reading: Psalms 15.

Explanations and Comments

Obedience To Civil Authority a Christian Duty, verses 1-7.—"Is it lawful to give tribute to Caesar, or not?" was the burning question which the Pharisees brought to Jesus, and you recall how He answered, "Render unto Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and unto God the things that are God's." A great part of the Jews were always questioning the lawfulness of paying taxes and of recognizing the authority of the Roman Government. The Jews of Rome had been especially turbulent, and of this Paul must have heard many accounts from Priscilla and Aquila, who had been forced to leave Rome on account of the trouble. In writing to the Romans, therefore, Paul was naturally led to take up the question of the Christian's relation to the civil authority.

"Let every soul be in subjection to the higher powers," said he, simply, the civil rulers, he counseled, and then by means of two clauses, one negative and the other positive, he asserted that the fact of the authority being established argued that it was ordained of God.

The Roman Empire maintained law and order, protected life and property, and was on the whole, Paul believed a beneficient power. Nero, the reigning emperor, was, it is true, a disreputable young man until often attributed did as he pleased with the lives of his subjects, but at the time Paul was writing, persecution of the Christians had come from other Jews or from popular riots, and not from the Roman Government. (Compare Acts 13); Thessalonica (Acts 17); Corinth (Acts 18); and at Ephesus (Acts 19); Paul had found the Roman officials a restraining power in his persecutors. Noteworthy is it, that after Paul had appealed to Rome and had been kept in confinement for some time without trial, he wrote to Timothy, 1. Tim. 2.1, 2; "I exhort therefore first of all, that supplications, prayers, intercessions, thanksgivings, be made for all men; for kings, and for all that are in high places, that we may lead a tranquil and quiet life in all godliness and gravity."

"If our laws are not Christian, then it is our business to make them Christian; if those in authority do not represent Christian ideals, we are not to deny authority, but to secure legislators and governors whose ideals are Christian. We are more fortunate than those to whom Paul originally wrote; we have some say about the laws which are to be enacted and the officials who execute them."—Claus Glenn Atkins.

Reason For Butter Shortage

More Milk Made Into Cheese On Account Of High Price.

As the end of the dairying season approaches, there are 8,800,000 pounds less butter in cold storage in Canada than last year. Figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics show 29,129,800 pounds in storage on Oct. 1, as compared with 38,000,000 pounds on the same date in 1927, and 32,173,000 pounds for the five-year average.

A similar depletion of cheese stocks is revealed. There were 27,-793,000 pounds in storage on Oct 1, a decrease of 7 977,000 pounds from last year's total of 35,770,000 pounds. The five-year average was 30,348,000

The quantity of cheese graded up to the end of September of this year was 1,219,150 boxes, as compared with a total of 1,163,308 boxes for the same period in 1927, or an increase of 55,912 boxes.

The reason ascribed by Department of Agriculture officials for the lower stocks of butter and cheese this year as compared with last year is the higher prices prevailing for cheese in the export markets. More milk was made into cheese and less into butter as a result and both products have been exported quickly to meet the outside demand.

DEWBERRY BUDGET

The past week has been eventful to the younger generation; first, the Government Clinic which was held at Greenbank H. P. A. hall, where the school children of the district, along with several others from more distant schools, underwent minor operations, and had the following parts of their anatomy removed with the consent of their parents: Tonsils, adenoids, decayed teeth, and also received other advice from the doctors and nurses. It is to be hoped that this will be an annual affair, and that it will add to the health of the future citizens.

Some day perhaps we will be far enough advanced to have a clinic for the adults where experts in discovering human frailties will give all of us the once-over and advise us as to cures, laziness, squeaky lungs, etc.

Another feature for the youngsters from the daily routine was the Halloween party organized by the Harewood school teacher, Miss Finlay. The school was decorated for the occasion, lanterns, etc. hung around the walls and the school was visited by six ghosts who mysteriously disappeared one by one. The fun grew fast and furious, the youngsters claiming that the honour of their identities and whole-heartedly. Games of all sorts were indulged in and the ones by Frank Allen, "Bill His Whiskey Lover" caused roars of laughter. The gathering finished about midnight with one big circle of laughing boys and girls singing "Auld Lang Syne."

Gen Cannon, Jr., who was operated on in Islay Hospital on Friday 26th, is doing well. His friends will be pleased to know that latest reports are that he is feeling much better and doing fine. We all hope to see him well again and back in his home

Urge Linking Up 40 Mile Heinsberg -Turtleford Gap

Asking Steel from Turtleford to Extension East of Elk Point

Linking up of a forty-mile gap on the C. N. R. between Turtleford and the extension east of Elk Point is being strongly urged by the St. Paul board of trade, according to a resolution received by K. A. Blatchford, M. P. for East Edmonton. It is contended that this should be included in the present three-year program which will be completed in 1929.

Mr Blatchford who returned from Vancouver on Thursday morning, said that he is referring the request to railway officials in order to obtain further information regarding it. He also intends to support the application when the next session at the house of commons is held in the new year.

Text of Resolution

The resolution, which is signed by E. J. Tiffaudeau, secretary-treasurer of the St. Paul board of trade, is as follows:

"Whereas, under the present three-year railway building program which expires in 1929, there will be a gap of only forty miles to be bridged between the end of the extension east of Elk Point on the line between St. Paul and Edmonton, and the extension west from Turtleford on the line running west from North Battleford, and

"Whereas the closing of the said gap will bring about a through route by the Canadian National railways and make both branches a main line between Edmonton and North Battleford and Prince Albert and put this line immediately upon a paying basis; therefore, be it resolved that the business country line between the said point and tributary thereto and will place this country within reach of further colonization for incoming immigrants from all countries, be it

"Resolved that the government be requested to provide at the next session a sufficient sum of money to complete this line at as early a date as possible and that this line not be left for completion until the next three-year program."

AUTO SMASHED WHEN HORSES RUN AWAY

A Chevrolet touring car belonging to L. Carey of Islay, was badly damaged when a team belonging to Mr Shepherd and driven by an employee of his, took fright at Mackenzie's store here about 4 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. The wagon was being loaded with barrels of gasoline and, when the driver stepped away, throwing the lines on the back of the horses, they started to run. They came up Railway avenue and turned east down Main street. Here they narrowly missed running into and demolishing the car which was parked just west of Dunham's barber shop. The only effect which Carey's car received was a few scratches on the fenders, and he drove it home under its own power. The runaway team was finally stopped on the corner of Mr Kerse's where a dairy lunch was in progress and without doing any damage. It is determined to carry on and hope for more such thrills and social times.

On Friday, M. W. Baker motored to Minburn and very kindly took several of the sisters for the district meeting, held there, and all report a splendid time enjoyed by a chicken dinner given by the Minburn Rebekah lodge and warm welcome received.

A Contribution To Canada

Out of the welter of charge and denial and appeals to racial and religious prejudice which characterized the recent Arm River by-election in Saskatchewan one refreshing note emerged—a speech from a special correspondent vividly to present the merits of this column.

In the course of his journeyings around the constituency reporting the campaign he had occasion to call on a resident of the district in question had to make his trip at the back door of the smaller villages. The hotel was one of the usual type found in prairie villages. The rotunda he describes as a bower of floral beauty. A rose garden is to be a greenhouse. The ceiling was decorated and plastered the proprietor having said out five different places for it before he felt satisfied. The hotel was scrupulously clean. The table was well stocked and the service prompt and efficient.

The correspondent was curious and he entered into conversation with the proprietor of the Kasper Haberlach by name. The secret of the beautiful hotel was revealed when it is said in the fact that in his youth, the proprietor had been a sailor, sober and industrious, a lover for trees and the beauty of life in it. He was for the hotel, also found expression in his flowers. For getting his name, Kasper Haberlach told how he came to Canada sixteen years ago, in his early manhood. Today he is the father to seven daughters and two sons, most of whom were born in Canada.

Proud as Kasper Haberlach is of his attractive hotel, it is his family in which he rejoices. Particularly is he proud of their school attainments. One of the Misses Haberlach left her school for three years in succession. The youngest girl now aged seven, is a member of the Chautauqua promoters a corps of years ago because of her talents as an entertainer. Kasper Haberlach himself speaks six languages fluently, but, says the correspondent, "I think he considers most proud of the fact that his children all speak English indistinguishable from any other Canadian children."

Mr Haberlach has a praiseworthy method of inculcating thrift in his family. His daughters help to earn the money which they spend. "I have always told them," he said, "to pay my children wages daily for their help in the business, just as I would strangers. They are encouraged to save for education or business or whatever they desire.

Now what we find so encouraging in this whole story is that it seems to provide an answer to many good people who are greatly concerned over the subject of immigration. Here is a man who came to Canada from another foreign country, whose mother tongue is not English but who, coming to Canada, brings with him an inborn sense of beauty, skilled craftsmanship, habits of thrift, high ideals of home life and citizenship, and a keen appreciation of the value of education. A man assures that his children shall have the best that life can offer and determined that, to the full extent of his ability, they shall enjoy those privileges.

In the story from real life today, we also find a satisfactory answer for those who are inclined to question the efficiency of our schools and educational systems, and their ability to perform the task of largely assimilating new comers from other lands into our common Canadian family.

The fact cannot but be realized and accepted that Kasper Haberlach brought with him to Canada something far greater value to this country than money and that the contribution he is making to the upbuilding of this Dominion is something more than, and far beyond, the mere making of money through the management of a well regulated hostelry for the comfort and convenience of the travelling public.

In the evolution and development of the Canadian people we require all the best that is the characteristic of the best in all the thrift and the full recognition of the real things of life, that all the peoples of all the countries can contribute Canada does not desire to be a mere copy of any other nation or people even though that nation and people be the best in the world today. Our ambition is loftier than that, as a Dominion our ambition is to arise still higher, and to develop on this northern half of the American continent a type of citizenship superior to all that have preceded us, a citizenship that shall be God-fearing, healthy, industrious and happy, revelling in all that is beautiful in art, music, literature and nature and finding a real joy and satisfaction in serving God and humanity.

And to this end, also a contribution to make in working out this pattern of a strong and ideal Canadian citizenship this Dominion should extend a welcoming hand.

Canada's Progress Steady

Growth Not Just a Boom Says Hon. James Malcolm

Canada is progressing steadily By almost every standard that can be applied her economic position is becoming increasingly satisfactory as time goes on and the people are now at a very high level of national well being.

So says Hon James Malcolm minister of trade and commerce in the federal cabinet, in a report given in England of the conditions now reigning in the Dominion

There is a sound basis of prosperity in this country, he says. There have been no great booms unfounded on natural development or inflation but in the light of indications There is an increasing possession of comforts and conveniences of life among the people of Canada—there is a sound credit in their banks. There is prosperity in the air and happiness in the homes of the Dominion

The amount of construction of new buildings throughout the Dominion in the last year has been phenomenal as report shows but there has been overstepping the needs of the people, developing commercially The country is not as in the days of the boom period which was climaxed in 1912 building any great railway lines in advance of population Rather, construction in all lines is proceeding in response to any needs It is a healthy progress

New Serum For Burns

Recent Discovery Lessens Skin Unblemished Surgeons Are Told

A new method of treating burns, causing quick healing with absence of scars, discolored skin or other blemishes, was described before the convention of the National Association of Police and Fire Surgeons and medical directors of Civil Service Commission.

The method, as detailed by Dr Stephen R Monteith, of Nyack, N.Y., was first discussed by Dr. John G. White, of New York, involves the use of "normal horse serum" made from the blood of horses under a laboratory discovered method. The serum is sprayed with an atomizer on the burned skin surfaces and it is said has produced astonishing results.

TO THE MOTHERS OF ALL PALE GIRLS

If Your Daughter Shows Signs Of Anaemia a Tonic Is Needed

Anaemia is simply a lack of blood. It is one of the most common and at the same time most dangerous troubles from which growing girls suffer. It is common because the blood so often becomes impoverished during development, when girls suffer overwork and overstudy. It is dangerous because the stealthiness of its approach and because of its tendency to grow steadily worse. Every growing girl should occasionally take a blood tonic, and when she shows trouble. It is because of their powerful action in rebuilding the blood that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made a world-wide reputation. The case of Miss Clara Pelletier, Dundee Creek, Alta., amply proves the value of this medicine. Miss Pelletier says "During my school days I suffered a great deal from poor, watery blood. I was continually weak and tired, my appetite was poor, my head was unfreshing and I was troubled with dizzy spells. I knew always when I was attacked with acute appendicitis and the operation left me in a very weakened state. I then heard the learning of the value of Dr Williams' Pink Pills, and soon after beginning after using them for some time I can truly say that they have fully benefited me, as they completely restored my health, strength and appetite. I procure I always recommend these pills to girls who are suffering as I did."

You can get the pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Psychologists Ready Effect Of Noise On Human System

"City" rats and "country" rats are being raised at Colgate University, Hamilton, N.Y., and the "city" rats are developing nervousness.

The effect of noise on health and activity is what Dr. Donald Laird, head of the psychology department of the university, wants to discover. All the rats are free from molestation. The cats and the consequent nervous strain.

By exposing the rats to varying noises from time to time and by withholding them from which growing girls suffer. Dr. Laird expects to learn what so often becomes impoverished during development, when girls suffer overwork and overstudy. It is dangerous because the stealthiness of its approach and because of its tendency to grow steadily worse. Every growing girl should occasionally take a blood tonic, and when she shows trouble. It is because of their powerful action in rebuilding the blood that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have made a world-wide reputation. The case of Miss Clara Pelletier, Dundee Creek, Alta., amply proves the value of this medicine. Miss Pelletier says "During my school days I suffered a great deal from poor, watery blood. I was continually weak and tired, my appetite was poor, my head was unfreshing and I was troubled with dizzy spells. I knew always when I was attacked with acute appendicitis and the operation left me in a very weakened state. I then heard the learning of the value of Dr Williams' Pink Pills, and soon after beginning after using them for some time I can truly say that they have fully benefited me, as they completely restored my health, strength and appetite. I procure I always recommend these pills to girls who are suffering as I did."

You can get the pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box, from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Manitoba Hydro Extensions

Comprehensive Plan For Extending Electrical Power To Outer Rural Districts

An extensive hydro development programme which would bring electrical power to practically every town in Manitoba and to farms where by use of electricity in it many ways the drudgery of rural life could be eliminated, was outlined by Hon Donald G. McKenzie, newly appointed minister of mines and natural resources, in an address at Virden Man.

Hr. McKenzie, who will be in charge of the provincial government's hydro development plans, outlined the programme at a meeting of the United Farmers of Manitoba, Brandon District

Mr McKenzie announced that the government has decided to present legislation providing for the payment of one-half the cost of rural electrification lines, including a line to Brandon; new lines to all towns in Manitoba, farm lines and lines already constructed

The legislation will also provide facilities with will permit of the construction of transmission lines to all parts of Manitoba within seven years. Under the plans very low rates are assured, said Mr. McKenzie, for the rural users of power

Interesting Information Regarding Prehistoric Reptiles Discovered In Bad Lands Of Alberta

Under the auspices of the Calgary Rotary Club, Prof. Chas. M. Sternberg, of Ottawa, field palaeontologist for the Canadian National Museum, addressed two audiences, recently, on the fossil remains of prehistoric reptiles discovered during recent years along the Red Deer River in the Drumheller District.

"The Dinosaurs of the Bad Lands of Alberta" was the title given to Prof. Sternberg's very interesting address and he illustrated it step by step with moving pictures, showing the careful work of excavation, and diagrams and reconstructions of the monster reptiles in their former habitat.

As a single day is to the average life of man, said the professor, so is the entire span of existence of the human life on earth as compared with the time during which life is in other forms has existed. Life on the planet had been divided for purposes of study, into five great periods, of which the last two were marked by reptilian, the mammalian and human.

Among the most interesting inhabitants of earth during the reptilian period of geologic time was the group known as the monsters the dinosaurs, a name which simply meant, "terrible lizards." said Prof Sternberg, they were walked in great variety, but a large group of which more than three hundred different varieties have been discovered by the scientists, and this group included the most spectacular creatures which have inhabited the earth during the race. In size they graded from one hundred feet in length, the largest creature which ever walked upon earth, in varieties measuring only a couple of feet and closely resembling some of the reptiles of today.

The most conservative estimate which has been put upon the period during which the dinosaurs flourished on the face of the reptilian age as twelve millions of years ago and the end of that period as not less than three millions of years.

In Alberta, said Professor Sternberg, had been found one of the greatest deposits of fossilized remains of these creatures known to exist on earth. Thirty-five species had so far been discovered representing five different families.

Throwing a chart of the North American continent, as it had existed during the later reptilian age, on the screen, the lecturer explained why the Alberta Bad Lands had been a favorite habitat for the dinosaurs. The eastern and western halves of North America at that period were divided by an immense central sea which had stretched from the Arctic to the Gulf of Mexico, and from the present foothills of the Rockies to the rising lands in what are now the eastern portions of Canada and the eastern states of the American union

The area where Calgary now stands and the Rockies themselves were then but little raised above sea level, it was explained, and from the highest land there moving streams brought down great deposits of silt which piled up along the shores of the central sea, forming rich deltaic Vegetation was semi-tropical; palms of many varieties, figs and species of trees which have since vanished, grew in profusion among the soggy delta-lands, and these swamps were the chosen home of the giant reptiles

The disappearance of the dinosaurs was probably due to a number of causes but the great catastrophe was responsible for their extinction The gradual rising of the mountain areas and the drying up of the immense sea possibly cut off their food supply little by little, and some three millions of years ago the last of the species had give up the struggle

The neighborhood of Drumheller and Steveville along the Red Deer river was today the most fruitful hunting ground for those seeking information on the life and habits of these creatures, said Prof. Sternberg. There were probably equally rich deposits of fossils at other places along the margin of the inland sea area, but here in Alberta the Red Deer River, seeking in comparatively recent geologic times for an outlet channel had cut its way through the prairie lands which had formerly been the delta-land of the central sea and had exposed great grave-yards of dinosaurs, where their bodies had been buried in the muddy swamps in which they had lived.

Rich Mineral Areas In Southern Manitoba

Prospectors Report Finding Gold Silver, Copper and Tin

Vast areas of land, approximately 70 miles southeast of Winnipeg, are rich in mineral products including gold, silver, copper and tin, according to a statement issued by Mayor E. J. Swain, of St. Boniface, who returned to the city from a prospecting trip in Southern Manitoba.

Mayor Swain, in company with one of the oldest prospectors of Manitoba, has been investigating the southern areas for the last two years. The couple have made numerous trips to the land, which for the most part is barren and unpopulated.

The pioneer prospector, who accompanied Mayor Swain on his various trips to the southern area, is the man who sawyed the first tree to come out of The Pas. He is a practical chemist and on the recent prospecting trip has done practically all of the assaying.

Solvity In Britain

Indications Would Point To Fact That Country Is Going Dry

A striking change is taking place in the drinking habits of Britain. Since 1900 the consumption of spirits in England was 82,350,823 gallons. In 1913 it was 22 004,488 gallons; Scotland, 1900, 7,758,860; 1927, 23,418,846. Scotland, 1902, 2,360,730; 1913, 2,110,666; 1927, 1,673,576.

It is not surprising to learn in view of these figures that the leading brewers are contemplating a joint advertising campaign in order to implant the idea that "beer is the healthiest drink."

What is the cause of this new wave of sobriety? Students of social conditions point to new inventions new habits, wholly new paces in the speed of life. The lure of the cinema, the lure of the wireless, have proved formidable rivals. Still another time-honored custom has vanished; no longer does the business man stop on the way home at his local port at eleven o'clock. He takes "morning coffee."

Motor cars, too, are playing their part. Time was when the sober horse ambled safely home with the tipsy driver. The motor car does not know the road so well. Formerly one could drink before driving; today one dares not even drinking. A man who has to drive more drinks less, if he drinks anything at all, after he gets home. — London Sunday Express.

Federal Government Willing To Aid Community Efforts In Move to Promote New Industries

Many Opinions Are Unjust

Much Harm Done By People Broadcasting First Impressions

Do not judge a man by your first impression, or a country by one or two natives with whom you come in contact. By so doing you may do the man or the country a rank injustice

A Pennsylvania woman who recently returned from a visit to Canada, regaled her friends and neighbors with hours of gossip about the cleanliness and meanness of an official at the boundary line To her, Canada was a good land not to live in; the Canadians were good people to leave alone, and her own United States was something that she was more proud of than ever.

When it was pointed out to her that the official in question was an American and not a Canadian, she could say nothing except "Well! I think no more of him, no matter what he is"

But her reaction toward a friendly people had been broadcast. Many may have heard of the incident, but who will never hear her apology. Her snap judgment not only demonstrated her own ignorance, but placed blame where blame was not due. As a matter of fact, the American official was probably doing his duty precisely as what seemed "gruff" to the tourist was probably merely a careful attention to duty

Tourists are walking, talking, perpetual advertisements. The impression a tourist leaves, or a people make upon them, means much to the country, the town and the people — and vice versa, as well But when "snap judgment," passes brickbats when bouquets are due Richard S. Read.

B.C. Plans Settlement Of British Immigrants

Land Government Now Busy Exploring Available Agricultural Lands

A proposal for the settlement of available lands in British Columbia by British immigrants will be laid before the British authorities by the local government in the near future, according to an official dispatch to the Sunday Province.

The government is busy exploring the available agricultural lands now and as soon as this work is completed the local officials will be prepared to tell the British government just what these new settlers can be placed No area will be selected until it is ascertained that it will give a settler a real opportunity to make a successful farmer. A block system of settlement is favored.

Agricultural Research

Canada To Take Part In Maintaining Work in Britain

It is announced by Dr J H Grisdale Deputy Minister of Agriculture that in response to an invitation by the Imperial Agricultural Research Conference in London, Canada, has decided to take her part in the maintenance of the three imperial bureaux to be established for the furtherance of agricultural research, with particular attention to industry already established, members conversant with transportation conditions, banking and agricultural economics, the housing situation, labour conditions, etc. It requires the whole-hearted support of manufacturers and merchants in a word to achieve success. It requires concentration of the collective business energy of the community and control of that experience in industrial investigations In this latter respect the Minister of the Interior has stated that his department is solidly behind the industrial survey and is anxious that organizations which undertake such work should make free use of the experience and investigatory facilities of the Natural Resources Service.

Industrial surveys are expected to be very much to the fore in Canada in the near future as a preliminary to greater development of the natural resources of the Dominion. Following the announcement of Hon. Chas. Stewart, Minister of the Interior, that his department would be glad to co-operate with Chambers of Commerce, Boards of Trade, City Councils, or other local public organizations prepared to carry on such work, there are many indications that rural materials, markets, labour, transportation and other aspects affecting development will be studied on a broad and comprehensive scale in many Canadian cities in the near future

The extent to which the federal government is prepared to co-operate with local public bodies was recently outlined by an officer of the Department of the Interior, in a conference with the industrial executive of the Victoria Chamber of Commerce All the resources and industrial information possessed by the Dominion government intelligence service and the services of officers of the department will be available to the city of that province when they are considering plans for industrial expansion. Industrial engineers would proceed to various centres of Canada when required, and would work in co-operation with committees of the Chamber of Commerce, Board of Trade, City Council, or whatever public organization was undertaking the industrial survey

As the result of an industrial survey carried out by the Manitoba Development Board, sixty-five new industries were established and at Windsor the prospects are bright following a survey there It was pointed out that a development had already been successful in assisting in the establishment of entirely new industries in Canada as a result of studies conducted in Ottawa, as to the starting up of a fish meal industry on the Pacific coast which had since been followed by many other plants. Another instance was in the establishment of plants from skimmed milk, now carried on at a number of points in Canada, since a survey of the possibilities of manufacturing this material was conducted by the National Resources Service. One firm in the Prairie Provinces is now producing 70,000 pounds of this material per month.

Another recent and unique instance of the effectiveness of such investigations was in the starting up of an industry in the Maritime Provinces to manufacture an insulating quilt or blanket from eel grass, a seaweed occurring abundantly along the shores of the Maritime Provinces and lower St. Lawrence. This industry will add another manufactured product to the list of imported materials replaced by home products.

The industrial survey is properly a community affair, the success of which depends primarily upon the initiative and enterprise of the local business men. No outside agency, however splendid, can bring anything like the same permanent interest and detailed knowledge to bear. The instance of the three imperial bureaux to be established for the furtherance of agricultural research, with particular attention to industry already established, members conversant with transportation conditions, banking and agricultural economics, the housing situation, labour conditions, etc. It requires the whole-hearted support of manufacturers and merchants in a word to achieve success. It requires concentration of the collective business energy of the community and control of that experience in industrial investigations In this latter respect the Minister of the Interior has stated that his department is solidly behind the industrial survey and is anxious that organizations which undertake such work should make free use of the experience and investigatory facilities of the Natural Resources Service.

SET OUT YOUR SHRUBS

It seems to us as if this is ideal weather to start flooding the rink. We have quite definite visions of Mayor Palmer on the job on Hallowe'en night last year getting an icy coating on the bottom of the arena, when our rink should rather than most of the city skating palaces. We would like to see the same thing happen this season. While our thoughts are running in this groove, we wonder if the high spot at the west end of the arena has been levelled off, so when the rest of the rink had ample ice on it this spot was barely covered.

Hoover Elected President U.S.

Hoover Carried 40 States with 444 Electoral Votes—Smith Only 8 States, with 87 Votes

NEW YORK, Nov 7—The strangest political campaign in generations appeared today to have produced this final paradox Herbert Hoover was elected president by an electoral vote far exceeding the 404 record of Warren G Harding in 1920, whereas his defeated opponent, Alfred E. Smith, polled the greatest popular vote ever received for any Democrat.

The electoral standings at present are Hoover 444, Smith 87

Smith seemed sure of only Alabama, Georgia, Louisiana, Mississippi and South Carolina in the heretofore "solid south", he had in addition the five electoral votes of Rhode Island, and was leading slightly in Massachusetts

The trend of the story was overwhelmingly Hoover This standing was based on United Press tabulations of nearly 25,000,000 votes, in every state in the union Hoover was leading Smith by nearly 2,000,000

Light Beam Produces Music

Expert Could Stop Sound By Shutting Light With His Hand

A narrow beam of light cast about an assembly room in the Hotel Biltmore, at Atlanta, Georgia, was changed into music and held under certain control at the will of Dr. Ivan Parker, engineering engineer of the General Electric Company at Schenectady, N.Y.

The demonstration, given before the American Institute of Electrical Engineers was made possible through a complicated apparatus by which electrical impulse is controlled by the beam of light, and represented what Mr. Taylor called "narrow castings."

The equipment used in the demonstration is known as a photo-phone, built on old principles Mr. Taylor said, but utilizing the perfected photo-electric tube, electric pick-up and newly developed amplifiers and sound projectors.

An ordinary phonograph with an intricate electrical attachment was used to produce the music. The electrical energy was sent over a light beam in transforming and reproducing elements mounted on a tripod across the room, and music and sound was the result. When Mr. Taylor would hold up his hand in the path of light the music would stop, and as he allowed the light to filter through his fingers the music increased in volume.

Another Story About Ants

Psychologist Tells How They Extinguish Fire With Formic Acid

Speaking of fire circuses, here is a story about ants who act as firemen supported by no less an authority than the Journal de Psychologie, edited by Dr. Pierre Janet, internationally known psychologist, of Paris.

Marguerite Combes, an entomologist of note, introduced a lighted candle into an ant-hill in the forest of Fountainbleau not far from Paris. A hill of brown ants known as "formica rufa." In a few moments the ants got a bit and then proceeded to extinguish the flame by squirting formic acid upon it.

These ants are definitely of a higher order than other species inhabiting the forest. In other hills, the ants either became panic stricken or died trying to bite the flame. Where they had intelligence to try to extinguish the fire by acid, they lacked the ability to direct the stream effectively.

Explanations and Comments

A Call To Consecration For Service, verses 1 and 2.—The teaching of these two long verses has been aptly expressed in these brief words: In view of all that God has done for us, we should henceforth live for him.

The One Volume Commentary paraphrases the verses thus: God's overflowing love should be answered by the true sacrifice and spiritual, ritual service of a life of purity and self-denial and work for God. Do not follow the fashion and customs of the worldly society around you, but let your ways of thinking be so changed by the Holy Spirit that you look for and recognize God's will and love to do it.

Present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God."

"No maimed or crippled thing might be offered to God by the Jewish law. If we would devote ourselves to God, we must be in that we have a self to devote. Self-consecration is not a begging of God in a very positive thing. Even our Lord said in the Sermon on the Mount, 'Ye are the salt of the earth.' Christ's Supreme Example is the most effectual way in which we can serve God in our generation. That is the way in which the torch has been handed down by a long succession of runners since the Cross first lighted it in the world. Ask yourselves how you have been helped by others. You will find, I think, that the occasions when you have been helped by what is spoken and the things done have been slight and unstudied. Sometimes we have been indelighte upon the person's sight and unstudied. Sometimes we have been indelighte upon the person's sight and unstudied. Sometimes we have been indelighte upon the person's s

The Red Cross Creed

It is the proud boast of the Red Cross Society that it is a purely voluntary organization, without any political, racial, or religious complexion whatsoever. Its members are men, women, and children of every village, city and community who have one grand creed to which they give their loyal allegiance

This is the world-wide belief that wherever suffering and ill-health be found, upon any cause whatsoever there is the bounden duty of Red Cross collectively or individually, to relieve and if.

The simplicity of this faith is not always apparent in a world that harries on, too pressed with its own affairs to pay the suffering child by the wayside, robbed of his birthright of health and strength. True world is too frequently passes by on the other side" and leaves the sufferer to his misery.

But as the Red Cross Society. There is the order of the kind deed, the pledge of the friendly hand. Not enough to stop and see, the Red Cross of today, like the Good Samaritan of old, has work to do where suffering is concerned. The one in the immortal tale of the way to Jericho has its counterpart in the motor ambulance that smoothly and carefully takes the patient on route to his destination.

The inn of Scripture finds itself today represented by two beautiful homes of healing in Calmary and Ed monton, known as the Junior Red Cross Hospitals.

The response paid by the friendly relations for the care of the sick Red Cross addresses itself in its earnest appeal to be allowed to carry on the divine work of healing "one of the least of these."

Didn't Take The Paper So Lost Money

Three concrete examples where lack of the weekly paper cost farmers of the district money are cited by the Western Enterprise One lost the time and expense of a trip to a district office to meet an inspector who had advertised his itinerary for other dates; another farmer lost $20 by a stray animal from his farm being sold at the pound after the statutory advertising in the local paper; and a third lost two cents a bushel on the hundreds of bushels of grain because he did not read that the Wheat Pool would pay a patronage bonus on all carlots consigned to Pool terminals instead of the company terminals. The moral was obvious, "Read the home town paper"

Only One Chance in Thirty-Six Billion

Former Leads Wheat Twice in Same Car

There is only one chance in thirty-six billions of it happening again.

At the town of Argyle, Manitoba, on September 20, a farmer named C. B. Somerville loaded part of his crop of Number 2 Durum into Canadian National Car No. 432371. The car went to the head of the lakes, was emptied and started west again. On October 1, eleven days later, it left the same station, Argyle, loaded with grain from the fields of the same farmer, C. B. Somerville. This time the wheat was Number 4 Durum, but the car was the same and the farmer was the same.

T. P. White, Canadian National Railways' superintendent of car service, thinks the incident is a reflection on the smoothness with which the great machine of grain transportation, handling millions of bushels, is running. But he realizes that it will never happen again in his lifetime.

From statistics as to the number of box cars and shipping stations in the west, and taking an average of 75 farmers who might possibly load at a point like Argyle, it has been calculated that there is one chance in thirty-six billion of a car going back to the same shipper at the same point.

TRAGEDY NEAR PAKAN CAUSED AS BOAT CATCHES IN DRIFTING ICE

PARKEY FAIR ARE DROWNED

Because they became panicky when their small rowboat became beamed in by ice as they were attempting to cross the river between ice-cakes, Paul Kondracki, immigrant, and John Halaichuk, jumped into the water and were drowned at Hopkin's Crossing Ferry, near Pakan, Alta., Friday afternoon, the boat afterwards being carried to within a few feet of shore, according to detailed reports of the drownings received at "A" division headquarters of the Alberta Provincial police Monday.

The body of Paul Kondracki was found Sunday afternoon about 400 feet from the point where he was seen to leap into the water. There were seven feet of water at the point, the body of the other man has not been recovered.

According to witnesses the men were making their way across the river in a rowboat and were accustomed to dodging ice cakes when their craft became hemmed in between several large cakes. Instead of staying where they were they jumped into the water. Later in the afternoon the force of the water shoved the boat still nearer, to within a few feet of the shore they were trying to reach.

Coroner Dr. Miller of Elk Point, Alta., and Const. Wilson of St. Paul de Metis investigated the tragedy and decided that an inquest is unnecessary.

A new industry—badger farming—may be started in Saskatchewan by John Hollingsworth, farmer, of Vanguard. Last spring Mr. Hollingsworth caught a badger and four pups. He built a large pen, about 16 feet long and 8 feet wide. During summer he fed the badgers until they are now quite tame, and are said to be larger than any badger running wild. Their coats are in excellent condition and offers of $18 for each skin have been received.

A new world record was set by the Canadian Pacific Railway recently when a train of grain more than a mile in length was operated between Stonghton and Arcola, in Saskatchewan. It was the longest and heaviest grain train in history, consisting of 135 loaded grain cars, each approximately 60 feet in length, a caboose and engine The gross weight was 8,212 tons and the total quantity of the cars were 302,000 bushels of grain.

The enthusiasm of the citizens of Quebec is so infectious that it is an easy matter to interest visitors in winter sports, stated J. G. Bryanden, winter sports manager of the Chateau Frontenac, in giving a forecast of this winter's programme. Skating, skiing and tobogganing will be in full swing as usual; the dog derby will most certainly take place; and the ice carnivals and storming of the citadel will probably be featured again he said. Mr. Bryanden mentioned the splendid co-operation given the winter activities at the Chateau Frontenac by the Quebec Winter Sports Association.

The number of disciples of Izaak Walton, Canadian and American, who have plied rod and reel in Canadian waters during the past season is greater than ever before, stated A. O Seymour, general traffic agent of the Canadian Pacific Railway at Montreal in announcing the winners of the Ontario headquarters camp fishing trophy competitions. Phillip Peterman of Lansing, Michigan, won the Nipissing River contest for specified trout, Edmund Eberhart of Chicago won the French River "muskey" prize, and Theodore Klop of Wiarton caught the largest bass entered in the Devil's Cap camp competition.

England will have enough Canadian apples shortly to keep the doctor away for the next year, if there is any truth in the proverb, as ships sailing for the old country this autumn are carrying many boxes of souvenir apples shipped by Canadians to their friends overseas. This has been the custom for the past few years and according to J. B. Martin, manager of the foreign department of the Canadian Pacific Express Company, it is becoming increasingly popular. So great has been the demand for fresh Canadian apples each autumn for shipment to Europe that express throughout the country now have standard size boxes for shipping and special low rates are granted by the express companies

The United Church was filled to overflowing on Sunday evening when it was officially re-opened for public worship. Principal J. M. Miller, D.D., of Edmonton—the special preacher for the day—in a few words commended the enterprise so successfully carried through. The new building was an expression of their united purpose and gave visibility to their desire to serve together the one God and Father of all. In a beautiful prayer of dedication the church was set apart to the worship of God and the service of men. Dr. Miller then preached a very helpful sermon from the text "Hope thou in God," Psalm 42:5. He pointed out the danger of concentrating too exclusively on things of secondary value and forgetting the truths that lie at the centre of life. One of the ultimate realities of life was the question of the existence and character of God, yet many people thought more about the price of a motor car than as they did about God. Several reasons were given why many people didn't get the joy and strength of hoping in God, especially when disappointments, sorrows and calamities bore down on us.

People often misunderstand the idea of God that Christ brought to the world, for instance, for example, though that the divine voice required him to sacrifice his beloved daughter. He lived in the twilight of revelation. If only he could have seen the glorious and full-orbed idea of the Divine love as seen revealed in his heart would not have been broken by his misunderstanding of God's character.

Many people think of God as a Monarch demanding obedience. We should rather think of Him as the Father or our spirits to whom we may have fellowship. God is not a Being who receives our tribute. Rather He gives Himself to those redemption

Misunderstanding also arises out of abstract and philosophical definitions of God. They may be very true but do not readily give a picture of the Divine goodness such as one finds for example, in the parable of the Prodigal Son. The fact is that wonderful story gives us a clue to the heart of the Divine Fatherhood

In conclusion, Dr. Millar urged that the United Church should become the irresistably blessed medium of this pure and glorious idea of God given to us by Jesus Christ.

A feature of very special interest at the service was the presence of many of the oldest members of the congregation. Mrs. Walker, Mrs. Walker was present at the opening service of the original church twenty-two years and is one of the four now in the congregation who were present on that

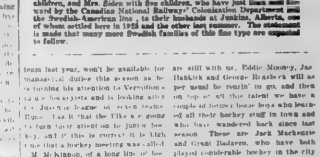
PLENTY OF ROOM IN CANADA



For the wives and families back in the homeland it is often a story of patient waiting while the husbands and fathers win a new start in the Canadian West. But the re-union is happy and the future bright when they are once more joined in the new home. Here is a group comprising two families of Swedish colonists, Mrs. Eriksson with her family of two children, and Mrs. Sidén with five children, who have just been reunited by the Canadian National Railways' Colonization Department and the Swedish-American line, in their husband at Junkins, Alberta, one of whom settled here in 1926 and the other last summer. The statement is made that many more Swedish families of this fine type are expected to follow.

The Menace of Communism

The Sixth International Communist Congress held in Moscow this year declared in avowed policy "to concentrate Communist propaganda on the young people of the world," not on the young people of Russia, or even of Europe, but of the world.

Had that declaration any meaning for Canada? Is it one that the people of Canada need pay any attention to, or in regard to which they should take action?

Communism thrives where there is oppression, injustice, extreme poverty, lack of employment resulting in enforced idleness, and, inevitably arising from these conditions, general discontent. Satan still finds mischief for idle hands to do, and there is nothing quite so mischievous in the world today as Communism and its many pernicious doctrines.

Communism, therefore, found fertile ground in Russia owing to the centuries old oppressions and injustices of the old Tsarist regime, during which the most abject poverty and ignorance continued among the masses of the people alongside an aristocracy rolling in wealth and indulging in all forms of extravagance and luxury. The added sufferings, sacrifices and horrors of the Great War were all that was necessary to set the country aflame and provide the Communists with the opportunity they had long been awaiting.

In Canada, unlike Russia, there is no oppression of the people; injustice is not tolerated, and has only to be exposed to be remedied; cases of extreme poverty are rare indeed, and, when found, sympathetic governmental organizations and people respond to the call of need; work, as a rule, is available to all who are willing to work, and seasons of unemployment are but temporary and not a general thing; the overwhelming mass of the people are happy and contended. The soil of Canada is, therefore, not fertile ground for cultivation by the Communist agitator.

Nevertheless, Canada is not being ignored by the Communists of Russia in their visionary attempt to establish a world power through the overthrow of all institutions of law and order, all religions, the destruction of all present forms of government, and the confiscation of all property and other rights of individuals. The Communist will never be satisfied until he brings about a reign of terror and a condition of chaos in all countries similar to that created by him in Russia and in certain portions of China. Wherever there is trouble, whether political, financial, industrial or social, there the Communist sees his opportunity, and in the past Canada has not been free from manifestations of Communist intrigue and activity. And the Moscow authorities stand ever ready to finance and encourage all such efforts.

The Communist leaders realize, however, that they cannot make much headway with the adult populations of Canada, the United States, and the self-governing Dominions of the British Commonwealth. Hence their present avowed intention to concentrate their propagandist activities on "the young people of the world."

And therein lies the danger to Canada. If in their youth while their minds are plastic and open to receive impressions, and before their characters are formed, the boys and girls of Canada, or of any country, can be inoculated with the germ of Communism, Canada is doomed.

Communism is conducting such a campaign in Canada at the present time. The orders of the International Congress, at Moscow, are being carried out to the letter. Communist day schools and Soviet Sunday schools are being conducted, the most pernicious literature for children is being circulated and every conceivable plan to attract the interest of the children is adopted and followed. In no way does there is a youthful tendency to scoff at religion as old-fashioned. God, the church, and all religion is openly as well as covertly attacked. Modern youth is encouraged to "go the limit" in throwing off the conventions and restraints of the past, and are ridiculed if they hesitate to do so. The sanctity of the home is laughed at, and parental, as well as all other forms of authority repudiated as forms of slavery and a denial of the rights of youth.

The campaign is highly dangerous. It is an insidious campaign, and therein lies its greatest danger because it is so frequently difficult to locate and combat it. But it must be fought and dragged into the open for the ugly thing it is, otherwise grief and sorrow is being prepared for parents and children alike, for the home, the church, and the state

In setting their faces sternly against this disruptive thing, let the Canadian people see to it that no oppression, no injustice, no suffering through poverty or because of lack of work, is allowed anywhere in the Dominion. Let the churches forget their minor differences in doctrine and in forms of worship and, instead of fighting each, unite their forces in order that effective warfare may be waged on a system which, if it is not destroyed, will similarly destroy all churches and all religion, and, in destroying these great bulwarks, destroy also the home and the state, and lead to the damnation of the individual

Along with the vastly improved position and prospects of grain farmers, beef cattle men in British Columbia who held on during lean years are reaping their reward. Sheep farmers at usual are on velvet sheep have been a consistently good bet in British Columbia for years, and appear likely to remain so. Here Bros. with 135 per cent. increase from the lamb crop are shipping between three and four thousand head to market and retaining around one thousand ewe lambs for breeding stock. Canadian Arctic Expedition

Well On the Way To Frozen North, Equipped With Radio

An example of the use of Canadian products by the Canadian Government in important scientific and exploration work comes with a report of the departure from Ottawa of the Canadian Arctic Expedition, organized by the Northwest and Yukon Branch of the Canadian Department of the Interior.

The expedition was under the direction of Major L. T. Burwash, well known Canadian Governmental explorer, who has spent much time in the far North. Press reports this summer indicated that Major Burwash was off on one of his solitary jaunts, but the general Canadian Arctic Expedition, according to information from Toronto, left that city in three parties.

All three parties were equipped with Eversady radio "S" batteries on the sets supplied for the expedition by the Department of Marine and Fisheries. Word has reached manufacturers of the Canadian National Carbon Company that all branches of this Department are using Canadian National Carbon Company products.

Reports this summer on Major Burwash's activities indicate he was engaged in exploration of unusual scientific interest which promises to yield also an abundance of romance. He planned a jaunt of 5,000 miles by railroad, boat and dog team taking him at the magnetic pole, his trip being planned partly as a hunt for relics of the Arctic expedition of Sir John Franklin which ended in disaster in 1845.

Rumor drifting back occasionally from the frozen North has told that one of Franklin's two ships, the Erebus and the Terror, may be sighted in the Arctic Ocean near King William Land or Boothia Peninsula. If the ship can be found the Canadian Government will be enriched by the recovery of old relics and records believed to be aboard her.

Major Burwash also planned to investigate conditions among the Eskimos north of Mackenzie and Keewatin districts, the former a centre of great commercial importance in the Eskimo trade route from Wagner Bay on the West Coast of Hudson Bay to Cockburn Bay south of King William Land.

One of the primary purposes for the expedition assigned by press reports is to determine the westward shift of the magnetic pole on that mariners' charts may be corrected.

Western Canada Airways Achieves Remarkable Record Transporting Freight In North

Announcement has been made that the Western Canada Airways Ltd., which have made The Pas the head office and principal base of operations during this summer, has under consideration the leasing of headquarters from The Pas to Cranberry Portage This change has not been definitely effected.

This company has achieved a remarkable record in aerial transportation during its first season. Hundreds of passengers and a large ambunt of freight has been transported over the north country without a mishap of any description and without the loss of a single pound of freight.

A notable example of the aerial work of the company was the journey of the superintendent, Major G. A Thompson, from The Pas recently to Fort Churchill for passengerg and return with the same day. Early in June after the steel had been laid on the Flin Flon railway to Cranberry Portage and passengers and freight began to be delivered to that point the airways company established a sub-base there and began that year the largest number of passengers and greatest tonnage of freight has been handled

Besides trips to Chesterfield Inlet and Fort Churchill many chartered trips have been made with passengers from The Pas to many other points in the north, including Reindeer Lake, Fort Nelson and Lake Rinage, but the principal freight business has been from Cranberry Portage which, base was established for the regular freighting business of the company

During two weeks from the base at Cranberry-Portage nearly 3 tons of freight and approximately 150 passengers were transported in Chil Lake and return.

This great volume of business has been handled by Major Parker Van Dervmal planes, the largest one of which has a carrying capacity of 1,500 pounds and a speed of 90 miles each. The successful operation of these planes has been due largely to the efficient pilots who are in the employ of the company. Those who are assisting Major Thompson are Ray Brown and Chief Pilot Hunter. It is estimated that they have carried during the season so far upwards of one hundred passengers.

Operations will be suspended until early freeze-up, which is expected to be about the middle of November. During this suspension the planes will be brought to The Pas and overhauled and the pontoons removed and skils substituted. This will give the planes three hundred pounds additional carrying capacity.

Why James A. Garfield Decided To Attend Williams College

An Ohio historian, J. H. Galbraith, has discovered the reason why James A Garfield entered Williams College when he had been undecided whether to matriculate at Yale or at Brown. He addressed letters of inquiry to the presidents of all three, receiving the usual conventional replies, but with one important difference. His answer from the then-famous Mark Hopkins of Williams added the cordial line. "We shall be glad to do what we can for you." Impressed by the courtesy of that response, the future president of the United States decided to go to Williams

Need Clean Books

The school children have no objections to frequent changes in textbooks. A book used by an older brother or sister is not nearly so fascinating to a child promoted to a higher grade as is the brand new book with stiff covers and unexceptionely clean. And it is stimulating to start class. We older folks have the advantage of getting as big an opportunity frequently enough. We keep right on and try to clean up the page that has been hopelessly spotted.

One Of World's Wonders

Curious Growth On Admiralty Island, Having Remarkable Properties

On the north shore of Admiralty Island, lying between the mainland and Vancouver Island, the mighty water-laiden fog from the Japan current has the effect of producing a growth of moss, declared by scientists to be one of the natural wonders of the northwest.

The curious growth starts on the drooping boughs of hemlock and spruce and continues to grow perennially. Specimens of this moss thirty feet long and four feet wide at the point of contact with the branch have been found. The largest specimens of growths of moss are so luxuriant and rank as to darken the forests along the shore of the island. Where spruce overhang the water moss keeps on growing after reaching the sea and extends many feet into the beach and tidewater.

Tourists viewing the island from steamers report this moss hanging in long blankets from forest trees gives the impression of many Indian wigwams erected among them.

Recent experiments with this kind of freely growing moss indicate that it has medicinal properties as does the swamp or sphagnum, widely used as surgical dressing in the world war

Measuring Time By Bell

Method Was In Use Many Centuries Ago

Residents on this continent who are fortunate enough to own specially designed radio sets can, if they please, regulate the course of their daily life and their social engagements by Westminster's famous clock tower. Every day the chime of Big Ben, hung high above the Houses of Parliament and struck on the 13½ ton bell, is broadcast to the world by an English firm. Transmitted at the incredible speed of the radio waves, it reaches listeners on this continent a fraction of a second earlier than it does the crowds on the streets of London. While enjoying the novelty of catching the distant sound and setting their time-keepers thereby with the requisite allowance for the difference between local and London time, few listeners pause to recall that they are combining both ancient and ultra-modern methods of ordering their daily affairs.

Among the most venerable of associations is that of the bell with the measurement of time. Early in ecclesiastical history, the bell began to be employed as a summons and a signal. The bell summoned the Roman soldiers to arms and the Roman citizens to the senate chamber—it so identified itself with the civil and religious life of the people that the call to faith as a signal for prayer or as a summons to the place of worship brought the sound of the bell to become an integral part of ecclesiastical architecture. The Angelus, the Ave Marie, the vesper bell and the curfew are but a few of the peals ringing out at fixed hours of the day and night and by their own distinctive purpose and as an announcement at time intervals.

Though bells no longer depends upon the bell, and modern noise is apt to drown its vibrations, the bell remains a necessary adjunct in many fleet long and four feet wide at the point of contact with the branch have been found. The largest specimens of growths of moss are so luxuriant and rank as to darken the forests along the shore of the island. Making Good In Canada

British Immigrant Out Only Three Years Buys Half Section Of Land

Bad is more often heard of than Good, and in a similar manner one hears more often of the failure of the British immigrant and his family or the more recent British hatcheters in their attempts to make good on the farms of the Western province. But every once in a while comes a tale of success.

William V. Evans came out from Hereford, South Wales, some three years ago with his young wife, to find work in the much-heralded Dominion of Canada, where, between snowfalls, golden wheat grew up and made everyone a millionaire in no time. Soon after their arrival they Evans found work on a farm. The work was new and very hard for a time, but they soon began to gain more experience and with this came confidence in themselves that enabled them to take on more responsible and more lucrative positions.

Now, three years after landing in Canada, Mr. Evans is a happy man with only 24 years behind him, has purchased a fully equipped half-section of land, together with several pure-bred head of stock. The Farm is eight miles north of Herison, and is in the unique record of giving the number one Northern wheat for eight years in succession.

Mr. Evans is sure that he "will make a go of it," and paints with pride to his wife, who is a farmer-ette of no mean ability, and is ready to drive a six-horse combination or engage in the numerous duties of a farmer's wife. And the children in their little daughter, who expresses the spirit of their new homeland in her bright, quick and cheery outlook on life

Mr. Evans has already written to his home in Wales, where he has a number of relatives and friends he hopes to induce to come out to Saskatchewan, which he terms a land of the practical optimist

Britain Buys Our Cheese

87 Per Cent. Of Exportable Surplus Last Year Was Shipped To United Kingdom

Eighty-seven per cent. of Canada's export of cheese last year was shipped to the United Kingdom—the amount being 118,000,000 pounds, according to Dr. J. A. Ruddick, dairy and cold storage commissioner for the Dominion, who recently returned from an extensive tour of the British market centres. The Canadian grading system had gained the confidence of the British importing trade, said Dr. Ruddick, and the largest contributor in Canadian cheese on the other side told him that he never examined a cheese that he bought in Canada, as he depended entirely upon grade marks and the grader's certificate

Just One Course

"When you sit down to pack in the fodder in central or lower Arkansaw," said Bertram L. Peckham, a reminiscent mood, "you look for the menu and find 'they haint none.' But the chocolate grit always on hand and, says softly into your ear as he places a cup of hot coffee at your right' 'How's y' honey, suh, on algy.' That is your menu at the Central or Southern States. Where I was compelled to spend a night it was somewhat different. My waiter asked very decidedly 'Soup, or?'

I did not look up, for I expected a query pertaining to fodder and I not replied casual like. "Oh, I don't care for soup."

"Dinnah's ovah,' said the waiter.

Indians Making Money

Indians on the Blackfoot reserve, already wealthy, are fast adding to their healthy bank accounts. As the result of the second shipment made by a few of the cattle owners the Indians netted $28,600 the steers averaging $186 each, according to word to reach the head office of the Indian Department for the prairie provinces, which is located in Regina

Negotiations

Negotiations carried on by the wheat pools of Western Canada for the installation of automatic samplers in connection with the sampling of grain for government inspection have led to the installation of automatic samplers in the Saskatchewan wheat pool terminals number four, five, six, seven and eight at the Head of the Lakes

After thorough testing of the automatic samplers by the pool inspection department, they were carefully checked over by the Dominion government inspection department, and the chief inspector has agreed to recognize samples taken by the automatic samplers as official samples taken at unload.

Consequently a sample will now be retained at the Head of the Lakes, of all cars of Saskatchewan Pool grain delivered at Saskatchewan Pool terminals, and these samples will be available for re-inspection purposes whenever required, in the case of "odd full" cars, so that growers who are not advised of Winnipeg grades promptly enough in the ordinary course of events to wire for re-inspection at "unload" before the car is shipped, will now be protected by the retaining of samples of all pool cars for some time after unloading.

This improvement in the sampling system is a result of the work of the inter-provincial grades committee appointed some months ago as representative of the three wheat pools of Western Canada. This committee has under consideration various other matters looking toward the general improvement of the grading system from the point of view of the grower

New Telephone Device

Receives Messages When Telephone Receiver Is In Cradle

Invented by Dr. Thomas A. Edison, John Collins, Waco, Texas, demonstrated before a meeting of the International Electrical Association, at Chicago, an "Amophone," which when installed in the telephone, will receive messages when the telephone user is absent and later transmits them in the sender's own voice to the person for whom the message is intended.

The returning housewife of the future, it was pointed out, on returning home from marketing may expect to find anything when she turns on the telephone, from the latest neighborhood gossip to a message from the husband that he won't be home for dinner.

Unnecessary Suffering

Suffering is not always a blessing in disguise to mankind. It is an undisguised evil, something in which we indulge because we like to be martyrs. The demand for its own sake is only a foolish refusal of pleasures that we might rightfully enjoy. And when the outlook is darkest, we have no right to suffer, the only way to meet the future is with faith and courage and the readiness to smile.

ARRANGE FOR FARM TRAINING FOR BRITISH BOYS.

Some 200 young British farmers are expected to come to Alberta early next summer, according to an announcement just made by Hon. Geo. Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture. The first group will arrive about April 1 and will be followed by the remainder a month later. Arrangements are being made to give these boys a month's intensive training at the agricultural schools at Vermilion, Olds and Claresholm and as they will have received some preliminary instruction in Canadian farming methods before leaving the old country, they will then be in a position to start work at once on farms in the province.

Here and There

Edgar Hall

Provincial officials at Regina state that out of the 6,000 British Colony brought to Saskatchewan at least 75 per cent. will remain in the West to become permanent Canadian citizens.

A 2,000 pound sea cow was shot the other day on the shore of Hudson Bay by Prince Edward Island men, for which cave swarmed with [illegible] aquatic mammal, but which are now a rarity. The animal was bought by a Sydney-ville manufacturing concern which uses the hide for leather, the flesh for fox meat and the fat for lubricating oil.

A coal pool in Alberta is now a possibility. Premier Brownlee met a number of representatives of the industry in this province the other day and the subject was opened up in a general way. It will likely come before the Assembly shortly for further consideration in the future, the Government being interested in all co-operative efforts by way of advice and encouraging.

The Department of Public Works, at Ottawa, will shortly invite tenders for the first part of the public undertaking, designed to make Prescott, Ont., the transfer terminal for lake traffic. The ultimate outlay at Prescott is estimated at approximately $5,000,000 covering rail facilities, docks and elevators. It is understood that plans are now being prepared for the railway layout in which both the large railway companies are concerned.

"Wings" Greatest ACHIEVEMENT OF Modern Times

"WINGS" is an entirely different picture. It's another million dollar production, filled with inventions, to build up his dramatic situations, and, indeed he has succeeded. The spectator is thrilled throughout the entire picture. It is difficult for one to describe the thrills one feels in the sight of one plane attacking another, of one group of planes attacking another group, and later seeing more planes, downed, and falling to the earth in flames. They are magnificent sights—they are, in fact, so magnificent, so impressive, so thrilling, that it is doubtful if one could feel more excited even if one were to watch actual aeroplane battles.

The plot has been founded on a story by John Monk Saunders; it has been directed by William Wellman [illegible]

"Wings" has one of the most youthful casts ever given a big production. In it are Clara Bow, Buddy Rogers, Richard Arlen, Gary Cooper and Jobyna Ralston.

The "Wings" road show company carries its own musical director, Mr. Geo. Beattie of New York, with original score, and the production is synchronized with most marvelous and realistic sound effects.

Steel to New Rapid Mills From The Edmonton City Limits

Reaching ahead towards its Edmonton terminal, the C. P. R. expects to have 82 tiles from Willingdon Island up with that city by Nov. 15th, if not earlier. Steel is being laid at the rate of two miles per day and has now been taken to 8 point eight miles point Beverly. At the present rate of progress, the line should reach Edmonton early next week and soon be in readiness for transfer from the construction to the operating department.

Bridge building is now under way but this will not delay the operating department from taking over, according to Col. J.G. Rhed, who is in charge of construction. A bridge is now being built at a point 10 1-2 miles from Edmonton and three others are also planned along the route from Willingdon.

No information is available as to when passenger service will be provided on this line. It is understood that a start will be made with one freight train daily from Lethbridge to Edmonton. This would consist of some 20 cars, which would be loaded each grain.

Over 100 elevators have been built along this new line and it is fully expected that large shipments of grain will be handled this season from that district. The growth of towns and trade expansion is also likely to make heavy demands upon the railways freight handling service.

COMMUNICATION

(This paper does not hold itself responsible for opinions expressed by correspondents.)

To His Worship,
The Mayor of Vermilion

Sir,—

It has given me great pleasure on more than one occasion to express my admiration for the splendid work you have done for the town during the time you have occupied the mayoral chair. Such projects as the central heating system and the new power plant will long remain monuments to your zealous work on behalf of the people of this community, and I take second place to no man in according you full credit for your part in making Vermilion a better town to live in.

Consequently I find it doubly painful to undertake the task of condemning the apathetic attitude you have adopted with regard to a matter of little note to every person in this community. I refer, Sir, to the question of public health as a subject in which you have failed to display that energy and initiative which have characterized your efforts along other lines.

I could cite many instances in your indifference in this matter, but, as to the present, I have refrained from openly criticizing you. However a case which has just come to my notice has roused me to a pitch where I can no longer keep silent.

This specific case concerns the production of a play entitled "The Manny and the Mumps" by St. Saviour's Dramatic Society, which is advertised to take place in the Columbia Theatre on Monday, November 26th.

I understand that during the course of the play, the members of the company are supposed to be suffering from the malady known as mumps.

Now, Sir, I contend that you are fully aware that when St. Saviour's Dramatic Society produces a play they [illegible]

Work Done On H. B. Ry. Amazing

Road Bed Compares With Best Anywhere On Continent

Towns are rapidly springing up along the line of the Hudson Bay Railway where a year or so ago there was scrub spruce and muskeg and along the railway a rusty unrent track which suggested nothing so much as an abandoned enterprise. The volume of work which has been accomplished since reconstruction began is quite amazing.

While the road is still under construction the emphasis is being placed on the road bed itself, and this is so far as mile 326 which is three-fifths of the way to Port Churchill is accomplished fact a masterpiece of railway building, and will compare with the best road beds anywhere on the continent.

It is 510 miles from The Pas to Churchill Steel is at present laid to mile 430. Passenger trains are running to mile 412, but the freight service terminal is at mile 426 While the road for the most part crosses muskeg on its way to the North it should not for that reason be regarded as an unstable foundation.

The term "muskeg" should not be confused with "bog." Bogs occur at rare intervals along the route, and are always referred to as "sink holes." If the vast quantities of rock which it is necessary to obtain for these places to make them passable, were visible the roadbed would appear to be merely a high fill such as might be built across a prairie ravine

Muskeg is an accumulation of leaves, muck and moss, which occurs all over the North country up to the region of the barrens. It may be a few inches or several feet in depth above the foundation of solid rock and the present right to the wateredge of the channes through which northern rivers pass.

New cities are built all along the finished line Clearwater Lake at mile 17 is rapidly becoming a summer resort. With the exception of the summer cottages at this point there is practically no building until mile 30 is reached Here there is a great deal of activity in quarrying the red marble, several carloads of which have been shipped out

At Cormorant Lake, Mile 42, the Dominion Government Aerial forest patrol is situated. This is an ideal place for an air-base and there are at present four planes operating from the point. There are several homesteads in this locality, and some noteworthy gardens have been visible from the railways during the summer months. There is a public school in operation, and as there is a thriving little business community around the place is becoming quite a popular summer resort. The residents are looking for a prosperous future

Method Declared Legal

Selling for shoves in a new method of renting business, was introduced by two brothers at Moravia Iowa. They have sold eighty acres of land in Missouri to a laborer for her 1,000 shares The barber will exercise his immoral art free upon the two brothers, at their demand, until the debt is liquidated The transaction was duly legalized

Two Racing Costly

A campaign has been started at Raleigh, Nebraska, to raise money to purchase a spraying apparatus upon Methuselah's oldest elm tree that was struck by lightning "The tree is 300 years old. It will require $500 to give the tree proper care and prevent its dying, experts said.

Possesses Valuable Secret

Scientist Studying Whale's Ability To Remain Under Water An Hour

To open the way for the discovery of an appliance that will enable man to remain under water and surface at will, Dr. A. Brazier Howell, scientist, who has just joined the Faculty of Johns Hopkins University, is making a study of the whale.

The whale possesses a secret which, if it could be comprehended, might be of incalculable benefit to man. What is the method of disposing of the enormous double which he generates in his blood during long periods under water, sometimes exceeding an hour Some chemical adjustment takes place in his body which makes it possible for him to consume his own poisons or dispose of them. An understanding of this process, Dr. Howell explained, might lead to the invention of an appliance which would have a definite bearing on submarine and mine disasters and the work of rescue

If the chemical formula by which the whale "consumes his own smoke," so to speak, could be found, Dr. How ell asserted, science might be able to reproduce the condition in the human body. That is only one reason which has turned Dr Howell to studying the whale, which, he says, is the only one of the higher mammals that can stand the water pressure at the depth of a mile

Worked Under Difficulties

Ontario Government Conservation Met With Opposition In Some Localities

J. G. Rutherford, Ontario government cameraman, who is home after a world tour of 30,000 miles in seven months, took his machine to places where movie men have never before been. The Sultan of Gibraltar was very indignant, because it was against their religion to be photographed At temple, every mode, no record is kept even of the Sultan of Rima, so the ruler's objections were found to be strenuous. With the exception of the Sultan he "mushed" and the photographer to "shoot" the giant lizards there It is reported that the provincial government will use Rutherford in unique movie to aid in the teaching of geography in schools of the province

Northern Development

Edmonton Board Of Trade Taking An Interest In This Important Work

Voicing his support of a Northern Alberta development council, John Walker, secretary of the Edmonton Board of Trade, stated recently that, "Every citizen of Edmonton and Northern Alberta is naturally in favor of developing the lands and mineral resources of our great northland.

"The north is worthy of all our best efforts, and in the formation of the proposed council the details should be carefully worked out. At the same time the general idea is sound and should appeal to Edmonton as well as to the northern towns and settlers in that country."

Deferred Payment

The road was slippery and the motorist's tempers refused to hold the car He skidded wildly across the pavement and knocked a man off his feet.

Fortunately, the man was not badly hurt, and the motorist, diving into his pocket, produced five shillings. "Here you are," he said. "Give me your address and I'll send you more later."

The man looked up with an injured air, "Look here, guv'nor," he said earnestly, "you don't think you can run me over on the instalment plan, do you?"

Salmon Did Not Work

Annie Elizabeth had a lover who had been courting her for 15 years. In the irritation of her father, who thought it was time things were moving.

At his instigation the girl put a shy question. "Don't you think, lad, it's time you and me were thinking about getting wed?"

"Aye," agreed her swain heartily, "but who'd have us?"

Just Married

"Name this child," said the minister, preparing to baptize the twins.

The proud father threw out his chest. "George Theodore Andrew John Lincoln Carnegie Jones!"

The minister gasped

"And the other?"

The meek, nervous mother in a scarcely audible voice answered: "Maude."

Watering Surplus Queens

Method Used To Bring Surplus Queens Through Winter Without Loss

When the beekeeper finds that he has a surplus of queens in the fall of the year, the question arises as to what is the best method to winter them. At the Experimental Station, at Fredericton, New Brunswick, the following method for wintering the queens was tried. Four weak colonies were selected for the experiment. Five of the lightest combs were removed from each colony and from the shallow brood chamber and placed in the middle of the combs and the brood, and queens from the two remaining colonies were placed one on each side of the brood chamber. The queens were then caged for a period of two days. The calves were of dairy breeding and eight of them were weighed when they were six months old, six of them until nine months, five until a year, and four until they were 18 months old. The calves were artificially reared. They were fed on separators skim milk. The calves were not entirely uniform for the different animals, but the conditions were watched by the superintendent of the station and reported in the report of the station for 1927, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, that heifers mature normally and rapidly during the first year, that the growth during the next six months is comparatively slow, after which the increase slides up as during the first year.

Ready To Sign Up

An office inspecting sentries guarding the line during Territorial manoeuvres came across a rum-looking landscape.

"What are you here for?" he asked.

"To report anything unusual, sir." "What would you call unusual?" "I dunno exactly, sir."

"Then should you if you saw five battleships steaming across the field?"

"Sign the pledge, sir."

Roots Safer For Stock

Saskatchewan is made safer for insectivorous and other useful birds by the sudden depletion in the crow population this summer by something approaching 250,000 as a result of the provincial crow competition. More than 4 000 individuals entered the contest, in which $2,500 was offered in 1,500 cash prizes, ranging from $100 to one dollar.

Sees Regular Dirigible Service

Commander Eckener Of Graf Zeppelin Visualizes the Future

A regular dirigible service between Europe and the United States within four years, with sailings from both sides of the Atlantic every four or five days, was visualized by Dr. Hugo Eckener, commander of the Graf Zeppelin.

At least four giant airships will be necessary before the service can be inaugurated, Dr. Eckener explained. The ships will be larger and more powerful than the Graf Zeppelin. It will also be necessary to build two great hangars, one in the United States, and one in Europe.

Dr. Eckener favors the vicinity of Washington or Baltimore for the occasion, of the American terminal in preference to Lakehurst, due to unfavorable cross winds which are frequent over New Jersey. The European terminal, he said, probably will be located on the Rhine Valley near Basle, as Friedrichshafen from where the Graf Zeppelin started its trans-Atlantic flight, is too high.

A capital of at least $10,000,000 will be necessary for the construction of the four dirigibles and the two hangars. Dr. Eckener estimated the cost of each airship will be about $2,- 000,000, if built in Germany. If some of the ships are built in the United States, the cost would be higher, due to higher labor charges.

Calve Made By Calves

Weighing Calves At Three-months Intervals To Record Increase In Weight

Four cattle raisers take the trouble to weigh their calves from month to month to ascertain the gains they are making. The Experimental Station at Sidney, B.C., have weighed calves at three-month intervals during a period of two years. The calves were of dairy breeding and eight of them were weighed when they were six months old, six of them until nine months, five until a year, and four until they were 18 months old. The calves were artificially reared. They were fed on separators skim milk. The calves were not entirely uniform for the different animals, but the conditions were watched by the superintendent of the station and reported in the report of the station for 1927, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, that heifers mature normally and rapidly during the first year, that the growth during the next six months is comparatively slow, after which the increase slides up as during the first year.

Giant Herd Of Caribou

Immense Herds Of Canadian Northland Are Moving South

The caribou herds of the great Canadian northland are moving south and for the first time in many years a giant herd of these magnificent animals is approaching Hudson's Bay Junction, the most southerly point which they have reached for over 30 years.

It is good news for the hundreds of big game hunters from both eastern Canada and the United States, who are anticipating November 15, for the famous Canadian shooting season to open. Not only will caribou be good eating, but in the vicinity of Hudson's Bay Junction this year, but moose and deer are also exceptionally plentiful, according to information received by the Saskatchewan Provincial Department of Wild Life.

This is a closed season for elk, although they were reported in great numbers north of Prince Albert, Sask., last year. Hundreds of these pretty animals are expected to flock to Saskatchewan's new national park, where they will find protection from the guns of big game hunters the year round.

Boots and Size

Boots are run over, so are men.

Boots will shine if polished, so will a man.

Boots are tanned, so are men in their youth.

The Impulse Of Habit

Business Bred In the Bone Seldom Loses Its Attraction

A short time ago a horse fell into the docks at New York. It was old and blind, and not only could not see where to clamber out, but crowded cagilious.

For years it had ambled along hauling an ice wagon. But the driver reached that in its heyday Dobbin had been in the New York city fire department. Believing that the horse retained an intuition for an old veteran, the lieman telephoned to the station to which the formerly belonged and told them of its predicament.

In a few minutes the engine came clanging along. The astute firemen halted near a spot where it would be possible for the horse to reach land and then gallop away. It was a-chatter with all the power they could, they had the joy of seeing the animal set back for years, and with all haste for the direction from whence the sound came.

A few moments later the horse was safely ashore, taken to his stable and wrapped in warm blankets.

We humans are pretty much like that old horse.

We may retire from business, or we may quit and get into another line, but the call of the blood asserts itself until the end.

The farmer who goes to live in the city is never so happy as when pottering about in his garden, raising a few vegetables; the man who has run a certain number of years remembers his youth when he bears it hum and he itches to fiddle about with it again; the retired newspaperman who had a printer's ink bastened of blood in his veins, pricks up his ears at the old familiar sound of the press.

The impulse of habit is sometimes stronger than the weakness of the flesh.

Axioms Repeat Themselves

Expressed In Different Ways Among Practically All Peoples

Certain axioms expressed in different ways are to be found among practically all peoples and tongues. Take for instance the saying so Newcastle," referring to the folly of sending that product to the point at which it is mined. Similarly in a city abounding in three birds. Australians of today may like to amend it to "carrying rabbits to Australia."

Another Grecian proverb complained of people "carrying fish to the fishpond." And one could easily invent many more such as carrying wheat to the prairies, carrying rock to British Columbia, or carrying purses to the Bay of Fundy

Our Trade With South Africa

Investigation In Arctic Completed

Danish Explorers Will Submit Report On Bathurst Peninsula

Covering 14,000 miles of Arctic trails with dogs, canoes and horses during the two years that they were absent from Copenhagen, the Danish Arctic station—a scientific observatory at Godhaven, Greenland.

With them, the young explorers brought out 1,000 photos, 15,000 botanical specimens and many geological specimens. Porsild declined, however, to give publication the conclusions reached by them as to the possibility of establishing reindeer ranching.

The Dominion Government will be the first to see their report. It is Porsild explained. Porsild commented on the herds of the Lomen Brothers in Northwest Alaska, where Eskimos herders own a round-up of 100,000 of the animals with their Lappladder cow punchers mounted on riding reindeer.

Shipwreck Of Australian Octagon

A despatch to the Mail and Empire from Vancouver, says: "Marking a new departure in inter-Empire trade, the first consignment of Victoria oranges to reach this country from Western Australia passed through the port of Vancouver. A full carload of the fruit was shipped to Winnipeg. The Australian product will compete with oranges from California, which will probably form the first of a continuous flow of this fruit from the antipodes to Canada.

Professor Offers Proof

Produces Calculations To Prove Earth Is Rotating Faster Than Supposed Speed

Calculations showing that the earth is continuing to rotate faster than its regular speed of 24 hours per day were presented to the American Association of Variable Star Observers in annual convention at Cambridge, Mass.

The interest to many people in the calculations lies in their possible application to the study of earthquakes rather than to any appreciable change in the length of the day. The cause of the latter speed is suspected to be the contracting of the earth's crust.

The calculations were presented by Ernest W. Brown Sterling, professor of mathematics at Yale University.

Famine Stalks In China

Babies Being Killed On Account Of Lack Of Food

Shanghai, China.—The China International famine relief is being flooded with appeals from the stricken districts, particularly in Hunan, where, it is declared, "babies are being killed because there is nothing to feed them with and children are being sold for a mere song."

Thousands of persons are said to be living on the bark and leaves of trees. In addition to Hunan the famine includes districts in Kwangsi, Sulyan, Hupeh, Honan and Honan.

A magistrate of Yang Hsien in a letter estimates that there are 200,000 famine sufferers, owing to the drought and the devastations of the "Red Spears" a guerilla organization. The situation in Shansi, the magistrate declares, is unprecedented, children being sold openly in the market by parents unable to feed them. In Shansi thousands are on the verge of starvation, due to the banditry, communist uprisings, the Red Spears and drought.

Serious Famine in Russia

Risks in Moscow Are Openly Remembering the Government

London, Eng.—Soviet Russia is in the throes of a famine which is reaching serious proportions, according to reports from Helsingfors and Riga, received by the Exchange Telegraph Company here.

Mounted police are patrolling Moscow and dispersing near-violent mobs which openly denounce the government, the Helsingfors report stated.

Foreign legations in Moscow are perturbed over the outcomeness of the situation, although none, it is said, has planned to welcome the famine as affords them a legitimate reason for leaving.

In Leningrad similar scenes were enacted, according to the Riga report. There 700 women and children attacked the food stores and threatened to loot the food distributors. A large number were arrested and later released.

Remain In Canada

8,000 British Harvesters Still Remaining In Canada

Ottawa.—With harvesting operations completed in the west and with 8,000 British harvesters still remaining in Canada, it is probable that the majority will become permanently established, department of immigration officials stated today. Reports from steamship companies to the department indicate that approximately 8,000 have returned to the British Isles.

From the fact that very few of the harvesters have applied at government employment bureaus officials of the labor department believe that in the majority of cases they have found employment work on western farms.

The success of the competition may be gauged by the results which show that 608,963 legs, and 681,710 eggs were destroyed. In point therefore, the enemy suffered a total loss of 214,692 before hostilities closed. September 1."

HON. J. MALCOLM TALKS TO BRITAIN OVER TELEPHONE

Ottawa, Ont.—Ten thousand people who thronged the grounds of the Canadian Empire Exhibition, in Wales, and many thousands more throughout the British Isles, heard Hon. James Malcolm, minister of trade and commerce, speak to them from Ottawa over the trans-Atlantic telephone.

"Simply marvellous reception," the word came back from Cardiff, as soon as the minister had finished his eight minute address. "The best yet."

Mr. Malcolm's office in the parliament buildings was the scene of the "call station."

Mr. Malcolm introduced his brief address by expressing the regards of the Canadian people to the people of Wales, and declared that the ideal of empire trade for which the exhibition stands was finding strong and patriotic support in this country. The minister noted a trend of praise for the empire marketing board. Trade, he said, was only a medium through which the surplus of the country's income acquainted and through which were learned the difficulties and viewpoints of the various units. To know one's self was essential, to know one's country was a patriotic duty; to know the empire was a great and profitable advantage.

The minister made passing reference to the arrival in Canada of the prime minister from his lengthy sojourns abroad, and expressed Mr. Mackenzie King's hope that the visit would be a-chatter with all the power they tendered him in Great Britain.

"The question of inter-imperial migration has come to the fore in recent months," said Mr. Malcolm. "While calling your attention to the speech delivered by the prime minister recently, in London, in the course of which he declared that Canada welcomed the settlement there, I say that British North America has in recent years been receiving as many British settlers as it can properly absorb. The figures given for the year ending September 30 last, which will be given again. Angered, they used the apples to bombard the windows of food stores and threatened to loot the food distributors. GRAF ZEPPELIN LANDS SAFELY IN HOME PORT

Record For eastward flight From Roosevelt Field to England in 78 hours

It was revealed that the Zeppelin encountered heavy storms while flying over central France forcing Dr. Eckener to alter his course considerably, missing Paris. The speed also was reduced to less than 90 miles an hour.

With the approach of the dirigible the population of the town, swelled many times in normal size, was aroused by volleys of saluting shots. The people rushed pell-mell to the aerodrome where hundreds of aeroplane mechanics were already assembled at the hangar. It was raining in a fairly steady downpour.

Surprised and indignant at the plan, two workmen refused to don the stilts and reported to officials of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners that they lost their jobs in a result.

William Varley, secretary of the Building Trades Council, is investigating to discover whether the use of stilts would be a contravention of city or provincial statutes.

James Walker Succeeds W. G. Lynch as Edmonton Manager

Promoted to the responsible post of manager of the main branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, James Walker, formerly of head office at Toronto, arrived at Edmonton to take over his new duties on Tuesday morning. He succeeds W. G. Lynch.

Mr. Walker is no stranger to the west, having been in the service in this part of the country for some ten years. After being at various branches, he was appointed manager at Vermilion in 1920 and after being here for four years, he was transferred to head office where he had remained up until the present time. A break in his work at head office occurred last year when he accompanied the party of Canadian farmers to the old country.

Some 22 years ago, Mr. Walker came to Canada from his home in Scotland and at once joined the bank's service. He was accompanied to Edmonton by Mrs. Walker and three children.

The High School

A skating party entertained the high school at the river last Wednesday evening. About five o'clock, the crowd began to gather for the good time in store for them. A camp fire was soon blazed on the shore where we could warm our toes if so desired. We brought our own lunches and the management boiled our coffee, roasted the weiners and cooked the beans. After having a merry time over supper, we either shared or sat around the fire for till time to leave for home. From reports received from various students it is supposed that all had a fine time.

The "Last Post" was sounded immediately after, and then the roll call of the dead was read, followed by prayer. The Rev. R. H. Gordon conducted the service, which was very impressive. It was one of the largest services held in the district. The church being filled to its utmost capacity.

ARMISTICE BALL WAS MOST ENJOYABLE AND SUCCESSFUL FUNCTION

The Armistice ball, held under the auspices of the Canadian Legion Dance was one of the most successful affairs of the season, and will go down in the annals as one of the most brilliant functions ever held. The spirit of comradeship that still deeply felt by all ex-service men, pervaded the dance, and was felt even by the young folk present.

The decoration of the hall added much to the success of the evening, lending a gala effect to the scene. The supper room was surrounded by streamers and the dim lighting lent a delightful touch to the whole, presided over by Mrs. Ward and Sherbrook orchestra.

From the opening march to the last waltz a spirit of gaiety and enthusiasm was exhibited, even the supper was cut and during its course several toasts of thanks were given, the first by J. S. Worrall in honor of the ladies of the Canadian Legion Auxiliary who served the lunch, and a vote of thanks to the committee in charge for the pleasant time provided was moved on behalf of those present by J. Wiebe.

The patronesses of the evening were Mrs J Payne and Mrs A. Snape, and those were Messrs T. Watts, A. Snape, J. McCrystle, G. Maxwell, H. Scott with J. Worrall as master of ceremonies and H. Compton and A. McWilliams as the door. The refreshment committee were Mrs. Watts, Mrs W. H. Duncan, Mrs J. Cash, Mrs. C. Kirby, Mrs. F. Carson and Mrs. R. Aplin.

Two prizes were drawn for during the evening, lady's being a handsome box of hand bag, and gent's a pair of cased military brushes and comb. The lucky ticket holders were Miss Mary Markay and Mr John R. MacKenzie.

Only One Chance In Thirty-Six Billion

Farmer In Manitoba Lends Wheat Takes In Same Car

There is one chance in thirty-six billion of it happening again.

At the town of Argyle, Manitoba, on September 30, a farmer named C. R. Sommerville, loaded part of his crop of Number 2 Durum into Canadian National Car No. 428071. The car went to the head of the lakes, was emptied and started west again. On October 1, eleven days later, it left the same station, Argyle, loaded with grain from the fields of the same farmer, C. R. Somerville. This time the wheat was Number 4 Durum, but the car was the same and the farmer was the same.

T. P. White, Canadian National Railways superintendent of car service, thinks the incident is a reflection on the smoothness with which the great machine of grain transportation, handling millions of bushels, is running. But he realizes that it will never happen again in his lifetime.

From statistics as to the number of box cars and shipping stations in the west, and taking an average of 79 farmers who might possibly load at a point like Argyle, it has been calculated that there is one chance in thirty-six billion of a car going back to the same shipper at the same point.

Badger Skins Are Valuable.

Pelts Should Be Taken In the Right Manner

Badger skins, if taken off animals at the right season, and not damaged in handling, are now quite valuable. At the recent fur auction in Winnipeg the best badger skin sold for $52.00, and a good average skin is worth, perhaps, about $20.00 to $30.00. But many people are losing these pelts during the late summer and fall, when the skins are worthless, or practically so. Badger skins are most valuable after the animals have come out of their winter retirement. Skins taken in the spring are valuable; those taken in the fall are almost worthless. About twenty-five good badger skins are marketed annually in the three Prairie Provinces.

Prominent Health Officials

Four prominent Canadian health officials have been appointed to the Connaught Laboratories Fellowships in the School of Hygiene, of the University of Toronto, it was announced by Dr. J. J. R. The fellowships were established last year for the purpose of encouraging research among public health workers in Canada.

CHILDHOOD AILMENTS

Can Be Quickly Banished With Baby's Own Tablets

The ailments of childhood are many but nine-tenths of them are due to the same cause and one cause only—a disordered condition of the stomach and bowels. To quickly banish any of the ailments of babyhood and childhood the bowels must be made regular and the stomach must be sweetened.

No other medicine for little ones has had such success as has Baby's Own Tablets. They banish constipation and indigestion, break up colds and simple fevers; correct diarrhoea and colic and promote healthful sleep by regulating the functions of the stomach and bowels. Concerning them Mrs. I. M. Brown, Walton, N.S., writes:—"I cannot speak too highly of Baby's Own Tablets as I have found them excellent for childhood ailments."

Baby's Own Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Loud Speaking Airplanes

New Form Of Advertising Making Cities Have Noisy

The development of aviation has brought with it one development that cannot be regarded with equanimity.

In New York recently airplanes equipped with loud speakers fly over the city and indulge in outdoor advertising of the most objectionable sort. These flying loud speakers bawl forth the merits of this or that face cream, movie, cigarette or what-not in a manner that can be heard all over the town. There is no escape from it. Any one in the streets below gets this raucous appeal to buy or demand into his helpless ears, whether he likes it or not.

Our cities are noisy enough now. It might be a good thing to see if aviation can stop running public nuisances over the case.

Took Drastic Measures

The fact recently has come to light that the very oldest newspaper in existence is, or was, the official "Pekin Gazette," which is said to have been produced continuously for more than a thousand years. But this Methuselah among newspapers not only claims an honorable old age. It claims a record in manufacture as well. It is credibly stated that during its publication no fewer than 1,500 of the paper's editors have been executed. This is correct, just imagine what the slaughter must have been among reporters.

Northern Alberta Boys' and Girls' Swine Club

First Prize In C.P.R. Competition Is Won By Members Of Club

First prize in the Canadian Pacific Railway Competition in the Boys' and Girls' Pig Club at Vilna, in Northern Alberta, was won by Parsife Lacroix and Harry Stryzaska, members of the Vilna Pig Club at Wilingdon, in the New Canadian Pacific Railway Calitude-Whitford line.

The prize-winning pigs were owned by Denny Hnatko and Bernie Kobitmeh, of the Hazelcity Club, and third, Thornton Smith and Erwin Bergrud, of the Sedgewick Club.

Handsome medals were presented to members of the winning team by Superintendent George Fox, of the Edmonton Division of the Canadian Pacific Railway. Both members of the prize team are of Ukrainian descent and are sons of prosperous farmers in the district. Each of the boys is 17 years old. Stryzaska is in grade nine at Desjardins school, and Lamrak is working on his father's farm.

The Wilmington team will proceed to Calgary where they will compete with the winners of the Canadian Pacific Railway competition in the southern part of the province, for the trophy awarded to the highest scoring team from any point along Canadian Pacific railway lines in Alberta, and a trip to the Toronto Royal as guests of the railway.

Local officials of the railway companies, of Provincial and Dominion departments of agriculture and live stock interests, are well pleased with the successful results of the Boys' and Girls' Club work during the past season, and credit is given to these clubs for much of the improvement noted in recent years in the quality of hogs shipped to market from many districts in the province.

PAUL'S EXPERIENCES IN JERUSALEM

Questions and Comment

Paul's Request, 21.37-39.—Read the earlier verses of this chapter. Paul is standing on the stairway leading from the outer court of the temple up to the Tower of Antonia, and before him in Greek. Lysias, chief captain of the band. "May I say something unto thee?" courteously Paul asked permission of the Greek magistrate. In surprise Lysias asked in his turn, "Dost thou know Greek?"

Said was it not a needless surprise? Paul was a university man. He had his culture as his finger tips. He had one of the greatest brains of history. We all often reproduce the role of the Chief Captain. We are surprised how well read and intelligent a man unassuming man. So the our surprise was needless. Assumption is not culture. Paul, Wilberforce, Livingstone and women often surprise us. We say, "I never thought that man was such a Christian." "I never dreamed that consecrated woman was such a keenly mind woman." But we say these men say not because Lysias knew Paul. And we did not know their inner life of devotion to the Saviour of the world. We know not their prayers, their unseen persons with their Bible, their growth by investiture with the Spirit of Christ." —Dinsdale T. Young.

"Give me leave to speak unto the people"—this was Paul's request of his Chief Captain. "Let me satisfy out this query from this mob," would have been the anxious plea of most of us. But Paul's position was unique. It was surprise which led Lysias to allow Paul to speak to the howling Jews below him.

"Great duties are before me, and great songs."

And whether crowned or crownless when I fall,

Father! not, so as God's work is done."—Alexander Smith.

Paul's Address, 21.30 to 22.21.—Then Paul, torn and bleeding as he was and chained to two soldiers mounted upon the stairway above that howling mob who were thirsting for his blood, himself perhaps the only calm man there, and addressed them in their own language, Aramaic, a dialect of the Hebrew. He defended himself from the charge that he was an enemy of the people, of the law, and of the temple. He told them that he was an Israelite, and though born at Tarsus he had been educated in Jerusalem, at the feet of their famous rabbi Gamaliel. He had been most zealous in persecuting the Christians, had even started for Damascus with letters from the Sanhedrin authority to bind and bring back in chains all the Christians he could find. Many of those to whom he was speaking must have known and recalled those facts. Next, he wished to defend his Christian faith, and he told them about his wonderful conversion, about his interview with Ananias and the restoration of his sight, and about his return to Jerusalem and his baptism. The Christian name had appeared to him in such power, then he came to the Messiah whom he, as a Pharisee, had so longed to see; and if the Risen Jesus is really the Messiah, then Paul must as a righteous Israelite, yield him willing obedience and bear his witness for him.

Yet another aim had Paul, the aim of all his preaching: He would win them that each one's is a favorable opinion of this Jesus who could change in a moment of time a bigot, as Paul was into an apostle of Christ. And finally, he justified his every action by the Gentiles as the fulfilling of the express command of his Lord.

Mexican Explorer Has Buried Remains Hidden Spain

A commission sent by the Academy of History to investigate what is claimed by Mexico to be the tomb of Christopher Columbus, at Santo Domingo, forty-five miles from Ciudad Trujillo, Spanish capital, has found entrances in the Church of Santa Maria Gracia, including monuments of the explorer. The historians have stated that a number of stones had been found with the inscription: "Here lies Christopher Columbus." Vancouver Rapidly Becoming One Of Great Atlantic's Busiest Ports

Ships in the port of Vancouver took on 600,000 tons of coal last year, the Canadian grain crop for export to markets abroad. It is estimated that Vancouver's share of the record harvest this year may be nearer 120,000,000 bushels. This splendid shipping business and the rapid growth of Canada was grown from 1,500,000 bushels in 1921. As fast as new elevator accommodation can be made available, an increasing volume of wheat from Alberta and the western part of Saskatchewan is being diverted to the Pacific Coast. Much of it is carried south through the Panama Canal to Europe. Other grain laden ships are heading out across the western ocean to Japan. Vancouver may well look forward with optimism to becoming one of North America's busiest ports.

In addition to attracting an increasing proportion of the present Canadian wheat crop, it is quite probable that Vancouver will become the port of a magnificent new expanse of farming land in the Peace River country, north of Edmonton. The Peace River flows across northern Alberta into Lake Athabasca. The farming country named after the river has an area of about 47,000,000 acres. It is, in part, in the same latitude as Scotland and Labrador. Settlement of the region in the Peace River country are raising wheat in crops of 70 bushels to the acre.

Crop Estimate

The Northwest Grain Dealers' Association estimates the last year's wheat crop at 558,450,000 bushels, and that of other grains as follows: Oats, 317,750,000 bushels; barley, 91,375,000; rye, 11,809,000, and flax, 9,079,300.

Famous Holstein Herd Provides High Bred Cattle For Western Development

With the final object of producing supplies for its own use and to provide high bred cattle for Western Development, the Canadian Pacific Railway established about eighteen years ago a herd of Holsteins at Strathmore, in Alberta. The foundation herd was small, but even at its beginning included several cows afterwards distinguished as great producers. Since then only the best sires from sources of proven merit have been used. In the natural course of events, these sires were bound to bring about a great improvement in the parent herd.

Taking as its motto "High production with sheer ring quality" and insisting that the Strathmore Farm be a paying proposition, the Animal Husbandry Department of the Canadian Pacific has consistently pursued the policy of breeding a herd of uniformly good quality and distinguished Holstein type. Special attention has also been devoted to obtaining high records with animals bred for production.

Strathmore herd now comprises [illegible] cows and heifers, and over six hundred head of high quality purebred Holsteins, the largest herd of dairy cattle in Canada.

To make a good performance a cow must give over 12,500 pounds of milk in 365 days. Strathmore Farm has 140 record of performance to its credit, the highest being 24,300 pounds of milk with 966.25 pounds of butter. There are several other official cows which will equal this, and at least two who will set a new standard for Canada.

Perhaps the greatest stimulus to dairying in Western Canada is given by the "A" Circuit Fairs. Cattle are shown there, and breeders and herdmen meet together and exchange opinions and the smaller farmer reaps a large benefit from the knowledge thus gained. This year a strong representation was sent out, particularly as regards young animals. After the "A" Circuit Fairs the herd participated in Vancouver, Victoria and New Westminster shows.

At these eight shows the Strathmore herd won one hundred first prizes, two final of all shows offered, six Grand Championships, and fifteen Junior Championships fell to its lot. "Strathmore Veemaa Fairchild" 161846 - a two year old heifer bred on the farm, was Grand Champion female at Edmonton, Saskatoon, Regina, and again at Vancouver. She is the first female bred on the province to win this award at a Western "A" Circuit show. Her sire and her [illegible] dam and two grandparents were all born on the Strathmore Farm.

The Canadian Inter-Continental Exhibition, also held in Vancouver in connection with the Pacific National Exhibition, also changed her country and her colours and is now being shown with the Canadian herd at the greatest United States cattle shows. She won first at the Kentucky State Fair, and at Flora, Nashville, and Chattanooga, being Senior and Grand Champion at the latter show.

The young bulls, Strathmore Mc-Kinley Fairchild Wayne—70853—and Strathmore DeWinton Matchless—71977—were junior and reserve junior champions at each of the prairie shows. At Victoria and New Westminster, Strathmore McKinley Fairchild Wayne was senior and grand champion male, while Strathmore DeWinton Matchless was junior and reserve grand championship. Compelt Strathmore Fairs is born with Holsteins from famous herds in Ontario, from the Colony Farm Lord and others. Some have had a long line of ancestors of the junior herd sire, all the cattle shown were bred on the Strathmore Farm. All their dams were bred there and are still profitable producers in the herd.

Of the many bull calves born annually at Strathmore, only those are reared for sale that are from dams which have given either "Gold Medal" or "Excellent" or are from dams not themselves in either of these grades but having an R.O.P. record of at least 20,000 pounds of milk in a year. All other bull calves are slaughtered at birth.

Thrashing About Completed

Most of Canada's record wheat crop, estimated at over 550,000,000 bushels is now threshed and a substantial proportion of the grain is moving to the markets of the world. It is estimated that about 400,000,000 bushels of the 1928 crop will be available for export, about one-quarter of which will be shipped via Pacific ports, principally Vancouver, and the other three-quarters or 300,000,000 bushels will go eastward.

Feeding Steers Loose Or Tied

Steers Fed In Loose Pens Make Better Gains

Steers feeding for the market in loose pens made better and more economical gains at the Lennoxville, Quebec, Experimental Station if, as those fed tied in the stalls during a period of nine years in which three methods of feeding have been compared, the cattle running loose gave the best returns in all but two seasons. Last year the steers tied at the start made slightly better gains amounting to 1.98 pounds per steer per day as against 1.95 pounds per head per day as against 1.75 pounds per steer per day. To add 1 cwt. of gain, however, those running loose in the pens required 50 pounds of milk in a year. All other bull calves are slaughtered at birth.

From his experience with these tests the superintendent of the station in his report for the year published in the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, reports that steers fed in the pens made a greater increase in weight during one year with another.

Detective Stories

Good Nerve Tonic

Research Worker Claims They Are An Ideal Sedative

Many big business men, lawyers and statesmen have admitted a fondness for detective stories because of the distraction which they afford. Now it appears that there is still another good reason for indulging a taste for thrilling mystery tales. According to a prescription being worked out in the psychological laboratories of the University of Chicago, blood-and-thunder fiction is an ideal sedative for the high pressure worker.

A research worker is demonstrating this theory by thoroughly scientific means, using graphs of pulse charts of respiration and other exact data. After an hour's reading of a thriller, the subject returns to "a quieter pulse, a slower respiration and greater self-control." The experimenter hopes to prove that the reading of absorbing fiction is one of the best of nerve tonics.

Detailed reading of detective stories are tendy to agree with almost startling in praise of their favorite brand of thrills. But they will find it hard to believe that when the thief pockets the pearls and dashes the lamp to the floor their pulses beat slower, or that when the Unknown Terror lurks in the dark just outside the heroine she is then her calmest and coolest.

When Is a Canadian?

"Never" Seems To Be Answer To This Question

Many people in this country to day are third and fourth generation Canadians. The answer of the citizen may answer this question with English, Danish or Irish if the people in the vicinity of Toronto have been English, Danish or Irish, but those people do not know rather less about them than they probably know about the present minister of agriculture, or the shades and shading personal interest with which the opinions of Mackenzie King are regarded in the east and the west, and the shades of opinion which are held about him in the province of Quebec. The answer to the question, "When is a Canadian?" is "Never" seems to be the answer to a great many questions.

High Quality of 1928 Wheat Crop Revealed By Dominion Grain Research Laboratory Tests

Welcome To British Farmers

The Hundred Cottages Plan Is Meeting With a Good Response

The farmers of Western Canada have accorded an unmistakable welcome to the 100 Cottages Plan of the Canadian Pacific Railway — the scheme jointly arranged by Lord Lovat, British Under-Secretary of Dominion Affairs and the railway's Department of Colonization and Development. As illustrating the cordiality of welcome to the British farmer families who will occupy these cottages, until graduating as full-fledged farmers "on their own" — C. A. Van Reny, C.P.R Superintendent of Colonization here, says that applications from the Canadian farmers for these cottages greatly exceed the proposed supply. The present plan is to have 70 of these cottages in Manitoba, 45 in Saskatchewan, and 35 in Alberta.

Garnet and Reward Wheat

23,000 Bushels Of Seed Wheat To Be Distributed This Year

Nearly 23,000 bushels of seed wheat of the Garnet and Reward varieties will be furnished farmers by the Department of Agriculture this year, it is announced. This compares with 2,000 bushels last year and the demand this year is greater than the supply. The new varieties were developed by the Dominion Cerealist, L. H. Newman, at the Experimental Farm, at Ottawa. Garnet and Reward wheat ripens a week or more earlier than Marquis, by which means the hazards from frost and rust are considerably lessened

Leasing Of School Lands

New Policy May Be Adopted By Department Of Interior

The new policy of the department of interior in regard to leased school lands affects only cultivated lands which have been abandoned or relinquished and will not become effective until Hon. Charles Stewart has obtained approval of the three provincial governments thereto. Mr. Stewart already has interviewed the premiers of Saskatchewan and Alberta governments and has obtained their consent.

The new policy will affect approximately 1,000 parcels of land in the three prairie provinces, most of which are in Alberta and Saskatchewan, and only a few in Manitoba. The weak spots in the administration which the policy is designed to correct is rather involved but may be explained as follows. The school lands are administered by the interior department as the trustee of the provinces. No sales of school lands are held or made without the consent of the provincial authorities these sales are by public auction it is advisable frequently to omit until a demand is felt. In Manitoba, for example, there have been no sales for several years

In these periods it has been the policy of the department to lease school lands for various purposes such as grazing and haying However the land must not be cultivated. In recent years a problem arose in regard to land which had been sold and subsequently abandoned Sometimes the purchaser was put off the land became he could not meet his payments and other times he was cut off of his own volition. Three lands, of course had been cultivated and with no occupant to charge them farms began to grow up in weeds. It becomes a problem and it was decided finally that in between auction sales and sometimes years elapse, these cultivated lands should be leased for cultivation at fifty cents per acre per year. The lessee were to run only for one year This solved the weed problem but created another In granting leases the department always gave the farmer who was then rendering the land the first chance and it was found that many farmers were purposely relinquishing their farms in order to get the lease. If a man had 160 acres and bought it at $16 per acre he would have to pay $1,600 over a period of twenty years or $80 per year. But in addition to the annual payments he had to meet interest on the unpaid balance. If he relinquished his farm and took a lease he paid fifty cents per acre or $80 per year. He had no interest to meet at all. Then if the farm were put up for sale, he could buy it, pay $80 as his first payment and relinquish it once more and get on the lease bonanza. In order to meet this situation Mr Stewart is recommending that a new policy be inaugurated, whereby cultivated lands reverting to the crown will be sold again immediately, and not held up indefinitely until the lessee are caught to be especially favorable. There are only a few parcels coming in year by year and the loss in sale price would not be very great. If the land cannot be sold, the proposal is to lease it temporarily until it can be sold, and not to give the former who is relinquishing the land the first claim on the lease. It is thought that this will put a stop to the practice by which settlers have evaded purchase and got on to lease.s

Preserve Coaast Wild Canada

Purpose Of Young Ambassadors Club Pictured by Scribner

Determined to preserve the contact they made with Canada and the Canadian people, and to keep informed on the development of the Dominion from time to time, in order that they might continue to spread the gospel of the opportunities afforded young people in this country, the members of the Young Ambassadors of Empire Party which recently toured the Dominion have formed a Young Ambassadors' Club, with headquarters in London, according to advices received at the Montreal offices of the Canadian National Railways, who sponsored the Canadian portion of the tour. The club is being formed under the direction of Frank L. Lascot, the Allied Newspapers of Britain, who originated the empire travel and scholarship schemes under which the 20 British boys and girls were given the tour to Canada.

The purpose of the club will be to keep alive the contacts made in Canada, to keep the members reliably informed on opportunities for young people in the Dominion, and to preserve the spirit of the empire travel scheme which is to be extended in future years to the Allied Newspaper group to other nations of the British Empire. The 30 Ambassadors, who completed their five weeks remarkable tour of the Dominion are constituted charter members of the club and John Bachman, of London University, who was one of the party has been selected general secretary.

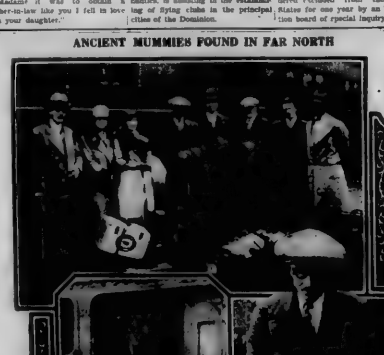
ANCIENT MUMMIES FOUND IN FAR NORTH



With finds which they believe rank with those of King Tut's tomb in antiquity if not in splendor, nine members of the Stoll-McCracken Expedition of the American Museum of Natural History reached Montreal over the lines of the Canadian National Railways from Prince Rupert, B.C., where they left the Schooner "Hope M Morrisey" which had carried them through the Arctic waters. The party consisting of Charles Stoll, of New York, banker and director of the Expedition and his wife, a noted big game huntress; Harold McCracken, Associate Editor of Field and Stream and leader of the expedition, Dr. H. F. Anthony, Curator of Mammals of the American Museum and other scientific experts, left the port of Prince Rupert on May 1st, for northern waters, and were at one time 225 miles north of Herschel Harbour. Their search was for ancient mummies believed to be of Stone Age men, whose presence on the barren islands of the Aleutians group had been reported.

On a barren island, far from the present haunts of men, a burial was discovered in which were four bodies in a rude mausoleum, constructed of driftwood, riverboat timber, all fastened together and held by nails made of various sizes. The mummies were those of a chieftain, his hunter who was sent on the long journey with him to provide game for his food, a shaman,or who had her sewing equipment for repairing the chief's garments, and a child believed to share the elder's love of children. Among the body of the hunter, were the stone hatchets and harpoons of his craft. The mummies were undoubtedly preserved and showed every indication that the people of the Asiatic races, from which these "Stone Age" men of the Aleutians have come, were capable of preservation similar to those of the Ancient Egyptians in preserving the bodies of their Pharaohs. The mummies were found on the northern beach of Herschel Island which is shown here in the hands of Harold McCracken, leader of the Expedition, travelled to Montreal with the party on the Continental Limited of the Canadian National Railways and will be placed in the American Museum together with the important groups of mammals and birds of the Arctic waters which the party secured during their expedition.

Photographs show the members of the party on their arrival at Resurrection Station, Montreal; the mummies were those of the hunter brought back by Mc'Cracken, and "Tough," a member of the party and the only English bulldog which is known to have ever sailed Arctic waters, enjoying a toothpaste from the cab of the Canadian National Railways' locomotive which hauled the party to Montreal. The Poultry Station

Work Being Carried on at Experimental Farm Praised

In a meeting last at the Provincial Exhibition, New Brunswick, Experimental Farm, Salmond praised the work being done in the various lines on experimental and breed scrap. In the meat department alone there has proved superior to other breed scrap or fattened. The best lines carried on for a six months period, ending at the end of May last year. Each of three pens was made up of fifteen Barred Rock pullets.

The amount of two parts cracked corn two parts wheat, and one part oats. The lime mixed was used up at the rate of wheat bran, 100 pounds; wheat middlings, 100 pounds cornmeal, 100 pounds crushed oats, 40 pounds of charcoal. This mixture was uniform but all fine scrap but one of these received in addition 65 pounds of beef scrap. Another received skim milk fed at a rate of a quart daily for fifteen birds and the fifth received 45 pounds of fishmeal. Records were kept of the eggs laid, their values per bird, and the returns per bird over the cost of feed. The cost in feed for the eggs laid amounted to 21 cents per bird. Those receiving meat scrap; 16 cents per dozen for those getting skim milk, and a fraction over 16 cents from the pens receiving the fishmeal. The average value of the eggs per bird was $2.70 for the beef scrap lot, $2.42 for the skim milk pen, and $2.36 for the birds getting the fishmeal. The profit on the birds was at a corresponding scale. It is further shown in the report, which is published by the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa, that the mortality in the chicks at three weeks of age was highest from the birds getting the fishmeal, amounting to almost 43 per cent. The lowest were those from the pens from skim milk fed birds amounting to 10 per cent. Likewise the mortality from the eggs from the fishmeal fed pen was midway between, amounting to 22.85 per cent. Experiments during three years showed that skim milk has given better egg production and a larger profit than beef scrap.

The Foreign Born

No Race Or Nationality Has a Monopoly Of All the Virtues

When the Canadian Clubs in convention at Calgary expressed strong disapproval of the alluring visitors' cards that have been made to citizens of non-British origin they did a useful thing for the country. They should have some effect in checking an intemperate form of speech that has, in some cases, been employed not by persons who gave the matter no reasonable and fair consideration.

It is natural enough that people of British stock should entertain the notion that there is no stock quite equal to their own. This notion is instinctive in every race, and in none stronger than with us. Nationalities, as distinct from races, do not and thrive on it. In the right place and not too offensively proclaimed it has its merits.

But the fact is that no race or nationality has anything like a monopoly of the merits and virtues. Every race has its weak and everything desirable to be found in every people everywhere, and all this has been demonstrated and is better known in these times than ever before.

In Canada all this should be better known, perhaps, than elsewhere because the presence of foreign-born people is no new thing in this country, and many of the great and fine things that have been done have been done by these people.—Toronto Star.

"And did you play nice games?"

"Yes, mamma."

Suspend "Clean" Rate On Tea

New Tariff Would Increase Cost To the Consumer

Complete suspension of railway tariff item No. 290-A, in supplement 21, which placed tea imported from Vancouver in transit to points in Canada under the "clean" rate, thus creating a large increase over the previous "commodity rate," was ordered by the board of railway commissioners in a judgment handed down at Ottawa. The judgment sends exhaustively with the representations of the various boards of trade throughout the west since the item was known to affect since 1919. In 1930 a new tariff was designed which cancelled this rate and put ten lines in the list. Representations over the "clean" rate - a classification which would have had the effect of increasing the tax by as much as $2.61 for carload lots, and $3.72 for less than carload lots.

The reasoning given by the board it was urged that the new tariff would increase the cost to the consumer of tea, and that while the eastern Canada tea importers favored the tariff on the ground that it would give them the opportunity of competing in the western market. After hearing all representations the board ordered the cancellation of the proposed new tariff and the continuation of the old.

Has Commercial Value

Education Plays Important Part In Amount Of Income

An investigation made of the income of more than 6,000 men by a national professional commerce fraternity lends again to the conclusion that education is valuable. Rather a direct connection is established by this study between the amount of an individual's education and the amount of his income.

Necessarily, that any individual who has had a college course does not mean spends a small fortune in education will necessary forge his way into the high income class. There are exceptions to all rules and there are individuals who, in spite of excellent education, find somehow to get ahead.

But in a group of 7,000 men the rule prevails over the exceptions. And fatty tissue against the investigation bear out others based upon a smaller number of cases.

The position of the cynic on the value of education, high or otherwise, becomes progressively more difficult. Sufficient data are now coming to hand to demonstrate with a measure of scientific accuracy that education has a distinct commercial value, whether secured with that as the primary consideration or not

"Thank you," the older man replied gravely. "Our population is made up of people from all parts of the world as our native-born are few. A country polls is more or less indifferent to the future of the country in which he resides. 'Get the money' is unfortunately the slogan of many of our business men, who make no attempt to build for the future. Consequently time as there is ingrained in the hearts of our citizens a true love for our Province—until such time as certain old towns forget petty bickerings and jealousies and work together and harmoniously, then—and only then—will British Columbia become what Nature intended, the crowning jewel of the Dominion."

Janet's guests arrived in groups of two and three until about twenty of Vancouver's younger set were gathered about the large rooms. In introducing Donald to her friends Janet felt a secret thrill of satisfaction as she saw the many glances of keen interest directed toward her stranger guest.

A slender girl with elaborately coiffed golden hair, looking like a white butterfly, fluttered to Janet's side and shook a reproving finger in her face. "Fess up now, Janet," she pouted; "how long have you been hiding this handsome man? Who is this Prince Charming."

"Curiosity killed the cat," was Janet's evasive reply.

Donald had no penchant for social functions, but this lively party was a grateful respite from a whole winter of lonely evenings, and he entered into the spirit of the occasion whole-heartedly.

A game of whist and then the big rooms were cleared and they danced until a late hour. Donald's partner sang her own song for them. Her rich contralto voice seemed to fill the room, and set the old piano fairly to throbbing. She sang a song of love and passion that seemed to bear Donald into another world. As he turned the final sheet and the last liquid note travelled through the rooms he roused himself as though from a spell.

"Will you please sing again!" he implored.

"The same?" she questioned softly. He nodded. Donald's gaze travelled from the flying white fingers to the lovely face of the singer. As they eyes met Janet's face flushed slightly, and at the finish of the verse she changed quickly to a rollicking song of the sea. "All fish fi," she called merrily over her shoulder.

After Janet's other guests had departed Donald, Douglas and Janet sat for an hour chatting by the large fireplace.

"May I go with you as far as Squamish tomorrow?" asked Janet.

"Certainly, Sis."

"And have the railroad is through I will visit you," she added.

Douglas looked at her curiously. Janet abhorred roughing it. Riding around Stanely Park and an occasional game of tennis comprised the extent of her outdoor activities. Donald, too glanced at the clock and came quickly to his feet. "I'd better hurry to the house, Donald," he said, "or we have to be up early."

The tinted shade of the hall light lent a soft mellowness to the beauty of Janet's face and gave to her eyes a deep, and languorous glow.

"I have enjoyed every moment, Donald. Thank you so much," Donald said earnestly.

"I'm glad," she answered in a quiet voice.

His look her hand and held it in a strong clasp. "I'll see you in the morning?"

"Yes," she murmured softly.

The door closed quietly and Janet heard him run down the steps to the waiting motor. She stood immovable until the sound of the car died in the distance, then walked meditatively to the fireplace, sank to a big chair and stared dreamily into the dying embers. Jiffy she reached for the evening paper and spread it on her knees.

"Such dignity and poise! He is wonderful!" she whispered aloud. "I could Douglas more about him."

She lowered her eyes to the paper, then came slowly to her feet, a look of intense amazement on her face Smiling up at her was the face of the man of whom she had been dreaming.

"CANADIAN CHAMPION"

"New Canadian champions, whose spectacular defeat of Garrieau stamps him as a master of fetians and places him in line to meet the world's top-notchers."

A pugilist! And she had proudly introduced him to her friends! Why hadn't Douglas told her? Which of himself into a chair and gave herself over to a period of gloomy contemplation.

Whistling softly Douglas shut off the hall lights and entered the room. "Not in bed yet? You'll have to," he broke off suddenly as she turned cold eyes upon him.

"Why didn't you tell me that your friend is a pugilist?" she demanded as she thrust the offending sheet in Douglas's hand. "Is the glove business?" she went on sarcastically "That may be your idea of a joke, but I don't see anything funny about it. And without waiting for an answer she flung herself angrily from the room.

Douglas lighted a cigarette, which he smoked with short angry puffs as he walked the floor. He kicked viciously at an ineffensive footstool and sent it hurtling across the room. "Damn!" Then throwing the half-smoked cigarette in the fireplace, he switched off the light and sought his bed.

CHAPTER VII

In spite of the late hour of his return, Donald was up early and was the first of the party to reach the dock. Gilks and Andy arrived soon after, the latter staggering manfully under his heavy pack, a rifle swinging easily in his left hand.

Donald stepped forward as Douglas appeared. His face fell as he saw that he was alone "Isn't your sister coming?" he asked

Douglas avoided Donald's direct gaze. He leaned over to fumble needlessly with the straps of his duffle bags. "She's peeved; now you photograph in bad night's paper."

"I'm sorry," said Donald, obviously

"Janet makes me tired," said Douglas irritably. "What if you did fight Garrieau? What difference does it make?"

"Your sister's view-point is different," answered Donald gloomily. "You must be careful to know more about me, Doug, yet you have never asked any questions."

"I have often wondered," admitted Douglas; "but if you wished me to know you would tell me. I don't give a hang who you are or what you are. You suit me."

"Thanks, Doug."

The sound of screams of the steamer's whistle smote their ears.

"Kiv, you bipsiters!" shouted Andy from the log deck, "are you goin' on this binkin' picnic?"

The lines were cast off, the water hailed under the steamer's stern. They backed slowly from the dock, swung about and headed for the Narrows The noise of screaming gulls that accompanied them hovered over the dock, their keen eyes on the lookout for any bits of waste food that should fall in the steamer's wake. Boats plied in and out, every kind of craft from small rowboats to large steamers.

A bright sun, beaming with all the warmth and splendour of full morning, shed its golden rays over the wide shower of gold. A strong westerly wind backed an outgoing tide, and it was that over the waters greeted a flashing white in the sunlight. The tumbling combers hissed and crashed against the shingle beach. The boat, causing her to pitch jerkily The salt breeze whipped a glow into the faces of the party gathered near the stern. Breakfast was consumed noisily through the meats and supersturcture. A yacht flying the passenger signal from Victoria, passed in pure white, swept past them, a smother of foam at her bow. A whitehly-built boat filled with gaily dressed people with a huge raft of logs in tow, a pillar of inky smoke streaming over her bow.

Douglas and Donald were seated at Prospect Point, Donald's thought reverted to his first meeting with Janet. Douglas noticed the direction of his gaze, and following it through binoculars, passed the glasses to Donald and pointed to the bluff. At first he could distinguish a special interest and turned to glance at Douglas inquiringly

"Look closer," said Douglas

Sure enough, he now saw a horse and rider on the highest point etched clear against the sky-line of the bluff's crest. Douglas waved a handkerchief, and Donald caught a flutter of white in the lens. Presently a responding white hand was lifted and waved. His mind was filled with conjectures Why was she there? Had she still a grudge against him despite last night's exposure?

Janet could not herself have explained her reasons for being there. She was up early, stole quietly to the stable, saddled her horse and rode to the bluff. Riding steadily all the morning, she had battled with herself, had summoned all her courage to resist the spell this strange young man had held over her, only to find "at her will was impotent.

A few men glanced up casually then turned to their tasks. Work went on as usual. The mill clattered and thundered, the engine bells clanged—only a horse that was no more useful being led to his death in everyday occurrence in a city construction camp

ACID MOUTH

"Acid mouth" denotes a condition in which the saliva is acid in reaction —turning blue litmus red.

Normally, saliva resting in the mouth is neutral or very slightly acid, while saliva as it flows from the glands is but slightly alkaline.

The danger of real "acid mouth" in which the saliva exhibits a marked acid reaction is that the acid content injures tooth enamel and, bringing about a general weakening of tooth structure, giving rise to decay.

But normally the salivary glands will not tolerate for long a marked acidity in the mouth as they are stimulated by the very presence of the acid content to a flow of slightly alkaline saliva to neutralize it.

For example: You may eat some citrus fruit, grape fruit, or orange, and from the presence of the fruit acids the saliva in the mouth will give a marked acid reaction. But this condition will remain but a few minutes as a rule, the saliva returning shortly to neutrality or near-neutrality.

There appear to be, however, real cases of "acid mouth" in some individuals, and to combat this there are offered both alkaline dentifrices and pastes in which are incorporated fruit acids.

Nevertheless, exhaustive tests have proven that mouth acidity or alkalinity cannot be controlled by foreign substances for any length of time.

A real case of "acid mouth," therefore, can only be successfully remedied by a diet that will build up the alkaline reserve of the body to combat "acid mouth."

In general, milk, fruit and vegetables build up the alkaline reserve of the body, while eggs, meat, cereal and bread depete it. The average diet, meat, bread, potatoes and pastry, tends towards acidosis, or a depleted alkali reserve.

Hence, it is not so important whether we use this or that dentifrice, as that the tooth mass may be habitually employed for the maintenance of a clean healthy mouth.

Salt in Canada

Produced Principally in Ontario and Nova Scotia

Common salt, or sodium chloride, is obtained in two forms, in solution in a saturated brine, from which the salt is extracted by evaporation, and in lump or solid form by direct mining. During the year 1927, salt was produced in seven provinces, and in the Maingash salt district, Nova Scotia. Ontario salt is obtained from brine wells, while Manigash salt is recovered by mining rock salt. A small quantity was also shipped from rock salt from the McMurrey field in Alberta.

The Canadian production of salt, except for small exports, is sold in Canada principally to the dairy, meat-curing, fisheries, and chemical industries, and as table salt by household use. The market for salt in Canada is steadily increasing

The great problem is distribution. Think of logs like that being wasted on a hangover, far from settlement.

DOCTOR'S DAUGHTER'S STORY

Another Toronto home provides evidence of how a simple cut, scratch or bruise, may pave the way to deadly blood-poisoning, and how vital is the need for keeping Zam-Buk, always handy!

When called upon at 57, Dundonald Avenue, Mrs. J. E. Zealley, daughter of the late Dr. Bevan, of St. David's, S. Wales, said:—"My boy Alfred scratched his leg with the bean tag of a shoe lace. It very soon pained me developed and it defied all the usual remedies. Hearing splendid reports about Zam-Buk I decided to give it a trial. To my great relief, the pain soon ceased healing to set in. All inflammation and poisonous matter was quickly removed by Zam-Buk, and it healed the sore without leaving a scar.

"Again when I fell over a steel fender and bruised my knee badly, Zam-Buk soon saved me. My daughter, a nurse, was of the opinion that only an operation could remove the mass of inflammation around me. But I again turned my faith to Zam-Buk, and it released and healed the wound. All dressings and sores sell Zam-Buk at fifty cents per box. Equally valuable for eczema, ringworm, cuts, burns, etc.

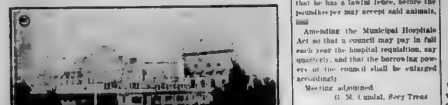
Mediaeval Mystery Play Revived



The Nativity Scene, Vienna, the beautiful grounds of which will be brilliant with lights during display the season of revelry, being arranged by an old English Christmas custom.

Despite Christmas in England in 1223, 606 years ago. The dawn of the Reformation was all but breaking, but the Church still held places of power in state as in religion, and had been for centuries the fount of all learning. Think It Over.

Hon. R. B Bennett, in addressing the Maritime Province Club in Montreal told a Father Doyle" story, which he heard while visiting Nova Scotia the past summer a story with a point to it

Father Doyle was walking along a road there, before automobiles were allowed in. Prince Edward Island that is not so long ago—and he was overtaken by a farmer in a democrat. The farmer said, 'Will you have a lift?' and Father Doyle said he would be delighted. He got into the democrat and opened up the conversation by asking the farmer his name. 'My name's Murphy, but I'm not a Catholic,' the farmer answered. Father Doyle suggested that they might leave religious matters alone and get along quite well together. As they neared the journey's end, Father Doyle thanked the farmer, and offered to give him a little advice from an old man of long experience. "When you die you hope to get to heaven?" "I hope so." "Well, remember my advice When you get there, and go up to the golden gate and knock at the door, and St. Peter says 'Who's there?' Just say 'Murphy,' and stop right there.'

Father Doyle's suggestion that we might leave our religious differences alone and treat each other as fellow men—say "Murphy" and stop right there—is good advice. What, says one daily paper in commenting on this little story, is wanted is a mind and a will, and organizations, to emphasize our common needs and our common ideals, the points upon which we can agree, rather the minor matters upon which we disagree and which will engender ill-will, strife and discord.

The recent Presidential election in the United States is an object lesson to all people. A great country of upwards of 110,000,000 people, engaged in the supremely important task of determining the personal and policies of their Government for the next four years, have had their minds distracted from the real issue involved in the election by appeals based solely on the religious belief of one of the candidates for President. It is not that the candidate in question was a heathen, or an atheist, defying there is a God, and wholly devoted to worldly things, but the fact that he was looking all the finer ideals in life, no, he believes in, and worships the same God as those who attacked him, but he was born into and brought up to respect certain doctrines and forms in the particular branch of the Christian church, just as his opponents were born into and brought up to respect and accept the doctrines and forms of worship in other branches of the Christian church But these Christians could not agree to disagree on these points and unite on the great fundamentals of Christianity itself With what result."

Great national issues affecting the whole life and future of the country, such as the prohibitory liquor laws, the tariff, the improvement of agriculture public ownership of public utilities versus private and monopolistic control and other real national questions, all became confused and mixed up in the minds of millions of people with the really inconsequential subject of one man's church affiliation. And what has been gained thereby? What remains after all the shouting is over? Old friendships of a lifetime broken, bitterness and hatred engendered, communities divided which were formerly united in work for the common good.

It is but a repetition of the strife of the middle ages. Much the same thing has occurred in Canada once and over again, but no man living can point to any good resulting from such conception Here in Western Canada our people pride themselves on their devotion to co-operative principles, and they can point to the success of co-operation as a result largely because of their acceptance of, and devotion to co-operative policies and enterprises But they may well ask themselves how long that good-will and harmony so essential to the success of co-operative endeavor will last, not to mention its further development and growth in order that still greater things may be achieved, if they are going to give encouragement to feelings of bitterness and take part in campaigns of division based on the manner in which their individual members worship God.

In all matters of religious differences of opinion. Father Doyle's advice is good Just say "Murphy" and stop right there.

Manitoba Hydro Plan

Provincial Government Has Program That Will Extend All Over Province

It has been announced that the Manitoba Government is prepared to embark on a programme of Hydro-Electric power transmission line construction that will extend to all parts of the Province—to towns hamlets, and farms—the Government to pay one half of the cost, including lines already built Under this new policy there is a guarantee of sufficient power, very low rates, and revenue in the way of rentals for power sites Thus it has been stated on behalf of the Government, it is possible for the Government to undertake the housing of town and farm lines without incurring a dollar of capital debt; without the necessity of increased taxation and without the risk of large annual deficits This policy is designed to promote industries throughout the Province and to lighten the labor and increase the comforts of the farm

H. B. Road Nearing Completion

Laying Of Rails Will Be Completed By Next Month

The laying of rails on the Hudson Bay Railway will be completed by next March, Major Graham A. Bell, deputy minister of railways and canals, has announced, but considerable blasting will have to be done before the road can be opened for traffic The work at Port Churchill, where modern harbor accommodations and harbor equipment are being installed is being pushed ahead. It will require another three years to complete this undertaking. Discussing the development of Northern Manitoba, Major Bell states that there were many evidences of mineralization along the route of the railway, particularly as far north as mileage 900 north of The Pas. He felt that these deposits would play a great part in the opening up of that section of the province. Five thousand men are now employed on the railway and harbor works.

TONIC TREATMENT FOR INDIGESTION

Indigestion Comes With a Run-Down Condition—Relief Comes Through Enriching the Blood—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Make New Blood.

There are many symptoms of indigestion, but the most common are belching, belching of wind, nausea and vomiting, heart burn and pain. All of these symptoms are caused by acid in the stomach, and the first step to relief is to correct the condition which causes the acid. The only way to get rid of indigestion is to tone up the whole system through the blood, to do the work the stomach cannot do for itself. The one thorough way to do this is through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, which renew the blood, strengthen the nerves and enable the stomach to do the work with ease and comfort. Neglected indigestion often develops into dyspepsia. If you have any of the symptoms of this trouble you should get treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once and you will be gratified with the results.

Among the many who have found new health through the use of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is Mrs. Ada Cox, Bay View, Prescott Co., Ont., who says:—"For a long time I went through the tortures of nerves indigestion; I had no appetite and every other word can describe what I endured. If my stomach was nearly starved, if I took food I vomited. I did not sleep, and I was steadily growing weaker. I doctored for months but got no benefit. One day my husband said, as the treatment you have had has not helped you, why not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I immediately got a box and got my supply. After I had been taking the pills for a while I knew they were helping me and the pain and terrible retching grew less and I slept better. I gladly continued the use of the pills and in a few months I felt like a new woman better in fact than I had been for years. I am glad to work for my husband and children now, and would advise any sufferer to experience how can I do anything else but praise Dr. Williams' Pink Pills."

If you need a blood-building tonic begin taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills today. Sold by all medicine dealers at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Courtesy Well Rewarded

A happy result of a servant girl's act of courtesy at Leeds has just come to light. Two or three years ago, the girl, named Ellen Fleming, assisted an old lady across a busy street and received a £5 note from the lady's note of the girls name and address. Recently Miss Fellowes received a letter advising her of the old lady's death and a bequest of $2,000.

Inhaled as medicine or vapor it reaches the very innermost recesses of the bronchial passages and head colds. Restriction passes and easy breathing returns If you know of any other remedy would help you as do thousands of grateful users, they would be a package in your home tonight. Try it.

A German botanist is reported to have succeeded in producing 40 new varieties of dandelions. The majority of folk will feel that one variety is nuisance enough.

To safeguard the child from damage that worms cause, use Dr. Low's Worm Powders, the medicine par excellence for children. These powders will clear the system entirely of worms, will regulate and stimulate the organs injuriously affected by the worms, and will encourage healthful operation of the digestive processes. Northern Outposts Are Covered By Radio

Broadcasting Programs For Month Of Lonely Dwellers In Northland

Broadcasting programmes in the Far North will be continued this winter, and messages will be sent to those police posts, missions and trading stations which are scattered throughout Canada's territory north of the 60th parallel, when the service commence Saturday night, November 17, at 11 o'clock Eastern standard time, the Canadian Westinghouse Company operating the broadcast in conjunction with allied stations in the United States.

Officials of the Northwest Territories branch of the Department of the Interior said that the success which had attended previous efforts encouraged them to continue. Gratifying results had been obtained in such as the lives of the men on the lonely outposts of Canada's northern empire had been greatly cheered by the contact with the world.

For the most part, the messages sent out of a personal nature, being expressions of regards from relatives of the men distributed throughout the north.

Another phase of the broadcast is one which assists the department at Ottawa in the distribution of relief for the officials in the north, supplementary to those already given by mail.

A network of wireless stations now extends over the Northland.

Habit Would Stave Up Reserves Of Health Says Noted Author

Sir Berkeley Moynihan, the great surgeon, said that one way to keep people healthy was to constantly and regularly to allow the nerves to rest.

A quarter of an hour's quiet and undisturbed reading a day, immediately after luncheon would store up reserves of health and stamina, he declared in an address to women, the American surgeons, came to spend a holiday with him they never failed to take time to go to their cottage for a quarter of an hour's rest in complete isolation.

Reading, Sir Berkeley's maxim is that every man when he reaches 60, no matter how well he feels, should take three months' holiday. "Not more than three months for the man with an active mind." he says.

Made Best Guess

Little Albert came home from school with a new book about worms. It's a prize, mother," he said.

"A prize? What for, dear?"

"For guessing most history." Teacher asked me how many legs an ostrich had and I said three."

"But an ostrich has two legs."

"I know that now, mother, but the rest of the class said four, so I was nearest."

Salads For Health

Vegetables and Fruit Needed In Winter As Well As Summer

Do not allow yourself to get away from the fresh salads, now that the weather is getting colder, and some of the usual salad ingredients are not at hand.

Health demands plenty of green vegetables and fresh fruit, in winter time as well as in summer. Here is another word can describe what I endured. If my stomach was nearly starved, if I took food I vomited. I did not sleep, and I was steadily growing weaker. I doctored for months but got no benefit. One day my husband said, as the treatment you have had has not helped you, why not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. I immediately got a box and got my supply. May Become a Burden

Much Happiness Missed When Gathering Wealth Becomes An Obsession

Wealth can be a burden, once it becomes an obsession, as invariably it does. You must always go on and on, making more, once you have started. It is not sufficient to make say, £50,000 out of a business and they say, "That will do." You cannot stand still. When you have made a good thing out of one business you are impatient to start with the next Continually, you must fight, for once you are rich your position is being continually assailed. You become obsessed in the fight for its own sake And in following this obsession, remember, you inevitably forego much of the simpler happiness which might be yours; there is no other way of winning through, and keeping there

PARLIAMENT OF BRITAIN OPENED WITH CEREMONY

London, Eng. — Parliament was formally opened by the king with all the colorful ceremony surrounding the occasion. The session is the last before the next general election. In the speech from the throne, His Majesty expressed gratification at the signing of the anti-war pact, outlined a scheme for relieving railways to reduce charges on basic traffic and a plan to alleviate mining area unemployment by training 30,000 miners a year for agricultural pursuits in the Dominion.

The subsequent debate on the address in reply to the speech was featured by the attack of Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, Labor leader, on the Anglo-French proposals for further naval limitation. He termed it an "agreement not to limit armaments" and pressed Premier Baldwin for a full government statement on the present status of the agreement. The premier, however, pointed out the Labor party was to move an amendment censuring the government on account of the pact and therefore any government statement should be reserved for the debate on this amendment.

In the course of his speech, Mr. MacDonald mentioned the movement of miners to the Eastern harvest fields last August, saying he hoped future migration schemes would include many unemployed from districts whose workings he had personally seen in Canada.

"You didn't say that when you were over there," a Conservative member remarked.

Smith Will Retire From Public Life

Says Quarter Century Of It Has Been Enough

New York.—Governor Smith announces that he never again expected to run for public office, he said, in reply to a question. "I have been in public life for a quarter of a century and I have had all I can stand of it. As far as running for office again, that is absurd."

The governor said he had no regrets and nothing but pleasant memories even from defeat. Commenting on the part he had played in campaigning for Democratic candidates, he said: "I am a Democrat and I naturally believe in the rule of the majority."

Make Arrangements For Important Conference

Agricultural Leaders and Canadian Chamber Of Commerce To Meet In Toronto

Montreal.—The conference which agriculture leaders with the Canadian Chamber of Commerce is arranging for November 27, in Toronto, promises to be an event of economic significance and a forward move in the effort which the chamber is making toward the co-ordination of agriculture and the other business interests of Canada, said Dr. John W. Ross, chairman of the executive of the Canadian Chamber, here.

The invitations which have been issued to each of the heads of the provincial departments of agriculture and to the department of agriculture of Ottawa to participate in the round-table conference have been made case been accepted, said Dr. Ross.

Although no set speeches or papers were to be prepared, the agenda would include a frank and friendly discussion of the conferees itself on such subjects as the service which could be rendered the agriculturists of Canada showing him the value of reducing production costs, more efficient farm management, better marketing methods, wider markets and transportation, and a setting-up of a national agricultural committee of the chamber to advance agriculture in a business-like way."

Navigation Through Hudson Straits Closed

Dispatch From Fort Churchill Indicates Season Is Practically Over

Ottawa.—Navigation through the Hudson Straits is closed for the winter, it was learned at the Department of Marine by a wireless dispatch from Fort Churchill, which indicates that the harbor is frozen over and there is no as far as the eye can reach. As a result the ice breaker Montcalm has been ordered to return to Quebec from Fort Churchill.

For several months the Montcalm has been carrying on ice observations in the straits and is the last ship to leave Hudson's Bay.

There is no ice in the straits themselves, it was stated. With the closing up of the harbor at Churchill, however, the work of the Montcalm is completed.

Several men are remaining at the various radio stations throughout the straits and will continue sending reports on ice and fog conditions.

Prosperous Canada

Hon. Peter Heenan Sees Evidences Of Prosperity Everywhere

Toronto.—With evidence of prosperity everywhere apparent Canada is coming into her own, declared Hon. Peter Heenan, minister of labor, at a meeting here.

Mr. Heenan discussed briefly the question of immigration and old age pensions. The former subject he thought two considerations as of vital importance in any policy which might be framed, namely to give preference to Britishers and to give only truthful information to those intending to settle here.

The minister could have no worse advertisement than to have immigrants write back "home" and say nothing had been as represented to them, he said.

The minister was high in the praise of old age pensions legislation and declared his intention of speaking "up and down the country" until it has been adopted by every province.

Prevention Of Tuberculosis

Changes Are Foreshadowed In Methods Used To Curb Disease

Toronto. — Various changes of sweeping character in the methods employed to curb tuberculosis throughout Canada are foreshadowed as a result of the study of European methods made by 22 Canadian doctors, including Dr. J. H. Elliott and Dr. Dobbie of Toronto.

One of the possibly outstanding changes will be the development of a Dominion department to have control of tuberculosis prevention work throughout the Dominion, and another equally important innovation probably will be legislation providing for substantial grants for the carrying on of the work.

Herbert Hoover Is Elected New U.-S. President

New York. — Republicans have swept the country from coast to coast. They have developed the states bordering on the old solid South. They have driven a wedge into the South itself.

Herbert Hoover has been elected to the presidency in one of the most sweeping landslides ever recorded.

By one of those extraordinary ironies of politics, it was Governor Smith's own state of New York which first wrote his doom. On four occasions New York had given Smith the highest office in its gift. On each occasion New York state and its 45 electoral college votes the Democratic ticket to victory.

New York City gave its plurality to Governor Smith but the upstate Republican vote rolled over it. With 37% districts heard out of 8,367, Hoover was 90,000 ahead.

Democrats, however, found some bright spots in the New York state returns. Franklin D. Roosevelt, who nominated Smith, at Houston, was elected to the governorship over Albert Ottinger by a margin that showed him running well ahead of the Democratic national ticket.

Washington, D.C.—President Coolidge sent congratulations to President-elect Herbert Hoover. His message to Hoover read:

"On behalf of our party with your election to the presidency and the endorsement of the administration I express a great satisfaction to me. With this endorsement you now receive from office in contentment, and you my most cordial congratulations. I express victory, to you, Mrs. Coolidge and Mrs. Hoover my best wishes, in which Mrs. Coolidge joins."

Find Oil Shale In North

New Discoveries Are Reported Near Hudson's Bay Junction

The Pas.—Mining men in The Pas district are much interested in reports from Hudson's Bay Junction, that oil-bearing shale has been found at a depth of 125 miles southeast of that village.

The discoveries have been made in the old Porcupine Hills forest reserve and are close to the Manitoba boundary. Geological examinations by a mining engineering company have been on the field for some weeks.

Samples of the shale now are reported to have a greater potential value than the discoveries made in Colorado years ago. It was pointed out that the crop had been somewhat poor both in grades and quantity obtained, particularly in the oats.

Would Safeguard Lake Shipping

Ottawa — Representations have been made to the railway standing committee operators, in the Great Lakes and to others interested regarding the "inadequate facilities" the period of navigation in those waters should close either on December 5 or December 7, declares Mr. Johnston, deputy minister of marine and fisheries, here.

London, Eng.—Right Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, leader of the Labor party, has announced that the party had arranged that "in the event of a by" the period of navigation in those waters should close either on December 5 or December 7, declares Mr. Johnston, deputy minister of marine and fisheries, here.

"This, he said, would entail flying over Arctic ice and he declared that the northern route was much to be preferred.

Russia Needs Wheat

Will Soon Be Placing Orders With Canada In Report

London, Eng.—A possibility of further orders for the Canadian Wheat Pool from the Union of Soviet Republics has been reported by The Morning Post, which says this is a direct impression of grain brokers on the Baltic Exchange.

According to the newspaper, information secured by brokers in Britain from travellers and sea captains leads them to believe that the situation in Russia is far worse than generally reported and that the Soviet power is anxious to make terms abroad as speedily as possible before grain becomes frozen.

In this connection it is recalled that Russia bought 900,000 tons of wheat early this year, following which order there was a shall. The objective of this buying is now attributed to a desire to force the hands of the rich peasants, who were withholding stocks. In the present case, however, a serious shortage is believed to exist, from the statements of sales brokers are justified, it is impossible to tell, and so far there has been no definite indication that Russia is going to resume buying. Nevertheless, The Morning Post is apparently convinced.

Manitoba Wheat Pool Meeting

Brandon, Man. — Three hundred delegates together with a large number of visitors attended the fifth annual meeting of the Manitoba Wheat Pool held here under the chairmanship of Colin H. Experimental Coal Shipments

Unable To Give Definite Figures On Transportation Costs Until Next March

Ottawa. — Actual transportation costs of the experimental shipments of Alberta and maritime coal to central Canada came before the board of railway commissioners here. The hearing was adjourned sine die on representations of the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways that definite figures on the cost of these trial movements would not be available until March next.

The sitting was in conformity with orders-in-council passed by the Dominion government last spring authorizing reimbursement from the federal exchequer to the railway companies for any loses entailed in the $6.75 per ton rate from Alberta to Ontario and the one-fifth of a cent per ton mile reduction in the westward haul of maritime coal The trial movement authorized covers a period of three years

Vancouver.—"Today the face of Alberta is turned Westward instead of Eastward; prior to 1923, Alberta looked down the narrow strip of the rails that led to Fort William and other Eastern centres. This was the statement of Premier J. E. Brownlee, of Alberta, in an address before the Vancouver Canadian Club in which he reviewed the progress of his province in the last twenty years and expressed its aspirations for the future.

Has Faith in Canada's Future

American Newspaperman Speaks Of Growth Of the Dominion

Albert Halstead, the American colonist-general, was the guest of honor at a recent Pilgrims' luncheon, held in London. Mr. Halstead was welcomed by a hundred men prominent in British life who extended greetings to him on behalf of the Pilgrims' Society. Speaking of the relationship of Canada and the United States Mr. Halstead said:

"After my many years in Canada I feel justified in saying that if Canada is, as has been so well said, inter preter of Britain to the United States and the United States to Britain, then as an American of many years residence in British and Canada, I am in an exceptional position to interpret Canada to you. It is very gratifying to refer to the continuing growth of the Dominion. I feel that the natural development of the Dominion into nationhood has not lessened, but if any thing increased, its devotion to the British crown and its sympathy and interest and pride in Britain and the Empire.

After the close of the Great War, which Canada's contribution was superb, but which left a heavy in debtedness and the necessity of readjustment. Canadians met their problems with courage and confidence, and for several years their situation has been improving until now the government is paying off its debt from revenue. Prosperity prevails, optimism is general, and though there was a wave of speculation which seemed threatening, that danger seems past and I look forward with assurance to a continuing development of every part of the Dominion, whose resources are marvelous and whose people, both British and French, as well as those of other strains, are filled with courage and actuated by high sentiments of duty and honor.

"There is a continuing development of friendship between the United States and Canada and of mutual respect, confidence and regard. Both countries feel that our relations one with the other, and the absence of any fortifications on the boundary stand as example to the world."

Lord Desborough, presiding, read a message from Premier Mackenzie King of Canada.

How Safe is Civilization

More People Killed By Autos In America Than Wild Beasts Kill In Asia

The land of Indra, as we all know, is sadly benighted and uncivilized. Last year, for instance, 24,000 people there were killed by wild beasts and reptiles. Snakes alone took 19,000 lives, tigers took 1,053 more, wolves, 486; leopards, 317, and crocodiles 140.

Deplorable isn't it?

Fortunately we in the United States don't face those dangers. We are far too advanced and civilized for anything like that.

To be sure, there were more than 24,000 people killed in the United States last year by automobiles. But, in the words of the immortal Mr. Mark, "What's the idea in bringing that up?"

Not Really Hurt

A young negro, driving a cart driven by a mule, was endeavoring to induce the animal to increase its speed. Suddenly the mule let fl; with his heels and dealt the negro a tremendous kick on the head that stretched him on the ground.

"Is he hurt?" asked a stranger of another negro who had jumped from the cart and was standing over the prostrate driver.

"No, boss," was the reply. "Dat mule will probably walk kind o' lame fuh a day or two, but he ain't hurt."

It's another of life's little contradictions that a man can marry a widow and marry amiss at the same time.

England Has One Woman Stockbroker

Has Been In Business For Over Twenty-Five Years

Mrs. Annie Clubb, of Kentish Town-road, in North London, Engl., is believed to be the only working woman stockbrokrs in England. She has been in the business for more than twenty-five years.

She makes her selections and wonders' frames and artistic "amiques" trouwork. She can swing a fourteen-pound dodgehammer as well as any man.

Mrs. Clubb is sixty-three years of age, and has trained her three sons to follow her trade—one in America, and two in England.

"I have been a widow for many years," said Mrs. Clubb. "My husband was a biscuitin, and I took up the work to help him, as he was delicate and could not manage singlehanded. After he died I carried on the business.

"When first we had the forgs Hiac and mountain currant bushes grew around it, and there was a field of grass and some trees at the back.

"The heaviest job I ever did was to two giant hooge for a factory chimney. They were so heavy that they had to be made in two sections.

"My favorite work has always been the more artistic forms of iron beating.

"We used to make those antique 'dogs' for fireplaces that interest collectors. They had to look old and battered, and were destined to be some "finds."

Mrs. Clubb's only assistant is her twenty-two-year-old son.

Animals Fond Of Music

Quiet Pieces Played On Piano Give Them Pleasure

A well known musician has been making inquiries as to the likes and dislikes of animals with regard to music. It is generally thought that dogs dislike it, but these inquiries show that it is only the rougher kinds that they dislike, while the best classical and modern music seems to give them pleasure.

Dogs appear to be their favorite instrument, and the violin and brass band their pet aversions. Many cats are attracted by the piano when quiet music is played, as well as when they themselves can make music by running over the keys. Caged birds are cured of home sickness by its means, and monkeys and snakes come for a distance to listen to it.

Mice, besides finding the piano a convenient place to build their nests, appear to like the sound a lot, while cows give more milk, and bees more eggs, when they hear it regularly. The latter appear prefer classical music to the weaker sort known as "popular" is well established, while flying insects and parrots are now reported to show displeasure when ragtime or jazz is played, and a keen enjoyment when better types of music are played.

Had Ready Answer

Rinner Of Mark Twain Was Always In Evidence

Among the thousands who drifted into the camps during the early days of the first Nevada gold rush was Samuel Clemens (Mark Twain). He was an unlucky miner as he hung out his washing as a notary Business was poor, and to occupy his spare time he would work at the various claims, often turning the evidence that lifted the ore buckets from the shafts. Hauled one hot afternoon as he was laboring at the crank by a passing acquaintance with, "Well, Sam, what do you think you are doing now?" the philosophical lawyer, without pausing, gravely replied: "Just winding up the company's business."

Natural Gas Production

Production of natural gas in Canada in 1927 totalled 21,276,791,000 cubic feet valued at $6,843,610 The Province of Alberta was the principal producer with an output of 13,424,621,000 cubic feet: Ontario was next with 7,311,315,000 cubic feet; and New Brunswick third with 530,-755 cubic feet

Bill went to Ottawa expecting that his Senator would get him an easy berth.

"And did he?"

"Not exactly; but he gave him a wide one."

"What's that?"

"Perilluse."

"For the land's sake."

"You're right."

13,000 Square Miles Photographed By Royal Canadian Air Force

An extent of country larger than the combined areas of the States of New York, Delaware and Rhode Island and also larger than the whole of England, has been photographed in Canada this year by the Royal Canadian Air Force. Of the 13,000 square miles which Canada's air men photographed, 2,000 was by vertical and 11,000 by oblique photography. These photographic operations extended into eight of the nine provinces of Canada for such various purposes as geological mapping, waterpower investigation, determination of pulpwood and lumber resources, the preparation of topographical maps, experimental work.

There is an urgent demand for mapping of areas beyond the limits of established settlement made on the Canadian Government Topographical Survey, for which Service the civil flying operations are carried out.

Big Grain Elevator At Coast

Shortly in December a 1,000,000 bushel grain elevator will be opened on the Fraser River, near New Westminster, British Columbia. The elevator will have a receiving capacity of 100 cars or 100,000 bushels per hour and a shipping capacity of 80,000 bushels per hour. It will have railway connection with the Canadian Pacific Railways, the Great Northern and the Canadian Pacific Railway.

The great secret of success in life is to be ready when your opportunity comes.—Disraeli.

This year the Canadian Pacific engineers at Toronto have been faced with the problem of entirely replacing a thirteen span bridge over the Don Valley without interfering with traffic. The accomplishment of this feat, it is said, will go down in engineering history as being a noteworthy contribution to the science of bridge building.

The original bridge was built of steel in 1888, and was 1,150 feet long and 75 feet high. The new bridge is a concrete piers which were poured from the top of the old structure. When these were set, and provided there were no strong winds, each of the new 65 ton spans were laid on opportunity offered. Every thing was in readiness, and in between trains a gang of workmen rippped up the old track and ties while another group climbed up the old steel piers and sealed the holes preparatory to demolition. Then from one side of the valley a huge derrick removed in sections of the old bridge to a siding, when the new span was brought up under the bridge side and launched into position. A temporary span allied a small gap between the old and the new spans, new ties and tracks were laid and the bridge was ready for traffic or the repetition of the process on another span.

Photos show a portion of the old bridge being torn surely and, inset, a temporary span being placed between a section of the new structure and the old.

British Built Planes Are Declared Best

Following Successful Flight Foreign Powers Place Orders For Flying-Boats

Numerous orders for British-built flying-boats have been placed by foreign governments as a result of the success of the great 23,000-mile flight by a fleet of Supermarine Napier flying-boats from Britain to Australia and back to the new Empire flying-boat base at Singapore.

A feature of this great British air achievement was the fact that throughout the 23,000 miles' flight neither the four flying-boats nor the eight Napier engines which drove them required any spare parts. The only parts that changed during the flight were two wooden propellers which were replaced by metal screws as being more suited to tropical conditions.

As a further result of this long formation flight the Air Ministry is to open Empire flying-boat lines from which big all-metal flying boats will operate to assist the Navy in patrolling Empire routes.

Manitoba Barley

Province Now Grows More Barley Than Wheat

A barley research laboratory will be established at the Manitoba Agricultural College, and the Provincial Government will give the necessary financial assistance to provide the facility for research and the study of marketing problems, according to Premier Bracken, in connection of which C. H. Burnell, president of the Manitoba Wheat Pool, is chairman, has been organized with what is known as the Manitoba Barley Research Committee. Hon. Albert Prefontaine, Minister of Agriculture, will represent the Provincial Government and Prof. H. C. Grant, of the Agricultural College, will be secretary of the committee. The purpose of the committee is to carry on research and open up wider markets for Manitoba's barley. Manitoba grows more barley than wheat.

British Brighter Stronger

Will Succeed Where Graf Zeppelin Failed, Says Commander Burney

The decision of Dr. Hugo Eckener that the Graf Zeppelin is not fast enough to her discouraged Commander Burney, who is completing an airship which he intends to fly to Canada. Commander Burney states that what happened to the Graf Zeppelin was no more than British designers expected. The German airship is not fast enough nor strong enough. We now have the designs of an airship with a speed of a hundred miles per hour. It will be more strongly built than the Graf Zeppelin, and it will succeed where the Germans failed."

Jim Raby is caretaker at the Banff Zoo. He claims that for a dandy, pet bear a timber wolf is "par excellence." Clay Soil Requires Moisture Content

Land Is Very Productive When Under Proper Management

"Properly managed clay soils are very productive and farmers who understand their drainage problems with how and when to plow and cultivate, and what crops to grow, usually prefer them to lighter soils," is a statement is made in the experimental farms bulletin, Crop Rotations and Soil Management.

In the fall plowing schedule, the clay lands should be among the first to receive consideration. There weeds are not troublesome, plowing the clay soils tile in the fall and leaving them in the rough furrow form allows frost and weathering to exert their influence in breaking down the clods.

A first essential is that the soil have a desirable moisture content when worked. The bad effect of a single plowing when the soil is too wet is believed to last for three or four years. The same is true to a somewhat less extent, of discing and cultivation." While experience is the best teacher of when to plow, a fairly reliable rule to follow is to work the land when the soil is damp enough to be molded in the hand, but dry enough that the ball will crumble easily when struck. If it is impossible to form clay in the ball, the spring plowing if it is at all dry, should be worked with the harrow the same day as it is plowed. Generally speaking, however, spring plowing increases the work and may result in a lumpy seed bed.

Canadian Record For Eggs

Hen Lays 332 In Year, One Less Than World Mark

With the close of the New Brunswick Provincial egg-laying contest, the performance of a Barred Rock hen entered in the contest by the owner, Mrs. Edward Hart, of Grand Bay, N.B., stands out as most notable. This hen has made a new Dominion record in laying and stands within one egg of equalling a world's record.

This hen laid 332 eggs during the year, each egg being over standard size. This in itself constitutes a record for the Dominion of Canada. The World's record was made at Storrs, Conn City, Mo., in 1926, by a hen owned in Newmarket, Ont., which had a year's total of 333 eggs.

The previous Dominion record was 326 eggs made in the 1925-26 contest at Agassiz, B.C., held on the Dominion Experimental Farm there

A 165-year-old clock, made entirely of wood, is still keeping accurate time for D. Hagleman, Parkhurst, Oklahoma. For 26 years the old clock was in the attic, but since being taken out, it has recorded time perfectly. The clock was made in Massachusetts, in 1823.

The Unseen Wall Of Canada

Red Cross Makes Splendid Contribution By Caring For Sick and Needy

Two centuries before the Christian era, there lived in China an Emperor of great magnificence, known as Shi-Hwang-Ti. He will be remembered for the stupendous building erected during his reign, known as The Great Wall.

Two thousand years have passed away, and the stupefies masonry, with its towers and gates extending for hundreds of miles along precipitous crags and ridges—the most stupendous erection of human hands—stands as firm today as at the beginning and all men gaze upon it and marvel.

Old as The Great Wall is, there is something older still. It is the rocky trail that winds through it into Mongolia, where for twenty centuries before the Christian era, dusky men and beasts wended their way. Camels and their dusky drivers, caravans and pack-ponies, donkey trains with their wares in ludicrous procession for hundreds of years followed the high trail through and the winding road of the Great Wall.

Human life was cheap in those days, and many a caravan took its last place, and the great caravans moved slowly on.

They are not built for protective purposes round the cities of the world today. Rains show there were Romans who guarded their cities by stone walls, just as did the Greeks at Athens, the Jews at Jerusalem.

Through the years, research and is prevention of sickness by the walls of education in health, the Red Cross Wall of humanism in citizenship and service to the future as well as to the present.

The work of the Society, built slowly yet effectively throughout the past ten years of peace time, presents to receive visitors in sickness, knowledge along the lines of creating a new health consciousness, a new power of resistance to disease. Typical of this unseen Wall of Canada, protects the crippled child, the sick settler in the wilderness, the well-meaning but ignorant mother in the home and the growing child in the school, thus fulfilling the humanitarian Article XXV. of the Treaty of Paris—"Improvement of the Health, Prevention of Sickness, Mitigation of Suffering."

Why a "Deadhell"

Name Taken From Apparatus Used For Training Bell-Ringers

Why do we call the wooden exercisers we swing dumbells? Why dumb? Because centuries ago a favorite exercise was in the pattern of the apparatus on which the heavy bells of a church are swung—a task which calls for considerable energy on the part of the ringers. This apparatus was used sometimes for the purpose of training bell-ringers, and it is probable that its use as an exerciser was first suggested in this way. Later on, less cumbersome means of making exercisers were evolved, but the "dumbbell" was still kept as the name.

Co-operation by the United States in international affairs, including activities of the League of Nations, along business lines with plain speaking, is what the League looks for under the leadership of Herbert Hoover. Officials at Geneva are of the belief that Mr. Hoover, from hard experience, realizes the inter-dependence of nations and the need of international collaboration.

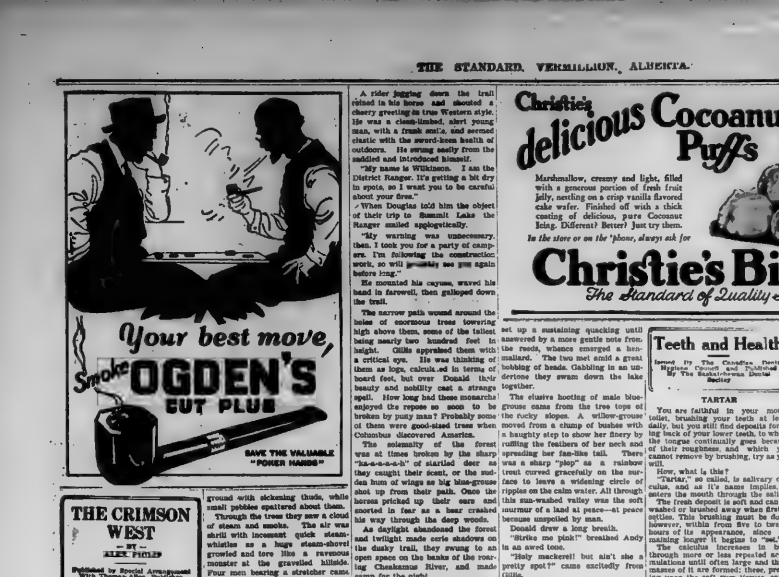
"If a doctor told you you had only a month to live, what should you do?"

"See another doctor" Diario Heraldo, Madrid.



A rider jogging down the trail reined in his horse and shouted a cheery greeting to true Western style. He was a clean-limbed, alert young man, with a frank smile, and seemed elastic with the sword-keen health of outdoors. He swung easily from the saddled and introduced himself.

"My name is Wilkinson. I am the District Ranger. It's getting a bit dry in spots, so I want you to be careful about your fires."

When Douglas told him the object of their trip to Summit Lake the Ranger smiled sagaciously.

"My warning was unnecessary, then. I took you for a party of campers. I'm following the construction work, so will be only too glad again before long."

He mounted his cayuse, waved his hand in farewell, then galloped down the trail.

The narrow path wound around the holes of enormous trees towering high above them, some of the tallest being nearly two hundred feet in height. Cliffs appraised them with a critical eye. He was forced to call them as logs, calculated in terms of board feet, but over Donald their beauty and nobility cast a strange spell. How long had these monarchs enjoyed the repose so soon to be broken by the ring of axes? Perhaps some of them were good-sized trees when Columbus discovered America.

The unbroken silence of the forest was at times broken by the sharp "ha-a-a-a-a-h" of startled deer as they crashed gracefully on the wooden hum of wings as big blue-grouse shot up from their path. Once the silence pulsed with a long drawn snorted in fear as a bear crashed his way through the deep woods.

As daylight subdued into dusk, and twilight made eerie shadows on the dusky trail, they swung to an open space on the bank of the rushing Cheakamus River, and made camp for the night.

Then Donald they began the upward climb, and by noon felt the buoyancy of the air in the higher altitudes. They were approaching the streams and skirted the shores of small lakes on whose waters rested flocks of ducks that rushing with a thud like a bomb to shake his eyes from the slanting rays of the setting sun, he gazed at the wonderful scene. His eyes lighted up as he recognised Douglas.

"Hello, o' timer!" he shouted cheerily.

John Hillier filled the dual role of trapper and rod-house keeper. His fantastic dress of deer-skin, the six-shooter slung at his hip, and the big sombrero that topped his shaggy grey head gave him almost a sinister appearance.

Old John's face was savage and scowled, but his bristly moustache hid a mouth as tender as a woman's. Great shaggy eyebrows hung out over his grey mountaineer eyes could not conceal the softness that crept into them when he spoke. He proved an excellent host and made Donald feel perfectly at home.

For a short interval the noble animal held his majestic pose, then swaying awkwardly, he disappeared from view. At the sharp crack of the rifle the man by Donald's side winced as though the bullet had seared his own flesh. Brushing the sleeve of his coarse mackinaw shirt hastily across his eyes, he muttered a curse, then turned and ran with stumbling steps to his waiting team, mounted the seat and clucked gently to his four horses. The big animals strained against their collars. The huge load moved slowly at first, then gathering momentum, rolled swiftly up the road.

Gillis brought five cayuses to the rear of the station and in a few minutes his precipitous hands loaded two of them with their luggage.

The small cavalcade wound the dusty road in a single file, with Douglas in the lead. They overtook and met numbers of freight wagons going in and out, the drivers shouting greetings to each other in foreign tongues. They passed the track-laying machine, which was throwing the heavy rails about as if they were matches in giant hands. Guards stopped them without the sense of flying debris while giant blasts rent the air as if some titanic monster had torn the earth asunder. Huge rocks soared above the trees, then crashed to the ground with sickening thuds, while small pebbles spattered about them.

Through the trees they saw a cloud of steam and smoke. The air was shrill with incessant quick steam whistles and a huge steam-shovel growled and tore like a ravenous monster at the gravelled hillside. Past it they began a stretch of road slowly down the trail. A man on horseback, wearing riding breeches and leather leggings, rode in their wake.

"How are you, Doctor Paul?" greeted Douglas. "Is it a serious accident?"

"Two fell on him. Broke both legs, and he is hurt internally—won't live," answered the doctor in a low voice.

Donald glimpsed the face of the sufferer showing ashen through a stubby beard. Bloody bandages framed two crimson-stained lips, from which issued the gurgling groans of agony. They moved on in silence for a few moments.

"When people ride in trains," observed Gillis, "there ain't one in a thousand that knows what it costs in sufferin' and lives to make it so's they can ride in comfort."

By mid-afternoon they came to the vanguard of the army of workers, the men who were clearing the right-of-way. At intervals they could hear the long-drawn cry of the choppers as the top of a giant tree shivered and then with a grand rending crash fell to earth with a resounding roar. Then they came to the end of the new road, and with a feeling of relief they plunged into the cool shadows of the virgin woods. After the great clamour, the forest, through which the trail wandered deviously, seemed steeped in primal calm. The roar of the blasts no longer came in definite crashes, but was smothered by the distance to a muffled rumble.

TARTAR

You are faithful in your mouth toilet, brushing your teeth at least daily, but you still find deposits forming back of your lower teeth, to which the tongue continually gives because of their roughness, and which you cannot remove by brushing, try as you will.

How, what is this?

"Tartar," so called, is salivary calculus, and as it's name implies, it enters the mouth through the saliva. The fresh deposit is soft and can be washed or brushed away when first it settles. This brushing may be done, however, within from five to twelve hours of its appearance, since remaining longer it begins to "set."

The calculus increases in bulk through more or less repeated accumulations until often large and thick masses of it are formed: these, pressing upon the soft gum tissues, cause them to become inflamed, which inflammation progressing, may lead to the ultimate loss of the teeth.

Now, three "words" more—

These deposits do not appear in every mouth, nor where calculus does occur, is it found constantly.

"Tartar" is found generally on the "inside" of the lower incisors and cuspids and on the "outside" of the upper first and second molar teeth the reason for this being that these localities are opposite the mouths of the salivary ducts.

Lastly—once calculus has formed, its removal can be accomplished only through the medium of special instruments in the hands of the dentist.

LIVESTOCK TRAIN TRAVELS OVER CANADIAN NATIONAL

Sheep and Swine Problems Discussed

REGINA, Sask., Nov. 20.—Thirty-two rural districts in Saskatchewan will be visited by the special livestock train which is touring the east, central and north-western parts of the province under the auspices of the provincial department of agriculture, and the Department of Colonization and Agriculture of the Canadian National Railways, it was announced yesterday. Consisting of the Canadian Meat Packers, and the Saskatchewan Sheep & Swine Breed Associations, J. G. Taggart, Provincial Live Stock Commissioner for Saskatchewan, is in charge of the train.

The lectures deal with the breeding and feeding of sheep and swine, and farmers are invited to discuss their problems in existing livestock. A special feature is the showing of educational motion pictures.

The train left Regina on November 14th, for Estevan, the first stop. The last exhibit takes place at Bethune on December 20th.

One of the dustiest dust storms seen and felt here for a decade raged all Tuesday morning. The wind calmed and the dust settled during the course of the afternoon.

THE NATURAL FOOD

A committee of the Pontian Board of Health has recently conducted a seven month feeding test of school children from 5 to 11 years of age. The children received little or no milk at home. At school one group was fed biscuits advertised as being all the food qualities of milk, one whole milk and another separated milk. The addition of milk to the diet was accompanied "by a rate of growth as indicated by an increase in both height and weight 20 p.c. greater than that in children not receiving the extra milk. This increase in rate of growth was accompanied by an improvement in the general condition of many children receiving milk. The separated milk was of great value in promoting growth. The biscuits produced results significantly worse in the five-year and 11-year old children and no significant difference on growth of the eight-year olds."

Milk is our best protective food, we need it. Children cannot develop properly and grow well without it. Whatever price is paid for it, milk is still the cheapest food for children, because it is the indispensable food for them, the one food they can thrive and grow strong on.

Farmers have been known who sell all or nearly all their milk and cream to other people and let their own children go without. Ignorance, and an improper sense of values, deprive those children of the best and cheapest food, food that cannot be replaced by the largest helpings of pie or bacon.

Milk is not only a food in itself, but is also a "protective" food because when eaten in conjunction with deficient foods causes the latter to be more valuable, as well as warding off certain diseases and promoting both mental and physical stamina.

Milk is a solid food, a growth producer. Clean wholesome milk is the greatest factor of safety in the human diet. Give your child a chance to grow, give him a quart of milk every day.

Who's Who in "The Mummy and The Mumps"

The stage is set, the actors are straining at the leash, and on Monday evening next, November 26th, another page in Vermilion history will be written.

The play is a crackerjack, the theatre is comfortable, and a glance at the following cast of performers is sufficient guarantee that the price of a ticket will be a sound investment.

BRIDE

VERNON COOPER — Used to be "mamma's little angel," but eventually became a "pedaler's devil." Works ten hours every day — two hours on job getting and eight hours getting type for the following sentence: "Have you paid your Sub yet?"

A. ROSS SAGE—Direct descendant of the famous Professor R. A. U. Bugle, inventor of the popular dressing "sage and onions." Has an unique family tree, consisting of a spoil of sage merchant with two onions rampant, on an acure field, and underneath, the motto-ring motto: "We may be green, but we know our onions."

JACK STRATHERN—Claims to be a Scotch Scotch. Presumably the other half is soda-water. Was educated in Siberia, which accounts for his rich Slavophian accent.

FREDDY THORPE: Very eccentric person. Wears pulling bags to business, and plays golf in evening dress. Surprise he is reasonably sane, for a banker.

TED BROWN — One of the "orbit set" men I know. Hasn't a "yellow" streak in him. Highly cultured and well "read." Very optimistic—never let on he had the mumps.

GRACE BURY — The original heroine of Tennyson's famous poem "The Brid on the Beam," which I quote below:

"Sweet girls drive cars by the score
And some are in a hurry;
But the sweetest girl I ever knew
Was a lassie named Grace Bury

"Last night with the New York express
She bumped into a rake;
They met at a railroad crossing —
Now none they'll BURY GRACE."

LUCY ENGLISH — Exceptionally fine actress. Went to school in Shanghai, but was educated in Vermilion. Speaks of her name, her nationality is uncertain, a fact which inspired Milton to write the following poem:

"Now Pitar Ree is a true Chilean,
And French, of course is Edouard Low.
But Lucy's nationalities
Is difficult to distinish."

Her father, he was born in Spain
Her ma first saw the light in Maine.
And Lucy's birthplace was Ukraine-
How, then, is Lucy "English?"

Canada On Easy Street

Hon. James A. Robb, Dominion Minister of Finance, is credited with the terse comment, "Canada is on easy street," when making announcement last month that even before due date, the Treasury had paid off $22,000,000 of the $52,000,000 short term bonds falling due on October 15, last, and that the balance would be paid on due date out of cash on hand in the Treasury. Even so, said Mr. Robb, there would be "some left over," and he had reason to hope, "if Providence continues kind to us and gives us good crops, and business keeps just as good as it is now," without even getting near the limit, to take care of further maturities coming along from now till 1933.

In other words, out of current revenues and without having to resort to the usury of refunding loans, Canada was able to pay off $53,000,000 of its public debt this year. And this does not represent the full amount of the debt reduction that has been effected this year, with a consequent lowering of the interest burden.

In the short period of six years the public debt has been reduced to an extent that means a lessening of the burden of interest annually in an amount of almost $15,000,000. And if Mr. Robb's expectations for the next five years are realized as equally large, or even larger, amount will be lopped off by 1933.

The most gratifying feature however, is that this substantial reduction in debt and in annual interest charges has been achieved, not as a result of increased taxation, but concurrent with a general decrease in taxation, including lowering of tariff schedules, a lighter tax on business profits, reductions in the sales tax, smaller income taxes, reduced postage rates, smaller stamp levies on cheques, and the abolition of stamp duties on receipts. In a word, the removal of restrictions on the back of the country has been helpful in the development of business, and, as a direct consequence, larger revenues to the Government.

Another important factor has been the really phenomenal improvement in the management and finances of the Canadian National Railways as a result of which the Dominion Treasury is no longer called upon to pay out huge sums to cover operating deficits and in addition to the public on account of railway bonds and debentures. On the contrary, the C.N.R. now accumulates as over increasing surplus to apply on its past obligations to the Government.

The year now drawing to a close will, it is confidently expected, disclose a record year in the history of the Canadian National Railways, while President Beatty in authority for the statement that 1928 will, in all probability prove to be the banner year in the history of the Canadian Pacific.

A perusal of the press of Canada, and particularly of all financial journals in which are recorded the annual reports of the banks, trust, loan, mortgage and insurance companies, and all the large manufacturing and industrial concerns of the Dominion, discloses the fact that one and all are enjoying great prosperity, enormously increased business and substantial profits.

No one circumstance can be credited with the whole responsibility for this magnificent showing, although it is safe to say that the great grain production of the West, coupled with the betterment in the life stock industry, the increase in dairying, and other branches of agricultural expansion, form the background, and in largely responsible for the general speeding up in the whole business of the country, and is occasioning the transfer of other lines of industry from the East to various centres in the West.

The general betterment is the result, as Mr. Robb frankly recognizes, of a beneficient Providence without whose aid all man's efforts must come to naught. It is due also, to the courage, industry and enterprise of the Canadian people and to some extent to the wise administration of the country's economic conditions, inasmuch as Canada is dependent so largely upon its export trade.

Present conditions are, therefore, good and sound, and future prospects are very bright. It remains for the people of Canada to take full advantage of the situation, not to rest on their oars, but to plan and work in order that our very expectations for the future may be fully realized. Every reduction in the public debt, every dollar saved in interest charges, every item of taxation lowered or wiped out, means further relief to all people and a further incentive to still larger development and growth. It is, therefore, to everybody's advantage and gain to work together in minimal co-operation.

West Coast Fisheries

The pilchard reduction industry on the west coast of Vancouver Island records an advance of 90 per cent in production this year as compared with last, with an output of 16 000 tons of meal, and 3,500,000 gallons of oil. Within the past three years the number of plants have increased from five to 32.

Indigestion

What most people call indigestion is really excess acid in the stomach. The Phillips Milk of Magnesia method is to take enough milk of magnesia to neutralize this acid. The result is instantaneous relief. Then you will never deal with the cause and let the trouble return. Do what your doctor would advise.

The best help is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. For the 50 years since its invention it has remained standard with physicians. You will find nothing else so quick in its effect, so harmless, so efficient.

A Delicate Operation

Eye is Successfully Grafted On Person Who Regains Sight

One of the most delicate operations known to medical science was proved at least partially successful when Bert Ferguson, of New York City, once blind, looked dimly at the world through another man's eye.

Ferguson's one eye failed him several weeks ago, and he went to an effort to restore his sight, decided to transplant the cornea from another eye.

Charles Greenblatt, whose eye was removed because of a tumor, offered it to the surgeons and the cornea, still alive, was removed and grafted to Ferguson's member.

The medical world awaited the result anxiously and there was great interest today when the bandages were removed.

Ferguson was able to distinguish objects ten feet away. Surgeons said the development might mean the permanent success of the operation would depend upon the ability of Ferguson's optic tissue to nourish the cells of the grafted cornea.

WHEN YOUNG GIRLS GROW PALE AND THIN

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Should Be Taken To Enrich the Blood

When girls grow weak, pale and thin, parents should not neglect these symptoms; to do so means danger. The girl in her teens cannot thrive into robust womanhood without an abundant supply of rich, red blood in her veins. It is the lack of this that is the cause of most ailments that set out of ten. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are a blood builder, and that is why their remarkable blood-making properties have helped so many girls to win health, with glowing cheeks and sparkling eyes for every weak, pale girl. The first step in the treatment of this kind is shown by the statement of Mrs. Fred. Lemieux, 1 Bruce street west, Hamilton, Ont., who says: "Our daughter was in her fifteenth girl got into very bad health. She grew pale, thin and weak, and having her tonsils removed, saying it was the cure of her trouble. We had them removed, but it did not help her, and she seemed to have absorbed poisons from them that made her ill that she did not pick up at all. She could neither eat her food, and what food she did take did not digest. Then she developed a cough that kept her awake at night, and went down in weight to 80 pounds. A neighbor said to me, 'You have tried so many things, why not try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills?' I got some and before she finished the second box she began to show improvement. She continued the use of the pills for some time and now is in the best of health, enjoys life to work and play, and eat and sleep with all her childish vigor. These statements can be verified by neighbors who were aware of her condition and ill health in perfect health."

If your druggist does not keep these pills you can get them by mail at 50c a box from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Canada Might Send Greater Supplies Of Farm Produce

The Farmers' Sun says: "Great Britain imported dressed poultry to the value of £1,304,762 during January to August, 1928. Towards that amount Canada contributed poultry to the value of £11,979. During the same period Great Britain imported eggs (in shell) to the value of £10,999,265. Canada supplied £24,628 worth. Canada contributed to each instance is infinitesimal and could be greatly extended. As regards butter the consumption is even more striking; as for the period January to August, 1928, the total imports were valued at £37,411,486. Canada sent £1,000 worth of butter valued at £13,850. Agricultural produce in large quantities is being supplied to Great Britain by countries outside, including the United States of America, which shipped dead poultry to the value of £811,929 during the eight months mentioned.

Will Spend Winter in North

Major Burwash To Carry On Investigations In Arctic Regions

In the lands and frozen reaches of Canada's Arctic regions an intrepid and experienced explorer of the department of interior will labor during the long winter months, collecting valuable data and otherwise add to the knowledge of conditions among the wards of that dominion, Dr. Eskimo. The investigator is Major L. T. Burwash, of the Northwest Territories and Yukon branch who early in June of this year left Ottawa on his distant mission.

Following a long trip to Aklavik in the delta of the Mackenzie River the explorer conducted a preliminary survey of that country before proceeding into the Arctic proper.

According to wireless reports received from a government station in the North, Major Burwash now has established his winter base on Bootia Peninsul, from where he will carry out his investigations around King William Island, and on the mainland.

A survey of a proposed tractor route between Cockburn and Wager Bays will also be made. This proposed route is being studied with a view to ascertaining the possibilities of bringing in supplies for posts on the Arctic coast by way of the Hudson Bay and overland by tractor, rather than by the present long and hazardous route through the Behring Sea and the Northern coast of Alaska.

In May, 1929, Major Burwash will sail northward on the government auxiliary schooner Ptarmigan to investigate navigation conditions in the Franklin District of Fox Basin. He plans to join the annual Canadian Arctic expedition in the summer of 1929 with which he will return to civilization

DIRIGIBLE BEST POSSIBILITY FOR OCEAN FLIGHTS

Ottawa, Ont.—On the success of the projected flight of the dirigible R-100 from England to Canada next spring will largely depend the future of inter-empire air communication, Air Marshal Sir John Salmond, K.C.B., stated in an interview here.

The distinguished British air official spent the day in Ottawa on his way home from Australia and called upon Hon. J. L. Ralston, minister of national defence.

"The dirigible appears to offer the best possibility for ocean flights at present," he said. "The future will probably see multi-motored aeroplanes capable of making such flights with safety, but for the next ten years the lighter-than-air machine may lead."

Australia was anxiously awaiting the result of the projected flight to Canada, Air Marshal Salmond declared.

Proposed Wool Pool

Alberta Wool Growers May Organize On Co-Operative Marketing Plan

Edmonton.—Wool growers of Alberta who are proposing to organize a co-operative marketing scheme at times similar to those of the Wheat Pool, moved one step nearer that end at a conference with Premier Brownlee at which advice was sought and given on the question of procedure. The meeting, which was attended by some 40 odd men held some weeks ago, was attended by representatives of five co-operative wool growers' organizations among the wool growers in different parts of the province.

If and when a wool pool is formulated, it will be on a contract basis, like that of the wheat pool, instead of the voluntary basis on which the co-operative grower and marketing through the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers' Association. Details of the proposal were also discussed, including especially the contract terms and Mr. Brownlee addressed the wool men as to how an effective organization might be built up. It is likely that definite action will be taken in the near future.

Lava Flow Diminishing

Natives In Mount Etna Region Meeting Changed Conditions

Catania, Sicily. — With the lava flow from Mount Etna diminishish hourly in intensity, natives of the stricken region are gradually reorganizing their economic life to meet the new conditions that nature has forced upon them.

There was some talk of tunnelling through the lava which began the second week of the eruption as the molten stream cooled and its flow subsided. This would restore the severed railway to normal service. One of the most radical uses the inventors of the lava flow was Leocadio Patane, whose age is 105, and who is known as the "Granda of Mondola." This intrepid centenarian steadfastly refused to budge from the threatened village. His proclaimed to all and sundry that he would be the last to leave. Now he is exhibiting a broad and toothless grin, saying "I told you so" in Sicilian dialect to all visitors.

New Zealand Elections

Government Forces Under Premier Coates Are Returned To Power

Wellington, N.Z.—Prohibition was defeated by a majority of around 100,000 votes and the government forces under Rt. Hon. Coates prime minister, suffered a severe setback in the election.

Prohibition was on the ballot in the form of a referendum as to whether a licensing system should be established. The vote was overwhelmingly against continuance of prohibitions.

A new united party under the leadership of Sir Joseph Ward made its debut by gaining seats from the Coates' party all over the Dominion.

The final standing by parties was: Government, 32; United party, 26; Labor, 20; Independents, 6.

Most of the Independents are supposed to be government, the premier's party failed to gain a single seat. It held 53 of the 80 seats in the last parliament.

The new united party combines Liberals, Nationalists and others opposed to the reform and Labor parties.

Three ministers lost their seats—J. G. McLeod, minister of customs; J. J. Hawken, minister of agriculture and J. F. Halleston, minister of justice.

PLACE FOR THIS DOMINION IN EMPIRE AFFAIRS

Montreal—A willingness to share the responsibilities which in the early days of Imperial development Britain bore alone is the obligation which Canada and other Dominions should be ready to meet for their development in the British Commonwealth of Nations.

This is the message which Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary of foreign affairs in the British government, left with the people of Canada before he left England for Quebec, en route to England

"There is room in our Commonwealth," said Sir Austen,"for the full development of Canadian nationality.

"We welcome your co-operation in all fields, and not least in the field of foreign affairs, but your right to claim, and rightly claim, a part in the field of foreign affairs, you must study them. You must take an interest which will make your papers afford you all the information necessary to enable you to form a judgment and you must be willing to share the responsibilities which in the earlier stages of imperial development we have had to bear alone.

"We shall welcome your assistance and even your criticism. But I am not be criticism only after the event but a real partnership in forming the decisions

May Use Steam Shovel To Dig For Remains Of Missing Millionaire

Toronto, Ont.—Patrick Sullivan, special agent for the Missee Small estate of Ambrose J. Small, missing millionaire, may secure, he is told, a steam shovel outfit from Bolton, Ont., to excavate the Rosedale dump where both Sullivan and Dr. Laughton, criminologist, believe the remains can be found.

Sullivan anticipates that the work of excavating the dump will cost in the neighborhood of $5,000.

Despite persistent assurances that he had abandoned his enquiry into the disappearance of Small, Laughton will return to Toronto from Montreal for further work upon the world-famous mystery, it is learned here.

"I have been in touch with Laughton and he tells me that he will be back here at once. We are now before the middle of next week, perhaps before," Sullivan said.

TRAGIC STORY OF SINKING OF LINER VESTRIS

New York.—Two shiploads of survivors of the foundering of the liner "Vestris" arrived here, untold details of which are expected to be revealed when the full story of the disaster is told.

Lieut. Egbert C. Rogers, commander officer of the naval operating base at Old Point Comfort, has this to say of the Vestris operator:

His courage and his coolness to my mind were superb and beyond any precedent. Had he been less courageous than he was doubtless many more than the unfortunate number of lives lost would have been recorded. It is for all of us to revere his memory. I know the navy salutes him."

Chief Radio Man H. N. Harris of the Bermuda radio station at Hamilton Bonda, a veteran of 16 years, said this:

Only a man who has been in trouble at sea can understand just what O'Loughlin accomplished. There was no panic and operator anywhere who did not realize long before the Vestris went down, just what a magnificent hero had been taken by the sea. He worked under the worst conditions and came pretty close to accomplishing the impossible.

"God how cool and level-headed he was with everything against him. I have no idea of anything like him in my experience."

Pine elements vary in the station here and for a few minutes after the 8:30 signal and when he came on the air, a fairly accurate estimate was made of the time O'Loughlin sent the 8:30 o'clock Monday morning and stuck up to his key until water began to pour into the radio room at 8:50 that afternoon. At no time, say the local operators, was the Vestris man not the sailors say, starting as a dead boy, advancing to ordinary seaman then an able seaman, and finally earning his ticket" and putting on the gold braid of an officer of the line.

When he took the Vestris out of port he was the ranking master of the Lamport and Holt fleet.

Two days later he stood on the bridge and knew his ship was gone For the first time in his forty years at sea, Captain Carey gave the order to abandon ship. He never had lost a boat before He stood at the rail and directed the males as they had the boats lowered away

He saw two boats loaded with women and children first"—the first two boats he put overboard. He saw them capsized and crumpled in the stormy seas

He saw other boats get away safely with men from the passenger list and members of the crew aboard them.

And all the time the first aid public relations work was settling deeper and deeper into Bermuda.

At last all were gone. He was removed to the ships safe a place in the Captain's cabin where he lay. Mike O'Laughlin, his chief radio officer.

But it so were never taken.

Carey protests was the last way with Mike O'Laughlin alone. The gallant officer was last seen as he left near the radio's bridge and the bins of the radio's spark were sputtering with the fire of the set which lapped upon the settings of Mike O'Laughlin probably leaped into the sea and was no doubt drowned.

But this to Carey. It takes out the love of life in the first degree was dead.

Back on the radio's bridge the operator was still at the rail. Carey was still at the rail. Carey was still at the rail. Carey

Local Players Stage Hilarious Comedy To Capacity House

"The Mummy and the Mumps," the much advertised play presented by the St. Saviour's Dramatic Society on Monday night was a dismal failure—from an educational point of view. But, fortunately, the capacity audience which assembled at the Columbia Theatre for the occasion did not go there with the idea of being educated.

They were, however, treated to an evening of unadulterated fun, the play being one of the most hilarious farces ever produced on a local stage. The plot of the play was indeed very thin, but sufficient to provide opportunity for a continuous chain of mirth-provoking situations, which a well-balanced cast of performers enacted with commendable ability.

It would be difficult to single out any one of the many performers for special mention, although a popular vote would probably award the honors of the evening to A. Ross Sage, who gave a remarkably fine impersonation of James Shamrock, the lackey who could never do anything right, and whose grammar was "somethink orrible." This part could easily have been overdone, but in the capable hands of Mr. Sage it was performed with admirable restraint and he is to be congratulated on his work.

Another fine performance was that given by Vernon Cooper in the part of Francis Bricker. Local audiences have learned to expect much when Vernon appears on the stage, but on Monday night he excelled himself. His impersonation of the Hector Fish, and later, of Amelia Ludkins, gave him a wonderful opportunity to display his versatility, and he certainly took full advantage of it.

Frederick Thorne, in the role of Sir Hector Fish, did splendid work, his portrayal of the part meeting with unqualified approval. Many of those present must still be laughing at his unconventional efforts to don female garb.

Probably the most difficult role in the play was assigned to Edward Brown, who, in the part of Bill Laid low, was the bar of everyone's jokes. He was, however, equal to every situation, and his acting won the well-merited applause of a discerning audience.

Perkins the sheriff, a dumb but lovable character, was ably portrayed by John Grantham who displayed exceptional ability as a leading of the law," and gave a finished performance.

The histrionic ability of the female members of the cast was, without exception, of a very high standard. Few, however, will dispute the right of Grace Bury to the premier honors. Her display of poor Bertha's inability to speak, and general bearing of "a grande dame" made her interpretation of the part of the principal of an exclusive school artistic in the extreme.

Lucy Witherell, as an Eastern girl made her first appearance on a Vermilion stage, but was sincerely trusted her last one. Speaking her lines with a clear enunciation which was most agreeable to listen to, she also acted with a becoming naturalness which was altogether charming.

So many nice things have been said about Lucy English's former stage appearances that it is difficult to find words to express an opinion of her work on Monday night. Suffice it to say that her acting was the equal of anything she has done before, and she looked as bewitching in some wonderful gowns that one could hardly understand how Sir Hector could be so backward in making love. For ordinary men could have resisted her, and the writer would certainly have made much better progress if given the same chance.

Marked ability was shown by Maudie Wilson in her characterization of the part of Dulcie Dumble, the young lady who was "beautiful but dumb." She invested the role with a vivacity and charm which the audience were not slow to appreciate.

Doris Tallant, as a staff reporter, undertook a part which demanded more than average skill, but she was fully equal to the task. Miss Tallant has been responsible for many fine performances in local plays, but her acting in "The Mummy and the Mumps" was an outstanding feature of an evening of delightful entertainment.

Much credit is due Mr. F. W. Cormack for the efficient manner in which he carried out the duties of stage manager, his efforts in connection with the play only beginning to be realized to give to the curtain.

The thanks of the company are also extended to Messrs. Swindlehurst and Monahan, who rendered some highly appreciated violin selections between the acts, to Mr W. B. Elford, the accompanist, and to Mr. J. Waring, who supplied the stage furniture.

While the cheese production is not a record one this year, it is very high. About 100,000 boxes more will be exported in 1928 than in 1927. Canada produced the most milk in its history this year."

Improved Glass Substitute Is Now Available In Canada

"WINDOLITE"—the English unbreakable glass substitute—which is now so popular in the British Isles, is being marketed in Canada by John A. Chantler & Co., Limited, 49 Wellington St. West, Toronto.

Reverent tests carried out in England, showed that "Windolite" is remarkable, not only for it's unbreakable, shatterless and ultraviolet ray penetration, but it was found that "Windolite" will stand up under usage that would wreck many other glass substitutes.

The fact that "Windolite" is translucent and allows 100 per cent. sunlight with its life-giving ultra-violet ray to enter, opens a wide scope of practical uses for this commodity, which will at once suggest themselves.

"Windolite" consists of transparent solution, reinforced with fine specially-prepared wire netting, which results in a substance that is completely waterproof, airtight, and dust-proof. It is flexible and unbreakable. It may be easily cut with the ordinary pair of scissors, to any required size. It therefore, forms a practical substitute for glass, and where transmission of ultra-violet radiation is required to promote health and growth, it is ideal. These beneficial rays are vital to growing chicks, laying hens, dairy herds, and live stock, and is also responsible for sunrooms, nurseries, verandahs, hospitals, solaria, and roof beds and for plant coverings. It is light but strong.

Quoting from some British authorities, they have the following to say of "Windolite": "Windolite has been used by poultry keepers and market gardeners as a substitute for glass, but it is now suggested that as it allows ultra-violet rays to pass much more freely than ordinary glass, it may be of use in dwellings. It has been examined for us and it is found that as claimed, it lets the ultra-violet rays through freely."

Bishop's Castle, Shropshire: — "I shall be pleased to let you have it as soon as possible—I have had a piece in use for nearly three months and it has proved very satisfactory." (Signed) C.W.D.

This effective glass substitute with no doubt become very popular with stock breeders, dairy men and poultry breeders. It should also be a boon to mining camps and prospectors who cannot pack glass successfully over the trails. Being without breakage it will stand up under rough treatment, and has the added advantage of being flexible.

Cuts and Bruises Disappear.—When suffering from cuts, scratches, bruises and inflammation of any kind, and any similar ailment, use Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil its healing power is well-known in every section of the community. A bottle of Dr Thomas' Eclectric Oil should be in every medicine chest ready for the emergencies that may always be anticipated.

Volcanic Dust

Volcanic dust found in Saskatchewan and British Columbia is used for purposes similar to pumice, particularly in the manufacture of cleansers and scouring powders, and in some instances as a substitute for fuller's earth in the refining of hard oils and fats.

Press Best Medium For Reaching Public

Sir Charles Higham Extols Benefits Of Newspaper Advertising

Sir Charles Frederick Higham, author and publicist, speaking on "Scientific Distribution," said there was no advertising medium so useful as the press, and none that was reproduced with such quality and such fit. Newspaper advertising paid better today than it ever did. Most of the goods now renowned by the public were sold under a branded name, and the most economical method of distributing those was by press advertising, properly done. The dealer would always stock an article which was nationally advertised in the daily press, because he was convinced, first that the article must be good or it would not be advertised at all, and, secondly, that the public would respond to it because they knew that they were getting good value for their money.

The Government and found newspaper advertising extremely valuable in increasing the sales of British goods through the Empire Marketing Board, Sir Charles said.

Milk For Dairy Factories

The approximate amount of milk required to supply dairy factories in Canada during 1928, based on the quantity of milk delivered and the equivalent in milk of the butter fat content of the cream delivered, was 7,118,940,722 pounds.

PAUL BEFORE HIS JUDGES

Golden Text: "I was not disobedient unto the heavenly vision."—Acts 26. 19.

Lesson: Acts 24.1-26.32.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 23.1-6.

Explanations

Paul Before Felix and Drusilla, 24. 24-26.—Some days later, Felix sent for Paul that he and Drusilla might hear him in regard to his faith in Jesus Christ. Drusilla was a Jewess, the daughter of Herod Agrippa I. (whose death is narrated in Acts 12. 20-23).

Paul talked about matters pertinent to the conduct of Felix; righteousness.—Felix supposed he might perpetrate with impunity any kind of villainy," said Tacitus—self-control —Felix had induced Drusilla to leave her husband and live with him; and the judgment to come—Felix had murdered Jonathan, the high priest, and had committed many other sins. Paul talked so effectively that Felix trembled. Compare John the Baptist's talk with Herod. Mark 6.14-29.

"Fear is not faith, but it may lead to faith, or it may lead to hardening."—Alexander Maclaren.

Although Felix trembled, his only answer to Paul was, "Go thy way for this time; and when I have a convenient season I will call for thee unto me." Felix doesn't think that he is deciding for Christ, but he is deciding against Him. He thinks that he has postponed the decision, but he hasn't. For indecisive procrastination is one of the most effective methods which the devil has of mankind knows. Life's processes do not wait a half hour's convenience, nor have not made up our minds. If you have a glorious time now, remember that you have three choices; either to have flowers, or to have weeds, or to have nothing but sawdust. Which? But in fact you have only two choices. If you choose flowers, you have to have them; but if you decide to be neutral, the weeds will decide for you—you will have weeds. The process of God's eternal universe do not stop to wait for us to make up our minds. To make no decision means positive decision. And to be neutral in Christian matters is positive decision. You must make up your mind to it. And if any Felix endeavors to be indecisive, he is very decisively positive. His life processes still go on without Christ because he has positively decided for Christ."—H. E. Tooke.

New Source Of Electricity

River Mud Is Attracting Attention Of Scientists in Europe

Scientists of Europe are taking an interest in reports that mud is to be the source of electrical supply at a power station being erected in Germany, Germany. The mud will be extracted from the River Ems. It is said to contain a combustible material that by a new method will be extracted, dried and then used for fuel for the works. The mud when dried is declared to be equal to that of lignite. Investigators declare that the new process is of international importance because there are many rivers in coal districts throughout the world, the mud of which could be treated in the same manner.

Canada ranks third in importance, as a source of metals of the platinum group, after Russia and Colombia.

Are You Ready When your Children Cry for It

Baby has little upsets at times. All your care cannot prevent them. But you can be prepared. Then you can do what any experienced nurse would do—what most physicians would tell you to do—give a few drops of Dias Carminative. No sooner does Baby's bowels become disturbed than Baby is soothed; relief is just a matter of moments. Yet you have eased your child without use of a single doubtful drug; Castoria is vegetable. So it's safe to use as often as an infant has any little pain; you cannot get away. And it's always ready for the crueller pangs of colic or constipation, diarrhea; effective, too, for older children. Twenty-five million bottles were bought last year.

Branch Line Construction

More Than 230 Miles Of New Lines and 71 New Stations Built By C.N.R. in Past Season

The building of more than 230 miles of new branch lines, with 71 new stations and shipping points sums up in brief the construction programme of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Western Canada during the past summer, according to D. C. Coleman, Vice-President, Western Lines. By this means hundreds of farmers had been brought much closer to transportation facilities, and thousands of acres of rich agricultural land had been made much more attractive from the settlers viewpoint. The construction programme has gone forward rapidly and as a consequence a considerable amount of this year's crop is being marketed over the new trackage, Mr. Coleman pointed out. A feature of the branch line construction was found in the rapidity with which settlement followed the laying of the steel. Country elevators to the number of approximately 300 were already built or in the course of construction, while in many cases towns were beginning to spring up around the newly erected station buildings.

WINDOLITE MADE IN ENGLAND

The Improved Glass Substitute

COMES WITH A MESSAGE OF HEALTH

THE sun is the all-powerful life producer. Nature's universal disinfectant and germ destroyer, as well as stimulant and tonic. WINDOLITE is the sun's most important ally.

Medical research has definitely proved that from the point of view of Health and Hygiene, the most effective among the sun's rays, are the Ultra-Violet rays, which possess the greatest power for the prevention and cure of disease and debility.

Science has further established that ordinary window glass does not allow the passage of Ultra-Violet rays, so that by using glass we are artificially excluding these vital health-giving rays. Therefore, the invention of WINDOLITE has completely satisfied the long-felt want. Exhaustive experiments have conclusively proved that it is a most effective substitute for glass, that it freely admits the Ultra-Violet rays, and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens and on the well-being of cattle, enabled for the first time to have healthy light instead of darkness in their sheds.

Indeed, the discovery of WINDOLITE has during the last six years completely revolutionised gardening, given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increasing the egg-laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the health of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements.

WINDOLITE stands for 100 per cent. sunlight. It makes light but strong windows for cattle sheds, dairy of milk, poultry houses, brooders and all out buildings. It is economical, unbreakable, flexible and is easy to cut and fit. It is now being successfully used for sunrooms, verandahs, hospitals, nurseries, factories, hotels, beds, plant coverings and greenhouses. It keeps out cold —will not crack or chip,—cuts with an ordinary pair of scissors and is easy to fit. WINDOLITE is supplied in rolls any length but in sizes of 36 inches only. 36 square yard of WINDOLITE weighs about 14 ozs. while an square yard of glass of ordinary thickness weighs about 130 to 140 ozs. The improved WINDOLITE requires no special handling. WINDOLITE is made in England.

Use WINDOLITE and let YOUR PLANTS YOUR CHICKENS YOUR CATTLE Bask in 100 % Sunlight. Send for booklet "WINDOLITE"

A Chunk Of Coal And What Science Will Do With It In The Not Distant Future

(From the Edinburgh Dispatch)

To most of us coal is not an interesting subject. We grumble when we have to make up the fire with our own fair hands, we grumble when the coutile is empty, and we grumble at the fabulous amount of obehalz we have to disburse for a few bags of chunky black stuff dumped on the coal-cellar floor. Most of all we grumble when the coalman does not call and the country is in the wretched throes of a coal dispute.

To us a chunk of coal is simply a chunk of coal, and we cannot imagine why 48 nations should confer upon it, or why they should wish to discuss its past, dissect its present and map out its future. Nevertheless, more than 1,500 good men and skilful of the World Power Conference have gathered together in London for that very purpose. Obviously we must pay more respect to that chunk of coal in future, and our children will have to treat it with far more deference that we have been wont to do—that is, if they ever have the chance of seeing and using real and actual coal in days to come.

For these good, skilful fuel scientists are going to do all manner of things with coal that it never occurred to us to do. For one thing, they are going to make coal "live" (that sounds dreadful; and, for another, they are going to pulverise it, which sounds far worse. For all that, they are not going to do is to burn that poor chunk of coal in an open grate or smelting to the fire in the way we and our fathers and grandfathers have been doing.

They are going to make us pay more respect to coal, and yet they are going to give it the thinnest time it ever had, or ever will, minerals either. They are going to subject it to that last indignity of all, the indignity of actually vaporisation.

No longer will it be sold by the bag or the truck, but according to its calorific value, or, in other words, its heat and energy value. Moreover, they are going to see that it is thoroughly washed and cleaned. No longer will we have to expect pieces of camouflaged slate and shale as the natural contents of the coal-scuttle.

We have kept the worst till the last.

Chemists and engineers between them are going to invent machines and processes which will squash that chunk of coal with such terrific pressure, and will warm it and work it to such terrific temperatures, that from sheer lack of stamina it will collapse, and turn to oil, motor spirit, and so on. This they call by the kindly name of "hydrogenation."

Altogether coal is in for a very bad time, but that will not worry you and me a great deal, partly because we do not have much to do with coal in the future. We will use more gas and more electricity—at reduced prices, we hope—and also we will use a smokeless fuel provided by the aforementioned carbonisation. In this way we will have coal only a bright hearth, but bright skies as well—there no longer being any smoke to belch out of the chimney.

It must not be imagined that all this is mere boasting and vain-glory on the part of these fuel scientists. For instance, in Newcastle, an electricity company is able to supply current at one farthing a unit, which is the cheapest recorded in any country in the world, including Sweden and Switzerland. Here they make it entirely with waterfalls.

The company in question achieves this by the low-temperature carbonisation of coal, and by using the resultant solid fuel under the boilers in a super-power station specially built for the purpose. Therefore, the investigations of the fuel scientists are being duly vindicated.

Even the Ultra-Violet rays, which science has now discovered to be so beneficial to us, are being harnessed to the service of mankind. Life's processes do not wait a half hour's convenience, nor have not made up our minds. If you have a glorious time now, remember that you have three choices; either to have flowers, or to have weeds, or to have nothing but sawdust. Which? But in fact you have only two choices. If you choose flowers, you have to have them; but if you decide to be neutral, the weeds will decide for you—you will have weeds. The process of God's eternal universe do not stop to wait for us to make up our minds. To make no decision means positive decision. And to be neutral in Christian matters is positive decision. You must make up your mind to it. And if any Felix endeavors to be indecisive, he is very decisively positive. His life processes still go on without Christ because he has positively decided for Christ."—H. E. Tooke.

A LITTLE CHUNKY PAPER

By Clara McCreary

I get a little paper from a little country town—

A fair cry from the dailies that on Sundays weigh us down;

It's printed every Friday, and it has no supplement,

Nor colored rotogravure, but I'm always glad it's sent.

It gives us clever verses by the syndicated bards,

But states that Mrs. Williams enter-tained seven friends to cards.

"To scribe" says Judge McArthur clerking hands with friends today—

It says the Curtis family sold out and moved away.

Ou Boulder Dam it's silent, and there's nothing on dance—

It tells that the Rebekahs gave an installation dance.

That Miss Day is returning soon to open up her school.

That Alexander Hargrave lost a valuable mule.

It's glad that Jimmy Gallagher can be around again,

It claims that the alfalfa crop is much in need of rain;

The paper's never voted for the road work to commence;

Will Anderson hauled lumber for his new garage and fence.

The worldly ones may smile at it, but theirs are tender smiles—

These home town items form a bond through many years and miles.

Oh, little country paper, with your little weekly talks!

I like to wander with you down remembered roads and walks.

Flooring For Poultry Houses

Cement Floors Are Found To Be Unsatisfactory

Poultry houses on the Charlottetown, P.E.I. Experimental Station floored with cement gave trouble during winter and spring on account of remaining damp. In an effort to overcome this difficulty 16 feet by 22 feet was given a liberal coating of roofing paint with the idea that it would prevent moisture coming through the cement. This treatment, however, proved little better. Sand and limestone came damp and unfit for use almost as quickly as where no treatment had been given. In another section the floor of matched lumber was put in and raised two inches above the level of the cement. This treatment proved a success, according to the report of the experiment recorded in the 1927 report of the station, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa. In this report the superintendent points out that the section with the board flooring remained dry, requiring cleaning only about half as many times as the section of the same house with the cement flooring only.

Phosphate Fertilizer

By-Product From Trail Smelter Now On The World Market

The Provincial School of Agriculture at Claresholm has just made public the result of an experiment inspired by the Canadian Pacific Railway, namely the use of a phosphate fertilizer, a by-product from the smelter at Trail, B.C. Tests were made on the farms of J. L. Salmon, the Pierce Farm and at the college. The fields were plated exactly the same acreage that, in each case, one had the fertilizer and the other had not. The former showed a yield of 64 bushels to the acre, and the latter only 46 bushels. In other words, the extra eight bushels per acre were secured at a cost of 90 cents in fertilizer.

Cause For Thankfulness

A minister who was making a sea voyage expressed strong disapproval of the language used by the sailors.

"It's a very bad habit," agreed the captain, "but when there is real danger the lads stop swearing."

Presently the weather grew very stormy and a sailor came into the clergyman's cabin.

"It's terribly rough, isn't it?" said the minister. "Are the sailors swearing?"

"They are," replied the man.

"Thank goodness!" breathed the parson.

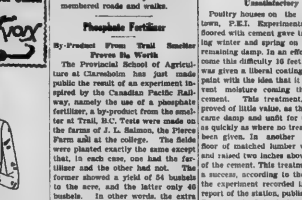
Largest Passenger Locomotives In The British Empire Are Being Built In Canada



Thirty-one Hundred and One as about to come out of the shops. Of a small corner of a bustling city of steel and men, great slabs of meteorite are being bound to her solid steel sides. The great drivers and the leading and rear trucks are standing on the track behind, waiting for the engineers to lower her from the jacks. In a little while her boiler and her fire-box will be full. Steam will be blazing and that little group of men in white collars who have been poking about for months, will go busily and tastily by as the throttle is opened for the first time.

Thirty-One Hundred and One will be the second of the two largest passenger locomotives in the British Empire to be turned out of Angus works in two months. Twenty-five hundred class, all of whom have made some contribution to her design or construction will stop and look up from their tools as she moves. It will be a great moment for them, as they take almost as much pride in her, each one of them, as did the office boys and draughtsmen who warmed the platform of Windsor Station when Thirty-One Hundred made her first appearance.

The largest passenger locomotives in the British Empire! In speaking to the lay man, those gentlemen who have been so busy for years, have drew attention to this feature. Size is impressive. One might gather that when Frank Ellis, the engineer and employees speak with enthusiasm and justifiable pride of them, that it was because the mechanical departments of the railways of the world had just been terminated by an overwhelming victory for the Canadian organization.

This is hardly the case. As a matter of fact, while the size of the locomotive is locomotive design, it is by no means the primary consideration. And while the mechanical departments of all railways watch with considerable interest the developments of other lines, the problems of the different roads with respect to power requirements are so different as to leave no ground for comparison of efficiency. The Thirty-One Hundreds are the largest passenger locomotives in the British Empire, but to the engineers and the operating departments of the road, this is incidental. What is more important is the fact that they have succeeded in producing a locomotive capable of efficiently carrying the load it was required of it under all conditions, at the same time keeping within the weight and other limitations placed upon it by bridges, track and other conditions. They have broken ground in several features, which have required the courage of their convictions, and theirs is the gratification of the pioneer successful.

While the design and construction of the Thirty-One Hundreds was no one man's job, in one man fell the job of reducing the requirements to a final analysis, coalescing the many ideas and forming one which would embody the whole. "My job," he says, as he looks with satisfaction and affection at the photograph on the wall. What he did, in collaboration, was from known practices and older theory, together with advanced and original theory and developments at science evolve a mechanical giant.

C. H. Temple, whose life and engineering achievement after forty-four years of service with the Company was the creation of the mechanical giant, sat in his office on the tenth floor of Windsor Station. He was Chief of Motive Power and Rolling Stock The Angus plant was five miles away. He visited the plant occasionally to see that various parts conformed to his ideas and he received daily detailed reports on construction progress, but the development of the great thrill, when the turning of the great wheels for the first time by power from the combination of a hundred theories was workable human vision, one which pierced the veil which hides the through designs and drawings, through laboratories and tables which featured the thousandth part of an inch, and discovered flaws of this and that which were totally interesting to him but not very comprehensible to anyone else.

The design of a locomotive is not dictated by a desire to get one better in size The design is dictated by existing traffic demands and on what one anticipated will be the requirements of the immediate future. The Thirty-One Hundreds must be years in advance of the needs of the day This is the reason for the Thirty-One Hundreds

Fuel economy reasons, the changes in freight power have been very marked. The advance in passenger power, however, has been more rapid, and as the more general use of steel in passenger construction added liability per cent. to the weight of passenger trains during the past few years the motive power had to be almost revolutionized.

Fattening Hogs

Buttermilk Found To Be Better Than Skim Milk For Pigs

Buttermilk proved a better feed than skim-milk for fattening hogs at the Rosthern, Sask., Experimental Station. Groups of pure bred Yorkshires, Tamworths, Berkshires, and crosses from these breeds, were used. The lots receiving skim-milk and buttermilk ran on wheat pasture and received rations of 9 parts oat-chop and 2 parts of shorts. The shorts were gradually replaced by ground barley, and at the close of the finishing period the pigs were receiving three-quarters barley chop and one-quarter oat chop. The experiment was conducted for 126 days with both lots.

The superintendent of the station reviewing the other experiments in the report of the station for last year, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa. It is shown that the buttermilk fed did not make as average daily gain per animal of .128 pounds more than the lot receiving skim-milk. The amount of meal required for a pound of gain was .22 pounds higher in the skim-milk lot, and 100 pounds of skim-milk or 9 pounds of skim-milk to make a pound of gain than it did buttermilk.

Defective Eyesight Common

Majority Of Urban People Have Poor Vision Says Optometrist

As a result of the great strain on the eyes by the complexity of modern civilization, particularly in connection with urban life, it is estimated that seven out of every ten people in the large centres of population have defective eyesight. Jerry Britton, a consulting optometrist in Montreal, in a recent address in which he produced a moving picture illustrating this, said the trend caused by the reaction of the daily demands of urban life upon the delicate organism of the eye is not confined to the young and old alike, he said. Human eyes are not adapted to the environment given by modern civilization, according to the speaker.

THE NEW SCHOOL ACT.

Hon. Mr Perren Baker, minister of education, has announced a new school act. Something of this nature was foreshadowed by the minister when he spoke here at the laying of the corner stone of the Vermilion high school. The new act, judging from the minister's public utterances, will involve a most drastic change. It is to appl only to rural areas. The province is to be divided into districts or areas of about 156 local districts each. These will be placed under the direction of a superintendent and presumably in spectors will function as usual, although possibly in due course of time they will become obsolete. The underlying idea is to get men and women to remain in the profession on a permanent basis rather than short periods as at present. These districts will be largely governing bodies unto themselves. There will be some kind of a co-ordination with adjoining districts. Under the new scheme the old time school boards will become sort of chore boys and really from all we can gather, they might as well be dispensed with at the very outset. No one will like to serve in a public capacity unless he feels that in doing so he is fulfilling some useful purpose. We do not know but we feel that while this may be a step in the right direction still there are other movements which should examine form before this change is carried into effect. At present our provincial ridings and municipal districts are wonderfully confused with respect to boundary lines. There should be a new alignment. Either make the municipalities conform with be riding boundaries, or vice versa. Candidly speaking, we feel that these ridings could be reduced, but bearing that salds there should be more harmony on the boundary question. Having established definitely these boundaries, then introduce the new school areas. Following this we see no reason why the municipal councillors should not fill the office of school trustees as well and thus make the municipality the one and only collecting body. We think that in this way things might be simplified a good deal. Councillors are paid for their services, school trustees are not, and yet the duties of the latter are by no means to be scoffed at. If the new act is sought to be worked out on the present basis of municipal areas, there is bound to be much confusion and perhaps waste of good energy. Let once provincial riding be made up of so many municipalities and then work the new scheme from that basis. Or else let each riding be a municipality unto itself which would be in effect introducing the county system and which has so much to be said in its favor. Until the new act is crystallized into statutory form, it would be idle to speculate as to how it will work out. But after all is said and done, will the new system produce better schools? We doubt it very much indeed. With all our stores of present day innovations, we have yet to travel a little while before we can overcome the boy who learned little at a time, but what he did learn he learned well. And the new act, as far as can be learned, does not propose a solution of the question of secondary education in the towns and villages.

Word was received today of the sudden death at Edmonton of Mr. John Morrison, a former resident of the Cummings district. Mrs. Simpson and Mrs. Wright, of town, are daughters of the deceased. Other members of the family at Edmonton are Mrs. Scott and Miss Morrison, daughters, and Alex and Hugh, sons. The Standard expects to have more particulars for next issue.

The sympathy of the friends here go out to Mr. McDonagh and children in the sad bereavement they have sustained in the death of Mrs. McDonagh. For some three years or so the family lived in Vermilion and it was only quite recently that they moved to Strasbourg.

SOME OTHER PEOPLE

The turn of the Chinese policeman's fly seems to indicate that he could snarl out a very nasty "Where'd you think you're going" if he thought you would understand him, but passengers on the Canadian Pacific World Cruise last year found him very courteous.

Some time before the globe-trotters met the man with the pallid brain bred-gear they were greeted at the entrance of the famous Stadium at Athens by the ferry-moustached guard who looks like Harry Lauder in a caricature of the worst features of the Highland the Prince and the Bonnety advertisement national costume.

But the Japanese practising on the saxophone's acoustic tube is the cake when it comes to strange bed-gear. As you could be sure of about "wicker" and "wicked-looking," but let that pass. The dapper representative of the fair are evidently believers in sleepless time—and economy! She has made her "robe de style" serve for her young son, too, and her head dress! Permanent waves have probably been amongst the old family secrets handed down from mother to daughter for centuries in her country.

Let them altogether they are a fair sample of strange things to be viewed on a trip round the world.

The Canadian Pacific has organized an winter cruise. The next Round the World by the "Empress of Australia" North America, by the new 22,000 ton "Duchess of Atholl", Mediterranean by the "Empress of Scotland" and three cruises to the once happy hunting grounds of the buccaneer—the West Indies.

The Western Canada ski championships of combined skiing events will be held in Banff again this season in conjunction with the Banff winter carnival, due to take place next February, it has been decided upon. Such famous skiers will probably be in attendance as Nelson of Revelstoke, Thompson of Vancouver,—last year's western representative at the Olympic games,—and Nordmoen of Camrose.

"Once upon a time there were sixty boys who didn't wear pantees and didn't wear sense, but they all had wrestling in a big house."

A parody on A. A. Milne's famous nursery rhyme is inspired by a shipment of sixty black and silver foxes who passed through the Windsor Street Station recently en route to Switzerland from Calgary. They were "under the wing" of the Canadian Pacific Express, who say that when a fur shipment is on the road before him. Whether he tried to "charge" the animals or forgot he was at the wheel; he does not state. But when he recovered his senses he and his car were in the ditch. Little damage was done.

The Bank of Montreal has now 680 more of new branch lines, with 71 new stations and shipping points open up in brief the construction programme of the Canadian Pacific Railway in Western Canada during the past summer, according to D. C. Coleman, Vice-President, Western Lines. By the means hundreds of farmers had been brought much closer to transportation facilities, and thousands of acres of rich agricultural land had been made much more attractive from the motherly viewpoint.

"I can say, without any hesitation, that Canada is the best country in the world for farming at the present time. It has greater possibilities, and there are indications that there is greater stab lity and prosperity than can be found in any other country," said Dr. E. S. Archibald, director in charge of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Ottawa, addressing the Young Men's Canadian Club in Montreal. Dr. Archibald said the crops in Canada are worth $1,647,000,000, which alone was equal to the fisheries, mines and forests all put together.

New Diphtheria Vaccine a Success

French Scientist Says Disease Will Be Unknown in Few Years

"I, to only a question of a few years before the dread diphtheria with all of its attendant diseases, such as croup and various forms of bronchitis, will be entirely unknown in France and, we hope, throughout the rest if Europe." This is the prophecy of Dr. Ramon, of the Pasteur Institute of Paris, who with his colleagues at the special diphtheria section at Garches, on the outskirts of Paris, has decided to spend the coming year in improving the vaccine which has given remarkable results during the past four years.

The experimental laboratories at Garches have been something like a revelation to the several hundred of European and American scientists who have visited and signed its registers during 1924. The first impression of the persons is of a royal stud farm "gone to seed." For Garches was primarily designed as an experimental hospital for horses and cattle, and it was while treating these animals that Dr Ramon discovered his vaccine for diphtheria among human.

At first the results were not satisfactory, and Dr. Ramon found difficulty in convincing his colleagues that success was not to be had in a single bound. The military hospitals were used to provide patients for the vaccine, and month by month the vaccine was made purer and stronger, the results became little short of remarkable. A winter attack of diphtheria was formerly sufficient to throw half of an infantry company into the isolating wards After a few months treatment with the Ramon vaccine, it was found that the isolation bars could be lifted without danger to others in the hospitals.

Similar results were obtained in the schools and Dr Ramon believes that this year's records will show complete immunization among school children, after their initial vaccination of only two per cent. If there was be obtained, efforts will be made to make the use of the vaccine compulsory throughout France. He gains the confidence of foreign scientists in the effort, thousands upon thousands of inquiries having arrived of cases of diphtheric maladies, are now being shipped to other countries every month and so far there has been no complaint

Eggs From Manure Hens Hatch Real Chicks

Shown To Give Better Hatching Results Than Eggs Laid By Pullets.

Eggs from mature stock gave better hatching results at the Lennoxville, Quebec, Experimental Station than those laid by pullets in the report of the station for last year published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, it is shown that hatchings from the hens showed an average fertility of 90.38 per cent. as compared with 76.36 per cent. fertility from the pullets eggs. Of the total eggs set these from mature stock yielded 53.89 per cent. of chickens as compared with 41.96 per cent. from the pullets eggs. The returns from those laid by the hens was also slightly higher than those laid by the pullets. There was practically no loss of chickens among those hatched from the hens' eggs

Canada Report Portrays Mechanism Of Distribution In Canada.

A report has just been issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics giving in detail the results of a special census of Trading Establishments taken in 1924, the main figures of which were issued by the Bureau some time ago. The object of the census was to obtain a measurement of the mechanism of distribution in Canada. Statistics have long been available relating to population and more recently, regarding the production of commodities. The mechanism, however, by which commodities have been distributed to the ultimate consumer has in the past been subjected to but slight quantitative measurement. Information regarding this mechanism is of great economic and social importance and the compilation of port represents a first step to meet an urgent need.

To bridge the gap between producers and consumers, or, in other words, to perform those services which finally place products of all kinds in the ultimate consumer's hands, requires an enormous loss

Census Report Portrays Mechanism Of Distribution In Canada

A report that has just been issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics giving in detail the results of a special census on "Trading Establishments" taken in 1924, the main figures of which were issued by the Bureau some time ago. The object of the census was to obtain a measurement of the mechanism of distribution in Canada. Statistics have long been available relating to population and, more recently, regarding the production of commodities. The mechanism, however, by which commodities have been distributed to the ultimate consumer has in the past been subjected to but slight quantitative measurement. Information regarding this mechanism is of great economic and social importance and the report presented a first step to meet this need.

To bridge the gap between producers and consumers, or, in other words, to perform those services which finally place products of all kinds in the ultimate consumer's hands, requires a large investment of capital. The report shows, for some 37,000 establishments which reported, a capital in excess of more than a billion and a half dollars. Sales reached the $1,- 980,000,000. Forty per cent. of individual retail stores in cities of 50,- 000 population or over had sales of less than $10,000, and twenty-three per cent. had sales of less than $8,- 000. A grouping of stores according to size of capital investment shows that 55 per cent. of the retail establishments reporting had an investment of under $10,000, while the same percentage of wholesale-retail stores extended sales to $60,000 class, and 79 per cent. of wholesale stores reached into the $90,000 group. Apart from the retail and wholesale, numerous grocery establishments have the largest amount of capital invested. In the retail stores, the average working capital was roughly twice fixed capital. In wholesale-retail establishments it was 1.6 times fixed, while in wholesale establishments working capital was nearly 4 times as great as fixed capital. These and other interesting facts about trading establishments are shown in the report.

Canadian Flour in India

Calcutta Biscuit Manufacturer Finds Canadian Flour Is Needed

Experiments carried out by a Calcutta biscuit manufacturer with some samples of Canadian flour shipped to Calcutta by a Canadian milling firm have been highly satisfactory, writes Mr. H. R. Pemberton, Canadian Trade Commissioner in Calcutta, in the Commercial Intelligence Journal. Indian bakers have been experiencing heavy losses due to the high percentage of "rejects" in biscuits made entirely of Indian flour. In one case by mixing Canadian and Indian flours tonnage was increased from 43.5 to 7.50 per cent. It is quite possible that as a result of such experiments, that in the future will be a steady but steady demand for Canadian flour in India.

Manitoba received the largest increase in population during the past six months according to a return issued by the department of immigration and colonization for the year ended June 30. It was found that the isolation bars could be lifted without danger to others in the hospitals.

Similar results were obtained in the schools and Dr Ramon believes that the year's records will show complete immunization among school children, after their initial vaccination of nearly 100 per cent. Fertilizing For Potato Land

Experiment With Stable Manure and Commercial Fertilizer

For five years in succession experimental work was carried on at the Charlottetown Experimental Station to find out whether or not it is more profitable to use stable manure alone or stable manure and commercial fertilizer for the growing of potatoes. A four-year rotation of potatoes, grain, clover and timothy, was used. The first plot received stable manure at the rate of 20 tons per acre; plot two received a complete fertilizer at a rate equivalent to 1,000 pounds per acre; and a third plot received stable manure at the rate of 10 tons per acre, and 500 pounds of a complete fertilizer. These plots were compared with check plots receiving no fertilizer. In the report of the experimental work for the station, for 1927, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, the average yields covering the five-year period are given.

The yield from the plots receiving the stable manure alone, was 11,363 pounds, with 81.2 per cent marketable. The complete fertilizer alone gave an average yield of 9,286 pounds of potatoes, 73.3 per cent. marketable. The returns from the land receiving half fertilizer and half manure were practically equal to the plots receiving stable manure alone, amounting to 11,202 pounds of potatoes, with 84 8 per cent. marketable. The land that received no fertilizer yielded an exceedingly poor crop of 3,787 pounds, with 67.3 per cent. marketable.

Aerial Photography In Winter Possible

New Process Is Reported To Have Been Developed In Norway

A new process in aerial photography which will revolutionize winter timber cruising, has been developed by International Airways of Canada, according to H. L. Ballar, director of the photographic section at Ottawa. Mr. Ballar declared the new scheme would enable work to be done in a few days which would normally take months. It would entail the employment of ground parties in considerable numbers.

The process, he said, made use of photography to show up varieties of standing timber even when naked of leaf. The approximate number of trees to a standard area of the photograph taken at a certain altitude can be used to calculate the number of trees of each variety in the whole area under survey, he declared.

The system is primarily a scheme to make aerial photography useful in winter.

Bachelor's Quarters At Marlborough House

Would Seem To Indicate Royal Romance Not On Cards

British subjects who would like to see the Prince of Wales married have received another setback.

A rumor of several seasons' vintage had it that when the Prince moved into Marlborough House he would prepare to settle down to a domestic existence. But shortly after the Prince started on his African tour with the Duke of Gloucester, his plans for the new home became known.

The Prince has ordered built within the walls of Marlborough House an apartment to suit the needs of a bachelor.

Two bedrooms and a sitting room, kitchen, bath and a very complete library are not the sort of arrangements Britain might expect for a Prince with a bride. The Prince will occupy the apartment, it is said, in preference to the more cold and stately rooms of the famous old house.

The "ex-aunt-Wales-wed" contingent is gloomy.

High Quality Of Crop

Milling Test Of Canada's Quality Of This Year's Crop Is Made Public

The milling and baking quality, grade for grade, of the 1928-29 wheat crop, on the whole, is distinctly superior to that of last year, according to a report of the Dominion Grain Research Laboratory of the Board of Grain Commissioners. The report (prepared by F. J. Birchard and T. R. Aitken, chemists for the Board), points out especially that the moisture content of all grades is low in strength as contrasted with last year and to date very little tough grain—about one per cent.—and no damp grain have appeared on the market. The weight per bushel of each grade is greater than that of last year; particularly for the lower grades: protein content of the wheat is higher in each grade; the quality of the protein, particularly in the lower grades, is superior to that of last year, and the baking quality of the flour from each grade is decidedly superior to that of last year.

British Visitor Sees Opportunities Here For Young Men

"Give me 2,000 young men and I should not hesitate to come to Canada," said John Garton, prospective president of Britain's largest organized group of farmers—the National Farmers' Union of England—who has been touring the country, from Nova Scotia to Canada, on a special mission for the British Ministry of Agriculture. "There are openings here for young men for the young man with a little knowledge of farming than almost any other country in the world," the company with Arthur Amos, director of the University Farm at Cambridge, England, Mr. Garton has been investigating farm organization and labor-saving devices in Canada, with a view to learning what might here be profitably applied to British farming.

Alberta Fur Production

Province Occupies Fourth Place In Canada In Production Of Furs

According to an announcement of the Provincial Game Commissioner, total production of $3,256,353 is reported for the Province of Alberta for the year ending June 30th, 1927. This is a slight advance over the figures of the previous season, and brings the province into fourth place for fur production, the Northwest Territories exceeding the output by $700,000. The fur production for Canada is reported as $18,833,977, as compared with $15,972,344 during the preceding year.

Enjoying Sound Prosperity

Canada Would Now Seem To Be the Favored Country

"With agriculture prosperous, manufacturing plants active, large amount of construction achieving new records in all parts of the country, and mineral production at unprecedented figures, it is not surprising that the employment index for each month in 1928 should be higher by one to five than the corresponding month of any previous year. Import and export statistics reveal a large volume of trade and all indices of Canadian business conditions show that the country is enjoying sound prosperity."—Royal Bank of Canada Bulletin.

Warehouse and Seed Cleaning Plant For Saskatoon

The Saskatchewan Registered Seed Growers Limited has arrangements under way for the establishment of a warehouse and cleaning plant at Saskatoon, it is announced by F. W. At present out the seed cleaning plant at Moose Jaw is the only one in the province.

Wrangel Island Colony Starving

Shipment With Relief Supplies and Also Airplane Fail To Reach It

How to get food to five Russians and 25 Esquimaux who have been cut off from the world on Wrangel Island since 1923, is causing much worry at Leningrad, Siberia.

The Soviet Government, assigned to carry the colony a three-year supply of food, fuel and medicine, failed to break through the ice and recently returned.

Orders have come from the Premier Rykoff that other measures must be taken to reach the island, since help next summer might be too late. An aeroplane that set out on the same mission as the ship was also unspelled to return.

Wrangel Island has a record of tragedy which well may frighten members of the Russian expedition headed there now. Of 11 colonists, but one has not already overtaken some or all, of them.

In 1921 the expedition was fitted out at Nome, Alaska, under the supervision of Vilhjalmur Stefansson, who planned to take possession of the island in the name of Canada. Stefansson did not go himself, but put the expedition in charge of a young Canadian, Allan Crawford, of Toronto.

The expedition landed on the island in 1922. Nothing more was heard from it until late in 1923, when a relief expedition found only Ada Blackjack, an Eskimo seamstress, alive.

One member of the expedition, Lorne Knight, had died of scurvy during the winter preceding; it was found, while Crawford, Allen Crawford, Frederick Maurer, and Milton Galle had set out to reach the mainland. Of the five, they have never been heard from since.

Entries in the diaries of these men has failed to indicate an extreme shortage of food. Milton Galle writes in his record in August 1922, five months before he set out with his companions for Siberia: "Crawford and I have been dipping hard bread in grease as it lay long and seem never to get filled."

Considerable controversy followed the discovery of the tragedy, in which the charge was heard from several 'scurvy that Stefansson had been derelict in the fulfilment of his promises to those composing the expedition to Wrangel Island. It was said, that when the party left, the explorer had promised to come out the following summer with supplies for them.

Other evidence, however, pointed to the men's intention to live off the country after they might kill a possibility Stefansson had already proven practicable in his long experience in the Northland. Culpability in the matter was the subject of considerable newspaper controversy for more than two years following the discovery of the tragedy late in 1923.

Wrangel Island is listed in the Encyclopedia Britannica as belonging to Russia, although claims of a sort by both Britain and the United States might be supported by one circumstance or another.

Forty new school districts have been established in Alberta in the first nine months of 1928 making a grand total of about 3,500 in the Province including city, town and rural schools. This is exclusive of particularity in evidence in Northern Alberta.

"It must have been a terribly hard job to teach that animal to sit up and beg!" Nagels Lustige Welt, Berlin.

"Well, 'bout half the time when the waiter hands yo wheat ya thinks is tarpentine," stated the trapper as he speared a cube of butter with a long fork and shot it unceremonly to the debris-pail.

Andy laughed outright. "Strike me pale, John, you've got saythin' I ever seen blish a block for eloquin' grace."

John was pleased. "Oh, I'm fair to middlin' good," he admitted.

Then served by the trapper's self, and pans in which the food had been cooked, and piled the table with enough grub to satisfy seven men. "Like to see lots of grub in sight," smiled the old trapper. His pleased eye fell upon the coffee-pot in the centre of the table, and then sent out his original dinner-call. "Throw your feed, under the mehogany." he roared.

The party needed no second call. The moment the word was given there was a wolfish epsilties and they made huge inroads on the trapper's well-cooked dinner. With the exception of Andy, they ate and enjoyed enormously; the meat being fine-grained and tender, and the gravy delicious. Andy was the Andy's refusal to try this delicacy.

"Try it, ol' timer," he insisted, as he passed the steaming pan across the table.

Andy made a wry face. "Don't feel just hungry lonight," he mumbled.

Dinner finished. Donald pushed back his chair, lighted a cigar and cigarette. "John, that was a dandy meal, and your coffee sure is a nectar fit for the gods."

The trapper was justly proud of his cooking. Donald's praise brought a deeper tinge of colour to his bronzed face. He rafiled the tin cup and they sat quietly smoking and sipping the fragrant coffee.

After the day in the open and the excellent meal it was pleasant to sit and watch the smoke of the cabin while the storm which had been gathering broke overhead and the incessant patter of rain sounded on the roof.

Between Andy and John there spread a companionship based on the peculiar brotherhood which exists between small men. Each found in the other traits that amused him.

"Comical little duck," was John's opinion of Andy.

"Strike me pink.! He's the funniest old geezer that I ever saw in me life," was Andy's comment on John.

Together they washed the dishes and tidied up the room. When they had finished, and the fire in the double-bag, rummaged through the contents, and produced a flask of rum. They had been saving it especially for this occasion.

"I brought this for medicinal purposes," stated Andy. "How are you feelin', John?"

The mirth wrinkles around the trapper's eyes deepened. "My mixin's purty bad to-night, ol' timer."

Andy poured liberally into a tin cup. The pungent odour of rum filled the room. Old John sniffed the contents. "Whuh!" he yowled, "good lickor!"

The old trapper, standing in the centre of the room, presented a figure wild and strange. His coat of fur reached down to his knees and exposed a hairy chest. His mane-like mass of wiry hair stood straight out and shook with every movement of his body. A veritable wild man of the woods he looked as he grasped the cup and held it up to his admiring gaze.

The storm had reached the height of its fury. The wind roared and moaned like a famished wild thing denied its kill. Occasionally a venturesome gust would find its way down the chimney to send thin puffs of smoke to linger in the air and fill the cabin with the sweet perfume of the burning alder.

"Give us a toast, John," begged Andy

The trapper raised his cup on high. "I'm the trapper of the mount'n top, A ring-tail-shooter an' a dead-eye shot.

I'm wild, I'm woolly an' full o' fleas, I've never bin' carried below the knees.

I live on the fruit o' the prickly pear,

An' I play in the brush with the grizzly bear."

"Here's hopin' ya'll never see the back o' yer neck," he added. Then placing the cup to his lips he drained the contents with one great gulp. John's jaws were wall-digit toothless, and as the fiery liquor scorched his throat his leathery cheeks folded and unfolded like the pleats of an accordion.

"Wow!" he yelped, "she's sure got a kick."

The humorous toast and the trapper's facial contortions sent Andy into paroxysms of laughter.

"Strike me blind!" he gasped, as he held his sides. "I never——" His eyes rested again on the trapper's convulsed features. Speech failed him and he sank writhing to a chair.

When finally they climbed the ladder to their bunks the rain had ceased and a brilliant moon flooded the world with a white light.

Donald awakened as the first grey streaks of dawn brightened the dusty windows of the loft. The air suddenly filled with the sweet song of birds. Wild-fowl quacked and splashed in the waters of the lake. The aroma of coffee and frying bacon and the pungent odour of wood smoke was wafted strongly from below.

Suddenly the trapper's shaggy head protruded through the opening at the top of the ladder. "Get ove' o' the hay an' shed yer shins on yer" he bounded.

"Now, let's get busy," said Colin, when they had finished the al-fresco meal. "I'm the contractor.

"Well, I'm not so durned bad, after all," philosophized Andy.

"Good!" the third put in. "Now I'm ready to start."

"Now, then," Colin began, "you, Andy, are to——"

"Mr. Hiller," began Andy, "what's a——"

"Mr. Hiller! Hell! My name's John," exploded the trapper.

"What?"

"Mushrat," repeated their host, turning to the astonished Australian. "Did ye ever eat any?"

He was known under several nicknames: "Trapper" John, "Coffee" John, and "Mahogany" John. "Coffee" John for the excellence of his brew of that beverage, and of which he drank enormous quantities. His call to meals: "Some and throw your feet under the mahogany," supplied the reason for the cognomen of "Mahogany" John.

With the assistance of their host they assembled the tired horses and turned them in the pasture, where they rolled luxuriously on their backs for a moment, and then started finishing hungrily on the rich clover.

A wind shook the tree-tops and turned the surface of the lake dark green with ripples. High in the steaming dark clouds scudded swiftly by.

"Get here just in time," said the old trapper as he and Donald sat down. "It's a goin' to rain. Come inside."

John had served as cook in a cowboy camp in Texas. He therefore looked an opportunity to make ostentatious display of his skill in the culinary art.

"Just set my bread this mornin', he explained, "so I'll her' 'er make a bunnock."

Taking a tin pan from the shelf he threw it the full length of the room to the table. He turned to the cooking utensils about like a practised juggler. Soon the bannock swelled to the rim of the frying-pan, the edges showing brown and crisp. He lifted the heavy dish from the stove, and with a dexterous twist of his wrist threw the bannock to the ceiling and caught it neatly in the centre of the pan as it came down. He dipped a half dozen trout in the yolk of eggs, rolled them in flour, then tossed them with apparent carelessness, but with deadly aim, one at a time, to the steaking pan. From a shelf he took two giant jars and turned their contents into an earthenware dish on the stove. Immediately the room was filled with an aroma that caused the newcomers to sniff hungrily.

"Mr. Hiller," began Andy, "what's——"

"Mr. Hiller! Hell! My name's John," exploded the trapper.

"I was goin' to ask you what kind of meat that is that simells so good," grinned Andy.

When Work Was Work

Story Of the Days Before the Advent Of the Eight Hour System

That old story about the city man who spent a week-end on the farmer with whom he had engaged to work through a harvest might be applied to many a city man's visit to the Canada, when a good farmhand was judged by the amount of sweat he could shed from his body. The city chap set his alarm clock for three and sallied forth shortly after that hour in black clothes and a genuine that he would delight in a player. On arriving, a farmer of the farm he was visiting would show him a brimming pail of cold water and hold the bail of a dipper over it. Forth would come a long arm of ground and remaining, the farmer, with a well-used [illegible] remarked, "Where have you been to hell day?"

But that was before the eight-hour day became general and a number of farmers were quite satisfied with their lot, while not a few, because of [illegible] declared farming as the ideal occupation for the man who loved nature in all her aspects. Free Press

It is a particularly fine specimen and if it proves to be of real white elephant—will be installed with elaborate ceremonies at the capital.

Characteristic Of Japan

Everything About Country and People Is Small But Not Weak

Perhaps the first impression on landing in Japan is the littleness of everything. The little flimsy houses, the little flimsy shops, the small men, the toy-like women, the tiny children, as numerous and like unto each other as the sands on the shore—these are everywhere. But although every small of stature the Japanese men are often very powerfully built, and many of them suggest great strength.

Littleness—with which is associated the most delicate detail and elaborate finish—is the mark also of the modern Japanese art. In the curio-fity shops whatever was massive or largely shape was the work of days. The Royal Palaces at Kyoto are small, the rooms, exquisite as they are, with perfect joinery and accurate painting, being seldom more than a few feet square with very low ceilings.

Motorists Approaching From Side Roads Should Remember This

Motorists who know that Provincial Highways are through streets depend upon others obeying the law, and when they note a car approaching from a side street they naturally expect it to come to a stop, and so they act accordingly. When a car doesn't stop accidents are sometimes narrowly averted. The other instances they actually occur.

It is well to remember that all provincial highways are through streets.

The person who enters such a highway does so at his own risk, and if an accident is caused, that person is entirely to blame. The only way to approach a Provincial Highway is to come to a full stop, to be sure that there is a reasonable opportunity to enter without causing danger to traffic on the road. This is the law, and it must be obeyed

Agril. Society Has Big Balance

The financial statement submitted at the annual meeting of the Vermilion agricultural society on Saturday, Nov. 17th, by the secretary treasurer, W. E Sutton, showed a cash balance on hand of $2,329.95, the largest in the history of the society, reflecting great by on the splendid manner in which its affairs were conducted during the past year. The statement covering the assets and liabilities showed a surplus of $9,529.56. In this statement the value of the land is not taken into consideration. Another pleasing announcement made at the meeting was that the grand stand had been fully paid for and that after this year the receipts from this source would go towards the general revenue of the society. The stand was erected three years ago through public spirited members of the society subscribing the amount required for its construction and which moneys were refunded out of the proceeds of the receipts. President Telford reviewed the work of the year and paid gracious compliments to the directors that had so well supported the fair with their time and means. He also complimented the secretary-treasurer on his work which he stated was far more onerous than the average member appreciated.

The officers elected for the year were as follows: Hon. Pres., Hon. R.O Reid. President, Wm. Telford; 1st Vice-President, A W. Ebbett; 2nd Vice President, Wm Howley; Directors, J.C Tucker, James Barr, W. H Duncan, W H Green, H. A. Searle, J. R Cree, J. P. Andrews, A. C. Herbert, W. F. Daley, J. H. Bell, Geo. Mann, A Campbell, J. W. G Morrison, L. Robinson, W D Williams and N. McNichol. At a meeting of the board of directors held subsequently, W. E Sutton was re-elected secretary treasurer.

The president and secretary were appointed delegates to the Western Canada Fairs' Association, and the vice-president and secretary to the Alberta Fairs' Association.

Mr. and Mrs. Brown were host and hostess to the members of St. Saviour's Dramatic Society at an informal party last Tuesday evening. During the course of the evening Miss Grace Bury presented Mr "Freddy" Thorpe-Tracey in quaintly lasting fur Petasetitis, with a leather bill fold, on behalf of the cast. Refreshments were served and a very pleasant evening was spent

Those taking part in the musical numbers were Captain and Mrs Edwards, and the Rev. and Mrs Smith Miss Lois Bullis gave a humorous reading and Evelyn Johnson contributed a piano duet and a solo. FIGLEY — $2000

A quiet wedding ceremony was solemnized at the United Church manse on Monday, November 26th at 3 o' clock when Susan Emily Alberta, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Good of Vermilion district, was united in marriage to Mr. Ernest Fowler, also of Vermilion. The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, was daintily attired in a frock of rosevale flat silk crepe with hat in similar shade.

The happy couple left for a short motor trip to Edmonton, after which they will reside in Vermilion.

SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE NOTES

The School has re-opened this term for the busiest winter in its history. Students in attendance now total 174, by far the largest class ever assembled here. The past month has been taken up largely with initiating the freshmen, the election of committees to serve on the various clubs and generally getting settled into the new quarters. Now that the affairs of the school are getting back to normal the students are settling down and becoming acquainted in the new routine.

Representatives from each group in the student body have been elected to serve on the various committees; the committees are: Athletic, Gymnasium, Social, Literary and Radio. The Radio committee is responsible for the publication of "The Radio," the weekly newspaper of the students; the other committees are self-explanatory. Further, a Glee Club has but recently come into existence and a school orchestra is well supported by a number of talented students. These clubs promise to provide many entertaining hours during the winter.

The first meeting of the Literary Society took place on Friday, Nov. 9, and was enthusiastically supported by the student body. A feature worthy of special mention was the quality of the musical program presented. A violin solo by Mr. Swindlehurst held the audience breathless by its very excellence and brought down thunderous applause on its execution

General Assembly was called last Friday morning for the purpose of discussing school colors. The general opinion was that the old colors, red and white, were unsatisfactory and if possible a more satisfactory combination should be selected. After considerable discussion, Black, Green and Gold were finally chosen as the future colors of the V. S. A.

Last Thursday the second year boys spent a very enjoyable and instructive afternoon at the farm of Cross Bros., northeast of town. Cross Bros very kindly placed their Belgian horses at the disposal of the students for judging purposes. The trip was made by truck and car

The High School met the V. S. A. in a game of volley ball last Friday evening, and unfortunately received a very severe trimming. The first two games were very one-sided, but the excitement at the third made up for the lack of it in the previous two. The final score was 3 games to 0 in favor of V S A. The remainder of the evening was spent in dancing, also rather a very enjoyable time was had

A number of students have declared their willingness to enter the Provincial Contest, soon to be held throughout the province. Although they have entered largely in the spirit of fun, who can tell what the result may be?

The date for the official opening dance has been set for December 7th. It is understood that invitations have been sent out to a large number of townspeople and also to friends of the students

W.C.T.U. Officer Describes Boys, Girls and Men All Dead Drunk

BOSTON, Mass., Nov. 22. — Miss Rosamond Dall, secretary of the Interracial W. C. T. U., in an automobile trip here yesterday, declared that she considered the Canadian government's [illegible] and [illegible] rum running [illegible] dangerous to the [illegible] of the United States.

"We said conditions at vice and Detroit were horrible among young men and women, but in Alberta, and what I think were lying about it, the boys and girls of Alberta are all dead drunk and there was no hope for them.

Reporting the case of the old days with the swinging bar room doors, and the better part of the people taking no notice of the terrible, horrible conditions"

Vermilion got a nice boost recently from a couple of well known steam ranchers who have been sojourning in our town for some two months past and who have also worked in many other towns as the nature of their work dictates. These men were loud in their praise of Vermilion claiming that they had so yet been in any place where so much activity and co-operation existed as in Alberta, and said that where so much local talent is differently and [illegible] was to be found

Modern Aladdin's Lamps

The average man and woman realizes that the world is making progress at an ever accelerated pace. In the short space of a few brief years great improvements and more wonderful inventions are made to add to the comfort and pleasure of life than were recorded in many centuries of the past. There can be few, where people received news of any great innovation with extreme scepticism, and ridiculed the idea of such things being possible. Today the world is prepared to accept almost anything as possible.

However it is the occurrence of some anniversary which actually forces upon us a realization of just how great and how rapid is the progress being made by the human race. Such an anniversary came last October when recognition was paid to Thomas A. Edison in commemoration of the golden jubilee of what is generally accepted as having the greatest of his many great inventions, the incandescent electric lamp.

The fame of Aladdin and his wonderful lamp has delighted readers, youthful and adult, for many generations, but the accomplishments of man in the world of electricity following Edison's invention of his marvellous lamp, and the series of amazing inventions since then, and all more or less directly connected with Edison's discovery, in many respects surpass the most vivid imaginings of the Arabian Nights tales.

In this age of electricity, with our streets, homes and places of business lighted by the invisible current, our machinery operated by it, our homes heated by it, with every conceivable household device dependent upon it, it is hard to realize that to flash our news and messages around the world, and because of which we are enabled to talk under the ocean and through the air, it becomes well-nigh impossible to imagine a world lighted by the old grimy lamp and tallow candle. Yet it is only fifty years since the world was blissfully in comparative darkness.

Had Edison the wizard of Menlo Park, not succeeded in his effort to produce the incandescent lamp, would the world today enjoy all the pleasure and profit of the radio, which depends entirely upon the use of the vacuum tube? Would the health giving rays of the quartz lamp be conferring benefits upon stricken humanity. No. To Thomas A. Edison the world is forever debtor for that great contribution to human progress and the world's wealth.

Fifty years! Not equal to the average span of a man's life. Yet Edison within that space of time has given us not only the incandescent lamp and all that has followed that invention, but in his bringing to us the means of capturing the human voice upon a cylinder of wax, thus giving us the gramaphone. It is thanks to Edison that we are able to produce pictures in which people move as they do in real life, and that is by his ever friendly affecting the life and thought of the world. And now we have the talking movies, the result of a combination of two of Edison's original inventions.

Within an even shorter space of time the automobile has not only been brought to its present state of efficiency and power, but it has been adopted all over the world, completely revolutionizing our manner of living and our mode of travel and enormously broadening our knowledge of the world in which we live. Within the short space of a decade we have witnessed the aeroplane take its place as an accepted instrument in our modern life, and even on these Western prairies it is now a daily commonplace to witness these new messengers winging their speedy way from city to city carrying passengers mail and express.

Science and invention is thus conferring upon this generation new wonders and new facilities of power, greater opportunities for pleasure and profit, or, if used greater possibilities for catastrophe. With all the powers now being placed so rapidly under his control, man must continue to mount higher in intelligence and in all those moral attributes which alone will make him fully capable of rightly using the great possessions entrusted to him, and the number and variety of which increases almost hourly For it must be remembered that in the final analysis the use or abuse, the deriving of good or the suffering of evil, arising out of these wonderful scientific achievements depends upon man himself and the attitude he takes towards life and all its realities and possibilities.

The Only Alternative

After walking out with Joan for some months Sandy ventured to propose to her, and was accepted. Questioned by his prospective mother-in-law whether he was in a position to keep a wife, Sandy confidently replied in the affirmative, placing the matter beyond all doubt by volunteering this information "There's hardly a week in but what I leave some o' me pay-stitch in fact, if I dinna get a wife the state I mustn get anither pig."

Oak Tree From Georgia Planted On McGill College Campus

During Armistice Day a two-year old oak tree was planted on the McGill campus, at Montreal, in memory of Col. John McCrae, author of "In Flanders' Fields." The tree was sent by the State Teachers College, of the University of Georgia, on whose campus a memorial grove takes place in the same hour. It is noteworthy that the best known and most beautiful poem, inspired by the Great War, should have been written by a Canadian, and the action of the Georgia College is also a fitting gesture which will be much appreciated on this side of the border.

RHEUMATIC VICTIMS

Can Find Relief Through Building Up the Blood

Pain is the symptom of rheumatism that every sufferer recognizes and he generally attributes the trouble to cold, damp, or changeable weather. But doctors know that this blood is a material characteristic of the trouble. Trying to cure rheumatism while the blood remains impure and sour, is an impossible task because there is nothing to build on. Medicines like Dr Williams' Pink Pills that enrich the blood and free it from poisonous impurities are the logical rheumatism from the system. So long as the blood is maintained in a healthy condition the trouble will not return. This is a fact which has been proved in hundreds of cases, here is one:—Mrs. Jos. Hogan, R.R. 1, Albany, P.E.I., says:—"For some years I was a great sufferer from rheumatism and although I tried a great many remedies I did not get any permanent relief until after I took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. The trouble began in the muscles of the shoulders, and at times was so bad that my right arm was almost useless. Of course I suffered much pain and general discomfort, and my condition was directed to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through the recommendation of our newspaper, and I decided to try them. I got the pills and followed to directions with the result that the rheumatism left me, and I have never had a twinge of it since. If you needs the eye of any rheumatic sufferer try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills at once."

You can get these pills from any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Our Great Agricultural Wealth

Canada the Best Country In the World For Farming

"I can say without any hesitation, that there is no better country in the world for farming at the present time. It has greater possibilities, and there is more confidence that there is greater stability and prosperity than can be found in any other country in the world," declared Frank Dicksee in charge of the Dominion Experimental Farm at Ottawa, addressing the Young Men's Canada Club at Montreal. Dr. Archibald said the crops in Canada are worth $1,167,000,000 of this amount he equated to the fisheries mines and forests all put together; dairy produce reached $300,000,000 and this added to the total of the fisheries and mines; wheat exports $422,000,000, or a third of the total. Canada has more land than there were over 225,000,000 acres capable of producing, but not occupied. To-day there were 50,000,000 acres under agricultural wealth at $7,820,000,000, and there at least $3,900,000,000 of capital was invested in agriculture.

Aerial photography for map making purposes by the Government flyers has been practically completed for the year according to Wing Commander J. L. Gordon, D.C.A.F. Eight detachments of two planes each have been operating throughout the Dominion for several months. They are now all operating at St. Donat, Quebec, have already returned to Ottawa, while the remainder are expected within the next few weeks. Gypsum Products

Probably the most important developments in the gypsum industry in Canada have taken place in the products manufactured from gypsum. A number of years ago a small proportion of the gypsum mined in Canada was calcined in this country. In 1927 approximately 192 000 tons were calcined and made into wall plaster, gypsum wall board, gypsum blocks, and insulating material.

More than 1,000,000 bags of coffee will be raised in Venezuela this year.

Effect Of Sunlight On Dairy Products

Particularly Detrimental On Milk, Cream and Butter, Says Authority

Dr. E. G. Good, Chief of the Division of Dairy Research of the Federal Department of Agriculture, states that it is a well established scientific fact that direct sunlight has a detrimental effect on the flavor of practically all dairy products and especially on milk, cream and butter.

This statement was given by Dr. Hood when questioned regarding the practice of housewives using window-sills as refrigerators during the autumn season when they have practically taking ice. From the standpoint of keeping the products cool, the window-sill answers the purpose, but it has been found that sunlight has direct sunlight can reach it, dairy products should never be kept there.

Milk, cream and butter when exposed to direct sunlight quickly develop abnormal flavors which are generally of a most disagreeable nature. This tallowy flavor is caused by the action of sunlight on butterfat. It has been known for a long time to a very noticeable degree after an hour or so. In the case of butter, the fat turns to a very light or white color, and the same change takes place in the fat in milk or cream when it is exposed to sunlight.

Dr. Hood states that if consumers find that milk or cream has become tainted with this flavor, keeping it for twenty-four hours, they should not blame the dairy by whom they are supplied, if the product has simply been kept in a window exposed to the sun. This flavor can be prevented if milk and cream is protected from direct sunlight by wrapping the bottles in a piece of heavy brown paper or by placing them in a wooden box made for the purpose, when it is necessary to keep them outside. But a cool shaded corner in the cold storage of the cellar is always a safe place to keep dairy products at this time of the year. Reasonable temperatures are generally lower than those obtained in the average household refrigerator.

WILD WEST RELISH

3 dozen sweet cucumber pickles, sliced.
1 pound puffed raisins
1 teaspoon whole allspice
6 cakes sliced chocolate
2 cups brown sugar.
½ ounce celery seed
Vinegar to cover

Place all ingredients, except celery seed, in a porcelain lined kettle, cover with vinegar and cook one hour over a moderate flame. RED BEANS AND RICE

(A Famous Creole Combination)
1 pound red beans
1 teaspoon salt.
1 teaspoon butter.
½ pound bacon, minced.
¼ red pepper.
Boiled rice.

Soak the beans over night, or for at least six hours. Then simmer, for four hours or more in 3 full quarts of water. The beans will then be quite soft. Add the salt, butter, onion, red pepper, and continue the simmering process for two hours longer. Serve with boiled rice, and the combination is not only good but particularly well balanced. A pound of salt meat, cooked, is often substituted for the above seasoning, excluding the onion. The minced onion ordinarily disappears in the simmering and makes a delicious seasoning.

Need Standard Grain Crop

Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Minister of Agriculture, addressing the Canadian Club of Fort William, stressed the need of western farmers raising the standard of grain which they produce, and reducing the varieties of wheat from 30 or 40 now grown to three or four kinds, which should be regarded as standard and be the only kinds admitted to No. 1 grade.

South Africa Buying Certified Seed Potatoes

Varieties Sent From Canada Last Year Gave Good Results

Trade with South Africa in certified seed potatoes from Canada is being promoted—another tribute to the excellence of our spuds.

Last spring small quantities of Irish Cobbler, Green Mountain and Bovley variety) were shipped to South Africa from Eastern Canada. They arrived in Capetown in excellent condition and gave good results there.

The South African growers prefer Bovley as more suitable to their special requirements. This season they are testing, at their request, other varieties—small sized seed, of two to three ounces, from certified crops.

The British Columbia inspectors is obtaining for this purpose quantities of two to three ounce seed of the following varieties:—Up-to-date, Bir Walter, Raleigh, Burbank and Epicure. As there was no crop of certified potatoes in British Columbia this season Wisconsin Pride and Blue Triumph were substituted for the variety. It is hoped that South Africa from this British Columbia certified seed will be closely watched and may lead to the development of a worthwhile trade.

All-Red Air Route

Important Developments In Inter-Empire Communication Expected Soon

As all-red air route around the world is seen as a strong possibility in the near future by J. A. Wilson, controller of civil aviation, who recently returned from a sojourn of two months in the British Isles and Europe. "Enormous developments in inter-Empire communication may be expected within the next few years," Mr. Wilson said. "While efforts so far have been to some extent concentrated on flights to India and Africa, the eyes of British flyers are turning towards Canada." The R-100 and R-101 will shortly be ready for their trial trips, and in the early spring would be ready for trans-Atlantic trips to Montreal. Mr. Wilson viewed both of the enormous dirigibles and discussed the contemplated flights with air officials in England.

Certain morbid conditions must exist in the stomach and intestines to encourage worms, and they will exist as long as these morbid conditions permit them to. To be rid of them and remove the child suffering, use Miller's Worm Powders. They will correct the digestive irregularities by destroying the worms, conditions favorable to worms will disappear, and the child will have no more suffering from that cause.

And there's no after effect; doctors give Aspirin to children—even infants. Whenever there's pain, think of Aspirin. The genuine Aspirin has Bayer on the box and on every tablet. All druggists, with proven directions.

TO BROADEN BASE AND MAKE FOR BRITISH UNITY

Toronto.—Premier Mackenzie King declared in the address here that his administration entered the diplomatic field not only to secure new markets for Canada's natural products, but also because it believed that consultation and co-operation with British ambassadors abroad would serve to broaden the base and secure more formally the foundation upon which British Empire government rested, and make for British unity and its permanency, as well as world peace.

The prime minister was speaking at a banquet tendered him by the Toronto Board of Trade at which he summarized the reasons which led his administration to open legations abroad., It was a lengthy speech on "some recent developments in Canada's external relations," in which he touched upon the appointments which have been made at Washington and Paris, and told his audience that he "hoped there would be an exchange of ministers between Ottawa and Tokio, shortly.

"The symbol of British unity is to be found in the British Crown," premier King said in concluding his address. "The security of the Crown rests on a strong union of hearts upon the people's will.' Whatever may serve to broaden the base, and thereby to strengthen the stability of foundation upon which all government throughout the British Empire rests, is a thing for thankfulness and its permanency. It is making as well, I believe, for the peace of the world.

"It is in this belief, at least, that the present administration has sought at Washington, at Paris, and at Tokio, not only to assume responsibility for all that pertains to the immediate interests of Canada, but by consultation and co-operation with representatives with His Majesty's ambassadors at these capitals, to bring to bear as occasion may require the British Empire, a united opinion with respect to all matters that may be of mutual concern."

DOCTOR SCOTT'S CAR DAMAGED IN COLLISION

While returning from Marwayne on Friday evening, Dr. Scott was run into by Carl Johnson, a resident of Kitscoty. The doctor noticed the approaching car and gave it more and more of the road until he was practically in the ditch. This apparently did not satisfy the oncoming car and it crashed into the left front fender and headlight of Dr Scott's new Pontiac, also damaging the axle. The doctor was able to proceed home with his car after securing the name of the offender and the license number

TRUCK DRIVERS HAVE NARROW ESCAPE

The truck was badly damaged, but is fairly serviceable and can be driven to town without a tow. The accident was thought to have been caused by a broken radius rod

STEAM HEAT TURNED ON

Is First Community Heated Town In Western Canada

The steam for the Community Heating system, which has been in the process of installation for several months past, was turned into the mains at 1:30 p.m. yesterday to heat up the line, and at 5 p.m. the radiators in the post office were turned on and immediate results were achieved. The post office is the most distant building to receive heat from the plant. By 8 o'clock all other consumers who had their installations completed, had also turned on the steam, and it was not long before the unanimous opinion was that the community heating system, which had been looked upon askance by many people on account of its newness in the west, was going to be an unqualified success.

The steam pressure at the plant was five pounds, sufficiently exhausted steam, while the exhaust pipe isn't closed entirely. The steam pressure if needed can be increased.

Auto Skidded on Gravel and Turned Turtle; Occupants Cut

MITSCHITY, Dec. 3.— Another motor car accident took place Saturday afternoon on the road to Kitscoty with the narrow escape of two young ladies. The car driven by Miss Wadia, accompanied by Miss Seth Fleming was within eight miles of Kitscoty when the cars skidded on the grade and turned turtle into the ditch. The ladies received some nasty cuts about face and arms, and the sedan was badly smashed on top and in front. It had only been lately bought by Hons Wallace of Marwayne.

Tree Grows Around Telephone Rack

Rings Show It Was Attached Thirty Years Ago

When a cottonwood tree was cut down near New Denver, B.C. recently, it was found to contain in its heart a telephone line hook. The rings in the wood to which the glass insulator for the wire is attached The tree has grown completely around the telephone block, which was in perfect preservation. Counting of the tree rings disclosed that it had been attached to the tree thirty years ago.

This fact was borne out by O. Williamson, manager of the local telephone company, who recalls when the telephone wire was first installed, establishing communication between Silvertun and New Denver during the great mining boom days.

Canadian National Railways Design New Type Locomotive

Represents Revolutionary Advance in Motive Power Equipment and May Supersede Steam Engine

A new locomotive which represents a revolutionary departure from all present standards and practice and which may render the steam locomotive as extinct as the "dodo" has been placed in service by the Canadian National Railways. Representing a tremendous advance in the use of the oil-electric type of locomotive it forms a dominctive offering on the part of Canadian engineers towards the solution of the transportation problems of this continent. As the National System was the pioneer, three years ago in placing in service the first oil-electric car of 200 horse power rating its engineers have maintained leadership by the introduction of this locomotive, new in every factor and design for the passenger and freight service.

When the first oil-electric car was put into service by the Canadian National Railways, it established two world's records in rail transportation, by a continuous run from Montreal to Vancouver, a distance of 3,776 miles, in 87 hours, and by a continuous operation of the entire distance, this period, the longest non-stop run on rail history. The new oil-electric locomotive is considered to be capable of even greater performance.

The new locomotive is the further practical application of the use of fuel oil in railway transportation in which an oil engine is used to drive a motor for supplying electrical energy to the propulsion motors. Maximum speed and power obtained costs far below those of coal fired steam locomotives.

Simple To Operate

In appearance it resembles the electric type. The operation is simple, the engineman directing the propulsion by means of a controller similar to that used on an electrically driven tramcar. The controller and an airbrake valve give the driver complete control of the locomotive. For his guidance, a series of meters and gauges furnish a complete information regarding voltage, oil supply, and air pressure. The locomotive consists of two units which may be operated jointly or independently, if desired, and it is one unit which is now in service. When the second unit is completed and ready for service, the two will be coupled and will proceed in various cities, as that the public generally may have an opportunity of inspecting this new product of the enterprise of the Canadian National Railways.

The locomotive weighs 499,000 pounds when fully equipped, 460,000 pounds of which are carried on the driving wheels. Each unit consists essentially of an oil engine generator set mounted on the locomotive frame, boiler equipment for the steam heating of passenger coaches, four traction motors for operating the locomotive airbrake and other auxiliary equipment.

The power developed by the oil engine is converted into electrical energy by the generator, transmitted to the traction motors geared to the driving axles, where it is utilized to develop ng traction effort and speed. With the present gear ratio, which was laid out for high speed passenger service, the locomotive will develop a tractive effort of 100,000 pounds during the accelerating periods. This compares with a tractive effort of 65,000 pounds developed by the large set steam locomotive now in use on the lines of the company in Western Canada.

Carries Small Fuel

Each unit carries approximately 6,000 pounds of fuel oil, 11,000 pounds of boiler water, 3,000 pounds of engine jacket cooling water, 1,000 pounds of engine lubricating oil, and 2,000 pounds of sand. The supply of oil will be sufficient for operation of the oil engine and the oil-fired boiling boiler, operating under average conditions, for twelve hours. The supply of boiler water will be sufficient for heating a train of average length for periods of from six to twelve hours, depending upon outside temperature. The locomotive will handle the heaviest passenger train at a high schedule speed.

The power plant contained in the locomotive is sufficient to furnish energy for lighting a good-sized community while the heating apparatus, which will provide comfortable temperatures in the cars even in severe weather, could heat a large community.

The inspiration and the design of the locomotive originated with the motive power engineers of the Canadian National Railways. The oil engines were supplied by the William Swarbrecs Company, Limited, Glasgow The electrical generators, motors and auxiliary electrical equipment were supplied by the Canadian Westinghouse Company Limited, of Hamilton, Ont. The cabs and running gear were built and assembled on the frame by the Canadian Locomotive Company, at their works in Kingston, Ontario.

Two Stops Too Many

During a sham fight a regiment got lost in a thick mist, and it was late in the afternoon, after a long search, that the men arrived in a town 12 miles from the barracks.

The commanding officer halted the battalion in the square and said:—

"Men, I would like to push on to headquarters, but will only take those that volunteer. Who wish to stay here for tonight, two steps backward march." All moved except one. "Wat, Private Smith, I am proud to think that you are still willing for another 12 miles," said the C. O. "Twelve miles!" replied Smith, confidently, "I came into two stops back."

Calf-Feeding Competition

Thousand Calves To Be Distributed To Boys and Girls In Central Saskatchewan

A Mammoth Calf-feeding Competition has been organized by the Saskatoon Exhibition, the Board of Trade and livestock organizations, with the co-operation of the Federal and Provincial Government and Agricultural Societies. A thousand calves have been purchased from the famous Rose Ranch in Alberta, to be distributed to boys and girls in Central Saskatchewan in lots of five, three and singles. Prizes totalling $5,000 will be distributed at the end of a six months feeding contest: (a) for the greatest gain per head per day; (b) for quality and finish irrespective of gain; (c) for the best record of feeding. The calves are auction sale will be next June, and the competition is already interesting buyers from all the larger markets in the United States and Canada.

Fame Spreads To Mexico

Record Of B.C. Hen Attracts Attention Of Mexican Government

Even Mexico has heard the cackle of Hen No. 6, the world famous egg layer owned by the University of British Columbia, which shattered all records for production.

The international surveys of President Plutarcho Elias Calles, have been in Vancouver negotiating for the purchase of several hundred of the hen's No. 6 strain and they will be used as part of the foundation stock which President Calles is establishing on the presidential stock farm.

Now that Senor Calles is retiring from the presidency, he will devote all his time to his farming interests and his farm will be a sort of experimental station, with scores of farmers of Mexico will receive their guidance. There will be more than 6,000 birds located here.

LONG SLEEP MAKES BABY HAPPY AGAIN

"Our baby kept waking us several times a night, until we started giving him a little Castoria after his last nourishment. Now he sleeps all night soundly from the first night and I think his look and feel worlds better" Baby specialists endorse Fletcher's Castoria, and millions of mothers know how this purely-vegetable preparation regulates baby's baby babies and children, with colic, constipation, colds, diarrhea, etc. The Fletcher signature is always on the genuine Castoria. Avoid substitutes.

Sixteen submarine cables, linking up all parts of the world, are joined to the Azores, where the cable engineers have established the "Charing Cross of the Atlantic."

PAUL GOES TO ROME

Golden Text: "I am not ashamed of the gospel: for it is the power of God unto salvation to everyone that believeth."—Romans 1:16.

Lesson: Acts 27:1-28:31; Romans 1:9-15; Philippians 1:13-14.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 91:9-16.

Explanations and Comments

The End Of the Journey To Rome, verses 11,15.—Three months after the shipwreck off the island of Malta, when navigation began in the early spring, Paul and the rest of the company set sail in a ship from Alexandria called "The Twin Brothers" from the sign painted on its prow. They stopped for three days at Syracuse, on the island of Sicily, and for a day at Rhegium, on the Italian coast. Puteoli, the corn mart of Rome, on the Bay of Naples, was the destination of the ship. There a week was spent. The news of Paul's coming to Rome reached the Christians there, and two companies journeyed—one, the Appian Way to meet him, one coming as far as the Three Taverns, forty-three miles from Rome. Here, on the other to the Three Taverns, an inn ten miles from Rome. Their coming very rejoiced and encouraged Paul: he thanked God, and took courage.

"It was midway between a ship wreck and a prison; Paul has been in peril of his life, and he has come to greater peril. He had barely escaped the storm to fall into the hands of Caesar.

In this sad plight, a little group of Christians met him at Rome, having heard that Paul was coming, went out to meet him; and his heart lifted with hopefulness. Paul must have been thanked God and took courage. Thus it is that they who have lost almost everything, count up the gifts of God which still remain and are surprised to find them so many and so precious. They appreciate them the more highly for their fervent. Some people have as much to be thankful for that they are not very thankful for anything." — George Hodges.

Demand For Reward Wheat

Orders For Early Metering Variety Are Greater Than Can Be Filled

Inquiries for Reward wheat, one of the early maturing varieties which has been evolved by the cereal division of the experimental farms in the past few years, are coming in to Ottawa and already are greater than can be filled. Reports recently have been received that no seed supply of Reward will be available for distribution. This is not true. The supply of Reward is about 2,000 bushels and the 350 growers who were allowed to grow Reward will have a surplus of 2,000 bushels, making 15,000 bushels all told.

Counterfeit Money

Attempt Is Made in Winnipeg To Pass Spurious Bills

Winnipeg city police are attempting to locate what is believed to be an organized gang which is flooding the city with spurious money, mostly United States bills of $20 denomination.

Business men, merchants, banks, commercial firms and citizens are warned to scan money passing through their hands closely, as the counterfeit is almost perfect resemblance to the genuine article.

One $20 counterfeit bill is now in the hands of the authorities, while efforts are being made to procure others of the same type which are said to have been brought into the city in large numbers. This bill bears a picture of Grover Cleveland, former United States president, and a spurious signature of A. R. Mellon, secretary of the United States treasury.

Our Neighboring Planet

Investigations Reveal Fact That Mars Has Many Points Of Resemblance To the Earth

Recent investigations seem to have put beyond doubt the fact that Mars, notwithstanding important differences in volume, mass and distance from the sun, presents many points of resemblance to the earth. Its day is but forty minutes longer than ours; its axis is inclined to the plane of its orbit by very nearly the same amount; so that it enjoys the same succession of seasons as our world does. The Martian atmosphere, though rarer than ours, may not be so dissimilar as at one time seemed probable, for it contains oxygen and water-vapor, and the temperature is not very much lower than the temperature of our own world. That there is vegetation on Mars is hardly questionable; that animal life exists is probable; and it is not beyond the bounds of possibility that animal life has culminated in a race of intelligent beings who are, as Lowell believed, "in advance of us in the battle in the journey of life."—Dr. Hector MacPherson, F.R.A.S., in the Contemporary Review.

Santa Claus On the Way

Will Use Aeroplane To Do Some Of the Work This Year

Even Santa Claus has at last yielded to the demands of modernity and is going to use aeroplane to do some of his work this year. Whether the jolly old gentleman has decided to abandon his time honored sleigh and gallant reindeer for the more up-to-date method of travel because of the uncertainty of snowfall, we do not know, but it is still an undecided question. The fact is the aeroplane has evidently caught Santa's fancy and he is going to do a great deal of his work in Western Canada this year on the wing, so to speak. The Canadian Air Board has just announced that an air mail service will commence on December 15th, and continue until December 30th, between Winnipeg, Regina, Calgary, Edmonton and Saskatoon.

It is expected that thousands of Christmas letters will be carried by this new air mail service, which is being introduced at a time when the facilities of the post office are taxed to the utmost and the popular demand is for more speed in the conveyance of mails.

Man Not a Machine

A man is not entirely a machine. At some given moment, for no explainable reason, his brain may not function normally. It is a thing that happens to all of us. The difference is that in the case of a man engaged on ordinary work, the consequences may have only the slightest circumsces. With an engine-driver, a signalman, or some other railway servant, the consequences may be terrible.

Power All-Metal Planes

The Air Ministry has decided that in future all Royal Air Force planes will be built of metal instead of wood. A new revolutionary method of constructing planes' wings has been discovered as the result of experiments with a monster 150-foot wing spread monoplane "infexible" at Croydon airdrome, it has been learned. The plane will carry ten tons of bombs.

Level Crossing Protection

Federal Government To Appropriate Large Sum For This Purpose During Next Ten Years

Appropriations totalling $2,000,000 for level crossing improvements will be made by the federal government during the next 10 years, Hon. C. A. Dunning, minister of railways, announced. The first instalment of $200,000 will be provided at the forthcoming session of parliament.

Limitations which restricted the application of the grade crossing fund were removed at the last session, Mr. Dunning pointed out, and the further sum of $1,000,984.74 has been made available. This represents the unspent balance from the $4,000,000 contributed by the government.

So far in 1928, railroads and municipalities have co-operated so much in level crossing protection that they did in the whole of the preceding 20 years, Dunning declared. The railroads have spent $3,744,000, as compared with $3,230,000 for the 20-year period ending December 31, last. The municipalities contributed $2,082,000 as compared with $1,000,000 for the 20 years. The latter figure includes $981,000 spent by the provincial governments.

Grade crossing assisted from the fund this year number 102, bringing the total to 1,320 since 1906. It is estimated that there are 30,102 crossings in Canada, of which 25,591 are rural and 4,511 urban.

Crossing fatalities during the first nine months of this year were 343 despite redoubled efforts to cope with the situation, a total decrease of 1927 the figure was 310.

The fund first became available on April 1, 1908, and is under the administration of the Dominion railway board. The board has power to make orders for the protection of the public at railway crossings and to apportion the cost as between the railway and the municipality interested.

The maximum payment from the fund has been raised from $25,000 to $100,000 for each crossing on a 40 per cent. basis.

Eckener Changed His Mind

Graf Zeppelin's Captain Was Greatly Opposed To Airships

According to the remarks of an interesting feature, Eckener, who piloted the Graf Zeppelin across the Atlantic, has not always had such abandoning faith in airships.

For a long time, on the contrary, he was their severest critic. But one day a gentleman, standing behind him on Count Zeppelin, visited Eckener where he was living in a small place on the Baltic, and asked him why he was opposed to lighter-than-air craft. "Come with me to Friedrichshafen," he said, "see for yourself and then perhaps you will change your mind." Eckener went—and from that moment became a staunch supporter of the Zeppelin idea.

Nothing Wrong With Canada

There is nothing wrong with Canada—with her people, her climate her resources. She is on the right track, and going strong. It is worthy of note that among her most important exports—those of grain—the crop of last year was a large amount of electrical machinery to be used in her power developments and other manufacturing purposes. She has enormous resources in water power—the cheapest in the world.

Profits Great Index Of American Settlers

Many Plan Emigration To Canada Next Year Says Colonization Agent

That the year 1929 will witness the greatest influx of American settlers into Western Canada that has ever been known in the history of the prairie provinces is the prediction of John Ryan, St. Paul, Minn., travelling immigration agent for the Canadian Pacific Railway.

During the past year Mr. Ryan, brought over 75 families into Saskatchewan from the Dakotas, Iowa, Ohio and Minnesota. This number exceeds that of any year and constitutes a record for American farmer emigrants to this province. The percentage of emigration from the United States to Canada during the coming year are exceptionally encouraging, Mr. Ryan, who says that the American farmer is being forced north into this country by the soaring prices and high taxation of his own States.

According to Mr. Ryan, it is because the American farmer is not the immigrant farmer to grow the hard wheat that is grown in this country, for the wheat produced in Canada this year is bound to be a great inducement to the farmer, emigrating from the United States, just like the fact that the farmers in the United States have never been able to operate their wheat pool on the successful as the Canadian farmers.

"There are many farming families in the central and northwestern portions of the United States who are contemplating emigration to Canada and I confer with but they wish to assess a certain amount of capital before they move. Many farmers in Canada last summer makes the best kind of settler for Western Canada, said Mr. Ryan when speaking on the subject.

Good Profit Can Be Made At All Seasons Of the Year

With a good milking herd and a liberal supply of forage and other feeds a good profit can be made in the production of milk at all seasons of the year. During the week of 1927 in which kept by the superintendent of the Lacombe, Alberta, Experimental Station, of the weekly production and feed cost of the milk produced from a herd running from eight to thirteen head. During most of the period the thirteen cows were milking.

The Report of the Station, published by Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, contains an interesting table showing the cost of feed to produce 100 pounds of milk varying from as low as 65 cents to $1.30. From about the end of April to the first week in October the cost was less than one dollar a hundred. Without counting other costs than feed the profit from the herd in milk ran as high as $63 in seven days in the month of June, the lowest profit for the year was for the week ending January 15, when it amounted to $14.94 from the eight cows then giving milk.

The feeds were valued at 1¼ cents per pound for meal mixture, $1 per ton for roughage; $15 per ton for hay; $8 per ton for oil green feed, and $2 a month per cow for pasture. The meal was mixed and fed in the proportion of 400 pounds rolled oats, 200 pounds bran, and 200 pounds of cake meal. The meal was fed on the basis of one pound of the mixture to every 3½ pounds of milk produced.

Latest Thing in Warfare

Men and Machine Gun Drop By Parachute From Plane

A machine gun crew of six men dropping from the sky and picking up a machine gun, also dropped by parachute from a plane high in the air, and then going into action, is the latest thing in warfare. It was demonstrated to Major-General Bumerall, chief of staff, on a recent visit to the air corps primary flying school at Brooks Field, Texas.

While General Summerall and the officers accompanying him were inspecting the field, a bombing plane was soaring above them. Suddenly six men were seen to leave the plane and descend with parachutes. A few seconds later another parachute came over the side of the bomber, and a machine gun floated majestically downward.

The machine gun crew quickly set up their weapon and within three minutes were blasting away at an imaginary enemy. The maneuver was staged to demonstrate one of the many elements of surprise made possible by the airplane, and the possibility of landing ground troops quickly from planes.

Roses In Alberta

Several Varieties May Be Grown Quite Successfully

A large number of many varieties of roses are grown successfully at the Lacombe, Alberta, Experimental Station. The varieties include Hybrid Perpetuals, Hybrid Teas, Climbers, Polyanthas, and the Rugosas. The report of the superintendent for 1927, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, gives in tabular form the variety name, type and description of each kind. The varieties are divided into four groups according to hardiness Varieties of the first degree of hardiness include the Rugosas, which do not require covering during the winter Those of the second degree of hardiness include the Persian Yellow, Harrison Yellow, Grootendorst in two varieties, and Austrian Copper They are sufficiently hardy to come through some winters without protection, These of the third degree of hardiness include the Hybrid Perpetuals and Polyanthas The more tender sorts, including a number of Hybrid Teas, the report states, are sometimes killed even when well protected, but often come through in good condition.

Experience has taught that the best winter protection for roses in Central Alberta is to bury the bush in a trench. The branches are tied together, bent over and held in place by a wooden trough which holds the bush in place and prevents it from coming directly in contact with the soil. The soil removed from the trench is used to cover the trough and the bush. When covered in this way, the bushes are enclosed in an air space, and as a result do not coming in direct contact with the moist soil and are protect mildew as when protected in some other ways.

Another Liner to Visit Lonely Tristan da Cunha

Loneliness has always been the lot of peoples in isolated communities but it is doubtful whether any place in the Western Hemisphere can compare with the little island of Tristan da Cunha, set practically a straight line from Buenos Aires, is all the regular route of ocean-going vessels, and is rarely visited except by an occasional cruising liner Last year the Empress of France, on her South American-Africa cruise touched at Tristan, and landed supplies and trinkets as gifts from the passengers and King George and Queen Mary of England, to the 150 inhabitants and in 1929, the new Canadian Pacific S.S. "Duchess of Atholl," after having cruised among the West indies and down the Eastern coast of South America, will visit Tristan for a few hours to bring cheer, mail and supplies to the islanders, then steam away to continue her South American-African cruise, which leaves New York, January 22nd 1929 for a voyage of 101 days.

Tristan da Cunha was named after a Portuguese admiral, who discovered in in 1506 Formal possession in the name of their Britain was taken by troops from the transport "Fal-

Different Silages For Dairy Cows

Substitute For Sunflower Silage In Mixture Of Oats, Peas and Vetches

In northern sections where corn for silage can not be grown successfully either of two crops may be used as a substitute. Silage from a mixture of oats, peas, and vetches, seems to give results almost equal to sunflower silage for feeding dairy cows. These two crops were compared by the Dominion Experimental Station for the New Ontario, at Kapuskasing. The superintendent in his report for the year 1927, published by the Department of Agriculture, Ottawa, states that the experiment was started to determine the relative value of the two silages for milk production. Ten milking cows were selected which were in much stage of lactation that each would continue milking throughout the following The cows under sorts, including a number of Hybrid Teas, the report states, are sometimes killed even when well protected, but often come through in good condition.

Experience has taught that the best winter protection for roses in Central Alberta is to bury the bush in a trench. The branches are tied together, bent over and held in place by a wooden trough which holds the bush in place and prevents it from coming directly in contact with the soil. Winter Egg Production

Value Of Beef Scrap and Buttermilk For Poultry Is Compared

In the feeding of poultry at the Lacombe, Alberta, Experimental Station, buttermilk and beef scrap were compared as a source of animal protein for winter egg production. Pens of white Wyandotte pullets were used in the experiment, which lasted from the beginning of November until the end of the following April. Except for buttermilk being to one lot and beef scrap to the other, the ration was the same with the different pens. At the end of the experiment it was found the pens given beef scrap produced slightly better results than those receiving buttermilk from the standpoint of egg production. The cost per day of eggs produced was 1.6 cents per dozen in favour of the beef scrap

The report of the superintendent of this station, published by the Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, gives the result of many other experiments in the feeding of poultry and in the other investigations and activities being carried on at the Central Alberta Station.

School Board Held Regular Meeting

At the regular monthly meeting of the school board held this week it was decided to advertise for a fourth teacher — duties to commence the first of the year. This is due to the fact that it is proposed to have Mr. Tupper devote his main time to the science and physics work. The new laboratory room is to be fitted up for individual experiments, thus throwing the stationary more on their own resources than under the present system. The board expect to move into the new building before the end of the year. The board also decided not to hold Christmas treat in the schools this year. They took the view that with so many other entertainments and "treat" at this season it would be superfluous for the board to have one, and again these have been found to interfere with the general work of the school.

No 1 hard, that was what struck Vermilion Saturday night when the mercury dropped mighty quick away down to 24 below zero. The change from 16 degrees above made everybody feel a bit chilly—but then it is such a bracing, snappy and invigorating air that you don't really feel it."

Hockey League Has Opened

The first game of this towns league was played last night when the Vegreville team played here and defeated Lloydminster team. The result of the game is given in another column and the prospects for the season is also to be found in this issue—cut it out and keep track of the games. The first game in which the Vermilion boys trot their stuff is not for Lloydminster on this Friday night, while we don't see a hockey match until a week from Friday, the reason for the late date being the Chautauqua the first four days of the week. Lloydminster provides the opposition here for the opener.

Cronie Burns is back on his old job managing the Vermilion outfit this season and his choice is a popular one with both players and fans. The personnel of the team is as yet undecided; several players who were not on the roster last year will probably line up this season. Jack Mackenzie looks good for a defense bitth while Grant Rodgers will probably also get a bit of action; Oscar Hansen, a newcomer to town and as nifty a hockey player as ever struck the burg, will hold down a forward line place. Oscar, in company with four of his brothers, was on the team chosen to represent the United States at the Olympics, as they were attending college there; at the last minute the U.S Olympic committee decided the team was not representative enough as all the Hansen brothers hailed from Canmore, Alberta. The remainder of the Benders are all well known to Vermilion fans.

EDITOR, The Standard:—

The proposal of the town council to place a license fee of $100.00 on auto owners seems to me not to be quite right. If the council wants to create a monopoly or force people to drink the canned or pasteurized variety then they are going the correct way about it. I don't think, however, they considered well what they proposed to do. If they want to carry out in spirt these promises, then a fee of $1.00 would be just as effective. I am in favor of the town looking after these places, but I am certainly opposed to their making the license charge $100.00 That is going to put one or two of our best vendors out of business at once.

THE WEATHER

The first snow of the season fell on Friday night and Saturday morning, and while averaging under an inch in depth, had the effect of making wintry looking country. Friday evening was extremely mild, the mercury just turning into snow during the night and bringing with it lower temperatures. Light snow flurries were the order of the day on Saturday—a colder weather leading up to the below zero temperatures of all Sunday. Sunday night the temperature dropped to a low point of 37 below zero, while the warmest registered on Monday was 10 below Tuesday the cold eased somewhat, the mercury rising well above the zero mark, as it continued its rise on Wednesday, when a return to the seventies into fall weather was made. The thermometer registering above the freezing point the greater part of teh day. Milder weather is forecast for Saskatchewan and Alberta while Manitoba is doom ed to a little more winter before it's break comes.

Province Has Good Surplus for 1927

A surplus of $212,763 for the fiscal year ending March 31, 1928, is shown in the statement issued during the past week by Hon. R. G. Reid, Provincial Treasurer. The revenue of the Province for the fiscal period of 15 months was $18,140,895 while expenditures were $17,878,132.05. Substantial gains were made during the year in the volume of business handled by several departments of the government. Notable among these are the automobile licenses and gasoline tax. An estimate of the surplus for the period had been placed at $16,880 and the figures actually reached are thus quit in excess of expectations.

ISLAY ITEMS

The skating rink is flooded and the young people are enjoying very good skating, although it will be better later on.

Chas. Hannah has charge of the curling rink and is beginning to flood it. He expects to have it ready when the new lighting system comes in.

W. L. Rembach has just gone home from hospital where he had his tonsils removed.

Mr. Harry Gordon had the front end of his new "Chev" pretty badly battered. He was going down hill four miles west of town when his car skidded and ran into the gravel rail at the side of the grade. The right fender and lamp were broken and the radiator in a complete wreck.

Quite a number of accidents have taken place on the slippery grades. Dr. Scott of Vermilion had his car badly damaged when he was run into by Carl Johnson, a mile east of town. A truck collided with a car coming into town near the school, but much damage was done. On Sunday last two cars came into town in two bad heads dressed, broken from skidding over a grade near Holyrood school.

Tom Copeland, a Scotch piper and entertainer, is booked for a program at Islay Hall on Dec. 12th.

Some Side Lights On The Immigration Question As Given By Hon. Chas. Dunning

The following is an extract from a speech delivered by Hon. Chas. Dunning to the Canada Club in London:

"If you ask me what the result of the harvester experiment from Great Britain will be, I say that it will be exactly the same kind of result that has followed the harvester excursions from Eastern Canada. A great many of the men—I do not know how many, maybe half, maybe less than half—will remain. A very considerable proportion of the balance, judging from my experience, will return. After all, the migration theorists—and their name is legion —bear their theories on the idea of a man finding it easy to get to Canada and hard to get back. From the point of view of one who watches their without any means of getting back, and when there was no paternal government to help them in getting back, I can assure you that there comed in the life of every immigrant a period of homesickness, a period of heartbreak. Many say, 'The only reason why we did not get out was because we had to stay and it was too far,' and too much paternalism just at that time is not a good thing.

Now turn it around. Knowing the Englishman, and being one, I say that if you try to persuade an Englishman to do something he is naturally suspicious of you. I am not at all sure that it will not be found that the best way to get British immigration is to say to the Britisher, 'Come and look us over, we do not care much whether you stay or not individually. If you like us and like our country, you are welcome; if you don't like us and don't like our country, for Heaven's sake, go back home.' I am convinced—and it is the basis of the harvester experiment—that that will constitute a greater appeal to the Britisher than trying to convey to him that there is an Eldorado there, and that he has only to come over and scoop it up. Some of them won't believe such a thing, and those who are foolish enough to believe it are going to be the worst advertisement that Canada can possibly get.

I am often asked this question, "What about taking people out there and setting them on farms of their own? Is not that the best way to develop a great agricultural community in Canada?" My personal experience, like the experience of hundreds of others from this country tends to make me doubtful of any large measure of success attending schemes which have for their object the starting of people on farms of their own in Canada immediately they go out, without their having previous Western Canadian farming experience. Such schemes are ill conceived, but they are based upon that old fallacy of the city dweller that everybody can farm. In these days the business of agriculture is a highly scientific and highly commercial business; it requires experience. Now you doubt that, ask anyone; ask the prime minister—who is trying it—what his experience has been, ask any one of the thousands of businessmen, bankers, and lawyers in Canada who own farms and who try to make money running them, if it is so easy business, and even a lawyer will tell you that law is a great deal more remunerative

Chinese Ban Effective

Entry Into Canada Made Almost Impossible Says Official

"Unless some of the ingenious devices of those attempting to smuggle Chinese into Canada have been successful, not a single individual from China has entered the Dominion since 1923, exclusive of those returning to Canadian domiciles established previous to that year," declared W. C. Cowell, investigating inspector of immigration for the Pacific region under the Dominion government, who was in Montreal recently on his way to Vancouver after visiting his former home on the Isle of Man.

Mr Cowell was reluctant to discuss immigration policies but offered some information. Prior to 1923, he said, there was a law prohibiting Chinese women from coming to Canada. This did much to limit the growth of the Chinese population here, because the Chinese are notably prolific.

Of the old 100,000 Chinese in Canada now, 50,000 contribute toward the province's population of 1,000,000, said, and of all these Orientals complete records are kept, including photographs, all these have been here as legally Canadians and are unregistered, except for purposes of facilitating their return from visits to China.

New Estimate Canada's Crops

Revised Figures Give Details Of Largest Crop Canada Has Yet Produced

Canada's wheat crop in 1928 of 500,613,000 bushels as given in a revised estimate just issued by the Canadian Government Bureau of Statistics is the largest crop the Dominion has produced. It is 60,000,000 bushels more than in 1927, and 86,414,000 bushels more than the previous record crop if 1923, and over 440,000,000 bushels higher than the total yield in 1900.

This year's total of 500,613,000 bushels was produced from 23,113,800 acres representing an average yield of 20.8 bushels per acre. The 1927 crop totalled 440,024,700 bushels from 23,680,154 acres, an average yield of 19.9 bushels to the acre.

Except for slightly over 21,000,000 bushels Canada's wheat crop is grown in the three prairie provinces—Manitoba, Saskatchewan and Alberta. These three provinces yielded a total of 479,368,000 bushels, of which Saskatchewan produced more than 275,000,000 bushels, Alberta, 144,655,000, and Manitoba, 53,457,000.

The oat crop is estimated at 437,-900,000 bushels, about 2,300,000 bushels less than in 1927.

This year's yield of oats averaged 34.2 bushels per acre. The 1928 barley production, totalling 194,043,000, is the highest on record. It is $7,514,000 bushels higher than in 1927. The average yield per acre this year was 27.5 bushels. Rye grew an aggregate yield in 1928 of 14,623,800 bushels or 294,900 below the 1927 total. The yield per acre averaged 17.4 bushels.

Livestock Train Travels Over Canadian Roads

Sheep and Swine Problems Will Be Discussed

Thirty-two rural districts in Saskatchewan will be visited by the special live stock train which is touring the east, centring the work in the eastern parts of the province under the auspices of provincial Department of Agriculture, and the Department of Colonization and Agriculture of the Canadian National Railways, the train left Regina on Nov. 19th, for Biggar, the first stop. The train of which one is used for staff quarters, and one for lectures. These cars are also equipped and carried free of charge by the Canadian National Railways, and are directed by the Provincial Department of Agriculture in co-operation with the Dominion Live Stock Branch, the Live Stock Exchanges, the Provincial and Dominion Council of the Canadian Meat Packers and the Saskatchewan Sheep and Swine Breeders' Associations. J. G. Robertson, Live Stock Commissioner for Saskatchewan, is in charge.

The lectures deal with the breeding and feeding of sheep and swine, and farmers are invited to discuss their problems in raising livestock. A special feature is the showing of educational motion pictures.

The train left Regina on November 14th, for Balcarres, the first stop. The last Saskatchewan place at Bethune, on December 30th.

Aid Sheep Industry

Quebec Farmers Receive High Grade Ewe and Ram Lambs

Seven hundred choice ewe lambs have been selected by the Federal and Provincial Departments of Agriculture and sold to the farmers in the Province of Quebec this fall. The lambs are the offspring of improved sires and have been distributed at the rate of 1,000 to 1,500 a year for several years, according to requirement of stock. The cost to the farmer is from $10 to $11 a head.

Perhaps what is lacking in solving the traffic problem those days is horse sense.

Victoria, Australia, plans to spend $2,000,000 in building houses.

FAMOUS PROSPECTOR

John Jones, the famous prospector, who plans to go to Fir Inlet, Baffin Land, next winter. He is seeking the biggest silver, zinc and lead proposition in the Hudson Bay area, and bases his hope of finding it on information received from Major Burwash, chief government geologist. Johnny says that there will be about eight men in the party as well as a supply of huskie dogs and his Arctic ice sleigh, a specially constructed machine capable of about 60 miles an hour.

Asked what area looked the best to him in the north now, Jones said: "Everywhere; it hasn't any equal. There are some more Hollingers on the way; and, by the way, Hollinger isn't by any means done."

Sign Of Prosperity

Amount Of Railroad Traffic An Indication Of Prosperous Times

"The real sign of prosperity in the Canadian West at this time of the year is the amount of local rail traffic," said C. E. McPherson, head of the passenger department of the Canadian Pacific western lines, on his return from a visit of inspection to the Province. "The business being done through our smaller towns this year is unprecedented in volume and large, and by that fact can be judged the prosperity of the Western farmer who last year has threshed the largest crop of good quality and has realized on part of it at least." Mr. McPherson said that travel from the Prairie Provinces to the Old Country and the East this Christmas would be heavy, and that the Canadian Pacific would run a greater number of specials from Saint John than ever before.

First Crop Paid For Land

Instances Quoted Where First Returns Covered Cost Of Purchase

Instances of the payment for farms [redacted] the proceeds of the first wheat crops planted upon it were recorded in C. H. McPherson's Herald in respect to farms in Milk River Valley. R. I. Harris bought a quarter section for $15 per acre without interest; raised 10,000 bushels, which in parts yielded 60 bushels to the acre and more than covered the cost. In this same district Mr. Loft and N. Pederson had previously purchased a half section at $23 per acre. Half of last year's crop paid for the land in full; and this year they threshed a crop of 15,000 bushels of the standard in wheat, and now they have just closed a deal for one and a half section of land adjoining the former holdings.

Alberta Cattle Topped Market

Hill and Bales, Lethbridge, Alta., live stock dealers, have been advised by Walters and Buchner, of Chicago, that the 83 head of dry cows from the McIntyre ranch had sold readily at Chicago, and that topped the market for that day for fat cows at 12½ cents. Shippers are pleased with this showing, as it speaks well for Canadian cattle sold immediately on their arrival after a long rail haul.

Many Letters are Evidence of Appreciation of Canadian Hospitality by American Tourists

The end of the busiest tourist season which Canada has ever experienced from the standpoint of letters of appreciation of Canadian courtesy and hospitality, says the Department of the Interior through its National Resources Intelligence Service. This Service, which is in close contact with the tourist traffic and has supplied many thousands of enquiries for information on Canada, is happy to broadcast the many letters of praise, no complaints have been received this season of unfair treatment of the tourists.

A year ago it was felt that it was necessary to issue a warning, "Don't Overcharge the Tourist" was the message which was sent out by radio and through the press. That this effort has been repaid by Canadian business people, and the thousands of persons who enter and look after the welfare of the visitors, seems certain from the tenor of the correspondence so far received. It is surprising how many of the persons who received maps, or tourist literature, or descriptions of canoe routes, send in friendly notes of appreciation after the conclusion of their trips. One secretary of a golf club in Pennsylvania, recently wrote:—

"I have just returned from a very delightful tour of Canada and was very much impressed with the beauty of the place, the good roads, the courteous treatment of the persons we met and the very moderate prices charged the tourists."

A member of a fishing party that has visited the Rainy Lake District, wrote:—

"We were particularly impressed with the reception we received from everyone on that side from the officials all the way down the line to the native Indians. Everyone was courteous, cordial and very willing to help us in any way, shape or manner that they could."

Among the correspondents are many who have visited Canada in each successive season over periods of 5 to 10 years. It is particularly gratifying to read from a Cleveland business man's letter as follows:—

"I merely want to express my appreciation of the very fine way you take care of tourists in the Dominion. It may be of interest to you to know that I have spent the greater portion of my vacation for the past nine summers in Canada, and I have always found not only the private citizen, but holders of public office, courteous and eager to render us assistance."

"In view of this it is hardly necessary to say that I have been delighted with the kind of treatment I received, with the people I have met, and also the fine system, there isn't any other place to spend a vacation."

Everyone has come in contact with the system still more or less in vogue, of chain selling of merchandise, especially silk hosiery and gadgets for the car, etc. Our American friends are chain selling Canada's scenery and getting real pleasure out of bringing their friends to the Dominion. The president of an athletic club in Indiana writing about his annual vacation in Ontario, says:—

"From a small start of one member making this trip five years ago this year we had more than thirty who went up in several parties. There will be more next year, at least forty."

It is surprising the proportion of the tourists who have come back and back in the wilds on fishing and canoeing trips. The department has a list of names of those applying for canoe routes in all the provinces and territories from the Maritimes to the Yukon. Many have put on strenuous trips undertake a canoe trip of two or three hundred, or a thousand miles went to know where to locate a lodge on some quiet restful lake where the fishing is good. The full effect of the chain selling of more on Canada is to be seen from the experience of the member of a fishing party, who having had a wonderful and successful trip into the Laurentians, wrote a brief item which was published in the Sunday edition of a large city daily. "Within seven days' time," from the account of this experience, "the owner of the lodge where we camped had received seven inquiries by mail, and our Mr. — who is mentioned in the article received several personal calls by interested parties, a number of phone calls, and some lettres asking for detailed information.

Almost every letter indicates that the maps of Canada-United States made issued by the Department of the Interior are passed from friend to friend and serve for the planning of many outings in Canada. The same applies to canoe trips—reliable information has been obtained and when one party has successfully negotiated a chain of Canada's rivers and lakes, such experiences the thrill of shooting rapids, many other parties follow.

A great deal of the correspondence relates to the location of camps or cabins for fishing and hunting. The Service has been called on for information on big game hunting from Labrador to northern British Columbia, and has been instrumental in directing enquirers as to where to outfit and obtain guides in every province. The correspondence indicates that the percentage is increasing annually of persons who want to bring their families and have a cabin in the country in a lodge or cabin to which they can return each year, satisfactory rendered the thrill of shooting rapids, many other parties follow.

The Natural Resources Intelligence Service of the Department of the Interior, in addition to sending out maps and tourist literature, sends to American planning to visit the Dominion, a leaflet on "How to Enter Canada" in which the Canadian Customs' regulations are briefly outlined. Motor vehicle and tourist outfit entry forms are also sent in order that these may be filled in by the tourist and thus expedite his passage across the border. All these things are much appreciated, and the letters indicate a uniform courtesy on the part of Canadian officials which is what had the delay experienced at border points is not a minimum consistent with the observance of the regulations.

Plan New Mortgage Law

New Bill May Be Introduced In Next Session Of Alberta Legislature

New legislation along the lines of mortgage law amendments in Alberta will probably be introduced at the next session of the legislature. It will be the first in a bill of sales and chattel mortgage act, a draft of which is now being considered by the government. It is under adoption as part of the sessional docket.

The proposed legislation has been drafted by the solicitor-members of the commission on the uniformity of legislation, and has been approved by last body for enactment in the various provinces, in accordance with the Alberta government's policy of giving effect to such as are desirable to the uniform legislation suggested from that source. The draft is certain to get sympathetic consideration.

Big Increase in Use Of Gasoline

Returns In Alberta Show Increased Consumption For First Two Months Of Year

Sales of gasoline in the province of Alberta for the first ten months of 1928 have exceeded by about 6,000,000 gallons the sales in any previous year. This increased consumption is attributed to the growing use of tractors, motor trucks, which are being more generally used by farmers for hauling grain and other products of the farm. The harvester combines in the province, as well as the increased number of threshing machines during the present year [redacted] of the gasoline used in Alberta is produced in the Turner Valley, which is within 45 miles south and west of Calgary.

CHAPTER VIII.

One calm Sunday morning Donald paddled around the bay to the mouth at the mouth of the small creek which flowed past the trapper's cabin. The clear water was as smooth as glass and the trout refused to be lured from the depths. After casting steadily for fifteen minutes without a rise he sat down to enjoy a smoke. Sound from afar came with surprising clearness through the quiet air. Anywhere a splitting wood outside the cabin door, and the sound of his axe and the wood he was splitting made a medley of returning echoes. Loons gurgled, wild ducks of many varieties shifted their positions with a whistle of wings. The "chee-ry chee-ry" of a flock of chickadees sounded from a copse of willows on the creek bank. The warmth of the morning gave promise of a hot day when the sun should reach the zenith.

A breath of wind ruffled the lake's surface, bringing with it the faint rumble of a waterfall high up the mountain. Donald paddled to the shore, crossed the rustic bridge to where the trapper was working in his garden, and sat down on a convenient stump.

"Good-morning, John."

"Morrish', sir' (then)."

"John, is there a waterfall on the big creek?"

"Yes, I've heard 'em, sir' I've seen 'em from the ridge, but I ain't ever bin close to 'em."

"Do you think the canoe would be any fait at the foot of the falls?"

"Couldn't say sir' (then). It ain't never bin there."

To the disciples of Izaac Walton the expression "never been fished" brings an incomparable thrill. To cast a fly on virgin waters is the acme of bliss to an angler. Donald unjointed his rod, laying the butt on the canoe's gunwale and started towards the trail.

"I'm better let me fix ye up a lunch to take along," the trapper shouted after him.

"Good suggestion!" admitted Donald as he retraced his steps.

Fried eggs placed between slices of snow-white bread, fresh dough-nuts, cake and cheese were quickly prepared by the deft hands of the old trapper, and Donald was again on his way.

He tried to follow the stream, but the sides were so precipitous that he was forced to go to the ridge or the "hog-back." Here he found the walk'ing excellent, as there was no under brush and the ground was covered with a soft moss.

At intervals through the park-like pines he caught the glint of running water in the gorge below. The air was warm, but the gentle zephyrs wafted from the glacial streams brought a coolness that was almost chill. The sound of the falls became louder as he climbed higher, increasing to a trembling roar as he came to the edge of a boulder-strewn precipice. Here there met his gaze a tumbling cascade of water, falling from a cliff to an irridescent pool silty feet below.

Donald scrambled and slid to the lower level, only to find that he would have to walk down stream and wade up in order to get within reach of the pool. By leaping from rock to rock he managed to reach a big ledge near the side that allowed him perfect fishing for casting. The spray reached him in the form of a fine mist that felt grateful after his long walk. A dart of brilliant sunshine, looking like a searchlight where it penetrated the heavy mist, was reflected and refracted to form a rainbow that shone resplendently against the dark wall of the canyon. On each side rose a sheer wall of rock, with here and there a small fir or spruce clinging to fissures where enough soil had accumulated to give it nourishment. At the point where the cataract struck the pool there was a dark area of heaving, roaring water that spread in ever lessening waves to become gentle ripples where the trout lay in wait.

The little birds known as waterousels, or dippers, were in their element. Standing on the rocks where the turbulent waters roared, they bobbed and curtsied, then flew in under the sheet of falling water in the damp niches of the rocks. Far overhead, like a speck in the azure sky, a bald eagle circled and circled. Over all was the thunder of the cataract drumming in Donald's ears and giving to his earth a gently trembling.

He began eagerly to joint his rod, but suddenly halted, and stood with his landing-net. "There," he said, when he had completed the task, "I'll bet there's fast in to soak while I have a smoke."

He cast carelessly, laid the rod down, and stooped to pick up the pipe. "S-s-s-s-s," the reel shrilled madly. He made a wild clutch for the rod, retrieving it just as the trout broke the

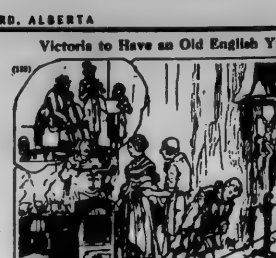
Victoria to Have an Old English Yuletide Festival



When and Thomas Tusser, some fifty years before Shakespeare, wrote:

At Christenmas, play and make good cheer.
For Christenmas comes but once a year.

he made certain the essence of "The Farmer's Daily Diet," a gastronomical rule in "Tusser's Almanac" filled with some mysterious lore and solemn maxims of thrift and honesty. Englishmen have needed no prodding to follow Tusser's generous advice, and have celebrated joyously the Christmas Days of Christmas," except during the Reformation and under the regime of the Puritans who with characteristic zeal frowned upon it. It remained for the Victorian Revival in America to revive with equal zeal the spirit of old Yuletide spirit.

Victoria's celebrated hero long Boulevard our Christmas celebration on the model of the old English Christmas, when we too, shall be completely submerged in the magic of kindness and loving thoughtfulness during the coming Christmas. The festivities hallowed by its ecclesiastical associations will come alive as never before; and for that waiting they will have the city of Victoria, B.C., which has been called "a corner of England on the Pacific Coast." Even to the Empress Hotel, an Old English Yule Log Festival is to open on December 22. The holly and ivy and mistletoe, which, in England, are all flourish in Victoria, and will furnish the traditional setting for the revelling, the unwinding, the mumming, the Punch & Judy shows, the Yule log, the nativities, and the other delights that make Santa's visit a joyful hour.

Harold Bastara Rey, director of Canada's major movie festivals, is to produce the pageant here for the nightly concerts at the Empress Hotel. He has in hand a representations of "Warden's Christmas Party" and tableaux called "A Dickens in the Victoria Papers. This is to have a running commentary of Yuletide music to set off the charming fables of its lovely silicrous characters. Dr. Healy Wilkes of the Toronto Conservatory of Music has composed for the occasion incidental music to "The Chester Mysteries," a Christmas play selected from a group of authoress pageants which will be presented by the trade guilds of Chester, England, during the Christmastide theme of the shepherds and the Babe of Bethlehem. The first performance of these Mysteries was in 1328, exactly six hundred years ago.

Co-operative Poultry Marketing

It may be news to some that a definite move has been made along the lines of co-operative poultry raising and marketing in the Vermilion district. Several of our farmers have gone into this branch with from 250 to 750 White Wyandotte chickens, which were purchased through the "Egg Hatchery" at Vegreville.

The new brood from last summer's flock were marketed in Vermilion on Friday and Saturday of the 9th and 10th of November. The Egg Marketing Service in Edmonton sent a man to do the killing and a second man to help pick the feathers. The local farmers who supplied the co-ops also assisted with this latter work. When we say that the man who did the killing and first picking was a darkie, it would seem that we had said enough for the chicken was dispatched and stripped of its feathers more quickly than the old time barefoot boy could slip off his pants and one suppose and jump into the swimming hole. The darkie seemed to be working in a cloud of feathers all the time. For one instant you'd see the chicken with its feathers on, but after that darkie had given it one stroke from tail to crop with those hands of his, it stood "bare as Paddy's pig."

The dressed carcasses which had all been milk fed, were carefully graded and packed for market. A total of 1611 pounds of dressed poultry was marketed co-operatively and the grade and selling price was as follows

78 lbs Specials sold at 33 cents.
699 lbs Grade A sold at 30 cents.
695 lbs Grade B sold at 26 cents.
159 lbs. Grade C sold at 25 cents.

This works out at an average price of close to 29 cents per pound (29.1)

The entire expenses for operating the pool, paying the express charges, &c. will run very close to 1 cents per lb., thus leaving a net of 28 cents per lb for the producer. To put this in another way, it means that a lb to sell at would net the producer $1.26, while the broiler birds up to 6 pounds would net $1.50 each.

This is the first of the co-operative efforts along this line and already there are indications that it will grow into a much larger enterprise as a number of Vermilion farmers who have been watching the plan will this fall secure chicks through the Association next year.

NEW HOSPITAL AT ELK POINT OPENED

Many Government Officials Attended — Had Enjoyable Program

ELK POINT, Nov 30 — The new municipal hospital was opened in the general public on Monday, November 26. Several of the ladies served coffee, sandwiches and cakes in the large dining room, while others showed the guests about the spacious building.

SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE NOTES

An event creating a great deal of interest among the students is the annual visit of the photographer for the purpose of securing photographs of the students and of the buildings. A number of pictures were taken at this time, including the school group, two committee pictures and a much above class at work. The rest of the pictures including the individual photographs will be taken at a later date.

Last Friday's meeting of the Literary society was devoted largely to an open debate on the subject "Resolved that woman has been a detriment to the advancement of Civilization." Mr Hutton, as chairman, opened the debate with a few words as to rules and questions, then he called upon Thomas Pugsley, leader of the affirmative, to state his case. Mr Pugsley kept the audience in an uproar with his wit, sarcasms and his pointed threats at the opposition. Then Miss Barker took the platform on behalf of woman. The debate was thrown open for public discussion, but after half an hour's argument it was decided that the only thing to do was to postpone the question for a few years in hope that some future generation would have the courage to declare their convictions.

Owing to an epidemic of sore throats among the students the nurse advised against having the usual Friday night dance, so a chairs party and weiner roast combined was held on the river flats, telling and roasting weiners over a blazing fire with some chatter in between times makes a good substitute for a dance, as most students still agree.

Hockey! Perhaps no other word in the sporting parade stirs up so much interest and enthusiasm in this part of the country as does the word hockey and certainly no other sport means quite so much to the V. S. A. this day. Dec. 1st witnessed the first work out of the V. S. A. team this winter. As the school rink has not yet been flooded, the work out took place on the river. Quite a number of players failed to turn out for practice but those present were: Frank and Bill Mead, C. Boggs, Johnson, Morse, Stanton, Burch and Bosquah, some of whom will be remembered for their activities last winter. Let's go, boys!

On Monday evening the first game of the Valley Ball League was played between divisions AB and CD of the first year boys, which resulted in a win for division AB by a margin of five points. Teams have been chosen to represent each group of students in the school and these teams will compete for the school championship.

The students' weekly "The Radio" is prospering beyond all expectations and the mimeograph is kept busy every Saturday afternoon mimeographing copies of the paper. This school is the first of all the agricultural schools to put out its own weekly. The popularity of the Radio more than justifies the change to the new form in spite of the additional cost

Founder of Wood's Christian Home Is Buried at Calgary

The funeral of the late Rev. George Wood, founder of the Wood's Christian Home well known throughout Alberta, was held at Calgary on Friday. He succumbed to an attack of pneumonia earlier in the week. By his death the orphaned children of Alberta lose a kind and sincere friend.

In 1906 the splendid home at Bremner was obtained. Heavily mortgaged though it was, Mr. Wood set himself the task of paying off the loan. A few days before his death he succeeded and a big celebration had been planned when the deeds were to have been destroyed. His untimely death prevented this, but the home is to remain.

"SPEED SERVICE"

Careless Driving Cost Many Lives

In No Case Was Railway Held Responsible for Fatal Accidents

24 Killed, While 64 Were Injured in Collisions with C.N.R. Trains in West.

In spite of repeated warnings, many western Canada motorists have apparently failed to appreciate that an automobile weighing about one ton cannot successfully do battle with a railway train weighing about 1500 tons. Statistics compiled by the Canadian National Railways for the first ten months of 1928bring to light the distressing and alarming fact that during that period twenty four people lost their lives and sixty-four people were more or less seriously injured in collisions between automobiles and trains of the systems in western Canada. In addition there were ninety-three other accidents in which no one was injured. The deaths and the injuries occurred at 47 locations.

In eighteen of the twenty four fatalities coroners inquests completely exonerated the railway company from any blame. In the remaining six, the facts were so apparent that no inquests were considered necessary. That in no case was the railway company held responsible.

Two people were killed and four injured in one accident in which the automobile ran into the middle of a train. In another instance one man lost his life when an automobile ran into the tender of a locomotive. Of the total of 160 accidents no less than thirty-nine were caused by automobiles running into some part of a train other than the head or rear end. In one case a driver was badly hurt when he drove his automobile into the 31st wealth car back from the locomotive

THE SUNSHINE FUND

The Sunshine Fund organized by The Calgary Herald' in 1917, may be described as a romance in philanthropy. Year by year the total amount subscribed by generous contributors has increased, and with the augmentation of the fund the opportunities to assist the poor and deserving have developed in like proportion. More than one Christmas hampers were given away in 1927, while relief work has been carried on steadily throughout the present year Every case of relief is checked up to establish its genuineness and to prevent imposition.

A feature of the expansion of the Sunshine Fund in recent years has been the support it has received from rural districts In 1926 outside points to the number of 94 contributed 12 per cent of the fund Last year 113 points outside Calgary subscribed the sum of $1,771 25 out of a grand total of $15,191 22, the record to date. The total amount subscribed in 1912 by all contributors was $2,05 1 35.

Generous assistance is given by the Sunshine Fund to all those in the country districts deserving of help Large parcels of clothing are shipped to many points. It is reciprocity in a fine sense.

ISLAY ITEMS

The Canadian Utilities Corporation has a large gang putting down the posts in the town and it looks as if, with the wiring of the poles and putting in the meters and standard switching in the homes, we will be off to a good start by the beginning of next week. A little hold-up by C.N.R. officials in getting permission to cross their tracks and put poles on their property will soon be settled.

Mr. Archie McMillan has returned to his old home in Ontario and we hope to see him back next fall.

The many friends of Mr. Thos. Nicholls were very much shocked at hearing of his sudden demise which took place at his home, 23 miles south-west of Islay, on Sunday, Nov. 25th. Mr. Nicholls was born in Northern County, Ontario, on Oct. 26, 1861. He was an upright and hard working man, and very much respected through the whole of the community. He came here about eighteen years ago and took up land, and farmed and ranched. He leaves a large family, his widow, five sons, and three daughters: Alex and Alfred both ranchers on the ranch; Nicholas and John of Islay; Alfred L. of Kelsland, a new town north of Vegreville, Mrs. Gordon Riddell of Wainwright, Mrs. W. H. Cairnes of Edmonton, and Mrs J. W. Irwin of Peterboro Ont. One daughter, Mrs J. C. Parker of Islay, died a few years ago. A very large number of friends and relatives attended the funeral. The services at the house and at the cemetery were conducted by Rev T. A. Bowes of Knox United Church. Mr. J. Wright of Vermilion, had charge of funeral arrangements. Mr. Nicholls was a member of the Islay Municipal Hospital Board, which sent a large pillow of flowers. Other flowers were sent, and a large floral pillow from the family.

The play put on by the St. Saviour's Dramatic Society of Vermilion on Wednesday night was a great success. "The Mummy and the Mumps" drew a record audience at Islay Hall, and not very much less at Kinsella, and appreciated As the Standard has already given credit to where credit is due we will not repeat all the encomiums of praise which we would like to, for every actor played their part like a professional We were fortunate in having about a one hundred and thirty dollar house and all concerned were satisfied We hope to hear the St. Saviour's Dramatic Society again.

Incomes In the West

Within recent months numerous articles have appeared in print dealing with the progress and prosperity of the western provinces of Canada in which the wonderful fertility and productive capacity of the agricultural lands of the West, yielding hundreds of millions of new wealth annually, has been referred to, and the fact noted that in per capita wealth of the people these newer provinces of the West have outstripped the older provinces of the East.

A correspondent of a western farm journal, having read these articles, says: "Why, with such tremendous accomplishments to our credit, have not western farm men and women acquired a per capita income that would permit us to maintain comfortable, nicely decorated, well equipped, modern homes with some time to go and do as we like?"

The question is a pertinent one, but at the same time is not its general effect to create a false impression of actual conditions of farm life in the West? Nevertheless, it is deserving of an answer.

In the first place, it is well to consider that in no part of Canada, and probably in no place in the world, is the wealth of the country so evenly distributed among all the people as is the case in Western Canada. In Eastern Canada, and to an even greater extent in the United States and the older countries of the world great accumulations of wealth are possessed by a few individuals, families and corporations, while living in the same communities are hundreds of people, some in dire poverty, and others living from hand to mouth day by day, and denied the real comforts and joys of life. On the other hand, take Saskatchewan as an example—the most prosperous province of Canada, with new cities to one million people, but which alone among the provinces is not credited with even one millionaire.

This is not to say there are no poor in Western Canada. Unfortunately there are But the further fact is to be remembered that this West is a new country,—the newest in the world,—and that tens of thousands of its people have only reached here a comparatively few years, most of whom came to better their condition and get a start in life which was denied to them in the lands from which they came. The fact that the per capita wealth of the West is high in comparison with the East, while the available per capita income to provide the luxuries and pleasures of life at time is alleged to be small, is accounted for because the per capita income has been invested in breaking the land, establishing new homes, securing the necessary equipment wherewith to develop farm holdings, make improvements, and generally, looking for the future. These investments represent per capita wealth, and are consequently high and steadily rising.

The true test to apply to Western Canada is: Are our farm homes becoming more comfortable, better equipped, more modern, as the years pass? Are the people who have come to the country decidedly better off? more comfortable and happy, than they were in the lands from which they came? Are they making real progress? Unquestionably, taking the country as a whole, such questions must be answered in the affirmative.

Finally, is it true that the per capita income of the Western farmer does not permit him and his family to enjoy the conveniences of, and pleasures of modern life? The telephone is one of the conveniences of modern life, and Western Canada ranks high among the countries of the world in the number of telephones in rural homes. The radio is another such convenience, a source of instruction and pleasure, and western farm homes are fairly well supplied with them.

Or consider the automobile. Next to the United States with its many great cities, Canada surpasses the world in motor cars per capita, and these Western Provinces, mainly a rural people, possess as many cars in proportion to its population as do the older provinces.

The rapidly increasing number of farm homes surrounded by trees and gardens testify to the fact that, as the pioneer days pass, incomes are sufficient to provide for the luxuries of the home outside, and the same process is going on inside countless rural homes.

Nor would it appear from the ever increasing number of rural residents who visit the southern states, Eastern Canada, and the Pacific coast during the winter months, that the net income from farm operations is totally inadequate to provide some play time.

Nor should the fact be ignored that the provision of good roads, good schools, community halls, churches, and other conveniences of life, are, in the final analysis, provided,—either through taxation or voluntary contributions,—out of the per capita income. It has been sufficient to provide and maintain these things in this new country on a scale, and in a short space of time, unsurpassed anywhere.

I got different kinds of medicine which my parents sent me, but my condition remained unchanged. At last one of my teachers gave me a box of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, and I took them. Before I used one box when I could feel an improvement in my condition. I continued the use of the pills for some time longer, and can truly testify all that they did me. Canadian Apples In Britain

Canada's apples are becoming more popular in the British Isles. Exports so far this season, according to figures published by the fruit branch of the Department of Agriculture, amount to 165,062 barrels and 515,322 boxes. This is a substantial increase over the totals of 142,912 barrels and 211,945 boxes for 1927, and 140,344 barrels and 466,035 boxes for 1926.

Be sure you're right, then check your figures.

More Potatoes Grown This Year

Canada's potato crop will amount to 34,598,000 hundredweight this year, according to a preliminary estimate of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This is an increase of 8,- 197,000 hundredweight as compared with last year's crop of 66,400,- hundredweight, an increase of 3,877,- 000 hundredweight over the five-year average.

When Food Sours

About two hours after eating many people suffer from sour stomachs. They call it indigestion. It means that the stomach nerves have been overstimulated. There is excess acid. The way to correct it is with an alkali, which neutralizes many times its volume in acid.

The right way is Phillips' Milk of Magnesia—but a tasteless dose in water. It is pleasant, efficient, and direction—any druggists.

Gasoline From Shale

Find New and Important Source Of Motor Fuel

Pressure-cracking tests on Canadian crude shale oil and on bitumen from bituminous sands show that these raw materials are important reserve sources of motor fuel. Gasoline yields of 18 to 30 Imperial gallons per ton of shale reported, and about 40 per cent. by volume in the dehydrated bitumen are reported. Other products of these shale oil and bitumen raw materials are appreciable quantities of good value coke and uncondensed gas of high calorific value. The quality of the gasolene from the shale oil may be considered good and that from the bitumen exceptionally good.

Anglo-Japanese Alliance

Will not Be Revived, Says the British Foreign Office

The British Foreign Office, after the appearance of press dispatches in London newspapers from Japan discussing a possible Anglo-Japanese alliance and the position of the powers in China, let it be known that there is no foundation for rumors of a revival of the alliance, which was ended in consequence of the Washington conference.

As regards China, it was authoritatively stated that Britain, like the other powers, is pledged to consultation and co-operation.

Meat Production in Canada

Increasing Number Of Live Stock Now Slaughtered Under Inspection

Meat production in Canada is making a steady growth. According to the report of the Veterinary Director General for the past fiscal year there were slaughtered under the supervision of the Meat Inspection Division 1,147,355 cattle, 608,806 sheep, and 2,586,130 hogs. This is an increase of 3.46 per cent. of cattle, 9.71 per cent. of sheep, and almost 2 per cent. increase of hogs. The Province of Ontario is well in advance of any of the other provinces in the production of these meat producing animals. Of cattle Ontario supplied 58.74 per cent., of sheep 62.87 per cent., and of hogs, 47.09 per cent. Quebec comes second with 23.24 per cent. of the cattle, 28.31 per cent of the sheep, and 15.87 per cent. of hogs, and Manitoba occupied third position in providing 17.49 per cent. of the cattle, 7.20 per cent. of sheep, and 15.03 per cent. of the swine. Manitoba was followed in order by Alberta, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island and Nova Scotia.

These figures do not cover a considerable number of live stock of the different kinds slaughtered by butchers and others for local trade.

Alberta Hail Insurance

Companies Ask For 40 Hour Time Limit in Accepting Policies

Relief in the form of amendments to the hail section of the Insurance Act is being asked by the hail insurance companies in Alberta, the amendments to be enacted at the next session of the Legislature, according to Henry Breen, Superintendent of Insurance in the Provincial Secretary.

"There are operating in the Province at present more than 50 companies handling hail insurance and their request for relief in Alberta, the scene of the losses caused by hailing during the last summer amounting to $3,000,000, is unanimous," he said.

At present a farmer can wire or phone his desire for coverage to the insurance company and the protection commences at that time. The companies want to have 48 hours elapse between the time of the application for coverage and the time at which the coverage will be either accepted or rejected. The companies also want to overcome any suggestion of delaying the placing of insurance until the last possible moment.

The present the law provides that it is optional with the companies whether they accept applications by wire or telephone and it is understood that they have decided to refuse any applications made by this method.

Speaking in respect to the amendments, Mr. Bruce said that it was his opinion that farmers must pay the same with the companies if they desired them to remain in the field and that business should not be confined to a few weeks' period in the middle of the summer, but should be spread over the entire growing season.

College Dance Great Function

"Something different" was the buzzwords of the dance held in the gymnasium of the new college dormitory on Friday evening last. This served as a decided lesson to one and indeed many and as the opening college reception to the general public. The decoration of the large spacious gymnasium with its perfect dance floor was unique, being a setting of winter, very well carried out and entirely different from the usual streamer effect. A dainty and refreshing lunch of fruit salad, cake and coffee was served by the college girls, the large crowd being served in separate contingents. The Lloydminster orchestra was in attendance and supplied a splendid program of dance music.

AUTUMN LEAF SCHOOL DESTROYED BY FIRE

The Autumn Leaf school, situated some 26 miles south and a little west of town, was completely destroyed by fire last Tuesday morning at about 8.30 a.m. As a result, 34 children are without school accommodation at the present time, although it is likely that arrangements will be made for same in a disused dwelling, and others will of necessity attend neighboring schools until such time that a new school may be built.

The source of the fire is unknown, the teacher, Miss Phyllis Hunt, stating that the fire in the stove was very low before she left the school the evening previous to the discovery.

The Manitoba Copper Boom

Large Property 75 Miles From Winnipeg To Be Developed

Definite news that options have been signed for the immediate development of the well-known Bird River Copper deposits opened up prospects of a great new base metal camp in Manitoba.

Some of the best known mining interests in Canada have signed the options, including the Lindsley Interests of Toronto, and several Manitoba prospectors, who for many years have been prospecting, will benefit to the extent of several hundred thousand dollars.

The Lindsleys are already well-known in Manitoba by reason of the development of the Sherritt Gordon mine north of The Pas. They are also, it is said, interested financially in the development of the recent tin find at Shatford Lake, in the eastern Manitoba district, and, in addition to the new discoveries made during the past season at Oxford Lake.

The claims in question lie within 75 miles of Winnipeg, east of Lac Du Bonnet, along the Bird River, and it is said, on good authority that the Canadian Pacific Railway has parties in the field locating the line of a branch into the new camp. In the event of successful development the large base metal tonnage with massive and concentrator would necessitate standard gauge heavy steel rail construction.

The character of deposits in this district have been known for many years but it has taken many months of quiet and persistent effort to concentrate groups sufficiently large to interest big capital in the development. The successful termination of negotiations toward this end and the present active market for copper have made it possible for Manitoba deposits to be worked to advantage and it appears certain that treatment and development will take place in the near future.

Valuable Salt Deposits

Important Discovery Is Made In Northern Part Of Alberta

An important discovery indicating the wealth of resources in the northern part of Alberta is announced in the striking of a deep bed of salt in the test well being drilled at Waterways, under the direction of the Provincial Department of Railways. Salt was encountered at a depth of 670 feet and the test, which has now reached the depth of 983 feet, is still pouring through this formation. Further tests are planned to determine the probable extent of these valuable salt deposits.

New Device For Steamships

Electrical Apparatus Measures Depth Of Water Continuously

On the U.S. steamship Leviathan has been installed an instrument, which enables the course of the ship to be plotted as accurately in darkness and fog as in clear daylight.

It is known as the fathometer, and measures the depth of water continuously by timing electric echoes.

Tests have proved that the fathometer is especially valuable when a ship is approaching land, where knowledge of depth is most important.

With its aid the Leviathan, which left New York for Southampton, was able to pick up the 100 fathom curve off the Grand Banks at full speed, where formerly it was necessary to come almost to a stop to permit heaving the lead.

The lead picked up by the fathometer are translated in fathoms of depth on a clock-like dial. The instrument has been adopted by the American Navy.

Meteorite Need Not Worry

Fuel Will Last For Nearly 3,000 Years Says Experts

Experts at a recent World's Fuel Conference, held in London, Eng., declared that there should be one motor-car for every twenty people in Europe in ten years' time.

This would mean a big increase in the number of cars in practically every European country. Britain has now one car to every forty-one persons; France has only one to 127 people.

In the world as a whole, the United States has one car for every five people. At the other extreme is Russia, with one car to each 91,743 of population.

Many people are worried as to how oil will be found for running all the cars, if they go on increasing at the present rate. But it has been estimated that there is enough oil in sight to last a full century, and sufficient potential motor fuel to supply all needs for another 2,000 years.

Reliable Weather Guides

Many Animals Have Uncanny Sense Of Coming Storm

If you see a bull bending the head like a catapult all the head of a ballast, you may be sure that rain is on the way. The bull lends the herd that it has to be angry, because his temper has been ruffled by the prospect of rain. To see a bull lick his hoofs is also a sure indication of rain.

In fact, some animals make very reliable guides to impending weather changes. When a dog seems sleepy, disinterested, and evinces a sudden loss of appetite, it is a sure sign of a heavy fall of rain. The continual cackling and quacking of ducks and geese and other poultry is said to indicate rain.

Spiders, who cease work during fine weather, mend their spinning if they feel the calm is not far distant

"Bachelor" Is Old Word

Many Centuries Ago It Meant One Holding Low Office

Our word bachelor is a corruption of an old mediaeval word for "cowherd." In those days almost the whole population existed by agriculture, and the "bachelor" or "cowherd" was the lowest office, held by the youngest and poorest. Similarly to those days a "knight bachelor" was a knight of an inferior rank, or nowadays a Bachelor of Arts is one who has not yet been admitted to the degree of Master of Arts. The word's present meaning of an unmarried man is more than five hundred years old, and signifies a man who has not yet entered upon the full duties of manhood's estate. Our ancestors did not dream that middle-aged and well-to-do men should ever remain unwed

Longest Court Trial

The longest trial ever known in the British courts was the Tichborne case, which began in May, 1871, and was not completely settled until February, 1874. The actual trial lasted 103 days. The speech of Lord Coleridge alone extending over 38 days. The trial cost the State $450,000, and resulted ultimately in the sentencing of Arthur Orton, who had claimed the Tichborne estates, to fourteen years' imprisonment.

No Ordinary Adventure

Flying-Fish Lifted Small Forty Feet To Deck Of Liner

A flying-fish which, by a supreme effort, made a successful landing on the deck of the Aquitania has won for itself a place in the annals of natural history.

For a number of years the dispute raged as to whether a flying-fish was in mere glider which propelled itself out of the water with a rush and then skimmed through the air on the planes of its wings, or whether it was in fact a true heavier-than-air machine which sustained itself by the beating of those wings like a dragon-fly or a helicopter.

The Aquitania's flying-fish seems to have answered the question. The deck was forty feet above the waterline, and no rush out of the water, whatever the force of the leap, could, in a high wind, lift a flying-fish as high as that if it had to depend entirely on beating on its wings without using them to lift itself higher.

Those who have believed that the wings do move, though their movement is so rapid as to be hard and to perceive, are now justified, and this flying-fish, which was the learner of its kind (the first flyer of its race), should enjoy a sort of immortality for its effort.

The ordinary flying-fish seldom moves more than a few feet above the water and is generally found only in warm seas, and the Aquitania's flying-fish was no ordinary adventurer.

B.C. Strawberry Crop

1929 Crop In Creston Valley Valued At $80,000

According to selling agency figures now available it is estimated that the 1929 strawberry crop in Creston Valley, B.C., has produced not less than 800,000 grows to about 150 ranches. Assessed at an average of 5 cents per pound 40,000 crates, and some 50 tons were shipped to jam plants at Vancouver and Calgary. From all parts British Columbia over 100 carloads were marketed and these were not included in the normal demand, which is placed at 150 carloads of first class fruit. Prices in 1929 were slightly higher than in 1927.

Mentality and Accidents

An analysis of 70,000 industrial accidents, compiled by an insurance company, revealed that a man who is absent-minded is as much of a danger to himself and his fellow-workman as if he were physically disabled. Factory foreman would prevent accidents by studying the men for signs of mental distraction. At least sixty-five per cent of the 70,000 accidents could have been prevented.

In Memory Of French Heroine

Stamp Bearing the Likeness Of Joan Of Arc To Be Issued In France

The first stamp bearing the likeness of a woman to France will be issued next year upon the anniversary of the Battle of Orleans. Competition has been opened for the artists of France for the best portraits of Joan of Arc.

According to the best authorities nothing is known of how Joan looked save that she was "robust and well proportioned," Joan herself testified to this effect when tried by the English.

The stamp is the design of Capt. L. M. Worden, philatelic engraver and designer of a long line of engines for aeroplanes, automobiles and speedboats.

"I believe that if we had today an aeroplane engine weighing one pound per horse power, and that would be capable of running 1,000 hours without a stop, and which could be sold for about 100 per horse power, that aeroplane business would rival and soon out-strip the automobile industry," Mr. Worden says.

Dr. J. H. Grisdale Attends Meeting of Imperial Bureaux In London

Dr. J. H. Grisdale, Deputy-Minister of Agriculture, left for England on November 9, to attend the conference of the Imperial Bureaux established for the interchange of information relative to research workers and agricultural science throughout the British Empire. The Canadian Government some time ago signified its intention of contributing to the work of these bureaux, the establishment of which was authorized at the 1927 Imperial Agricultural Research Conference. Special attention will be devoted to the study of soil science, animal nutrition and animal health.

The Truth is Best

In an address at Calgary, Senator Gideon Robertson urged that prospective immigrants be told the truth about Canada, so that they will not be subject to disillusionment when they reach here, he said.

Addressing a meeting in aid of distressed children in Britain, Senator Robertson said that he looked forward to the time when the world would cease to use the phrase, "Empire" it was lunacy to send men in the bowels of the earth to dig coal and aeroplanes waiting in the skies to generate electricity. He contended that the tides of northern Scotland held potential power to "develop, amply work for all unemployed.

Rare Big Brings High Price

Who Made Centuries Ago An Gift For Hindu Of Purple

There was spirited bidding the other day in London for possession of a rare rug, up for auction. Mrs. Edith Rockefeller McCormick finally was the successful bidder at a price reported to have been $150,000.

The price might not have been so high, but someone was making a determined bid against Mrs. McCormick's offers. She learned, after it was all over, that she had been bidding against her brother, John D. Rockefeller, Jr.

The rug upon which have trod Shahs, Tsars and Emperors, was the work of expert rugmakers centuries ago as a gift to their ruler, the Shah of Persia. Long years afterward the rug was a gift to Peter the Great of Russia. Later it was given to the Emperor of Austria.

During the turbulent years of the world war, the rug disappeared, bobbing up again at the London auction.

Future Of the Airplane

Bound To Be Rival Of Automobile Says Research Engineer

Aeroplanes will be as thick as automobiles and as popularly accepted as a means of transportation, whether for business or pleasure, just as soon as a reliable, light weight, six horse power aero-plane engine is designed.

That is the opinion of Capt. L. M. Worden, aeronautical engineer and designer of a long line of engines for aeroplanes, automobiles and speedboats.

"I believe that if we had today an aeroplane engine weighing one pound per horse power, and that would be capable of running 1,000 hours without a stop, and which could be sold for about 100 per horse power, that aeroplane business would rival and soon out-strip the automobile industry," Mr. Worden says.

Demand For Canadian Grain

Product Of Western Provinces Shipped To Many Countries

Canadian grain has been receiving Montreal this season for ports that Montreal has never had a record of, numbers of steamers sailing down the St. Lawrence, Turkey being one of the new recent countries to take this commodity from Canada. One vessel of 2,327 tons net, sailed for the Dardanelles with 90,000 bushels of wheat for Constantinople, while another 1,909 tons net cleared for Smyrna, with 171,725 bushels of wheat.

Siberia Three Times

Of the Indian tribes living on reserves in Alberta today, Cree and Blackfoot have contributed largely to the place-names in the province. A few Shaver Indian names are met with. Sibsey Indian names are on record, but few, if any, are in use. Iroquois, Sarree, and Chipewyan names are represented in the province since though Chipewyan names occur further north.

Not So Hot

An old age pension officer in Edinburgh was questioning a woman regarding her duties. "Have you ever been in the hands of the police," he asked. She hung her head. "Come along, sir, you're not the first."

"Well," she said, "in my young days I was a cook, and you know girls will be girls. But still," she added proudly, "he was a sergeant."

Still no answer, but a low silvery laugh was proof that the occupant of the next room was a woman.

"If you are a fairy," he persisted, "won't you come down and give me a Turpsichorean exhibition in the fairy ring on the floor of your enchanted glade?"

"I am a dryad," came the dulcet tone of a childish voice, "and a dryad's life is bound up in her tree. I cannot leave my arboreal home until the time comes for me to die."

"We'll see about that," laughed Donald as he seized the slender cedar and rocked it violently.

A scream of simulated fear came from the tree-tops. "Stop!" the voice cried, "I'll come down."

A tiny moccasined foot felt its way to a limb, and a slight figure clad in moss a crinoline and a brown cotton shirt, stood erect with downcast eyes.

"Jump," invited Donald, as he stood with arms outstretched, "Ah, I'll see don't weigh much."

The "dryad" shook her head bashfully, then with a quick, bird-like motion sprang straight out into the air, her golden hair streaming and flashing in the sunshine. She landed gracefully on the soft moss-covered feet and went bounding across the valley, leaping the creek with the ease and grace of a startled fawn, without turning her head, disappeared in the dark forest aisles.

Donald's blue eyes smouldered fixed on the spot where the fairy-like vision vanished from view. His whole attitude expressed astonishment. He was completely mystified by the appearance of a girl in this remote wilderness.

He climbed the tree for a glimpse of the golden-haired fairy's bower. A rope was tied around the tops of four cedars, with its centre at the top of the trees. This rope pocket was filled with pine boughs, and these covered with ferns and moss. A cord that led to a nearby spruce was, he decided, used to impart a swinging motion to this strange habitation of the forest.

In the centre of this cosy nest lay a copy of "Tennyson's Poems" and a book on "Child Life." As Donald leaned closer a gentle breeze fluttered the leaves of the book of poems.

"Fairy hands turned to the right page," he mused aloud as he read these lines from "Maud."

"My bird with the shining head,
My own dove with the tender eye,
Bibbs out, little head, running over with curls,
To the flowers, and be their sun."

"A corner of dreamland," murmured Donald.

A stronger breeze swept down the valley, causing the nest to rock with gentle undulations. "A novel idea," he thought, "and what a restful spot to sleep and dream!"

Donald was tempted to finish his nap in the vacated dryad's nest, but just the thought of such a thing angered him. He descended to the ground, picked up his basket and started down the valley, where he could reach the lake he saw the trapper with Douglas and Andy sitting outside the cabin door.

"Any luck, ol' timer?"

Donald lifted the lid of the basket. "Where?" ejaculated the trapper. "There's wallopers, ain't they?"

"John," queried Donald as he set down on the grass, "did you ever see a dryad?"

"A what?"

"A dryad."

The trapper's wrinkled face puckered. "Yeh," he answered quizzically, "I seen 'em. Some of them fellers I met Vancouver one time after I'd bin drinkin' for a week."

Donald had had the meeting with the strange child of the forest. "Who is she, John?" he asked.

"She was little Connie Wainwright. She an' her father live in a little valley t'other side of that hill," pointing up the mountain. "She's a great kid, too. She has a hoss that's named after a hoss that had wings. I forgit the name she gave it. The trapper pondered for a moment.

"Pegasus," prompted Donald.

"That's it. She rides that hoss like a Texas Ranger, an' she's a crack shot with the rifle. Funny thing, though, she's never shot anything with wings," so I have no need of the magic bullet," she said smilingly.

"Now, the mythical sheet this steed," observed Donald, gently prodding the bunched muscles on the trapper's arm. "Is that the magic bullet?"

"No. Who is the 'Breed?"

"He's a half-breed Indian with a name like Ingo. He came over the hill 'bout two years ago. Got one look at that shiny haired kid an' thought she was an angel, I guess, an' has been bantin' her ever since. He built himself a cabin up there. Works for Connie's father. Looks after the stock an' runs the traps. He's a surly cuss, like a dancing dervish. Her heavy hair streaming about her face and shoulders, she seemed even more an elf than when poised for flight on the edge of her fairy nest. As she neared the bluff she settled to her feet and seized the reins.

Donald came to his feet. For a moment it seemed as if he were to be passed unnoticed. He ran to the trail and waved his arm with a yell-coming shout. This brought him a flash of startled blue eyes, then the cayuse with a snort of fear went straight up into the air, spinning like a top and assuming a sharp angle of command and a quick twist of the nut-brown hands caused the frightened beast to land on the ground with his forelegs gently to the ground. As he stepped in the cayuse's head Donald saw that the girl stowed flashes of the animal, the strong muscled shoulders, and the slender but powerful legs. The relatively heavy neck and Pegasus made answer to such advances by rubbing his nose nose against Donald's shoulder.

To make the statement clear, the arrangement with visited towns was that they looked after the advertising and entertained the players, and after all expenses were deducted from gross receipts, the net profits were divided equally. The apparent discrepancy re Walkwright was due to an accident for which we had to pay out of our share, and re Vegreville, as they had expected us by car, we bore the brunt of the greater part of our fares, as this was our first visit to this town.

The Anglican Church invited us to Walkwright, Clamonald, Manville, and Minburn, and the United Church to Islay and Minburn.

Votes of thanks were passed to all who helped to make this season such a wonderful success.

Large Settlement Plan at Vermilion

Hudson's Bay and Canadian Pacific Have Equipped Many Farms

Within the next few days the building programme carried on in this district by the Canadian Pacific Railway and the Hudson's Bay Company and under which 164 units have been erected will have been completed.

The units comprised a house of three large and comfortable rooms, and a substantial barn, both costing about $1,000.00. In addition to this ten acres of the land were broken and a well and picket fences will be put up next spring. These units are scattered all over the district and will be disposed of every available acre of C. P. R. and H. B. Co. land has been taken up for colonization purposes.

Early next spring the settlers will begin to arrive and the intention is to have the acreage broken this year all in crop. The settlers will be supplied with the necessary equipment as the time arises. Those who have units are all numbered and will be referred to as farm number so and so. They will select the land for the first year provided them.

There will be one or two opportunities for overlooking the farm operations and give the new settlers any instruction they may require since the loss of time in this is a big undertaking but on account of the strong natural advantages existing in the district the scheme, it is fully believed, will prove a big success.

Local Collections For Bible Society

The gratifying amount of $172.00 was the result of the annual local canvass in the town in aid of the Canadian Bible Society.

In addition to this there has also been added $12.50 from the Tisdale Dime Fisdore sent in by some children of the town. These fisdore held $1.00 in dimes and on each one being turned in the child is presented with a Tisdale Testament.

The local committee also take this opportunity of thanking all the collectors and others who assisted in making this canvass such a success, as it is the highest mark yet reached by Vermilion.

LOW RATE FROM BRITAIN WILL AID IMMIGRATION

Ottawa.—A $50 rate for all British migrants to Canada from the United Kingdom and Northern Ireland has been agreed upon between the British government and the steamship companies, according to a statement issued by Hon. Robert Forke, minister of Immigration.

The new rate does not affect the $10 rate under the Empire Settlement scheme, which continues in force. The agreement rounds off the several conferences held in recent weeks in London, which were attended by W. J. Egan, deputy minister of immigration. It becomes effective on January 1, 1929.

The difference between the $50 and the old rate of $94 approximately will be absorbed by the British government and the steamship lines on an agreed basis.

The minister's statement follows.

"The British government has reached an agreement with the British Steamship Lines for the quotation of a special rate for British subjects normally resident in Great Britain and Northern Ireland, coming to Canada for permanent residence. Under normal conditions the ocean rate for third-class passengers from Great Britain to Canada is £18 15s., but under the agreement just concluded between the British government and the British Steamship Lines, such passengers, if British subjects, normally resident in Great Britain or Northern Ireland, will be able to come to Canada at the rate of £10 the difference between the normal rate being absorbed by the British government and the steamship lines on an agreed basis.

"The arrangement will come into effect on the first of January, 1929. In order to give it a fair trial it will continue in operation for two years according to the understanding now in force."

Telegraph Wire Sets Type For Newspaper

Despatches Transferred Into Matchines By New Invention

Rochester, N.Y.—A telegraph wire operated two newspaper type-setting machines here at the plant of the Rochester Times Union.

Despatches by wire were transferred mechanically directly into the machines, with human touch eliminated, and were recorded in lines of metal type, each as long as a new

The object of the invention is to shorten the time and work required to transfer news from the place where it occurs to the printed page by is designed to be another step in the development of the distribution of the printed word, which began when movable type was invented by Johannes Gutenberg, at Strassburg, in 1438.

The operation was a private demonstration held in the presence of a gathering of men who direct large printing and publishing enterprises.

The sending was done in the demonstration room to machines on the opposite side of the room, which were operated simultaneously from the same wire. One was a linotype and the other an intertype.

Diplomats War-Like Tendency

United States Attitude In Increasing Navy Is Criticised

London, Eng.—Field Marshal Sir William Robertson, former chief of the general staff, in a speech here declared that the U.S. "influenced by imperialistic tendencies apparently unknown, whatever happens, to go on increasing her navy and her official utterances on the question of armaments not infrequently bearing a close resemblance to Germany's claims previous to the tragedy of 1914.

The field marshal, who was a protagonist figure during the great war was addressing a peace conference held in conjunction with the League of Nations Union and presided over by Viscount Cecil.

Sir William said that the United States must be fully entitled to take her own course without care or thought for the interests and opinions of other states, but it was nevertheless disquieting to reflect that she could not attach much importance to the League of Nations or to the recent Kellogg renunciation of war pact or she would not be so anxious about her navy.

The nations seemed to have learn ed little from the experience of a decade ago, flaiting to see that war can never bring lasting peace, he said. All Europe is arming, but only by the infusion of a more generous fresh air into the councils of the conference of international affairs will the world be saved from drifting into another war.

Sir William's remarks were applauded.

Saskatchewan Anti - Tuberculosis League Asking For Co-Operative Effort

Fort San.—It is announced by Mr. A. B. Cook, president and managing director, that the Saskatchewan Anti-Tuberculosis League in this year entering into a new phase of his work dealing with preventive and educational measures outside of the sanatoria altogether.

The scheme carries with it provision for the examination of all children in homes where infection is known to exist, as well as all school children conducted by the school officials as showing signs of being under par or a breakdown.

The scheme is of rich magnitude that it requires the active co-operation of all school teachers, all school boards and physicians as well as the intelligent sympathy of the general public.

In order to meet the cost of the examination and care of children reported, a campaign for the sale of seals is being carried into the schools, and they are being asked to form clubs, and to assist in the furthering of a "School Children Fire Control Children Fund," which will be used solely for this purpose, and will not be used in defraying the cost of sanatorium treatment. It is too late in the year to complete a comprehensive organization along the lines indicated to school teachers and school officials of the province, so for this year, a small supply of seals has been sent to each school for sale among the pupils.

Additional Hundred Million Rubles Is Included in Budget

Moscow.—An increase of nearly 100,000,000 rubles in the estimates of national defence, was one of the striking features of the budget which has been presented to the Central Executive Committee, by M. P. Bruhanov, commissioner of finance. The total of this estimate is $40,000,000 rubles, compared with 742,000,000 of the past year.

Commissar Bruhanov explained that the increase was needed to improve the educational system and general condition of the army.

PILGRIMS GATHER TO MARK SIGNING OF PEACE PACT

London, Eng.—A distinguished company attended the dinner of the Pilgrim's Society to celebrate the signing of the peace pact for reconciliation of war. Sir Austen Chamberlain, British foreign secretary, and United States Ambassador Alanson B. Houghton, were guests, while others present were the Lord Chancellor Viscount Cecil, of Chelwood, Lord Hardinge, and Lord Davidson, the former Archbishop of Canterbury. Lord Desborough presided.

Ambassador Houghton told the guests that the 5,000 miles of unfortified an unguarded United States-Canadian frontier are proof sufficient to the world that two peoples can live side by side not armed against each other.

"This is an assurance," he said, "that the purpose of the Kellogg Work, out of their own experience, and properly offer to the peoples of the old Dangers and horrors of war have been impressed upon both peoples.

"Canadians and the people of the United States have demonstrated the fact that they are safer and happier without armaments and without peoples which inevitably go with them. "I do not want to exaggerate, I do not want to press the point too far," Mr. Houghton went on, "but I say you, is there not a measure of truth in what I've said? Have we not solid ground for hope now that nations have agreed to renounce the right to use force and have undertaken to reach peaceful stages. I wonder if the apparent necessity of maintaining armaments may be found less substantial than we have seemed. Our experience, at least, would appear to point in that direction."

Mr. Houghton, making one of his first appearances at a public function since he returned from Cuba and the United States, seized upon the theme of Mr. Houghton's speech and evoked prolonged cheers when he declared that unfortified frontier represents not only a "union dis-ons only to unite." Canada and the United States, but stands in a similar relation between the whole British Empire and America.

Saskatchewan Legislature

House Of Regina Opens With the Usual Ceremonies

Regina.—The fourth session of the sixth Legislature of Saskatchewan was opened with the usual ceremonies befitting the occasion.

A feature of the opening was the introduction of Dr. F. T. Waugh, recently elected to represent Arm Rayer. The actual session lasted just long enough for the reading of the speech from the throne, probably the shortest one ever read in Saskatchewan the moving of the formal motions and the single introduction of the only new member. Following the adjournment the members and guests attended the usual reception in the library. Flowers in great profusion were used as decorations.

While for some reason an impression has been broadcast that the present session will be rather brief those actually in a position to know can see no reason why that should be In fact it is generally expected in well informed circles that the session will be just as long, if not longer than the average It is fully expected to last seven weeks

MAY EXTRADITE VIOLATORS OF U.S. LIQUOR LAWS

Toronto.—A special despatch from Buffalo printed in the Globe says:

Negotiations are under way between Canadian authorities for handing over to the United States officials anyone who violates American prohibition laws, Richard H. Templeton declared yesterday.

It has been tentatively decided that the conference is to be held some time in January, he added. Canadian and United States customs officials will endeavor to draw a treaty similar to that already in force between Cuba and the United States.

Similar negotiations have already been started by Hon. William Phillips, the United States minister to Canada, with Ottawa.

The Canadian government would have to be far removed to repeal the present laws, which prohibit the importation of liquor into Canada and the United States, Templeton declared. The extradition would be confined to violations of the United States prohibition law.

The suggestion of the United States commissioner in respect to a possible revision of the anti-smuggling treaties of 1924 between the two countries, it was officially stated, is still under consideration by the Dominion government. A definite decision in this regard is expected to be made shortly.

SENIOR HOCKEY OPENER THIS FRIDAY NIGHT

Friday night will see the opening hockey match of the season at the municipal arena, and from all indications the standing room will be at a premium when the Lloydminster Elks and the Vermilion A.A.A. tussle for the old bit off of the local hockey season. While it is too much to expect that the boys will display the stuff that they will show later in the season, the fans may rest assured that some classy hockey will be dished up and that there will be plenty of pep and spirit in the game. The bench will probably line up the same as they did in Lloydminster,but there is the possibility that one and perhaps two new players will also appear on the line-up. It is understood that Mead will be back on his old job to goal, with Maxson Barr and Jack Marlow on in front of him; Jack's injured foot has been well treated and rumored since the Lloyd fracas and is ready for energetic use again. Clarence Barr at centre, flanked by Eddie Mooney and Jimmie Rabbitt, will probably start on the firing line, with Oscar Hanson, Art Wiebe and George Rambeck as the second string forward line, providing some of the aforementioned dark horses come through with the necessary stuff. Lloydminster has a cracker jack of a team this year and they are out to win, but believe us, they will get a real argument before the season is over. A record crowd of cash customers is looked for and the game is billed for 8:30 sharp. Be on hand early—and bring the whole family.

In the Chevrolet six-cylinder line just announced is one more of the most important developments in power motor history—the production of a powerful and attractive six in the low price range hitherto occupied exclusively by fours. Among the seven new models offered are the coach and sport cabriolet, seen above together with the fully enclosed two-in-back motor.

This motor develops 46 horsepower—32 per cent more than the four-cylinder predecessor. The factory claims that "speed has been stepped up to satisfy maximum requirements."

Notable features are gasoline pump instead of vacuum tank; [illegible] fuel, adjustable Rotten's seat, [illegible] temperature gauge on dash, and special accelerating pump which operates when the accelerator is depressed.

The announcement of the new car reveals that Chevrolet engineers began four years ago the research work, planning and proving ground testing which culminated in the new car. More than 100 different motors are said to have been built and tested

In a little Serbian village near Semlin are living probably the oldest married couple in the world. Documentary evidence proves that Demetrius Filipovic and his wife Ziranka were already married and living in the village when they spent their childhood days, in 1839. Demetrius was then over ten-years-old. He is fully 101 and his wife is 107

They have lived together for eighty-nine years, and are now surrounded by numerous children, grand children and great-grand children, says a writer in "Tit-Bits." Opposing Construction Of German Warship

Country Cannot Afford This Expenditure Say Social Democrats

There seems to be sound common sense in the argument of the German Social Democrats who are opposing the construction of the first German warship to be built since the end of the World War. Germany can ill afford to spend the money on a lone warship which would be no match for the navies of other countries, one of the leaders declares. One warship would be a beginning, however, and it could prove a starting point toward the development of a real navy. If Germany has aspirations toward naval power, a start must be made in some direction. But with the burdens of war still pressing upon her people, naval ambitions would appear to be a luxury which Germany well might forego.

Ancient Greeks Used Asbestos

Mineral Which Withstands Fire Was Called "The Unconsumable"

Few of the world's minerals have had a more curiosity than asbestos, and few are more curious in themselves.

Though commercially merely fifty years old it was known to the ancients. The Greeks called it "the unconsumable," whilst the Tartars and the Assyrians were aware of the strange, fibre-like rock that could withstand fire.

Its earliest known use was for the shrouds of kings, whose dead bodies were placed in asbestos cloth, so that their ashes might be kept separate from those of the funeral pyre.

Mysteries Of Lightning

Scientists Have Discovered Peculiar Facts Not Known Before

Scientists have now succeeded in measuring lightning. They state that a flash takes about one-seven-thousandth of a second to complete itself, and no part of it last more than approximately one-thirty-five-hundredth of a second. This is the first time in history that the speed of a lightning flash has been measured.

It has also been proved that lightning starts from the cloud and the ground at nearly the same instant, and approximately, one-seven-thousandth of a second later the two ends unite in mid-air.

These facts prove determined by Dr. C. U. Boys, a British physicist, who has been attempting hundreds of photographs for the last twenty-six years, until a stroke of lightning in New York at last gave him the information.

PAUL AND HIS FRIENDS

Golden Text: "A friend loveth at all times."—Proverbs 17.17.

Lesson: Acts 20.36-38; Romans 16. 1-4; Philippians 2.25-30; Philemon.

Devotional Reading: Psalm 63.1-7.

Explanations and Comments

The Salutation Of the Letter, verse 1-3.—Timothy is with Paul, as Silas him, "a prisoner of Christ Jesus." Paul writes, in sending greetings to Philemon, their beloved fellow-worker, and to Apphia and Archippus, presumably Philemon's wife and son, and to the church that meets in his house, "Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ."

Thanksgiving For Philemon's faith, and love, and service, verses 4-7.—Philemon was a man of means who had distinguished himself by his deeds of charity. He was zealous in spreading the gospel, and his house was the meeting-place of a group of Colossian Christians. Paul writes Philemon that he thanks God always as he mentions him in his prayers, "for I have much joy and comfort in thy love."

"In your friend now; I put you in my prayer last night" says the words with which a little child greeted a house guest one morning—a beautiful way in which to take the first step toward a desired friendship. As Emerson says, the only way to have a friend is to be one, and we cannot fail to be friendly to those for whom we are praying.

Intercession For Onesimus, verses 8-21.—"Therefore"—thus Paul begins his intercession for Onesimus, Philemon's runaway slave. Paul's "wherefore" means that since Philemon has proved himself good in so many particulars, especially in his love and care of the followers of Christ (as he has just written), Paul will expect from him the further proof of his goodness, that he will forgive Onesimus and welcome him kindly on his return.

"A disposition to do good, together with, in most instances and expression of it, is a good handle to take hold of for pressing to more."—Matthew Henry.

New York's Newest Club

Aims To Prevent Accidents To Motorist and Pedestrian

There are clubs innumerable in the automobile world but a new one has been launched nevertheless, and it is destined to make its membership virtually equal to the complete roster of motorists in America. It has received a charter from the Secretary of State of New York, and its name is the Stay Alive Club, Its founders aim, in their own words, "to keep themselves from killing anybody, and to protect themselves from being killed by anybody else."

A life membership in this club costs only $3.00, and carries with it a copy of a new book, entitled "Stay Alive!" The author is Marcus A. Dow, president of the National Safety Council, and in it he tells just how the automobilist may get into thirty different kinds of motor accidents, but also how he may keep out of these same thirty kinds of accidents, if he really wants to stay alive and is willing to keep his eyes open and do a little real thinking.

More than fifty great corporations have given their hearty indorsement to the purpose and methods of the club, and it has the approval of the National Safety Council, the work of which, in many different fields, has saved innumerable lives in recent years.

Nicknames Of the Past

Personality Was Not Considered In Majority Of Cases

There may be something in the contention that the absence of popular nicknames for present-day political leaders—with the possible exception of "Jix"—shows a lack of personality, but it is quite probable that politicians of the past would readily have dispensed with some of the labels attached to them by their contemporaries. Wellington, "the Duke" to his admirers, was "Old Nosey" to his numerous enemies. Croughan was commonly referred to as "Beelzebub" or the "Arch Fiend." Peel went by the pleasanter title of "Spinning Jenny." And Canning habitually referred to Lord John Russell as "Pie and Thimble," Lord Ripon as "the Imp," and the Duke of Cleveland as "Miffy-Naffy."

Plans For World Wheat Congress

Regina Already Preparing For Big Conference in 1932

A building with floor space totaling ten acres will be built in Regina in connection with the World Wheat Congress which takes place during 1932.

This fact was made known in a statement at Toronto from D. T. Elderkin, secretary-manager of the Regina Exhibition Board.

Some 60 buildings will be used for exhibits, Mr. Elderkin adds, representing agriculture, industry, women's work, etc.

Preparations to be made in Regina for the conference were carefully outlined in Mr. Elderkin's report, which says in part:

"The city of Regina and the Exhibition Association have undertaken to provide accommodation.

"For the housing of the exhibits it is intended to erect a building with a floor space of up to ten acres. Some forty buildings also will be used for exhibits representing other products of agriculture, industry, women's work, school exhibits, fine arts, etc.

"The stadium provides seating for 20,000 people, and the armory 6,000. Should conditions indicate the need for a larger seating place the grandstand will be built to provide seating for 30,000 people. A system of amplifiers will be installed for the Grain Congress," Mr. Elderkin said, "so that a vast audience will be able to hear the addresses. It is intended to have at least six of the largest halls where the various sections may have their meetings.

"It is planned to reserve hotel accommodation for distinguished visitors. The loyalty of the citizens of Regina can be measured by the open their houses to the rest as was done in the capital during the poultry congress

"The city of Regina will be asked to provide tent city for the accommodation of about ten thousand visitors, while provision will be made for locating the thousands who will come in motor cars and bring their own camping equipment. It is intended to provide sleeping accommodation for as many as 50,000 visitors."

It was pointed out that the congress would coincide with the 50th anniversary of the beginning of agricultural development in the west as a result of the establishment of railway transportation. It would also be the 60th anniversary of Regina which was selected in 1882 as the site for the capital of what was then the Northwest Territories.

The preliminary prize list committee includes: Dr. J. H. Grisdale, deputy minister of agriculture, chairman; J. A. Mooney, C. H. Clarke, L. H. Newman and D. T. Elderkin.

The prize list, as suggested by the committee's report, calls for prizes totall ng $250,000.

In the wheat section, with six varieties of wheat, a total of $15 000 in prizes is offered for each variety or $90,000 in all. The manifestly less important grades offer smaller prizes

The general committee as accepted includes, Hon. W. H. Motherwell, chairman; Hon. James Robb, Hon. C A. Dunning, Hon. James Malcolm, Hon. Robert Forke, together with the provincial ministers of agriculture, the representatives of the Canadian Seed Growers' Association Canadian Millers' Association, Canadian Elevators' Association, Canadian Manufacturers' Association, Canadian Press Association, and the deans of all agricultural colleges

Delegates at the outset stressed the fact that the holding of the congress in Canada was indicative that the Dominion's agrarian backbone was rested by the world. Mr. Motherwell pointed out that the phenomenal increase in Canada's grain production since the war amounted to about 250 per cent.

for Economical Transportation

CHEVROLET

The Outstanding Chevrolet of Chevrolet History

—a Six in the price range of the four!

When you learn the full details of this outstanding new automobile, you will realize that Chevrolet has provided three qualities of the finest motor car value—economy, performance and beauty which have never until now been combined in one motor car.

The CHEVROLET Engine

The Outstanding Chevrolet is powered by a new six-cylinder valve-in-head engine of 50 horsepower.

It develops 10% more power than the previous Chevrolet motor and attains greater speed, faster acceleration and smoother performance at all speeds—and greater economy.

A new counterbalanced crankshaft insures high efficiency and long life in the new Chevrolet motor. The new lubrication system is entirely automatic, and the oil is changed only every 1,000 miles.

The new heavier crankshaft is carefully and dynamically balanced. The motor rocks very little on its mountings. The new Chevrolet motor has been developed to operate on regular grade gasoline.

Chevrolet motor and chassis parts are manufactured and assembled in the Chevrolet factories.

The same one-piece rear axle model is used.

The powerful, easily adjustable four-wheel brakes. Ball-bearing steering mechanism. And many other features which have been found to serve best under Chevrolet's severe test of economical transportation.

Other features include: Invar-strut pistons, full-length water jacket, generator and starter mounted on motor, fuel pump, vacuum tank, air cleaner, manifold heat control, centralized chassis lubrication, semi-elliptic springs, and many other improvements.

New Bodies by Fisher

In addition to the New Chevrolet offers an order of beauty, distinction and style never before attained in any low-priced automobile! The high fashioned hood and the gleaming chromium radiator shell herald the presence of a finer motor car.

Graceful fenders and crowned lines of the body are accentuated by distinctively grouped hood louvres, an expansive plate glass windshield and narrow corner posts.

The closed body models are smartly finished in rich colors and the upholstery is luxurious and comfortable; while the large, long, low-hung roadster and coupe models are the last word in the type for which Fisher is famous.

The new interiors are roomy and restful. The driver's seat in all closed models is easily adjustable, and the driver has unobstructed vision through an 8 per cent increase in the area of the high-grade glass. The many refinements, all combining to the meaning of economical transportation indicate why Chevrolet has the most pronounced leadership in its history.

Cook, who was in the rink, attended to the injured player

The visitors showed up best in the second period when they held the locals scoreless exhibiting good stick handling and asserting all their prowess on the attack. Scoring the stanza both Hansen and Wisbe, Vermilion forwards, were through the local defence and not only shot goals to head, but fry stopped them both. This period was inclined to be rough, and seven players were penalized

What Is Prosperity?

At a recent address before a large gathering of merchants, Mr. Edward A. Filene, a leading merchant of Boston discussed the rapid development and enormous size of many stores. The problems now confronting wholesalers and retailers in general must adjust themselves to changed conditions if they are to survive. He saw no reason why people should not be as well fed, clothed and housed in the future as they are at present. In the course of the address in question appearing at the head of this article appear the following remarks:

"General prosperity will be permanently prosperous only when millions of people, that is the masses, have buying power. Their purchases add to the prosperity of manufacturers, retailers, jobbers and transportation companies. Mass production means low prices, and low prices running at higher capacity enable more workers to earn more money. It is a happy cycle in which prosperity begets prosperity. It is absolutely necessary to the welfare of the classes because for any one of us to enjoy the greatest possible personal prosperity it is essential that our citizens must have buying power.

"Prosperity, continued Mr. Filene, is not wealth but buying power and the buying power must be employed, not by a relatively few wealthy persons, but by millions of people. If merchants had the chance to distribute a billion dollars' worth of goods among the residents of our trade area, we would not use that power to create a thousand millionaires. We would rather divide it up among the people in a way to give a comfortable living to each one of them, or we might decide to give fifteen or twenty dollars. But however we divided the wealth we would still use our opportunity to make a few millionaires because the ordinary merchant cannot depend on the trade of the wealthy for his sales and profits.

"The business successes of the future are going to be made by those who produce and distribute commodities in terms of millions. But this can be done only if industry creates enough purchasing power so that prosperity is not concentrated wealth but distributed buying power."

How, then is the average merchant to compete with the "chain stores" and the huge departmental stores, which are increasing in number and in size of huge departmental stores? These latter buy in enormous quantities and at the lowest possible prices. Their turnover is prodigious, and because of that fact, an extremely small profit on each item means enormous profits in the aggregate.

In a word, future successful merchandising must be based on mass production, at low production costs, and small profits per article. Therefore waste cannot be tolerated in any form including distribution. The "chain" store and the large departmental stores have been created in recognition of these facts.

The independent merchant must likewise realize and face the situation with which he is confronted, but in Mr. Filene's opinion, "independent merchants can not only meet the chain competition but beat it through co-operative associations organized on the principles that have made the chain stores so successful. Then, with the personal management of the owner, they will have the valuable element of personal management which the chain stores because the valuable element of personal management cannot be wholly secured from hired managers."

This is to say, independent merchants must join forces through the organization of co-operative associations for the purchase of goods and thereby buy more cheaply and enormously reduce distribution costs. But they must go further than that, in Mr Filene's opinion. They must individually and co-operatively wage warfare on all waste. Merchandising is not a war between the independents and the chains, but a war against waste. Retailers must reduce costs if they hope to survive, for there are coming a period of competition in which a terrific fight is going to be waged to cut the cost under dollar. Now food and rent take a large share of it; there is not much left for those of us who are selling other things. Our only hope lies in making the consumer's dollar bigger by eliminating waste. Not only waste in distribution but waste of every kind. Therefore as merchants we must take an interest in things not ordinarily thought to be any of our business. A fighting graft and open price in unprincipled business and living conditions. They take toll from the consumer's dollar, and the latter has to take the loss there is for us.

Here in Western Canada merchants should be in the forefront in endeavoring to reduce the loss in combatting noxious weeds which take from our farms millions of dollars annually and in actively co-operating with the farmers in all those things which will make agriculture a more paying proposition.

ST. VITUS DANCE

A Trouble That Usually Attacks Children Between Five and Fifteen Years

St. Vitus Dance is the name given to a disease described by medical men as chorea. This trouble usually attacks young children between five and fifteen years of age, but adults are afflicted with it. The most common symptoms are a twitching of the face and limbs. As the disease progresses the twitching affects the form of spasms, in which the jerking movements of the arms and legs and, indeed all the limbs may be affected. Frequently the patient is unable to hold anything for any length of time steadily. In severe cases the speech is affected. In bad cases the nerve force or debility of the nerves and relief from worry, work and bad blood supply. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have been successful in banishing this trouble through their specific action on the blood and nerves. They enrich and purify the blood. The following instance proves the value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for this trouble. Thomas Bowes, Bath, Ont., says, "Our little girl when five years old began to use in my family for years and during that time I believe that they saved the life of my only son. At ten years of age he began very nervous and the trouble developed into St. Vitus Dance. His legs and arms would jerk and twitch, then his speech was affected, and the condition was heartbreaking to see. He came to me a little book telling of what Dr. Williams' Pink Pills had done and I decided to give them to him. By the time he had taken a few boxes there was an improvement in his condition and by the time six boxes more were taken all traces of the trouble had disappeared, and he was well and strong. I have also given the pills to my growing girls, and they are of no half-way strengthening medicine. I may add that the same applies to grown-ups as well."

You can get these pills through any medicine dealer or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Must Pay Bills

Students In Manila Must Have Clean Record Before Graduation

Recently a provision has been added to the prerequisites of degrees granted by the University of the Philippines.

Following loud complaints by owners of Manila boarding houses, dormitories and restaurants, concerning the alleged prevalence of "deadbeats" among their student patrons, undergraduates will hereafter have announced that failure to pay bills will be considered ground for refusing graduation.

Examination of the list of student delinquents showed that the chief students virtually never paid their bills, while the well-to-do — or at least extravagant—were often habitual "dead-beats."

Inbred Love For Horses

No Doubt Regarding the Place That Man's Noblest Friend Holds in the Affections Of Human Race

No one who has been to the Collingwing the past week could have seen the immense audience that gathers nightly for the horse show can have any doubt regarding the place that the horse still holds in the affection of men and women. It is sometimes said that this is a mechanical age and that the ultimate doom of man' noblest friend is written on the wall. It is not so. That the automobile has largely supplanted the horse in matters of transportation must be admitted, but the splendid animal is still being bred and cultivated for various purposes on a scale that most peoples little dream of. The tremendous amount of interest that the various horse events at the Royal, the murmured comments and the outspoken admiration of hackney or hunters tell of deep-seated admiration that nothing can destroy. The love of the horse and quick horsemanship seems to be a natural instinct of every human being. It may be an inherited characteristic, of course, having its origin far back in the days when the horse was the mighty factor in war and in peace and in the building up of civilizations. Whatever its origin, it is there, and the Royal Winter Fair is doing its best to see that the instinct is cultivated and maintained.—Toronto Globe

A Mechanical Cashier

New Invention Makes Accurate Change and Gives Receipt

A machine that calculates change delivers the right amount to the customer in a fraction of a second, and totals up the money received by the day or week was seen at the recent Inventors' Exhibition, in London.

It is different from a machine that simply pays out money from a buyboard. The new invention does more: it does the thinking for the cashier or shopkeeper. If, for example, someone tenders £1 for a farthing bill, the operator presses the £1 stop key and the farthing value key, and the machine delivers 19s. 11¾d., including a neatly folded tax-stamped note and a dated receipt. A bell rings when a coin magazine is getting empty.

Two years were spent on drawings and calculations before a model was made, for there are 949 different amounts of money in the change for a one-pound note, and several thousand different combinations in all of the tenders possible of one pound and less.

Keeping People On Land

Italian Farmers Cannot Move Into Cities Without Permission

Benito Mussolini has been wielding the big stick again—for the good of his country.

His latest decree is that agricultural workers in certain areas cannot move into the cities without special permission, and that former agricultural workers now in the cities must go back to the land.

That is a drastic method of coping with the problem of rural depopulation; too drastic for adoption in any other land.

Yet there is something to be said for both sides of the question in these days of universal decline of the rural areas by the migration of agriculture, at workers to the urban areas and the bright lights.

The main objection to the Mussolini decree—and it is a very strong one—is that it is an interference with the liberty of the subject.

On the other hand, it is a good thing for the welfare of the state.

In nearly every country there are not enough people on the land. And there are too many people in the cities.

Cities are full of misfits. Boys brought up on farms hanker for city life. Mis. Many of them, following their rural upbringing, and because they are of the right fibre, they become successful in the cities. Many, however, never rise out of the common rank. They would have made better farmers than artisans.

Benito has the right idea, but perhaps, he has the wrong way of attaining it.

Reject Lovat Scheme

Government Of Canada Has Alternative Suggestions Under Consideration

The government of Canada, said Rt. Hon. L. C. Amery, secretary for the Dominions in the British House of Commons recently, has not accepted the scheme of Sir Simon Lovat put forward by Lord Lovat, chairman of the Overseas Settlement Board, but has under consideration alternative proposals.

The scheme sponsored by Lord Lovat provided for migration to Canada and called for imperial, Canadian and Canadian provincial government co-operation. It would have a system of loans to British youths and co-operation in providing training on the land. It was chiefly directed to greatly stimulating the family settlement schemes.

Signal honor was paid James D. McGregor, of Brandon, breeder of Aberdeen Angus cattle, and of Manitoba's first citizen, at Chicago recently, when his portrait in oils was hung on the walls of the Saddle and Sirloin Club, an honor reserved especially for those who win the respect and esteem of the stockmen of North America by their prowess in the breeding of livestock beyond the usual sphere. At the luncheon given in honor of Mr. McGregor, and at which the portrait was unveiled, were gathered together many of the outstanding stockmen of the continent to add their word of appreciation of Mr. McGregor's success.

Estimates Weight Of Earth

Chicago Man Revises Figures Given Thirty Years Ago

With her daughters striving earnestly to redress, old mother earth has just learned that she is some 587,-000,000,000,000,000,000 tons heavier than had hitherto been known.

Dr. Paul H. Rupp, of the United States bureau of standards at Washington announced the revised figures in a speech at Chicago. Five years ago he set about the task of weighing the earth to get a result more exact than the estimate of sir nextillion—the figure of six followed by 21 ciphers—tons arrived at about 30 years ago by an English scientist and a retired Jesuit in a Bohemian monastery, working independently. The latter calculations made in earth weighs somewhat more than six nextillion 593 quintillion tons.

Good Results Are Obtained By Sulphur Dusting As Against For Effective Rust Control

Sulphur dusting experiments conducted during the past summer in grain fields of western Canada have established beyond doubt the effectiveness of this method of cereal rust control, a report issued by the federal department of agriculture states.

A field trial in southern Manitoba, using a horse-drawn duster, netted the farmer $11.87 an acre from the operation, by increasing the yield and improving the grade of the dusted crop. Airplane dusting, the report adds, also proved satisfactory, but further experiments by this method will be made to ascertain the cost.

Twenty-six different forms of rust spores have been traced by the investigators and, according to the report, some of the cereal varieties grown are resistant to anything like the number of rust forms. Studies regarding the source of appearance of stem rust in western Canada indicate that earliest spring infections are due to rust spores which are carried in the air from the south.

While the report does not divulge the official results of this year's tests with the new rust fighting dust on wheat, it is pointed out that more than 350 farmers experimented with the need of the dust in various important and commercial qualities. Encouraging results, however, are anticipated as it is found that the blood meal in government tests had shown an ability to cope with stem rust better than most of the other chemicals wheat varieties. While not quite so high a yielder as Garnet, the grain of Reward is the best variety as it is red and plump, and the weight per measured bushel unusually high. The straw of this variety also is exceptionally strong.

Other tests have been made during the year by various experimental stations throughout the country to combat cereal diseases generally, but the statistics that sufficient progress has not yet been made to permit final evaluation.

Improvement Shown In Western Dairy Products

Larger Quantity Of First Grade Creamery Butter Produced This Year

"There is a larger volume of first grade creamery butter being produced on the prairies than a year ago," stated R. C. MacKay, of Winnipeg, federal chief of the western butter graders, recently.

While Mr. MacKay does not handle figures on cream receipts, which are the key to butter production, he said that judging from the quantities of butter inspected, he gained the impression that production was at least slightly greater than a year ago, even if indeed there was not an actual gain.

Considering quantities in store, production gave promise of taking care pretty generally of local consumption with little to spare.

Dairying seems to have turned the corner and better times are ahead for the industry, Mr. MacKay declared. Larger production with a surplus to export in competition with imported product will tend toward maintaining and improving standards of quality.

Knowledge Of Two Languages

Hon. Chas. Dunning Refers To the Advantage Of Understanding Both French and English

Hon. Charles Dunning made some significant remarks about bilingualism," says Le Soleil, of Quebec. It quotes him: "One of the impressions which I have carried back from my trip overseas is the splendid lesson of bilingualism which Geneva gave us. This lesson ought to inspire every Canadian to a better knowledge of the two official languages of the country. At the meeting of the League of Nations both languages were freely spoken. All the reports of the debates were published both in French and in English. I have often asked Canadians to learn the two official languages of the country in the past and at Geneva I realized the practical utility of such advice. Perhaps people will say that I do not practise what I preach, but do not forget that I have never had any other French teaching than that of the house of commons which cannot be of great importance to me at my age. Canadians generally, not speaking the two languages, have a great advantage over those who cannot."

A Record Skyscraper

Building In Tokio Will Have Eighty Storeys Underground

Japanese architects have plans prepared for the construction of a skyscraper eighty storeys deep. The building, which would be built down into the earth 1,100 feet, is designed in defiance of earthquakes.

This world's deepest "skyscraper" is planned for Tokio, where earthquake proof architecture has been a serious problem ever since the disastrous quake of 1923. Designs for the building are in the form of a huge circular well of steel framework elevators, ventilating airshafts, telephones and electric lights are provided for. The cost is set at about 11 million dollars. The Shin Nippon Construction Company is interested in the project.

Paris Using Army Trucks

Ambulances Also Are Being Utilized For Refuse Purposes

Of the 32,500 army trucks and ambulances left in France, by the American Expeditionary Forces in 1918, many are said to be still in service. They have been reconditioned or repaired where necessary and are now scattered in every part of the country. They are employed in commercial and industrial pursuits, in construction, street and highway building and maintenance; it is not uncommon to see them hauling paving blocks in the streets of Paris. The former ambulances have been converted into delivery trucks; many are in the provinces. Reports state that they have enough of most of the parts to keep the trucks in repair until they fall apart from old age.

The guns will be taken from here away because civic fathers deemed them gruesome reminders of carnage.

Rewarded For Research Work

Dr. Shutt Received Recognition From Ancient Society Of Agronomy

An award of $1,200 for outstanding achievements in nitrogen research has been granted to Dr. Frank T. Shutt, Dominion chemist, by the nitrogen research committee of the American Society of Agronomy. Dr. Shutt has been connected with the Dominion Experimental farm system for the past 41 years.

As Dominion chemist, Dr. Shutt's investigations have covered a wide field but he has given particular attention to the nitrogen problem due to its fundamental importance in all branches of agriculture. This work has embraced research to fertilizers, soils, feeding stuffs, the preservation of grains, the nitrogen compounds in rain and snow, and other problems.

According to officials of the department of agriculture, Dr. Shutt's investigations on nitrogen enrichment of soils through growth of legumes in crop rotation throughout Canada is to a large extent attributable to his work.

Valuable Silver Fox Shipment

Sixty Live Foxes Are Shipped From Alberta To Switzerland

Marking a new stride in the silver fox farming industry of Alberta, sixty live foxes from the fox farm of William Culpitts were shipped from Calgary recently, bound for Klosters-Switzerland, where they will be used for breeding purposes. This precious cargo, valued at $15,000, was carried on New York by the Canadian Pacific Express Company. Special instructions had been issued regarding the feeding, watering and general care of the animals, whose hides bring such a high price on the fur markets of the world.

Testing New Wheats

Canadian farmers are taking a keen interest in the "local variety" tests being conducted with wheat under the auspices of the Department of Agriculture The ultimate object is to find out as far as possible the varieties of wheat best suited to the different types of soil and different localities in the Prairie Provinces.

Tribute To Canada

Lion's Share Of British Settlers Come To Canada

Receiving More British Settlers Than Any Other Country

"Canada is receiving more British settlers than any other country as the results of aggressive publicity campaigns in the British Isles and the United States declared Robert J. C. Stead, of the federal department of immigration and colonization, in addressing the Lions' Club at Toronto.

"Generally speaking, every one wants immigrants as customers, but no one wants immigrants as competitors," Mr. Stead said. "This simple and obvious fact tremendously narrows the field of Canada's operations in the search for immigrants. In formulating Canada's programme of advertising for settlers, not only the country's physical resources and its customs and agricultural conditions must be considered, the psychology of the Canadian people toward the subject is of prime importance.

"All these factors are taken into consideration, and as a result our advertising is directed exclusively toward obtaining suitable settlers from the British Isles and the United States. There has been a good deal of clamor of late about Canada not getting its share of British settlers and we are getting more than any other country; substantially more than Australia, more than twice as many as all the British Dominions besides Australia; more than twice as many as the United States.

Would Remove Restrictions

Making It Easier For British Settlers Coming To Canada

An indication from the Prime Minister of Canada that some of the technicalities surrounding admission of immigrants into the Dominion might be removed, is given in an article in The Empire Review, London, written by Right. Hon. Mackenzie King and summarizing his impressions on the recent visit to Great Britain and Europe.

"It was necessary to ask the instructors only a half a dozen questions," the Canadian premier writes

"Why, then, should we require four or five sheets of family history and technicalities for the admission of immigrants." There are a lot of irritating things that could easily be removed and I am quite sure that the Government at Ottawa, having had them brought to their notice, will see they are remedied and that Canada gets a fair share of the magnificent types of young manhood and womanhood that are available over here."

A Gentle Reminder

The storm burst so suddenly upon us that we had no warning of its approach," remarked the globe trotter to a group of interested friends at the club.

In an instant, he continued, the house was demolished and scattered to the four winds. How I escaped being torn to pieces I do not know. Wonderful!

"Indeed, grandma," exclaimed Mr Mack jumping to his feet, that reminds me. I promised Bobby I'd get him a kite to-day."

Magnesite Deposits

The only known magnesite deposits of commercial value in western Canada are situated within a small area in Manitoba, about 100 miles north of Winnipeg, where in fairly large deposits a mineral named Brucite is found. Brucite is a high commercial substitute in composition to hard rock magnesite in powdery form and requires a different method of treatment. Experts in the market

Potato Planting Experiments Have Solved Many Problems And Cleared Up Controversies

A potato bulletin recently compiled by Prof. W. J. Squirrell and Prof. H. H. MacLeod, of the Ontario Agricultural College, clears up many of the old controversies of potato growing.

Experiments conducted at the O. A. C. and co-operative tests on a very large number of Ontario farms show that immature potatoes have a greater seed value than the mature tuber, that the size of the set planted has a very marked influence on the yield produced, and that the larger sets of two ounces weight produced a much higher yield both in the total number and those fit for market Many growers have claimed that potato sets should be planted with the cut surface downward but experiments in which one lot was planted with the cut surface up and the other with it down, the results showed practically no and nothing could be gained by planting the sets in any special direction. Another interesting set of results was also secured in tests with sets three, one and two and five eyes, respectively in each case. Three eyes produced a higher percentage of marketable potatoes, but those with the five eyes gave a very substantial increase in yield.

On the question of controversy, with growers as to whether or not potatoes should be cut several days before planting Experiments recorded in the bulletin show that potatoes cut and planted the same day gave higher yields than those cut four or five days previous to planting Other results show that the time of sets with slaked lime and ground plaster and treatment of the seed at the ground plaster is superior to shaker Rice

Not to topics as those which have been agitated about for years by potato growers, make the bulletin interesting. Topics treated are those of climate and soil, potatoe manure and fertilizers, preparation of land and seed bed, planting, spraying and the treatment for disease. Under the discussion of spraying a very important principle is stressed: "It should be borne in mind that spraying only pays when it is thoroughly done."

Storing and marketing are discussed and what will be a handy feature for all potato growers is a summary of the regulations governing certification and the sale of commercial potatoes

Standard For Poultry Packers

New Regulations Regarding Grading Will Be Of Great Benefit

Standards for graded poultry have been set up by order-in-council The Department of Agriculture, at Ottawa, announces that the regulations will be made compulsory this year, and inspection will not be given unless the packing is according to the standard requirements

Dressed poultry is divided into two main classes milk fed and selected There are eight grades and definitions are given for classification The regulations provide packing weights, methods of packing and preparing, stenciling and branding and the form of the certificate

Many marketing associations and packers are already packing their poultry according to the new standards, officials of the department indicate. It is stated that benefits will accrue in the same way as grading of eggs and other food products, particularly when the poultry is exported.

AT CHRISTMAS TIME Bethlehem is the fairest capital of all the earth. Then, the star of Bethlehem outranks all the flaming constellations. Then angels and archangels crowed the sky and fill the night with chants and praises. Then the shepherds come to seek for Mary's child. Wise men come, with gold for a newborn king,—with frankincense for the high-priest of all the ages and with myrrh for the sacrificial lamb. At Christmas time the manger is a sacred shrine and the swaddled babe is king of all the earth—Christmas the greatest day of all the year.

—William L. Gaston.

Where Santa Comes From

A Merry Christmas to All

From

Ye Editor and Staff

O LITTLE town of Bethlehem.
How still we see thee lie;
Above thy deep and dreamless sleep
The silent stars go by:
Yet in thy dark streets shineth
The everlasting Light;
The hopes and fears of all the years
Are met in thee to-night.

For Christ is born of Mary;
And gathered all above,
While mortals sleep, the angels keep
Their watch of wondering love.
O morning stars, together
Proclaim the holy birth,
And praises sing to God the King,
And peace to men on earth!

How silently, how silently,
The wondrous gift is given!
So God imparts to human hearts
The blessings of His heaven:
No ear may hear His coming;
But in this world of sin,
Where sweet souls will receive Him, still
The dear Christ enters in.

O Holy Child of Bethlehem,
Descend to us, we pray;
Cast out our sin, and enter in.
Be born in us to-day.
We hear the heavenly angels
The great glad tidings tell:
O come to us, abide with us,
Our Lord Immanuel. Amen.

The Legend of the Christmas Stocking

MANY, many years ago there lived in Europe a very wealthy man named St. Nicholas. He liked nothing better than to help poor people, but disliked very much being thanked for his gifts. One Christmas Eve he wished to give a purse of gold to an old man and his little daughter, and in order to escape being seen, he climbed to their roof and dropped his precious gift down the chimney. Instead of landing on the hearth, however, the purse fell right into a stocking which was hung up to dry, and the next morning it was discovered there! When other people heard of the strange happening they too hung up their stockings, and soon all over the land it became the custom on Christmas Eve to hang up one's stocking for St. Nicholas to fill.

OVER Judea's hills the Star shone resplendent. The ancients believed that stars were windows through which God disclosed a glimpse of the shining glory of heaven. They regarded the stars as guides and when the stars could not be seen it was a token of impending danger. On the first Christmas Eve a star shone. Kepler, the noted astronomer, calculated that conjunction of Jupiter and Saturn took place. The star attracted the attention of three wise men who followed it. Tradition informs us they were three kings and "in one of the cathedrals of Europe can be found their skulls, each adorned with a jeweled crown." Another tradition says they were three saints, representing the three great families of the earth. They came from the East, perhaps from far-away Arabia. They brought costly presents with them. The first held in his hand a casket of gold; the second, frankincense, and the third, myrrh. Some persons have seen in this three-fold gift a beautiful symbolism: the myrrh having been offered to a mortal, the gold to a king, and the frankincense to a God.

Tradition tells us of a Roman prince who, while feasting in his palace on Christmas Eve, heard a rap at the window. Looking toward it, he saw a beautiful face of a little child, and then heard a voice which, like music, whispered: "The Christ Child is hungry." Angered at the interruption, the prince commanded his soldiers to drive the child away and immediately the food upon his table turned to sand. Again he heard the voice, "The Christ Child is cold." The soldiers drove the child away once more. At the same time the fire upon the hearth turned to darkness and the cold of winter dispelled the warmth of the palace. The selfish heart of the prince melted. He commanded his soldiers to search for the child. Presently they brought the child, together with other hungry children, to the palace. Henceforth his table was their table, his palace their home. The prince had found the joy of Christmas by first giving it to others.

The hunger of the race is three-fold: for food, truth, and God. These hungers are satisfied not by hanging all our gifts upon our own Christmas tree, but by sharing with those less fortunate than ourselves the blessings of life.

—Leonard A. Barrett

BETTER-LATE-THAN-NEVER XMAS GIFT

"Every other teacher in Grant school received some sort of a Xmas remembrance from their kiddies but me," was the mournful message that drifted through the transom of the Mattocks' home to the ears of Dorothy Littleton and Grace Carter. "I've tried so hard to please them and I love every one of them, but I guess I'm just a dismal failure."

True enough, the girls of the grammar room of the Grant school thought to break Miss Mattocks, their teacher, of being strict with them, they would see that she received no Christmas present. They had gotten it into their fair heads that Miss Mattocks was their enemy, but now — Dorothy and Grace had discovered that Miss Mattocks was only human and that—well, it couldn't be possible —she loved them.

About ten o'clock the Mattocks sisters were startled by the peal of their doorbell. Most every student of the grammar room of Grant school was there on the little porch. "We thought we would do something different this year," they chimed when she opened the door. They had brought along a gay tree, all decorated, and a whole shower of nice presents. Perhaps these were last-minute presents, but Miss Mattocks didn't know that, and since the children were sorry for the way they had misjudged her and she was so happy, what did it matter?

Canada in 1928

The year of 1928 is drawing to a close and it is timely, therefore, to take a glance backward and estimate how we have fared, the extent of the progress made by Canada during the twelvemonth.

It will, we believe, be generally agreed that the hopeful outlook for Canada has unequivocally expressed by green and platitudes at the time of the Diamond Jubilee celebrations last year has been strengthened by the developments of this year. During 1928, Canada has been prosperous and has made substantial progress in many ways, while in no respect has it slipped back. Viewing the Dominion as a whole, there does not appear to be any one section that is not occupying a more favourable position at the close of the year than it did when the year opened.

Commencing down in the Maritime Provinces, it is frankly recognised that conditions are immeasurably better and that an entirely new spirit of confidence prevails which is in sharp contrast to the depression, even pessimism, which was noticeable a year or two ago. The people of the Maritimes are imbued with a new courage and energy, and are tackling their problems, and engaging in their enterprises, in a manner which spells the days of their earlier history.

Throughout Quebec and Ontario all industry has been maintained at a high level building construction in the cities has been carried out on a wide scale, the volume of provincial revenue, and as a consequence of these things employment has been general, wages good, and all business has enjoyed a fair share of the resultant prosperity.

Dealing more particularly with the Prairie Provinces, the same advancement is to be noted, but to an even more marked degree. A larger acreage than ever before was seeded to crop, and the largest volume of grain in the history of this country was harvested. Unfortunately, early frosts before the grain had fully ripened resulted in a serious reduction in grades and consequent heavy loss to the producers. Nevertheless, substantial progress has been recorded.

The rapid progress made in the building of the Hudson Bay Railway, the completion of the branch line to the Flin Flon, Manitoba, mineral belt, other lines into the mineralized areas of northern sections of Manitoba and Saskatchewan, and the successful conclusion of negotiations whereby the C.P.R. and C.N.R. jointly assume the ownership and operation of the railways in Northern Alberta, have opened a new era for the West, and in the next few years a great volume of wealth will flow out of these formerly inaccessible regions.

And, while these Western Provinces will long remain pre-eminently agricultural in character and production, their present population of over two million people and their continuing growth and increased productive capacity have during this year attracted the attention of manufacturing industry as never before. The year marked the beginning of a large movement of manufacturing industry westward which, it is confidently predicted will take on additional momentum in 1929, and succeeding years.

With development proceeding at an accelerated pace and on a permanent basis throughout the prairie country, the Pacific Coast province is enjoying a larger home market for its fish, lumber and minerals, and to an increasing extent is becoming the outlet through which Western grain passes to the markets of the world.

Such developmental activity in all the Provinces has found its counterpart in a tremendous increase in the trade and commerce of the Dominion, in hotspot revenues leading to gratifying decreases in the public debt, greater financial stability and reduced taxation.

Coupled with all those evidences of material growth and prosperity, Canada has been fortunate in 1928 because of an absence of any great disasters or epidemics or disease. There has also been an absence of any great social unrest or industrial strife. Progress has been well balanced in all the activities of the Canadian people, who, taken as a national family, have found their ways to be ways of pleasantness and peace.

With 1928 having provided such an immediate background, and bearing in mind the staunchness of the foundations laid in preceding years, Canada does can, and do, look forward with confidence to the new year soon to dawn, and with, we are convinced, a determination to still higher and nobler achievement.

Amiens Reception On Estate Of Duchess Of Portland

What becomes of the overworked heroes of London? Some of them find their way to Welbeck Abbey, the country seat of the Duchess of Portland. The sight of a horse struggling with a load brought its strength to the mind for a sincere lover of animals.

The Duchess often stops and buys a street overworked horse in the street and sends it to her rest home in the Midlands where some of these animals are to be found frisking about the fields 24 rat and strong and ready for work again.

Good Market In Belgium

Country Shows Partiality For Many Canadian Products

The extent to which the Department of Trade and Commerce, through its ministers, the Canadian trade commissioners in Europe, is expanding trade for Canadian firms was shown in an interview last night with Hon. J. Guay, Canadian government trade commissioner in Belgium, with his headquarters in Brussels. After spending six months in Canada, Mr. Guay is returning by way of Antwerp on the Red Star Liner Lapland, sailing from Halifax.

A few years ago, he said, Scandinavian firms generally were somewhat indifferent when Canadian trade commissioners approached them with a view to increasing business. Nowadays the Dominion representatives labored they could not work up any enthusiasm. But the attitude has changed very considerably since then, and with the aid of Canadian firms the trade has increased, not only "increased very materially," Mr. Guay added.

All the present time Belgium shows a partiality for Canadian wheat, flour, rubber goods, automobiles, salmon, lobster, leather goods, skins and furs, asbestos, wallpaper and deluxe articles such as the better class of silk goods. As an example of the interest which has been built up in Belgium, Mr. Quay said that he was approached recently by a Belgian firm which wished to obtain a small shipment of Canadian lobster. Correspondence with a Canadian firm of lobster from the Canadian firm, and now they have notified them that they will require an additional 150-ton weekly supply for the winter months.

Mr. Guay gave still another instances of how Canadian products are received in Belgium. On this visit he called on a manufacturer and persuaded him to make room for a small stock of his products because there is a demand for them in Belgium. Mr. Guay said he felt sure that this manufacturer will have almost the same experience as the other one, and that he will have no reason to regret his decision to make Belgium a market.

Bernstorff asked for discussion "to ascertain any changes in opinion since the last meeting. Virtually all nations had accepted the principle of control of government production, but the commission has not been able to agree on details of control of private production.

A move is being made by the Overseas Settlement Department to organise residential hostels in many parts of the kingdom, where women will receive tuition in domestic management as a preliminary to their departure to domestic employment overseas. The training hostel opened last December by the Duchess of York, at Market Harborough, has proved a great success, and other hostels are now under consideration for Scotland, Lancashire, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and Wales.

Aberdeen Storekeeper Had Shopp Thought To Save Money

A certain fancy goods dealer in Aberdeen is being told that she blind was a disgrace to a window, excused himself on the plea that a new one was so costly. "But," his friend replied, "you'll lose business if you keep a shabby blind like that." "Perhaps you're right," said the shopkeeper. "I must really see what I can do." Some weeks after his friend called again and was delighted to see a decided change for the better. "That's a lovely blind you've got," he remarked. "It must have cost a fine penny." "It did that," was the naive reply. "But my customers helped a good deal. You see, I placed a collection box on the counter with a printed notice, "For the Blind," and I got all I wanted."

Church Built On Boundary

London Preacher In One Parish Addresses Hearers In Another

The Moravian Chapel, Fetter Lane, is the oldest place of Protestant worship in London, having been first used as such in the reign of Queen Mary, when the congregation met in a barn. Its structure was altered in the Queen Anne style.

It possesses another unique distinction in that it is the only place of worship in the Metropolis, and probably in England, in which the preacher has to stand and deliver his sermons in one parish to his hearers seated in another, the boundary line between St. Bride's parish and that of St. Dunstan's-in-the-West running directly in front of the pulpit.

The Moravian Church bought the chapel in 1738, and amongst famous Nonconformists who have preached there were Wesley, Whitefield, and Rickard Baxter.

HEARING A BREAKDOWN

A Condition That Calls For a Reliable Tonic

Many women give so much of their time to the cares of their families that they neglect their own health and soon become victims of one of a breakdowns before they realize that their health is impaired. Often the heart palpitates violently at slight exertion, the stomach fails to digest food and discomfort follows. The nerves become weak and headaches and backaches prevail. The body grows weak and they are always depressed. This condition demands immediate treatment with such a reliable tonic as Dr. Williams' Pink Pills which enrich and build up the blood, carrying renewed energy to every part of the body. The value of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is fully proved by the following statement from Mrs. Alex. McInnes, Bowsman River, Man., who says: "About a year ago I had a serious illness which left me very nervous. I was not able to get around to do my work; in fact I could scarcely walk. I was troubled with palpitation of the heart with the least exertion. One day a friend advised me to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills as they had done her much good. Labor Leaders In Britain See Opportunities For Advancement Here

Replying to a question in the House of Commons, Right Hon. Sir Arthur Steel-Maitland, minister of labor, stated the speakers at a recent meeting in the Scottish mining centre of Hamilton, Lanarkshire, were two out of 10 miners who had been specially recommended by Labor leaders and others to go to Canada with the harvesters and see what the conditions actually were. Their expenses had been defrayed out of voluntary funds. The speakers at Hamilton had received travelling expenses, but no fees and were not employed by any government department, the minister added.

The speakers in question set forth their health in glowing terms as to be found in the Dominion, and a series of such meetings are being organised by the Canadian Labor. It is understood they have already resulted in an influx of applications for special instructions from the agriculture preparatory to emigration to Canada.

WINDOLITE

MADE IN ENGLAND

The Invented Glass Substitute

COMES WITH A MESSAGE OF HEALTH

THE sun is the all-powerful life producer. Nature's universal disinfectant and germ destroyer. As well as a stimulant and tonic. WINDOLITE is the sun's most important ally.

Medical research has definitely proved that from the point of view of health and hygiene, the most effective among the sun's rays, are the violet rays. WINDOLITE gives the greatest power for the prevention and cure of disease and debility.

Science has further established that ordinary window glass does not allow the passage of Ultra-Violet rays, so that by using glass we are artificially excluding these vital health-giving rays. Therefore, the invention of WINDOLITE has completely satisfied the long-felt want. Exhaustive experiments have conclusively proved WINDOLITE to be an effective substitute for glass that it freely admits the Ultra-Violet rays and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens and on the well-being of cattle, enabled for the first time to have healthy light instead of darkness in their sheds.

Indeed the discovery of WINDOLITE has during the last six years completely revolutioned gardening, given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increased the egg-laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the lean in of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements.

WINDOLITE stands for 100 per cent. sunlight. It makes light Let strong windows for cattle sheds, stables, poultry houses, brooders and all out buildings It is economical, unbreakable, flexible and is easy to cut and fit It is now being successfully used for sunrooms, verandahs, school, factories, hospitals, sanitariums, hot beds, plant coverings and greenhouses It keeps out cold —not out cracks or chip—cuts with an ordinary pair of scissors and is easy to handle. WINDOLITE is supplied in rolls any length but in one width of 36 inches only. A square yard of WINDOLITE weighs about 14 ozs., while a square yard of glass of ordinary thickness, weighs about 126 to 140 ozs. The improved WINDOLITE requires no varnish. WINDOLITE is made in England.

POOL SHOULD HAVE RIGHT TO DO OWN GRADING

Maidorf, Sask.—A declaration that the Dominion of a co-operative should stand out of the way, clear the tracks and give the right to do its own grain grading, thereby establishing grades for food wheat and grades for non-Food wheat has been made by locals of the United Farmers of Canada, Saskatchewan section.

This second "reign of Ottawa" has come by reason of a resolution of members of the Saskatchewan grain inquiry commission presented at their session here, and was the result of a meeting of certain locals of the organization in the Carrot River Valley district.

Announcement was made that Dr. F. J Birchard, chemist in charge o. the grain research laboratory of the Board of Grain Commissioners of Canada, would be a witness before the commission at some future date. It is expected that this will be early when the commission opens its sessions in Winnipeg in the month o. February.

While complaints poured into the commissioners from farmers on the question of grades and while there was a unanimity of opposition to the mixing practices of private elevators, no serious car shortage was reported during the present season from any point in the district.

But if the commissioners had been inclined to be critical in the last few days of lack of constructive suggestions and views from farmers as to how the grading and sampling difficulties were to be overcome, no such criticism could be made out here. Hardly a witness closed his evidences without leaving some thought in the minds of the note books of the commissioners.

Mrs. Moock, who had sat with her face as his fury filed in, began to cry when the jury announced they had reached a verdict and when it was read Grace was sobbing violently and had to be assisted from the court room by Attorney Patrick.

Moock was taken immediately to his cell in the jail where, asked if he had any statement to make first said, "Why" and when told it would be his words after the winter months.

Arms Parley Faces Failure

No Discussion Was Started and Commission Adjourned

Failure faces the League of Nations final effort to launch an international convention for control and publicity of armaments and governmental arms expenditures.

Count Von Bernstorff, of Germany, appealed in vain for discussion on general discussion, and not a single speaker rose to open the discussion. The commission was obliged to adjourn after naming a sub-commission.

Bernstorff asked for discussion "to ascertain any changes in opinion since the last meeting. Virtually all nations had accepted the principle of control of government production, but the commission has not been able to agree on details of control of private production.

Time Limit For Pension Appeals

Chief Adviser Of Department At Ottawa Explains Matter

Ottawa, Ont.—The time limit within which all appeals to the federal appeal board in pension cases must be entered does not expire at the end of the month, according to a statement made last night by K. G. MacDonald, chief soldier's adviser of the department of pensions and national health.

There has been, Mr. MacDonald said, some apprehension concerning the statutory time limit governing appeals. He points out that the pension act, as amended at the last session of parliament, sets the time limit for entering an appeal from a decision of the board of pension commissioners as on or before Dec. 31, 1928, or within two years from the date of the decision complained of.

This means that an appeal can be entered at any time within two years of the decision, unless such decision is given on or before Dec. 31, 1928, in which case the final time limit is Dec. 31, 1928.

Time Has Been Extended

Alberta Will Ship Coal To Ontario Soon

Ottawa.—Subject to the exigencies of the grain movement, the experimental shipments of Alberta coal to Ontario under the $6.75 per ton rate will be extended in 1929 for a period of six months.

No provision has yet been made for granting a six months test period to Alberta for 1929.

Ontario consumers have not yet turned in to the Board of Railway Commissioners a statement of the coal involved in the experiment for 1928. A hearing was held a month ago at which counsel for both the Canadian Pacific companies declared that their coal sheets could not be ready before the end of the current fiscal year, March 31, and that until some time after that date will it be known if the government who has pledged to reimburse the companies for any financial loss sustained in the tests, will have to distribute any federal funds.

Close Of Navigation

Navigation On Great Lakes Ended On Night Of Dec. 13th.

Winnipeg.—Navigation on the Great Lakes is closed, following a season in which all former grain movement records were broken on Lake Superior and Port Arthur. A total of 278,780,000 bushels of all grains was shipped out of the lake head this year as compared with 193,000,000 bushels last season.

While the official close of the shipping season was really November 30, fine weather and the continued free movement of grain from the prairies kept ships busily plying back and forth until Dec. 12, which marked the last day on which insurance was obtainable.

Cargoes aggregating 2,780,000 bushels left the head of the lakes on the last grain freighters to attempt the downward trip. Grain movement on the prairies still continues heavy.

Coal and Oil Discoveries Reported In Vicinity Of Hudson Bay Junction

Hudson Bay Junction, Sask.—Mining talk is commanding a lot of attention in the Junction these nights and it's not all about the Pas country either. FLOYD HOCKEYISTS TRIUMPH OVER LOCALS

Friday Night's Game Was Thrilling Encounter—Score 6-4

Sixty per cent of the play with regard to the goals is a true sum up of the locals chance in the game on Friday night last. It was a fast breaking game to lose, because the locals had the goals scattered by the border town hockeyists were of the second rate sort variety. While three of the Floyd Clarence Barr and Cozart did much more scored from close in and Manson Barr's counter, while from a little way off, was a nifty shot between two of the defence men, and gave Ivy Nitz little chance to save

The locals boys went into the game, though minus three goals from the previous game, and they showed that they meant business from start to finish and tied up the score, only to have a set-back by Mead to break the tie and clinch the game for the Lloyd boys Just before the bell rang Leslie, centre for Lloydminster, got another had one over Nitz in net

The locals are well satisfied with the exhibition of hockey given Burns last game The territorial play was in their favor, the rovers showing they outshot their opponents, and their shots were all from closer in.

Ethel Catherwood, who distinguished herself as an athlete representing Canada at the Olympic games in Amsterdam in August, has been honoured by the Canadian Pacific Railway station on the recently constructed Kootenay-Pardee branch has been named "Catherwood," after her.

Twenty-five years ago Thomas Hubert, now employed as a baggageman on the C. P. R. between Ottawa and North Bay, lost a valuable silver watch which was given to a field near Pembroke. The other day a glittering object was turned by a plough. It was Hubert's watch, the glass broken and the hands gone, but still retaining a brilliant lustre. The finder had been ploughing many times since it was lost.

Toronto is preparing to receive the largest number of prominent baseball figures ever to be in Canada at one time. The Baseball Association of Professional Baseball Leagues will meet there shortly and every baseball club in America will be represented. Judge Landis will be on hand, and the total attendance is expected to amount to over five hundred, delegates coming from points as far as Russia.

The removal of additional snow that was thrown into the streets prior to Lake Louise recently was not required by Jake Barrymore, in producing an Alpine winter story to be released shortly, as plenty of the real stuff was available at the glaciers. This popular actor, with Camille, and a cast of about twenty-five persons, spent some three weeks at the Chateau Lake Louise, rising each morning at four o'clock in the dark to reach their "locations" on Victoria and Saddleback Glaciers by 7:30 a.m. to get best light effects in the morning for their various "shots".

When a young couple from Calgary drifted back in the station at Winnipeg 10 minutes after the "Imperial" had left for the Canadian Pacific officials were given the choice the other day of buying and otherwise caring for a nine-months-old baby for two days or holding the train for thirty-five minutes at North Transcona. They chose the latter, much to the relief of the parties and conductor, who are not family men. The rejected family sailed on the "deferred" to spend Christmas in the old country.

Acting on a telegram received from Sheriff Wright of Ottawa, Ontario, Constable McPhail of the R.N.W.M.P. arrested one James Proudfoot on the charge of embezzlement. It is alleged the accused embezzled a large sum of money from different people of Gilbert and then decamped west to Alberta. Proudfoot was arrested at his home which is in the Salzaz district.

A party of C.N.R. railway surveyors came in a few days ago having completed the work of running trial lines of the Bruderheim branch as far east as the Vermilion river. They also surveyed a line from east of Campbell Lake to town and made two or three crossings of the river east of town.

STOCKWELL — BRAKE

A wedding which created much interest in the neighborhood, owing to the popularity of the two young people most prominent in the event, took place in St. Mary's church, Wetaskiwin on Wednesday, Dec. 12th at 2:30 p.m. when Miss Lillian Mary, only daughter of Mr. A. O. Brake, was given in marriage by her father to Edward Arthur Stockwell, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. G. J. Stockwell of Wetaskiwin, formerly Mr. Harry Brake, being best man.

The ceremony was performed by Rev. A. Ross Sage, assisted by Rev. S. H. Goudge. The service was dignified and impressive. Mrs. Pamsch presided at the organ.

The bride wore a lovely dress of white georgette over satin and lace, with a wreath and veil, and her bridesmaid, Miss Eva Cook, looked very sweet and dainty in pink silk crepe with a black velvet hat.

The bride had a beautiful bouquet of white carnations, and the brides maid an equally beautiful one of pink carnations." An archway had been erected at the entrance to the altar, and was decorated with sprays of smilax and with moss, as were, too, the altar rails and window sills, near. Pink and colored flowers were also interspersed amongst the more sombre-hued foliage; the whole effect lighted up by brilliant sunshine, was very pretty.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the bride's home at Campbell Lake, where a large party of relatives and friends spent a very enjoyable time. The young couple are the recipients of many useful and beautiful presents. They left during the evening for Edmonton and on their return will reside in Wetaskiwin.

SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE NOTES

V. S. A. Debate Team Chris at Sunday

On Tuesday evening, Dec. 11th the V. S. A. hockey line-up played their first game of the season with the town clerks, resulting in a 6-1 victory for the College boys. Resplendent in their new uniforms of black and gold the collegians outplayed the clerks at every turn of the game. Taylor and Burch divided the scores between them. As might be expected at the first game, the ice was somewhat rough and soft.

A return game was played on Thursday and again the Clerks were swamped in a deluge of goals, resulting in a final score of 7-0 in favor of V.S.A.

The College line-up was goal, F. Mead; defence, Begg and W. Mead; forwards, Taylor, Johnson and Burch Substitutes were McIntyre, Moran, Bespalko and Elgie. Unfortunately we have not been able to get the line-up of the Clerks at other game.

In the last game of the Valley Ball league, Division AB, four years, were again defeated by the all-victorious second years. "Stumps" from the second year were defeated in a non-league game

Elections of the V.S.A. representative to the Boys' Parliament was held last week when Wm. Elgie was elected by a large majority. He will attend the Parliament when it is held in Calgary during the Christmas holidays, all expenses to be paid by the College.

The oratorical contest created more than the usual interest due to the excellence of the several speakers. Miss Alicia Adair and Miss Ina Colborne tied for first place, which finally went to Miss Adair at a tie-breaking contest held a few days later

School closes on Thursday for the Christmas holidays and will re-open on January 3rd. A closing dance will be held then evening

ENTHUSIASM!

Without enthusiasm nothing great was ever achieved.

The underlying principle of every wonderful accomplishment is enthusiasm.

Inventors, actors, authors, merchants, printers, editors all must enthuse to be successful.

If the teacher is pale, enthuse over it. Is a little while you won't mind it—in fact you will enjoy it.

Enthusiasm is the life-blood of everything. It makes the tiniest grove its rudimentis. It warms up the blood, it makes you wide awake, it stirs up the community

If everybody were enthusiastic there would be no drones.

Enthusiasm, backed by good sound business principles and liberality in what makes trade easy and everybody happy.

MOST POWERFUL LOCOMOTIVE IN WORLD

The photograph shows the engine of the new E2S2 H.P. oil-electric locomotive designed by modern power engineers of the Canadian National Railways and now placed in service. The locomotive weighs 670,000 pounds and is designed to operate fast passenger and freight service where speed and power are required. Efficiency of operation and economy are features of this new monarch of the rails which marks such an evolution in the history of transportation that engineers believe it will prove to be the forerunner of the steam locomotives. It is capable of carrying larger trains for greater distances with less fuel consumption than any type of locomotive now in use. The power developed by the oil engine is converted into electrical energy by the generator and then transmitted to the traction motors geared to the driving axles. In the cab window of the lower photograph is seen C. E. Brooks, Chief of Motive Power of the Canadian National Railways, who is largely responsible for the new locomotive.

Real Friendship Lasts

Does Not Alter With Circumstances Or Is Genuine

Once a southern man presented letters of introduction to a socially prominent New York family, and received the incredible reply. "Our social circle is already complete." Such snobbishness could never know aught of real friendship. No slim person would willingly close any avenue of his life to a possible friend; for friends are the finest fortune. They make life. A "social circle" or a "set" may bore one; but true friends vitalize the soul and fortify the brain.

Real friendship lasts. That is not the genuine friendship which "alters with when it alteration finds." Of the greatest, friend it is recorded, "Having loved his own, He loved them unto the end."

The Christmas Spirit

Feeling Of Good-Fellowship Will Come In Pandemic

The Christmas Festival of goodwill, good-fellowship and peace has lost none of its popularity in its passage through the ages.

Nineteen hundred and twenty-eight finds us welcoming it as heartily as did our ancestors a thousand years ago, before railways, telephones, radios or automobiles were even dreamed about.

It awakens dormant feelings and aspirations which the clamor of worldly life stifles and deadens.

It opens deep springs of brotherhood and love, from whence flow desires to bless with gifts and good wishes.

Bank Of Montreal Annual Meeting

Meeting Marked By Many Important Developments

The 111th annual meeting of the Bank of Montreal, held at the head office, was marked by a number of important incidental and developments. Sincere expressions of regret were made at the death of Sir Vincent Meredith, Chairman of the Board, who had presided at the Annual Meeting of the Bank for so many years.

On special importance was the announcement of an increase in the authorized capital from $31,176,900 to $60,000,000. No intimation was given of the amount that would be issued at the present time.

Sir Charles Gordon, president of the Bank, presided for the first time, in his address to shareholders, he said, in part:—

"Reviewing the business situation in Canada, one cannot but remark how rapidly the basic progress of the national wealth are widening. The concurrence of a wide variety of raw materials and water powers in a truly gigantic scale gives Canada unparalleled opportunities for all-round development, and the fact that these opportunities are being realized is resulting in the maintenance of a high level of employment, ever increasing large investments of capital and steadily increasing national wealth are general activity.

"There seems to be a somewhat widespread idea that Canadian banks have transferred large amounts of capital from this country for investment in call loans. That notion is wholly unfounded. The money of the Bank of Montreal, and I may say I believe of other banks, employed for call loans has long been to carry in New York the balances of correspondent banks we serves or quick assets. No funds, however, have been loaned in New York or London to be loaned on call in other countries. Our funds in our own country has been carefully examined and, if at all possible, consolidated. The call loans are to-day less than they were a year ago."

Sir Frederick Williams-Taylor, general-manager of Bank of Montreal, presided at the Montreal City Bank, said in part:—

"Canada as a whole has enjoyed more prosperity than ever before. At the commencement of 1928 a succession of good harvests had already placed the Dominion on a sound footing and the position has been further improved this year by good average yields of staple products in all the older provinces, while the Prairie Provinces have far surpassed their previous records. In industrial activity an encouraging enlargement has shown itself in construction work, many of a more durable and preserve character. These include the further substantial extension of great natural assets, water powers, minerals, and forests, also, we have seen a further increase in revenue from the tourist trade, now ranking high among the Dominion's assets."

"These factors have put large sums of money into general circulation, they have increased the purchasing power of many of our industries, and have created the highest rate of employment since the War. Particularly in the two chief industrial cities, we have Quebec and Ontario, manufacturing has been on an unprecedented scale, despite exceptions in a few lines owing to outside competition.

"In Western Canada the year has been remarkable, not only for the record production in the Prairie Provinces, but also for a reduction in harvested cost per bushel due chiefly to good weather and partly to the greatly increased efficiency of cultural machinery.

"The steady decline of rural population, often the subject of comment, is partly attributable to the enormous production per man-power brought about by mechanization; the variety of labour-saving equipment increasingly used on farms all over Canada both enlarges the opportunity and greatly improves the living conditions of our agricultural people.

"These developments show the Canadian farmer today as a man of affairs who is rapidly bringing his business up to the standard of highly developed urban industries.

Origin Of Christmas Tree

Dates Back To Old German Saint Boniface Of Eighth Century

According to an old Germal legend, it is to Saint Winifred that we owe the origin of the custom of the Christmas tree. The story tells how the Saint gathered a large number of converts around her to witness a burning down of a very large oak tree which for several years had been pronounced accursed by the people for worship. Half-way through the ceremony, however, a strong wind rushed through the forest, uprooted the oak and blew it down in a crashing heap. Only one thing which lay in its path remained unscathed—a young fir that was a small fir tree, which still remained erect pointing its slender form to heaven. The people considered it a miracle, and the Saint immediately blessed the tree and called it the "tree of the Christ Child."

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

THE BIRTH OF JESUS

Golden Text: "There is born to you this day in the city of David, a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord."—Luke 2:11.

Lesson: Luke 2:1-20.

Devotional Reading: Isaiah 11:1-6.

Explanations and Comments

The Birth Of Jesus At Bethlehem, verses 1-7.—When Caesar ordered the enrolment of every one in the Roman Empire, the people of Palestine went each to "his own city" to be enrolled. Bethlehem had been the home of David, their ancestor, and therefore Mary and Joseph went from Nazareth of Galilee, where they were living, to Bethlehem to be enrolled. There Jesus was born, and Mary laid Him in a manger, because there was no room for them in the inn.

The Story Of the Shepherds and the Angels, verses 8-14.—"Be not afraid, for behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy which shall be to all the people." Then the angelic glad words heard by shepherds who were watching their flocks in the fields near Bethlehem on the night of the birth of our Lord and Saviour.

And this was the good tidings, that there is sent to you this day in the city of David a Saviour, who is Christ the Lord." Good tidings, the title of Jesus as the One consecrated to be the Redeemer of the world, for it means "The Lord saves."

And this is the sign unto you: Ye shall find a babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, and lying in a manger," the angels said. The manger was the usual feeding trough for animals. The "sign" was in the unexpected circumstance of a baby being cradled in a manger. The swaddling clothes were the bands of cloth with which eastern mother wraps tightly around the body of her babe, confining legs and arms.

Suddenly a multitude of the heavenly host appeared praising God by saying, "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, among men in whom he is well pleased." The last part of this song should more accurately be rendered "among men with whom he is well pleased."

Canadian Orchestra Scores Triumph

A distinct contribution to the advancement of Canadian orchestral music is the recording of two of the outstanding popular productions of recent years—Nanette and Fi-Fi-Fy—by the Eveready Concert Orchestra, a Canadian organization of high quality and the radio audience of CKNC will interesting programs during the past few days of scientific research and chemical activity, no industry can look into the future and say: "I am secure." Prince Rover Population

Report Shows Population Nearly Quarter Million Greater Than Last Year

It is estimated that in the ten months ended October 31st, more than 180,000 persons have come into the Peace River Country to take up residence. This is almost as many as the entire population in the north during the summer of 1927. It has been estimated that the area of settlement land in the Peace River Country, in 1927, was 537,000 acres The amount ready for crop in 1929 will be in the neighborhood of 900,000 acres.

British Boys and Girls Coming

Two hundred British boys will be brought to Alberta next year under the system originated by Hon. George Hoadley, Minister of Agriculture for Alberta. Two parties of British girls for domestic service in Alberta are also being brought out during the winter.

Accurate Date For Christmas Not Known

January Seventh Was Day Observed In Early Centuries Of Christianity

The day—Christmas Day as not on the 25th of December would seem as a shock, it wouldn't seem Christmas at all; yet the histories of Christianity, January 7 was Christmas Day.

The Eastern Church did not come into line with the Western, which had adopted December 25 for over 400 years. And even now the Armenian church keeps Christmas Day in January, on the day when the rest of Christendom is keeping a different festival, that of the Epiphany.

Christmas Day commemorates the birth of Christ, but the actual day and month of that event is not known. December 25 is not the actual date.

The latest researches put the year as B.C. 4, and the month as not later than February.

Recipes For This Week

(By Betty Barclay)

SOUR MILK CAKE

1 cup sugar.
1 egg.
2 large lump butter.
1 large lump lard.
Mix well together, then add
½ cup baking molasses.
1 teaspoon baking soda dissolved in ½ cup of milk.
1 full cup sour milk.
1 teaspoon cinnamon.
1 teaspoon nutmeg.
1 teaspoon cloves.
½ cup floured, seedless raisins.
2 cups sifted flour.
Mix all together and bake in a medium oven about twenty-five minutes.

RAISIN POLENTA

1 cup cornmeal.
1 cup seedless raisins.
½ tablespoon salt.
1 tablespoon fat.
1 teaspoon chopped green pepper.
½ pound chopped round steak.
½ cup puffed raisins.
1 cup tomato sauce.

Add cornmeal slowly to boiling water, stirring constantly to prevent lumping. Add ½ teaspoon salt and cook 10 minutes. Melt fat in small frying pan, add chopped pepper and simmer a few minutes with pan covered. Remove cover and add chopped meat and ½ teaspoon salt, cook, stirring constantly until red color of meat has disappeared. Heat food chopper in boiling water and put raisins through, using medium cutter. Add raisins and tomato sauce to meat mixture. In a greased baking dish put half of cooked cornmeal. Then pour in the meat and tomato, and put the rest of the cornmeal on top. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.), 30 to 40 minutes.

An excellent, inexpensive "meat extender" dish.

Canadians Eating More Butter

Canada's ability to eat more butter on her bread has not only curtailed her exports of butter but increased her imports, in addition to absorbing the usual amount produced at home, but the Dominion has been drawing on its cold storage. On November 1, the amount of butter in storage was nearly 11,000,000 lbs less than on that date of 1927.

Hard On the Music

Much merriment was created by a sign in front of one of the city fire stations in Parkdale, Toronto, which read: Subject of Sunday evening's sermon. "Do you know what best music is?" followed by the smaller letters, "Close and hear our new organist."

You can tell the road to success by the friendships scrapped along the way.

People of the United Kingdom ate more than $240,000,000 worth of imported butter in the past year.

"Thank you, I never touch it, Donald, "but if you don't mind I'd rather look at your flower garden."

It was quite evident that their host was pleased by this statement. "You are interested in flowers?" he questioned eagerly.

"I am," admitted Donald, "but unfortunately I don't know much about them."

The dignified Englishman proved to be not only an intelligent, but a most willing teacher. From plot to plot they went, the host, with kind talk on his hobby to an attentive audience. He gave the names of the plants, their order of flowering, growth, nature and uses. For half-an-hour his quiet voice went on until the beautiful garden was impressed upon the memory.

As they moved toward the cabin, the host passed them carrying a pail brimming with new laid eggs which Andy gazed with longing eyes.

"We always have a light lunch in the evening—won't you stay?" begged their host.

Andy nodded his blond head vigorously in a silent signal to Donald for acceptance, and acceptance was instantly forthcoming.

The interior of the log cabin was rough in the extreme, but exceedingly clean, with chairs, tables and beds that had never issued from a furniture factory. The window-curtains were made of flour and sugar sacks, on which the names of the manufacturers could still be deciphered. On one wall were two bunks, set one above the other, on which were spread heavy blankets of Hudson Bay weave. The one, and only table, placed conveniently near the stove, was as white as a ship's deck from constant scouring.

In direct antithesis to this seeming poverty, the cabin was filled with literally filled with books There richly-bound volumes locked incongruous in conjunction with the rough log walls and the uncomfortable chairs and the rude beds. Donald's eyes roved over the books, and remained fixed, standing and crossmuse. Most of them were in English, but many were in German, French and Italian, some in what appeared to be Arabic, perhaps Sanskrit; and dozens were on botany, ornithology and natural history.

"A bookworm," mused Donald, "a bookworm, and one of the worst of his personal comfort" He felt ashamed of his unwarranted criticism of their kind host.

"I built this cabin all alone," informed Wainwright proudly.

Donald's eyes rested on the speak-

Going Upstairs Had to Sit Down Breath So Short

Mrs. H. Brousseau, Magog, Que., writes "For many years I suffered with shortness of breath that four years ago I had palpitation of the heart, and was so bad I had to sit down two or three times when going upstairs. I read about

Druggist Gave Her Very Good Advice

Miss Ruth Horowitz, Bronx, N.Y., writes: "Dinging to my bed with Indigestion caused by constipation for several months, my druggist advised a purely vegetable laxative pill.

I can safely say that since I am taking them, and only one each night, I am myself again and can eat most anything without fear of an attack."

A breakfast he placed the result of his night's work on Miss Gillis's plate. "Jack, I believe we could rig an electric unit that would be successful," he said earnestly.

Gillis studied the papers carefully then shook his head. "Impossible, it can be done," he said non-committally. "I don't know nicolds' bout electricity, do you?"

"I've had a little experience," admitted Donald modestly.

Douglas, who had been poring over the drawings, spoke emphatically. "I'll bet Dod would be interested in it. He's heard the say that a unit would be electrically driven sometime. He's up-to-date—always willing to listen to new ideas."

"But old 'Moss-back' nin't," growled Gillis.

"Who's old 'Moss-back'?"

"Dr. Dod."

WHY TORTURE THE LITTLE ONES

Mothers, do you think it fair to torture your little ones by forcing them to take ill-tasting oils when there is a delicious fruit laxative? Don't you find that the child's dread of the nasty medicine is worse than many times good?

Baby's Own Tablets are the modern substitute for these nauseous oils. They are very palatable the child requires and are so pleasant to take that they are as easy to administer as a piece of candy. They are the perfect remedy for all the minor ailments of little ones and are absolutely guaranteed free from injurious drugs.

Baby's Own Tablets accomplish all that castor oil does and many other remedies can do. In fact they accomplish more than any of them for the child exhausted from its struggle against taking medicine They relieve constipation, banish indigestion and constipation, break up colds and simple fevers, expel worms and promote healthful, refreshing sleep. They are sold by druggists and may be had post-paid at 25c a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

The Only Safe Course

When Tempted To Invest Money, Get Advice Of Bankers

"When promoters come to me with easy schemes to get rich quick," said a Jurist recently, "I just refer them to my bankers, and tell them that I never make an investment without their O.K. Many a time and one of Canada's shrewd business men, in other days. I tell them I have no time for the matter and they are will advise. That settles them, and I never hear another word of their schemes. I'm positive that they would follow the same course we shouldn't have so many of these bogus promotions as we do now if they forced them through listening to the glowing promises of unscrupulous agents by investing their money in stocks which proved worthless. Any bank official will tell you that the majority of the fraudulent schemes that are brought to their attention are immediately spotted as such by the officials of the institution, and would save many a dollar if they were consulted before any money was invested."

Young Man From Britain Finds Working Life Very Satisfactory

A Canadian farm is the ideal place at which to make solid citizens, said Hilary Hugh Pope, a young man from England who arrived in Canada at the end of last March, after a visit of several months. First, I visited an uncle near Picton, Ontario and then went west with the intention of "working for several farmers, in turn in Saskatchewan where the region of Yellow Grass is more readily accessible. At every farm I was treated well.

TOOTH CLEANSING FOODS

The most highly civilized peoples of today and in particular, those living upon the North American continent buy more tooth brushes and dentifrices, and pay more attention to mouth toilet than any other peoples of life or any previous age. But yet among them tooth decay is universal and rampant.

In contrast, it appears that primitive man suffered little if at all from decayed teeth.

Investigators after having examined several hundred skulls of Indians from the South American continent, who lived between two and three hundred years ago, report that only a single tooth in the entire collection showed dental caries.

In proof that this is not merely a racial factor, they have found that where savage people and others have modified their diet in a manner similar to the European or American, there has resulted a rapid deterioration of the teeth with tooth decay becoming very prevalent.

Now, undoubtedly much of this decay is due to lack of important salts which are the essential "cement" of tooth tissue. But, on the other hand, with the soft cooked and softer foods with their modern methods of preparation, much less masticatory effort is required on the part of the teeth, and they lose the beneficial effects of exercising and cleansing such as were secured when grains, roots and raw fruits formed the chief articles of diet.

The habitual use of some of the harder foods such as toast, crusts, shredded wheat and such, along with certain of the raw and dried fruits and vegetables would prove very beneficial as tooth cleaning foods apart from their nutrient values.

Record Yield Of Potatoes

What is claimed to be a record in potato yield is reported from Gainsborough, Lincolnshire, England, when 642 pounds were obtained from a single seed. There were a hundred allotment-holders in the competition and the winner, Mr. Allison, won the trophy for the third time in succession. The wonderful result was due to the care taken in cutting the potato to seed tubers into thirty pieces and the application of fertiliser

FARM STORAGE

For the first time in the history of grain growing in Western Canada, producers will be paid for storing their wheat on their farms Commencing December 17th, Alberta Pool members will be paid an extra one cent a bushel if the grain is held until January 15th, an additional one cent a bushel will be paid

The Alberta Wheat Pool inaugurated the policy of farm storage last spring in order that as much wheat as possible should be held back on the farms so that Pool elevators should handle the greater volume. This policy also assists the Central Selling Agency Because of the fact that a considerable number of shipping points are not served by Pool Elevators those who deliver to such Pool houses are also being paid farm storage

Just how far it is now desirable and of advantage to the Wheat Pool to make to be seen. Undoubtedly great will not seem so great before the end of years to come. It never can how ever, that the Wheat Pools will use this policy to a considerable extent and possibly increase the use of farm storage considerably until it reaches the limit of storage facilities in the country and the Pool [illegible] Pool elevators [illegible] Pool [illegible] of delivery

Agents at Pool and line company elevators have received the storage tickets to increase the initial payment of one cent per bushel on wheat delivered before 1st, 1929. Producers must be [illegible] storage tickets [illegible] by those agents

An enormous machine for the repair and maintenance of railroad tracks has been experimented with for some time by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Shipping beer by tank cars is an innovation adopted for the brewing industry and railroads. The London brewery is now using insulated and refrigerated plant lined tanks containing 6,500 gallons to ship beer to their Montreal bottling plant. CHRISTMAS STORIES

God rest ye merry gentlemen,
Let nothing you dismay"

THE words sounded through the hall of the big office building to a high, clear soprano, which made Jack Harlow and his pal Ralph, look up, alarmed and irritated. Then as "merry gent omen" sounded further off Jack Harlow thought, "It's a good thing they women didn't come to here singing that! "Merry gentlemen" indeed! and he smiled over at his pal, who out bread-ig at his down

If Ralph would only give me his confidence" he thought. "Money trouble of some kind, I suppose, and I'd help him out if he'd only tell me. Troubles enough of my own, but one about twenty if a million dollars won't remove this threat of blindness. I'd pay it in a minute

"Let nothing you dismay!" rang the clear light voice again, and Ralph thought

"I'm sure I help being dismayed, with a pile of gambling debts I'll never get out from under! Failure suspects, too, I know, for he knows given all the time and keeps to hand over his eyes as my son me, and he'd have the courage to tell him"

As the singing ceased he turned the other again Harlow growled, "Tell that girl to hush up or go away!" Then the office door opened, and the words "merry gentlemen" made much more hash up, him thoroughly. But, in spite of it, had good a crabby manner saying

"Where did you learn to sing?" asked Ralph.

"St. Luke's choir. We're practicing for Christmas. Get fifty cents a Sunday and I get a dollar Christmas, cause I sing a solo. Gee, it's late, for Dad's been sick and it's gone on this way, I'll never get clothes for school. Whaja think? Can you let me have out of chair money saved for a new overcoat?"

"Here's another toward it," said Paine, "and I hope your father gets well"

"I tell you!" exclaimed the boy, pocketing the dollar. "Gee, I hope he can too. 'Cause he's at the Sunday [illegible] Co. Works in a factory where the [illegible] and sometimes his eyes go sore"

"Didn't he work somewhere else?" queried Mr. Harden.

"Yep; there's a good place gain' to be vacant at the paper box factory, where there's hardly any eye work, but there's so many after it—"

"Wait," said Harden. "I know Mortimer, who owns that factory I'll give you a note to take him. [illegible] ur fa—ns name?"

"Just Alfred and he's all right! Tell em I said he's been a life all [illegible] I remember him."

"Don't be [illegible] to come in [illegible] paid [illegible] Tell [illegible] I'd get a [illegible] train [illegible] of my boys [illegible] I'm [illegible] to [illegible]

"Good," said Ralph, rising to help his father with his coat. "I'm not doing forward saying in what I do to say because I'm ashamed of but it's a secret!"

"Nothing you can tell me can be a secret," [illegible] and Ralph's father [illegible] "If it's anything [illegible] you about—"

"It's all over and straighten out now," [illegible] "I'll never get in such a fix [illegible] Mother that you need [illegible] my ole coat and I'm [illegible] to—"

Ralph choked and stopped, but at this time they were to the outer hall as John Harden simply took his son a arm and pressed it affectionately

As the elevator reached the street level the two looked at each other and grinned for down the hall they heard a high, clear voice singing

God rest ye merry gentlemen
Let nothing you dismay

MARTIN jabbed his knife into the block behind the apron gingerly, and jammed it into a temper in the back room He sighed

"By Golly" The first time I've had even to think! Dread up every year Tomorrow's Christmas" He shrugged deprecatingly Something about the dropping half-cover of his mouth was pathetic

A private and shifty character passed for a moment in his rotten eyes for scraps, eyed his companion quickly, and returned reluctantly to his apron

"Turkeys and ducks and chickens all they think of. Nine and [illegible] bacon or ham. I used to think Christmas was different

The young man rolled down his sleeves and reached for his coat.

"Even she—with his bitterness deepened, "With everything fifteen pound turkey! Lord! I wonder what she'd think if she knew how I feel. Here she thinks I haven't been in attm, and me telling all over myself to save her pain for her! Oh well, come on, Spud"

Spud crouched a most creep response

"All right. Finish that. No hurry" Martin strolled to the window and gazed out at the other funny shop displays, "Christmas Eve and a day people take off to eat and give presents in, and if you don't know anybody and room out, there's nothing to it."

"One thing, Spud" Martin's voice brightened. Spud wagged a response, plus tail wishing up. "In two months we'll have the mortgage paid off this joint! Gee, it's been a pull getting started into business. Say, long months to save two hundred dollars.

Outside a fight snow was falling. Late shoppers hurrying along, laden with bundles, scarcely glanced at the tall young philosopher who, followed by a heterogeneous dog, strolled homeward. The shrieking gayety of Christmas Eve hardened and brightened business loudness. He passed the house where she lived and strained his eyes for a glimpse of her in fancy he could hear about Spud, the market, and even hinted of his love for her

Martin hesitated "I've got two hundred dollars," he heard himself saying. Did that sound as the kid and his mother" He had a fleeting desperate picture of mother and son evicted, of the kid's [illegible] and the second mortgage

He walked home with the girl Her name was Mary A couple of hours later he had left her

Good Results Are Obtained By Sulphur Dusting As Means For Effective Rust Control

Sulphur dusting experiments conducted during the past summer in grain fields of western Canada have established beyond doubt the effectiveness of this method of cereal rust control, a report issued by the federal department of agriculture states.

A field trial in southern Manitoba, using a horse-drawn duster, netted the farmer $11.87 an acre from the operation, by increasing the yield and improving the grade of the dusted crop. Explains dusting, the report adds also proved satisfactory, but further experiments by this method are made necessary, it is said.

Twenty-six different forms of rust or rusts have been traced by the investigators and, according to the report, some of the existing wheat varieties are resistant to anything like the number of rust forms. Studies regarding the source and spread of rusts, most in western Canada indicate that existing infections are due to rust spores which are carried in the air from the south.

While the report does not divulge the official name of this year's entry with the new Reward variety of wheat, it is pointed out that more than 250 farmers experimented with the seed to determine its rust-resistant and commercial qualities. Encouraging results, however, are anticipated as it is pointed out that Reward in government tests had shown its ability to ripen with rests rust better than most of the other common wheat varieties. While not quite so high a yielder as Garnet, the grain of Reward has been found to be large and plump, and the weight per measured bushel unusually high. The straw of the variety also is exceptionally strong.

Other tests have been made during the year in the various experimental stations throughout the country to combat cereal diseases grow ally, but the report states that sufficient progress has not yet been made to permit final evaluation.

Knowledge Of Two Languages

Hon. Chas. Dunning Refers To the Advantage Of Understanding Both French and English

Hon. Charles Dunning made some significant remarks about bilingualism," says Le Soleil, of Quebec. It quotes him: "One of the impressions which I have carried back from my trip overseas is the splendid lesson of bilingualism which Geneva gave us. This lesson ought to inspire every Canadian to a better knowledge of the two official languages of the country. At the meeting of the League of Nations both languages were freely spoken. All the reports of the debates were published both in French and in English. I have often asked Canadians to learn the two official languages of the country in the past and at Geneva I realized the practical utility of such advice. Perhaps people will say that I do not practise what I preach, but do not forget that I have never had any other French teaching than that of the house of commons which cannot be of great importance to me all my age. Canadians capable of speaking the two languages, have great advantages over those who cannot."

And Then What?

The village choirboys, relates the London Chronicle, had decided to form a cricket team and appointed their junior member honorary secretary in due course the youngster appealed to the curate for support. This is how the letter ended: "And we should be very pleased, sir, if you would allow us the use of the hall in which the choirmen say you have to do belfry."

Improvement Shown In Western Dairy Products

Larger Quality Of First Grade Creamery Butter Produced This Year

"There is a larger volume of first grade creamery butter being produced and the prairies than a year ago," stated K C MacKay, of Winnipeg, federal chief of the western butter graders, recently.

While Mr MacKay does not handle figures on cream receipts, which are the key to butter production, he says that judging from the quantities of butter inspected, he gained the impression that production was at least holding its own for this time of year if indeed there was not an actual gain.

"Considering quantities in store production gave promise of taking care pretty generally of local consumption with little imports needed.

Dairying seems to have turned the corner and better times are ahead for the industry, said Mr. MacKay. Larger production with a surplus to export in competition with imported product will tend toward maintaining, and improving standards of quality.

Many Tourists Visit Germany

Germany is becoming more and more popular among American tourists according to an unofficial compilation, 80,000 Americans visited German watering-places this year as compared with 60,000 last year. In addition, more than 54,000 Americans of German descent visited the "old country," where, it is estimated they spent $20,000,000.

A Reversed Skyscraper

Building In Tokio Will Have Eight Storeys Underground

Japanese architects have plans prepared for the construction of a downstairs "skyscraper" 80 storeys deep. This building, which would be built down into the earth 1,000 feet, is designed in defiance of earthquakes.

This world's deepest "skyscraper" is planned for Tokyo, where earthquake proof architecture has been a serious problem ever since the disastrous quake of 1923. Designs for the building are in the form of a huge circular well of steel framework. Elevators, ventilating airshafts, telephones and electric lights are provided.

Paris Using Army Trucks

Ambulances Also Are Being Utilized For Delivery Purposes

Of the 32,500 army trucks and ambulances left in France, by the American Expeditionary Forces in 1918, many are said to be still in active service. They are being reconditioned or repaired where necessary and are now scattered in every part of the country, being employed in commercial and industrial pursuits, such as construction, street and highway building and maintenance; it is not uncommon to see them hauling paving materials in the streets of Paris. The former ambulances have been converted into delivery trucks mostly for use in the provinces. Deal-ers in Paris say they have reconditioned most of the parts to keep the trucks in repair until they fall apart from old age.

Soapstone In Canada

Soapstone was produced in Canada for the first time in 1917, the material being taken out in block form and consigned to kraft paper mills for furnace linings. The stone was produced at deposits at Robertson, Quebec. Other deposits have since been opened up in the same district; and important developments are also reported from Vermilion Bay, Lake of the Woods region, Ontario.

The "salty locality" which lichens are said to have been produced in Canada lies about 100 miles northeast of Winnipeg. Lichens, which are one of the minerals found in this deposit are lepidolite, spodumene and montebrasite as Lyell, Gould, and Forbes state.

The lady did not wear her abbreviated costume for the entire run, nor would she advocate the general adoption of the outfit for winter sports wear, but she demonstrates that, at times, it can be done and that the Canadian Rockies are not the "frozen fastnesses" one might imagine them to be. Rewarded For Research Work

Dr. Shutt Received Recognition From American Society Of Agronomy

An award of $1,200 for outstanding achievements in nitrogen research has been granted to Dr. Frank T. Shutt, Dominion chemist, by the nitrogen research committee of the American Society of Agronomy. Dr Shutt has been connected with the Dominion Experimental farm system for the past 41 years.

As Dominion chemist, Dr. Shutt's investigations have covered a wide field, but he has given particular attention to the fundamental importance in all branches of agriculture. This work has enhanced research in fertilizers, soils, feeding stuffs, the composition of grains, the nitrogen compounds in soil and manure, and other problems.

According to officials of the department of agriculture, Dr. Shutt's investigations have been the enrichment of soils from growing of legumes have produced particularly valuable results. Valuable Silver Fox Shipment

Sixty Live Foxes Are Shipped From Alberta To Switzerland

Marking a new stride in the silver fox farming industry of Alberta, sixty live foxes from the fox farm of Ivan Chaplin were shipped from Calgary recently, bound for Klosters, Switzerland, where they will be used for breeding purposes. This practice cargo, valued at $18,000, was carried to New York by the Canadian Pacific liner Montcalm. Special instructions had been issued regarding the feeding, watering and general care of the animals, whose hides bring such a high price on the fur markets of the world.

Testing New Wheats

Canadian farmers are taking a keen interest in the "rust variety" tests being conducted with wheat under the supervision of the Department of Agriculture. The ultimate object is to find out as far as possible the varieties of wheat best suited to the different types of soil and different localities in the Prairie Provinces.

Potato Planting Experiments Have Solved Many Problems And Cleared Up Controversies

Lion's Share Of British Settlers Come To Canada

Receiving More British Settlers Than Any Other Country

Canada is receiving more British settlers than any other country as the results of aggressive publicity campaigns in the British Isles and the United States, declared Robert J. C. Stead, of the federal department of immigration and colonization, in addressing the Lions' Club at Toronto.

"Generally speaking, every one wants immigrants as customers, but no one wants immigrants as competitors," Mr. Stead said. "This simple and obvious fact tremendously narrows the field of Canada's operations in the search for immigrants. In formulating Canada's programme of advertising for settlers, the needs of the country's physical resources and its business and agricultural conditions must be considered, the psychology of the Canadian people toward the subject is of prime importance.

"All these factors are taken into consideration, and as a result our advertising is directed exclusively toward obtaining suitable settlers from the British Isles and the United States. There has been a good deal of rumour of late about Canada not getting its share of British settlers. Well—we are getting more than any other country, and considerably more than Australia, more than twice as many as all the British dominions beside Australia, perhaps twice as many as the United States.

Would Remove Restrictions

Making It Easier For British Settlers Coming To Canada

An indication from the Prime Minister of Canada that some of the technicalities surrounding admission of immigrants into the Dominion might be removed, is given in an article in The Empire Review, London, written by Hjalmar Hamilton Mackenzie King and summarizing his impressions on the recent visit to Great Britain and Europe.

"It was necessary to ask the harvesters only a half a dozen questions," the Canadian premier writes.

"Why, then, should we require four or five sheets of family history and technicalities for the admission of immigrants? There are a lot of irritating things that could easily be removed and I am quite sure that the Government at Ottawa, having had them brought to their notice, as they have now, will see that Canada gets a fair share of the magnificent types of young Dominion spreading the opportunity to come out here."

A Gentle Reminder

Magnesite Deposits

The only known magnesite deposits of commercial value in eastern Canada are situated within a small area in Argenteuil county in Quebec province. Magnesite occurs in fairly large deposits in several parts of British Columbia. This material though somewhat similar in composition to hard rock magnesite is powdery in form and requires a different method of treatment to prepare it for the market.

A potato bulletin recently compiled by Prof. W. J. Squirrell and Prof. A. H. MacLennan, of the Ontario Agricultural College, clears up many of the old controversies of potato growers.

Experiments conducted at the O. A. C. and co-operative tests on a very large number of Ontario farms show that immature potatoes have a greater seed value than the mature tubers; that the size of the set planted has a very marked influence on the yield produced, and that the larger sets of two ounces weight produced a much higher yield both of the total number and those fit for market. Many growers have claimed that potato sets should be planted with the cut surface downward, but its experiments in which one lot was planted with the cut surface up and the other with it down, the results were practically identical and nothing could be gained by potting the sets in any special direction. Another interesting set of results was obtained in tests with sets having one, two, three, four and five eyes produced. The sets with fewer eyes produced a higher percentage of marketable potatoes, but the yield per acre five eyes gave a very substantial increase in yield.

Another subject of controversy with growers is whether or not potatoes should be cut several days before planting. Experiments recorded in the bulletin show that potatoes cut and planted the same day gave highest yields, while those cut five or five days previous to planting. Other results show that the coating of sets with slaked lime or land plaster increases the yield and that the ground plaster is superior to slaked lime.

Such topics as these, which have been argued about for years by potato growers, are now settled in the bulletin which may be obtained from the publications branch, Ottawa.

Standard For Poultry Packers

New Regulations Regarding Grading Will Be Of Great Benefit

Standards for graded poultry have been set out by order-in-council. The department of trade and commerce, Ottawa, announces that the regulations will not be made compulsory this year, and reports will not be given on unless the packing is according to standard requirements.

Dressed poultry is divided into two main classes - milk fed and selected. There are eight grades and definitions are given for classification. The regulations provide packing weights, methods of packing and preparing, stencilling and branding and the form of the certificate

Many marketing associations and packers are already packing their poultry according to the new standards, officials of the department indicate. It is stated that results will accrue in the same way as grading of eggs and other food products, particularly when the poultry is exported.

Radio Dispatching Takes Hazard Out Of Aerial Ventures In Northern Reaches Of Canada

The epoch-making flight of the planes of Dominion Explorers Limited, from the vicinity of Chesterfield Inlet, on Hudson Bay, out to civilization directs attention to the rapid development of northern transportation in Canada, says the Department of the Interior, through its Natural Resources Intelligence Service. The flight was made under winter weather conditions and the planes were equipped with skis.

The story of the successful trip out from the winter headquarters of the prospecting expedition at Baker Lake Bay, on the west shore of Hudson Bay, is not remarkable solely because of the use of skis as the winter flying conditions, for such flying was accomplished in March, 1921, when the Imperial Oil Company's planes flew into Fort Simpson on the Mackenzie River, in almost the same latitude. They are much more important aspects to the accomplishment of Northern Explorers.

The Imperial Oil Company's venture was the pioneer making and it too, was accomplished in winter and with no advance preparations. The two planes flew across an entirely unexplored country from the town of Peace River and made the first landing in the Northwest Territories at the trading post at Simpson. Mineral wealth and oil was the lure then as in 1928, and communication was established with the north some three months before the opening of river navigation. In this respect the flight was successful, but there were weeks of anxiety following before any of the two planes had turned safely and landed on Bear Lake near Peace River. Both planes had met with minor mishaps in landing at Simpson, and Indian craftsmanship and native glue were required to make temporary repairs to the propeller of the plane which flew back to civilization.

That was in 1921, and except for one winter flight taken in by dogteam, communication with the northern outposts in those days was cut-off from early October until late in June, until after the ice had melted in Great Slave Lake. Later in the same year, 1921, the first wireless receiving apparatus was taken into the Northwest Territories and while the government outfit was equipped for receiving time signals for determining the latitude and longitude position of Fort Providence the data and signals spelled out the result of the Dempsey-Carpentier fight, but bets were not settled for six months after the news came in. The wireless was not trusted in those days.

Three years later, in 1924, the first steps were taken toward the establishment of government wireless stations and the first communication line now includes Edmonton, Fort Smith, Resolution, Simpson, Aklavik and Herschel Island, on the Arctic coast. In the northern plains there is the government station at Churchill, on Hudson Bay, and to the south there are the stations maintained by the Royal Canadian Air Force for its forest air patrol services.

In addition there are now private stations established by the mining and prospecting companies which have invaded the fastnesses no longer and therein lies the real romance in the Northern Explorers' exploit. The north is being opened by radio and plane. Where the plane alone would find the radio comes to its assistance and the trails are steadily pushing back the frontiers. Radio has been accomplished in 1925 in laying bare the secrets of the north and unearthing its mineral wealth that could have been accomplished in ten years previously.

The Dominion Explorers' winter headquarters on Mistake Bay, 250 miles north of Fort Churchill is being kept in communication with the company headquarters at Toronto, 1400 miles to the south. Some of the radiograms exchanged have been

Sunlight and Dairy Products

Sun, Cream and Dairy Should Not Be Exposed To Direct Sunlight

Dr. H. G. Hood, chief of the division of dairy research of the federal department of agriculture, states that it is a well established scientific fact that direct sunlight has a detrimental effect on the flavor of practically all dairy products and especially on milk, cream and butter.

This statement was given by Dr. Hood when asked regarding the practice of housewives using windowsills as refrigerators during the summer season when dairy have stopped taking ice. From the standpoint of keeping the products cool the sills will answer the purpose, but if the window is located where direct sunlight can reach it, dairy products should never be kept there.

Milk, cream and butter when exposed to direct sunlight quickly develop unpleasant flavors which are generally of a metallic or tallowy nature. The tallowy flavor is caused by the action of sunlight on butter-fat and has been known to develop to a very noticeable degree after an exposure of only one hour. In the case of butter, the fat turns to a very light or white color and the same change takes place in the body of cream, whether it is homogenated or not.

Dr. Hood states that if consumers find that milk or cream has become tallowy in flavor after keeping it for twenty-four hours, they should not hesitate to call their attention to the fact.

Efficiency Of T.B. Test

Disease Among Canadian Cattle Greatly Reduced

Through the operation of the restricted area plan, tuberculosis is rapidly being eradicated. Dr. George Hilton, chief of the tuberculosis section of the Department of Agriculture declares that where, in some areas as high as 25 per cent of the cows had been found infected on the first trials, re-test had shown a general falling off to approximately one-half of one per cent

"There is a persistent and increasing demand from every department for restricted areas," Dr. Hilton said. "Farmers have found that by replacing infected animals with high class stock they receive higher financial returns with less work."

There are at present eight restricted areas in Canada, as follows: In Manitoba, the Carmen district; in Saskatchewan, one at the western end of the province; in Prince Edward Island, all the province; in Nova Scotia, the Lunenburg district; in Ontario, the Lanark district; in Quebec, the Argenteuil district; in New Brunswick, part of Charlotte County and in Ontario the County of Prince Edward.

Administration Of School Lands

Problems With Which Department Of Interior Has To Contend

During his recent western trip, the minister of the interior has conferred with the governments of the three prairie provinces relative to the administration of school lands which the department handles as a sort of trustee for the provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, the revenue derived being set aside for educational purposes.

One of the vexatious problems with which the department of the interior has had to contend has arisen from the failure or inability of some purchasers to fulfil their contracts. In the case of these cases a portion of the land is broken and sown and when the purchaser relinquishes his purchase, or the department exercises the sale for default, this area becomes a potential weed menace, unless it is kept under cultivation. The department has met this situation herefore by leasing rusty cultivation permits at fifty cents an acre basis such as it is the duty of the Dominion government to collect for school purposes, and only a small annual amount that can be obtained for the purpose for which the lands were set aside, it has been decided that in future where sales are cancelled the lands will be valuated immediately prior to cancellation. The effect of this mentioned in the advertisement, the agent of Dominion lands for the district in which the land is situated, and hold the sale.

Frontier Rolling Back

Agricultural Regions Of Prairie Provinces Extending Northward

In commenting on the figures on the Canadian Northland, the Department of the Interior, through its Natural Resources Intelligence Service, remarks that the settling up of the free homesteads clearly indicates the northern trend of development in agriculture in Western Canada.

Summing up the monthly figures by land agencies, these show that the Frontier is being just steadily pushed back in the agricultural regions of the Prairie Provinces in the homesteads as it is in other sections of Canada by the mining and pulp and paper developments.

In 1927 some 9,777 grazing leases were issued by the Dominion Government covering an area of approximately 6,607,183 acres of public lands on which over half a million head of cattle, sheep and horses were pastured. These grazing areas are all in the Prairie Provinces and in the Peace River Tract, and Railway Belt in British Columbia.

Makes Interesting Forecast Of Improved Farming Conditions In The Next Twenty Years

Adopting the method of Bellamy in his famous work, "Looking Backward," Professor H. H. Dean, of the Ontario Agricultural College Dairy Department, presented an interesting forecast of farming conditions in Canada, in 1950, in his address to the National Dairy Council and the Canadian Creamery Association. It is a veritable farmer's Utopia that Professor Dean expects to see established by the time the second half of the twentieth-century is entered upon. While the wish in the speaker's mind was no doubt father to the prediction made, the entire address is a shrewd, semi-humorous analysis of many of the present tendencies in agriculture, tendencies that must inevitably bring about tremendous changes in this great industry.

The O.A.C. professor sees the status of the farmer completely changed twenty-five years hence. "One thing which has brought about this change," he says, "more than anything else, is the new policy adopted ten years ago whereby farmers who come up to certain specifications and requirements in their farm operations are guaranteed an annual minimum income of $5,000 a year, the value of which is obtained as revenue from the sale of farm products, and part on much the same basis as teachers are paid for services in other branches of civil and commercial departments of national service. This is a condition that will without doubt have the beauty endorsation of every farmer. To bring it about, however presupposes an entire revolution, not alone in agriculture, but in the industrial and commercial life of the nation.

Of more likelihood of realization is Professor Dean's statement of future dairying conditions. In 1950 he finds that all dairy cattle on the farms of Canada are in good health, their stables are clean, well ventilated, and all the animals are pure-bred. Animals and stables are cleaned daily with electric cleaners, cows' teeth are brushed with electric toothbrushes and a standard of production is posted in every stable which reads: "Every cow that enters here must give 20,000 pounds of milk each year." A consummation of this kind is something that the general public hopes will speedily be brought to pass. In 1950 Professor Dean also finds one of the most taxing problems of rural life solved, namely, that of keeping young people on the farms. He says:

"Our farmers in Canada are at present a well paid, happy, and contented people, largely brought about through the removal of much of the drudgery that formerly made it hard for the farmer to have electric light and power in the home and at the barn; the heavy farm work is all done by means of electricity; the radio enables the farmer to enjoy the best programs of music, plays and addresses at his own fireside. Sea Music Festival to Revive Deep-Water Chanties

Buttermaking On The Farm

General Quality Of the Product Could Be Raised By Exercising Better Care

There are still a great many farmers who are not within reach of a well managed creamery, and as a result they make their own butter. This results in a variable product, that tends to lower the quality of the whole output. The main defects in dairy butter as compared with creamery butter are bad flavor, staleness, too many shades of colour, and unsuitable packages.

To get the best results in farm dairy work it is necessary in the first place to have good cows, liberally and properly fed, and their quarters clean and comfortable. The cream skimmed should be about 30 per cent fat and kept cool. The churning temperature should be such that the churning will be completed in from twenty-five to thirty minutes. Clean pure water is essential for the washing of the butter, the temperature of the water being not more than three degrees colder or warmer than the buttermilk. Full information in the speed of the churn, washing and salting the butter, and other necessary points are covered in Bulletin No. 57, of the Department of Agriculture at Ottawa.

Quite often a package sells an article, and butter is no exception. A neat, clean, attractive package will attract the consumer, and increase sales. A clean and attractive dairy is an essential. Excellent butter is made on many farms but the general quality of the butter could be raised by the exercise of more care, which would result in a greater competition and greater returns for the farmer on all butter marketed.

Water and the Farm Well

The Shallow Well is the Source Of the Greatest Danger

Residents in rural districts as a rule have reason to congratulate themselves that they have their own wells. Without any particular proof, they think the water from these wells is pure. In the majority of cases it is, but it is better to be sure than sorry. If the water has never been tested it ought to be and the Dominion Department of Agriculture, through its Division of Chemistry, offers a service which is free. Instructions as to collecting and shipping samples will be supplied on application to the Experimental Farm, Ottawa.

The waters of Canada's lakes, streams, and springs are of the purest. The danger lies in local pollution or contamination. The farmer who locates his well beyond the possibility of local contamination and goes down a deep drilled or bored well, largely solves his own problem.

The source of the greatest danger is the shallow well, from five to thirty feet deep, which merely collects ground water, the soakage from the surrounding soil.

Lindbergh Has New Plane

Fully Equipped Office As Well As Living Quarters

A flying office to be used for the transaction of business matters will result from city to city has been built at the Ford metal airplane division of the Ford Motor Company for the use of Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and Major Thomas G. Lanphier.

The office, a tri-motored all-metal monoplane, first will be used in the preliminary ground layout work incidental to the establishment of airports along the route of the Transcontinental Air Transport, Inc. That enterprise co-operating with the Pennsylvania and Santa Fe Railroad systems, and others, has under way a combination airplane and train service between New York City and Los Angeles.

The office plane has sleeping facilities, stenographic quarters and other special features. In the section to be devoted to the office a metal desk and a letter file incorporated on one side and the usual desk drawers on the other. A stenographer's table with typewriter and minor office appliances is included.

The furniture includes six deep upholstered chairs, three of which have adjustable backs, so that they may be used as Morris chairs if desired. Wardrobe-trunk berths are for map during flights. One is built above the office and one at the "office." A refrigerator, built-in, will keep food fresh while en route.

The cabin is luxuriously trimmed. The interior panelling consists of layers of aluminum sheets with corrugations between. The panels are one-quarter inch thick and weigh only six and three-quarter ounces to the square foot.

As equipped the plane includes hydraulically operated brakes and the cabin is heated by the exhaust, fresh air being taken into a special line through the exhaust stacks and into the cabin. The wing span is seventy-eight feet from top to tip and the length of the plane is fifty feet.

World's Largest Subway

New Piccadilly Circus In London Is Largest Underground Station

The new Piccadilly Circus, London's underground station, described as the largest subway station in the world, was officially opened recently by the mayor of Westminster. A large gathering inspected the structure and pronounced it a marvel of engineering and architectural skill.

Seven entrances lead from the streets to the new station which is capable of handling 50,000,000 passengers annually. This is double the capacity of the old station. The booking hall is circular. It has a floor space of 13,000 square feet and is a third of a mile in circumference. It is surrounded by shops with attractive show windows.

Inspection Of Meat

Campaign To Safeguard Meat Supply Of Dominion Is Being Waged

An educational campaign to safeguard meat supply of the Dominion is being waged by the federal department of agriculture, according to figures released by the inspection division at Ottawa.

Inspection was conducted in 86 packing establishments during the last fiscal year, involving examination of 1,150,000 cattle, 610,000 sheep, 2,000,000 swine and 300,000 goats.

Of the cattle inspected 1.50 per cent. were condemned, while the percentage for swine and sheep was 0.77 and 0.36, respectively.

The importance of meat inspection is apparent," the report states, "when the volume of the per capita consumption of meat is realized. Beef amounts to 59.76 pounds pork 81.61 pounds mutton and lamb, 6.11 pounds and poultry, 9.09 pounds."

A gratifying feature of Canada's adventure in bringing back the buffalo is the way to which the different herds continue to multiply and to expand beyond the capacity of their once ample grazing ranges. The case of the main herd at Wainwright, Alberta, in which there was an increase from about 700 head to 17,000 head in eighteen years has often been cited. This year 1,500 young buffalo were sent from Wainwright to the Wood Buffalo park near Fort Smith, Northwest Territories, and of the herd at Elk Island Park, two hundred animals have been slaughtered and their carcasses and hides disposed of commercially. That two hundred buffalo could be disposed of without injuring the entire herd at Elk Island park will surprise most people who have not closely followed this experiment. Nor is this surprise to be wondered at. When the original herd was purchased from Michael Pablo upwards of $250 was paid for each to receive them. Year Of Great Progress For Town And District

Much Building-New Business Firms And Industries Opened

The year 1928, which will have passed into history ere another issue of the Standard is printed, has been one of great expansion for the town of Vermilion both in commercial and building lines and augurs well for its continued growth and prosperity. The building program was particularly extensive and approximated well over three hundred thousand dollars. Of this amount the magnificent dormitory in connection with the Vermilion school of Agriculture accounted for about two hundred thousand dollars, this of course stands out pre-eminently and ranks among the finest structures in the province. A new high school has been erected at a cost of $25,000. Extensive additions to the electric light and power building involved an expenditure of several thousand dollars, in the early part of the year the Great West Pool elevator was erected bringing the number of grain elevators located here up to six—and the Hudson's Bay Co. about the same time built a large warehouse adjacent to the railroad in furtherance of their land settlement schemes. A new C.N.R. depot was broken for the early part of the year, and the increased freight and work which it entailed has been a big factor in the business area on Main street, and quite recently Cameron and Kennedy completed a modern service station building on the same street. Another substantial acquisition was the erection on Flint street south of a concrete brick showroom by Jos. McKone, this building has a frontage of fifty feet and cost eight thousand dollars. The business section also saw a number of local improvements by individual firms, among which were enlargements and renovations by both the Union and Boston Cafes; remodelling of a large portion of their business by Craig Bros. Ltd. to accommodate the grocery department, the layout of showrooms in the Vermilion Meat and the erection of an office and hall in connection with the mill by W. H. Wells. The pedestrian premises through the lot and delivery were also improved with the rapid growth in special business here rendered possible by the erection of a building for this branch of the public service.

During the year there was a mark ed increase in new businesses opened up comprising an electric shop, lady tonsorial and marcelling parlor, drug store, service station, new elevator and H. B. C. warehouse.

Industrially the town has installed and now operates, a community steam heating system at an initial outlay of approximately 25,000 dollars and increased its facilities for supplying electric power from the municipal plant by an expenditure of thirty-seven thousand dollars in new equipment. These investments are expected in the course of the next few years besides carrying their own bond interest and principal, to reduce municipal taxation to a minimum.

There was a noticeable impetus in building throughout the residential portions of the town, resulting in the erection of several modern bungalows and a number of comfortable dwellings of other types. Among these might be noted the bungalows of Mr. Geo. Wright, Mr. E. Davies, Mr. J. H. Foster and Mr. Savery, ranging in price up to three thousand five hundred dollars in value. There has been a constant demand for houses all the year and prospects are for many other homes going up in 1929.

The district of Vermilion for many miles around has had the best of its open lands taken up through the settlers settlement schemes of both the Hudsons Bay Company and Canadian Pacific Railway and these will all be occupied by new settlers next year. The vast areas broken for the first time and the increased break ing and backsetting done by local farmers, which will be cropped in the coming season many years thousands of acres brought into the producing class, with its resultant benefits to general trade conditions.

Altogether, this town and district faces one of the most promising of years ahead, for industrial expansion.

More than 450 happy kiddies attended the Christmas treat provided by Manager Pitkin, of the Columbia theatre and George Capatos of Cabaret de Luxe fame on Saturday afternoon. George was fortunate in being able to arrange for Santa Claus to visit the Cabaret in person, and the good old gentleman with a generous kindness, presented each youngster with a well filled bag of candy.

A few words of the Columbia. The hall was the first to make use of the kiddie being treated to a free program by Mr. Pitkin. If noise is a sign of enjoyment, it is safe to say that a good time was had by all, and both George and Bill may rest assured that their kindness in providing the treat was fully appreciated by the kiddies.

The New Canadian

Valuable Contribution From European Countries To Make Up Our Population

Hon R. R. Bennett, because he has lived so long in the west, decided it desirable, in a speech delivered in Toronto recently, to pay a tribute to what has been accomplished in that part of Canada by people who are not all of British birth, but many of them have come from various other countries The Conservative leader is well advised. We want Canada to be predominantly British in its population, but we have received and will continue to receive most value and additional from other sources. Of these have come real leaders who are genuine Canadians. To nourish a prejudice against any one on account of a difference of race is not good Canadianism; they must be judged by other characteristics. As Mr Bennett very properly points out, Great Britain itself represents a fusion of blood of many peoples There are today scattered throughout the western country people whose fathers came from different European countries but the themselves are good to be called Canadians, and proud of the privilege they have of aiding in the upbuilding of this great Dominion St John's Telegraph Journal

Tentative Date For Next Arms Conference

Nations Have Agreed On Eleventh Of Next March

Agreement on March 11, 1929, as the tentative date for the next session of the preparatory disarmament commission, and as accord between Great Britain and Italy as to procedure for preparatory work, mark for settlement of the preparatory problems and evacuation of Rhineland were substantial developments in connection with a recent meeting of the Council of the League of Nations.

The British-Italian agreement was announced by Sir Austen Chamberlain. British foreign secretary. It was deemed important as those two powers were named as guarantors of peace on the Rhine under the Locarno pact. Their accord at this juncture was also believed to indicate an agreement concerning the powers of the commission of verification and conciliation which will be substituted for the allied troops when the latter are removed from the Rhine provinces.

Germany does not wish to see the commission function after 1935. That year was set by the treaty of Versailles as the last under which allied troops might remain in the Rhineland.

Victory Seems Complete

Public Opinion Has Been Conquered In Ontario

The victory of the motor car is complete. No longer is it possible to doubt that the car has conquered public opinion.

The motor car first owned the town. Now it owns the township as well.

There was a time when it was seriously proposed in Ontario no motor car should appear on the highways except at certain permitted hours, morning and evening. Those horse-drawn traffic unmolested, could hide the roads half the day. Now the horse is taken from the highway.

Not so long ago the law required motorists, on meeting a funeral or an excursion party, to stop their cars still. But the motor car overcame that difficulty by taking over the funeral and excursion trade. The cars carted citizen rolls along on balloon tires to his sepulchre and his funeral baked meats. Now, the cars do.

The conclusive victory of the motor car came the other day when the Ontario Motor Association inquired on a farmer who had been killed on the highway by an automobile, returned a verdict recommending that pedestrians walking on the roads at night should be required to carry lights After a few years ago there was strong opposition in the rural parts to the law requiring all vehicles to carry lights. What is the world coming to? old men asked. But the regulation has come to be regarded as a necessary one When the coroner's jury recommended that all pedestrians should carry lights after dark we expected an uprising of disenfranchised farmers of the provinces against the suggestion. There has been scarcely a word of protest—instead, in several rural journals there have appeared items approving the suggestion on the ground that would work for the good of all.

The gasoline buggy has won out. The Farmers drive it, the country councillors, the township councillors, the editors of the village weeklies the members of the legislature and of parliament drive it. None of us are pedestrians any more, except now and then between rides.—Toronto Star

Flour Industry Of Japan Unsatisfactory

Country Has To Import Wheat For Manufacturing Purposes

The present situation of the Japanese flour and grain trade cannot be described as wholly satisfactory, writes James A. Langley, Canadian trade commissioner in Kobe, in the Commercial Intelligence Journal. While flour milling is one of the industries to which Japanese interests are paying particular attention, the market has shown in lower and unsteady prices the effects of many adverse influences. The Canadian factor contributing towards the falling market price for flour has been the over-selling of new mills. In pre-war days, the productive capacity of all Japanese mills was about 150 barrels per day, but it continued to increase until today the mills have a capacity of 47,250 barrels per day. Yet imported wheat continues to enter in increasing quantities. Imports from Canada during 1927 showed an increase of 100,000 bushels over 1926.

Canada, Australia and the United States continue to supply the bulk of the wheat requirements of Japan. This year an increased importation is anticipated due to the inferior quality of the domestic crop. The year 1927 showed a decrease in the exportation of domestic wheat flour to the extent of 1,000,000 sixty-pound bags when compared with the 1926 figures, during which period 4,000,000 bags were sold in overseas markets. The annual production of domestic wheat in Japan is about 31,000,000 bushels per annum, the requirements of the flour mills 17,000,000 bushels were imported in 1927 for manufacturing purposes.

Growing Prize Grain

Herman Trelle Says Farmers Not Paying Enough Attention To Quality

Herman Trelle, Canada's "wheat king," interviewed in Winnipeg, stated that he was misquoted in a recent interview, in which he was reported stating that he was "going broke" growing prize grain. What he meant in the interview, he said, was that growing of prize grain was sometimes unprofitable than commercial farming.

"The unsurpassed farmer does not command 5 per cent" he continued. "He should not be should." Mr. Trelle continued, "Prize struggling farms, in doing everything in the power to make his vocation a big business. He is slowly separating the proverbial hayseeds from his matted hair. Success of the soil must insist on the world knowing that farming is a big business.

"The results of the big exhibitions, however, show that Canadian farmers are not paying enough attention to the quality if grain that these exhibitions demand," he concluded.

Praise For Wheat Pool

Premier Stanley Baldwin and Ramsay MacDonald Compliment Scheme

The Canadian institution which made the greatest impression upon Premier Stanley Baldwin and Rt. Hon. Ramsay MacDonald, was the wheat pool, they assertions told the annual meeting of the Empire Parliamentary Association in London. Premier Baldwin said that the wheat pool seemed to him to be one of the most remarkable attempts at co-operation he had ever heard of, while the wheat pool was one of the most extraordinary examples of co-operation he found in the world. He also eulogized the hydro-electric system of the Dominion.

SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

DECEMBER 30

PAUL'S LAST MESSAGE

Golden Text: "I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith."—2 Timothy 4:7.

Lesson, 2 Timothy 4:1-18.
Devotional Reading: Psalm 98.

Explanations and Comments

Paul Exhorts Timothy To Preach the Word, verses 1-5: "I charge thee in the sight of God, and of Christ Jesus, who shall judge the living and the dead, and by His appearing and His Kingdom"; thus solemnly Paul begins his appeal to Timothy. "It be all the seriousness of a last charge," and it is made even more solemn by the phrases with which it is introduced, as the apostle knew Timothy "in the sight of God" and also of Christ Jesus, of whose unseen presence both Paul and Timothy are conscious, to whom both must give account in the great day when he shall judge "the living and the dead." —C. R. Erdman.

And what was the charge? "Preach the word; be urgent in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long-suffering and teaching." "Being urgent in season, out of season" is the way Moffatt puts the messenger, in the urgency of his appeal, is to be independent of circumstances, but he is not to consent to "preach at set times only, not to smooth down truths that are unpleasant for the time. At every possible season" he is to be urgent in the discharge of his office."—C. R. Erdman. "Not out of season to other people, but out of season for yourself, when it is an inconvenience to you."—Charles Brown. "An opportune season" is the requirements of the four mills 17,000,000 bushels were imported in 1927 for manufacturing purposes.

"Have you ever talked to the clerk at the depot, to the man sitting in the same counter, to the mate at the mess bench, While you have been working together have you ever let it a good word for Jesus Christ? Make the place of your daily work the scene of your Christian service."

For the time is coming, Paul told Timothy, when the people will not endure sound doctrine, but after their curiosity will seek teachers after their own desires, turning away from the truth unto fables.

This was the harvest reaped in the large communities over which the Church of Rome came to exercise control. When the Protestants were neglected in the worship and preach. Eg of the Christian people read instead fabulous stories of the life and exploits of the saints. The number of these miraculous legends grew with the desire for them, till the great historic facts of Christianity were buried into the background."—J. P. Lilley.

Legislation Respecting Liens

Removing Financial Obstructions To Operation Of Farm Loads In Certain Areas

Hon. Charles Stewart, Minister of the Interior, is gratified with the results of the legislation respecting liens on certain classes of western lands which has emerged from Parliament in the session of 1927.

By the work of committees set up by the Act (The Crown Debts Act)liens and other financial obstructions to operation placed on lands in certain areas during the dry years following 1914 to attempt to insure repayment of advances for seed grain and fodder, are being adjusted. It is expected from what Hon. Mr. Stewart learned from his study of the working out of the plan while in the West, that a number of farmers who might have been forced from the land will be enabled to remain as a result of these adjustments, which are being made at no cost to the settler. The areas are limited and those areas which have been tied up and non-productive can now be put to use as those who have put them to the use for which they are fitted.

As explained in Parliament, where the matter was fully discussed, there was a rapid advance of settlement, especially from 1912 to 1913, into areas in southeastern Alberta and southwestern Saskatchewan, formerly devoted to ranching. The extremely dry years following 1914 experienced by this district seriously crippled these new settlers and in order to assist them, especially in view of the need for increased food production caused by the war, grants of seed grain, fodder, and other forms of relief were made during the winter of 1914-15, and the following spring. Subsequently, a loan proved too dry for grain farming, although suited to grazing, and while considerable of the Dominion Lands loans were repaid the result as a whole was that grain farmers moved to other districts and the buildings and fences settlers, who had remained, desired to secure additional lands and to get a sufficient acreage for grazing, and others were unable to make an undertake the pasturing of cattle. Both were prevented by the existence of these liens.

Soy-Beans in Canada

Plant Was Introduced Into This Country In Early Year Of Confederation

The soy-bean is an ancient cultivated plant of China and Japan. It is said to have been introduced into North America during the early years of the eighteenth century. It was not, however, till about 1900 that it began to establish itself in the agriculture of this continent. In Canada the main area of production are the central and south-western portions at Ontario. Small areas have been grown in the upper that in the Dominion and the increasing interest in this crop, in conjunction with the development of earlier maturing varieties, indicates that the future will see a considerable increase in the production of soy-beans in Canada.

"One of the office men by name of Renwick. He's one of them narrow-'tween-the-eyes, psalm-singin' old Ass-bone but not half bad' every-day. He hears a logger say 'damn.' His health is poor, so they're goin' to send him up here to the mountains for his health. Thanks be, I'm goin' to have the range in the woods, so I won't have nothin' to do with him."

They discussed the matter during the day, and that evening they again visited the falls. From the trapper Donald learned that the supply of water was unfailing. Owing to the natural formation, the cost of building the dam would be small. Donald's friends became so enthusiastic as to himself.

"We'll be finished to-morrow night, Douglas," announced Cliffe that evening. "If you and Donald want to, you can go to town and put this proposition up to your father."

The idea had not occurred to them, but Donald's self-confidence was equal to the occasion. "I'll write him and correspond with McLean's we will install an electric plant. Bolton, get your pencil and once see about the equipment. That's all," he finished tersely.

Late in the afternoon Renwick arrived by the two young men, as the door closed. "Beginning with the first of next month, McLean, if I get at his office, will be assistant manager at the Summit Lake Mill. And you," he turned to Douglas "will occupy a similar position at the Cheakamus plant." He rang for his stenographer, who entered at once.

Donald muttered an embarrassed thanks, and as he passed through the door he heard Robert Rennie's voice in hearty greeting.

They spent the remainder of the afternoon buying supplies from the list which Andy had furnished them. There were numerous delicacies from the Rems of foodstuffs that brought exclamations of surprise from Douglas. There is everything in the world to eat," he said despairingly, even tablecloths and napkins. What is the little beggar going to use, I wonder?" he said laughingly.

"His birthday," explained Donald "he is going to be one of the Cubwrights and John Hillier. And beside," he added, "I think he wants to get Andy a present, for he ran to me a little fancy cooking himself."

Janet Rennie could not interpret the enigmatic urge that prompted her to arise at an early hour the next morning to drive her brother to the station. If Robert Renwick believed he made her ashamed of herself that she could not put Donald from her mind—could not forget the way he got him ? " she asked herself in contempt for the thousandth time. As the last sleigh load from the dock she waved an adieu and, with a troubled look in her eyes, swung her car homeward.

For two days after their return to the mountains, their little cabin was a hive of industry. Andy banished his fellow-lodgers to the cookhouse, and every opportunity while he performed mysterious rites over the small stove in the corner that Douglas did guess what a real meal is like," he chuckled to himself.

Their guest arrived late in the afternoon and sat outside in the warm sun while Andy busied himself behind his closed door.

Old John's face shone from vigorous application of soap and towel. His sole change in attire for the occasion was a clean buckskin coat from the breast pocket of which protruded the corner of a red silk handkerchief.

Combe's abundant golden hair had been carefully brushed, and hung over her shoulders in glistening, billowy waves that reached to her waist-line. She seated herself on a short distance from the party and took no part in the conversation This was her first social affair and she felt ill at ease. Donald's repeated attempts to break her reserve were answered in monosyllables

The door opened to disclose a remarkable figure framed in the entrance. Andy stood before them in the most ridiculous make-up of a butler. An old black coat of Gillie's, cut off at the sides to form a "claw-hammer," hung loosely over his narrow shoulders; side-whiskers of tow moss were stuck to his cheeks, and his face was as stolid as a graven image.

"Dinner is now being served in the main dining-all, me sweet," he intoned slowly.

Happy appreciated Andy's effort heartily, and as they laughingly entered the cabin a scene met their eyes that was remarkably incongruous amid such drab surroundings.

A snow-white cloth covered the rough board table. A huge turkey, with bulging breast browned to a crispness, graced the centre of the table. Opposite to the shell, celery, salads, several kinds of vegetables, pies, cookies and fancy cheeses were in tempting abundance; and in a place of honor at the head of the table stood Andy's birthday cake, its frosting covered with tiny candles

Connie's fine eyes opened wide with wonder. "Oh, Dad!" she cried joyfully, "isn't this just like fairy-land?"

John tossed the hat to the floor in the corner. "You can deliver the goods, Andy—sure enough," he complimented in a tone of respect.

It was an odd party that gathered in the log hut in the wilderness to celebrate a birthday. A stranger to it would have noticed little to suggest the unusual. A little later, a huge turkey, a rough board table. A huge turkey, with bulging breast browned to a crispness, graced the centre of the table. Opposite to the shell, celery, salads, several kinds of vegetables, pies, cookies and fancy cheeses were in tempting abundance; and in a place of honor at the head of the table stood Andy's birthday cake, its frosting covered with tiny candles

Canada Will Co-Operate

British Dominions Plan To Exchange Information On Research

Canadian co-operation with Great Britain and the other overseas Dominions in the matter of agricultural research, has been arranged for by Dr. J. H. Grisdale, deputy minister of agriculture, who recently returned from a three weeks' conference with representatives of all those countries in London, and following the decision last year the meeting was held to work out detailed arrangements for the exchange of information bearing on research. The cost will be borne proportionately.

It has been considered desirable to centralize the institutions in various parts of Great Britain. There is room for soil research and others include animal diseases, cereal plants forage, horticulture and animal breeding.

Thriving Centre In North

Fairview, the present end of steel in the Peace River District Is End Of Steel

Fairview, the present end of steel in the Peace River District, greeted its first passenger train on November 2. It has a population of 500 people, with two banks, five general stores, three hotels, a picture theatre and numerous other places of urban life.

The story of how rapidly it has been brought into being is of a piece with the story of the west generally. It has no familiar of late as we were some years ago. With another era of settlement about to start, it will be repeated frequently from now on. Many of the buildings at Fairview are said to have been moved from Waterhole. The arrival is chronicled of a hotel, a store, a bank, and some houses in a manner reminiscent of the days when a railway declined to come to it.—Edmonton Journal.

Next Imperial Conference

No Arrangements Have Yet Been Made For Any Meeting In 1929

In reference to a statement that the Australian government has signified that an imperial conference be held in 1929, Reuter's Agency learned there has never been any fixed date for the conference. So far no arrangements have been made for any meeting next autumn, and in view of the British general elections being held next summer it is improbable an imperial conference will be held. The last imperial conference was held in 1926.

About five hundred Vegreville fans spent a blue Saturday after seeing their local pets take a 6-4 net-buster at the hands of Vermilion A.A.A. team. It was a well earned victory for the local boys as they had the edge on the play through-out the entire game. Planting Trees On Farms In Western Canada

WIDESPREAD INTEREST IN THIS MOVEMENT

Each year greater interest is being shown in the planting of shelterbelts on prairie farms in Western Canada and preparations now being completed for the 1929 distribution by the Department of the Interior from the Dominion Forest Service nursery stations at Indian Head and Shelbrook Sask. point to next spring as one of the busiest in the history of the work. The advent of the Autumn Power-up has brought to a close another very satisfactory season's operations. Approximately 8,000,000 seedlings and cuttings have been safely "heeled in" for winter storage, and "heeling in May 31st with the 1929 date is to hout 16,000 applicants. Last spring about 7,500,000 trees were shipped out from the two nurseries, making the total to slightly more than 100,000,000 for the twenty-eight years since the inauguration of free tree distribution to prairie farmers by the the Inspectors indicate that at least 25 per cent of the trees set out in these years are in good growing condition.

It is particularly interesting to note the greatly increased demand for conifers during the past few years, Each variety, except spruce, Scotch pine, lodge-pole pine and jack pine have proved particularly adaptable for prairie planting. After they have become established they are able to withstand long periods of drought and do not require the attention as common broad leaved trees.

During the first twenty years the height growth of the evergreens is about the same as that of the Manitoba maple but after it reaches that stage they grow more rapidly and reach a considerable height. Evergreens are used chiefly for planting inside of and to re-enforce already established broad leaved belts by planting in single or double rows or in closely set groups or clumps. Thus they provide a much denser and more effective windbreak than if only species which drop their leaves in the autumn were used, and their great coloring strikes a cheerful note in the winter landscape.

The facilities for growing evergreens at Indian Head are at present somewhat limited and as a result it is impossible to meet the demand for these species. On that account not more than one hundred evergreen trees are supplied to each applicant. A personal charge of $1 per hundred is made. Farmers are coming to realize that, contrary to the opinion once generally accepted, evergreens are not difficult to grow and a few hundred of these trees add to the general attractiveness and effectiveness of a farm plantation at all seasons of the year.

Throughout the Prairie Provinces of Manitoba, Saskatchewan, and Alberta, the effect of tree planting is seen in the well sheltered houses, gardens, and orchards. The growing of certain varieties of small fruits, both small and large, and of fine vegetables is becoming more general. In fact, is spreading rapidly and the annual distribution is larger each succeeding spring! With arrangements completed for the 1929 shipments, applications are now being received from those who are planning to set out shelterbelts in 1929. Applications for stock for this work should be made not later than March 31 1929, to the Forest Nursery Station, Indian Head. Inspectors will visit the farms of applicants during the next summer and give directions as to planting and care of the young trees. The basis of this distribution is co-operation—the Government supplying the trees and planting advice, and the farmer the land and the labor—and the success that has attended the operations is due to the harmonious carrying out of this plan.

New Power Line Soon To Be In Operation

The Mid-West Utilities have practically completed enlarging their power plant at Lloydminster, this plant will supply Blackfoot, Kitscoty and Islay with electrical power. It is expected that the current will be turned on within two weeks. All poles have been erected and wires strung with the exception of that over a few of the Railway crossings. The Vegreville plant which has also been purchased by the Mid-West, will supply all the towns east of it as far east as, and including Mannville.

Use of Combines Helped To Expedite the Harvesting of Canada's Greatest Wheat Crop

Much has been heard this autumn of the "combine," the agricultural implement which by cutting and threshing the grain in one operation has expedited the harvesting of Canada's great wheat crop, but the fact has not been brought out that the use of this machine in certain parts of the Prairie Provinces has been made possible not only by mechanical improvements but also by the development of wheats which ripen earlier than those once universally grown. The combine is not suited to all prairie districts, nor to all farming conditions even in districts where generally useful. This is recognized by all interested in prairie agriculture, but notwithstanding this the increase in the number used in harvesting the crop of 1928 as compared with those employed in 1927, has been very great. It is stated that in 1927 the number of combines in the prairies was less than 500, whereas in 1928, estimates place the total at ten times that number. Exact figures cannot be given because many of the machines were delivered only a few days before the opening of harvest.

The combine gets its name from its combination of the functions of reaping and threshing. One part of the implement cuts the grain, bags up, as to take little more than the heads. The cut portion is then passed to the threshing machine section and threshed out. The grain is delivered into a tank on the upper part of the machine and thence flows into the box of a wagon or truck which, while it is being filled, keeps pace with the combine. As each wagon is filled it is replaced by another and the full wagon is driven to the granary, or to the elevator on the railway line as the distance is not too great. At the elevator the wagon is placed on a grated, metal platform and gently tilted in a minute or less by being lifted backward, so that the grain pours out into a hopper which empties the platform from which it is raised by an endless chain of buckets into the bins of the elevator.

One of the subsidiary reasons for the sudden increase in the use of this implement is the new "swather" or windrow harvester. The swather is a wide reaper which cuts the grain in a strip from four to six metres but across and lays it, unbound, in swaths or windrows to be later picked up and threshed by the combine. Since these swaths are kept from touching the ground by the "shelf" of tall stubble on which they lie, the air circulates freely all around the heads permitting them to ripen perfectly, if somewhat green, and allowing them to dry out, in case of rain. The saving in time, labour, and cash is obvious since the grain is not bound into sheaves, then stooked on the ground, and later drawn to a central point and threshed, as is otherwise necessary.

The combine is not new in principle. It was used in the southwestern parts of the United States and in Australia thirty years ago, and specimens have been exhibited and their workings demonstrated in the Prairie Provinces many times previous to the last decade. Individual machines were owned in Saskatchewan as early as 1908. Generally speaking, however, farmers, even those who had so many as eight or ten binders on their farms looked at the machine in those days but refused to buy. The chief objection was that in the Prairie Provinces the wheat then sown ripened so late in the season that part of the crop had to be cut while still "on the green side" and allowed to ripen in the stook. This difficulty has been overcome by the use of the new wheats bred by the development at Canada's experimental farms, of Marquis, Garnet, and other varieties of wheat which ripen from two to three weeks earlier than the old Red Fife variety almost exclusively sown previous to the introduction of Marquis.

The year 1922 may be considered as marking the advent into the Prairie Provinces of the improved combine under present-day conditions. In that year a 12-foot motor-driven machine was put into active services on the Dominion Experimental Station at Swift Current, Saskatchewan. Since then the advance in its use was gradual until the great upswing of 1928 this year.

Thus by the research work of the wheat specialists of the Department of Agriculture, coupled with that of inventors and mechanics, not only has the northern limit of the wheat belt been pushed poleward many score miles, but the introduction of labour-saving machinery, enabling the cutting and threshing of wheat to go on simultaneously, has also been rendered possible, and this in turn has speeded up the transportation of the crop to the markets of the world.

Indian Trappers Use Plane

Find It Economic Method To Reach Trap Lines

Nothing so indicative of the widespread fringe of Canadian civilization as the fact that Indian trappers are making the plane to reach their trap lines. Natives made wealthy from profitable returns from their fur harvests often show a steady step-up in sleds to motor cars, but now the mail plane from Moyo occasionally carries Indian trappers, who find it an economic method of travel, a few hours of comfort in the air being substituted for days spent toiling behind a labouring dog team.

Lamb Becoming Popular Meat

Statistics Show Canadians Eating More Than a Year Ago

Efforts of the Canadian Co-operative Wool Growers, the packers and other organizations to make lamb a more popular meat in Canada seem to be bearing fruit as the latest statistics from Ottawa show a steady increase in the consumption per capita. Three years ago Canadians were eating barely five pounds of lamb and mutton every year with almost six pounds in 1928, and 6.11 pounds in 1927, the latest year for which figures are available. What the 1928 statistics are announced undoubtedly a further gain will be reported as efforts to increase consumption are continuing and the quality of the lamb now being put on the market is improving.

While the gain had been steady this country is still a long piece behind those places where lamb is really appreciated. In New Zealand for instance, the consumption per year per man, woman and child is placed at 110 pounds, and there is no indication that the people there are beginning to look like sheep despite this record of almost a third of a pound per day.

In Australia, too, they prize lamb and mutton, and serve it freely with the per capita consumption per year estimated at 72 pounds. Great Britain is not content with less than 22 pounds, while only in United States among the more important countries is consumption comparable to ours where it is placed at 3.4 pounds.

Ask For Tariff Adjustments

Tariff Advisory Board Deals With Several Requests

The tariff advisory board at a recent meeting in Ottawa, directed its attention upon separate references for tariff adjustments on peanuts and other varieties of nuts, clay-working machinery and unsweetened desiccated coconut.

Representing the confectionery, biscuit and chocolate industries of Canada, C. J. Bodley submitted a brief asking for a 5% per cent. tariff drawback on nuts used for home consumption, shelled in Canadian factories.

R. J. Deachman, Ottawa, represented the International Clay Products, Limited, Estevan, Sask. asking for the removal of the existing duty on pottery machinery, which ranges from 27½ to 30 per cent. There was no opposition.

It was argued that this type of machinery was not manufactured in Canada owing to the present limited demand Removal of the duty, however, would permit the Canadian clay products manufacturer to compete on a more equitable basis with the United States manufacturer.

May Utilize Straw From Western Farms

Problem Of Waste May Be Solved By French Invention

For years experts of one kind or another have wrestled with the idea of utilizing the millions of tons of straw that annually go to waste on prairie farms, and now there is more than a flickering ray of hope that the problem is about to be solved through the invention of a new machine by a French engineer.

The Saskatchewan Government, which has closely watched every plan brought forward in the past, is said to be interested in the new invention and may ship a ton or two of the straw over to France to be tested in the new machine. The French engineer's invention is a machine that presses straw into a slab about two inches thick and binds it with steel wires. The slab can be used for partitions or in the construction of all sorts of out-buildings. It is also said to have possibilities as a fuel.

Was Veteran Of Great War

German Red Cross Dog Dies Of Old Age

Old Age has claimed the last of one set of veterans of the World War that were very young and tireless throughout the struggle. This is no paradox, for these veterans were dogs attached to the German Red Cross, and the longest-lived of their kind just dead at Hamburg, has had attained 20 years, and since he was domesticated the dog had been surrounded by the comforts of German homes.

Nearly everywhere in the white man's world, and in many parts of Asia and Africa, there are former soldiers who remember with gratitude what these Red Cross dogs meant to them when they were lying wounded in places where the hospital corps was unable to go. Sometimes it was an exposed shell-hole, sometimes it was underbrush. Into these places went the Red Cross dogs of Germany, carrying first aid in their packs and ministering as best they could to afflicted man. The sight of these fine humanitarians, creeping along to avoid the danger in the air, or running gayly with the first knowledge that no marksman would aim at them, has been properly described by many Germans as the finest they ever saw in their lives.

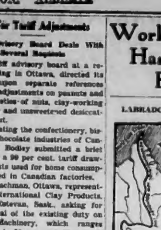
Work of League of Nations Has Gained Fresh Emphasis From Signing of Peace Pact

LABRADOR MAY BE SOLD



Sir William Coaker, leader of the fishermen's protective union, suggests that Labrador, shown in the above map, may be sold by the Newfoundland government to a United States syndicate. There is a strong agitation however, that Canada should buy Labrador, which was owned by the Dominion until ordered to Newfoundland by the privy council, rather than let it go under foreign sovereignty.

"With the signing of the peace pact of 1928 in Paris," Premier King proceeded, "it seems to me that the whole work of the League of Nations has gained fresh emphasis, and that the position of the League in international affairs assumes an importance even greater than that which it has formerly had."

The influence of the treaty for the renunciation of war, which the prime minister had signed on behalf of Canada had, Premier King stated, permeated this year's proceedings of the League.

The Prime Minister went on:

"It is now as never before the task of the League to see that those evils which make for war, as for example, competitive arming between nations, are combatted as strongly as world public opinion can be made to combat them, and that their sting is in part removed as the beneficent means which allegiance to a gospel of peace and goodwill alone can afford."

"Were it not for Canada, the continent of North America, alone of the continents of the globe, would be unrepresented at the League of Nations," Canada's voice at the League is, therefore, very much the voice not only of this continent, but, to express it in another way, of the new world."

In these words Premier W. . . Mackenzie King, one of the Dominion's representatives at the recent sittings of the League of Nations in Geneva, spoke of the position of the Dominion of the League. The Prime Minister, speaking before the Ottawa branch of the League, faced a distinguished and non-partisan audience.

Gathered to hear Premier King were: Hon. R. B. Bennett, Conservative leader; members of the Dominion cabinet; judges of the Supreme Court of Canada, Sir William Clark, British High Commissioner to Canada, and dignitaries of the church.

Once More a Grain Port

After Twenty Years Toronto Again Ready To Receive Shipments

Toronto has capped the greatest shipping season in its history, becoming once more a grain port, after a lapse of twenty years.

With the completion of the two new grain elevators built on the waterfront, Toronto once more stands ready to receive the waves of the golden stream that annually flows eastward from the prairies.

"It is ten years, not twenty years," said Harbormaster J. M. Allen, "since Toronto last cleared the harvested grain."

The two new elevators have a total capacity of 2,750,000 bushels.

Alberta Spends Large Sum On Roads

The Alberta government has spent on this season a total of $3,240,000 in highways construction, maintenance, etc., according to the Calgary Albertan. This amount is within the appropriation authorized by the last session of the legislature, and in advance of expenditures over similar works during 1927, when the total was $2,340,000.

MONKEY AND PICKANINNY VIE

NO—the little figure is not an effigy of Pan playing his pipes to inveigle the wood-sprites; it is a young monkey who consented to pose for the official photographer on the Canadian Pacific cruise to South America and Africa last year. The camera-man, somewhat mysteriously, titled his picture, "Boy, page Mr. Darwin."

Monkeys, frightfully interested in their relatives, frightfully undressed Zulu belles and completely undressed pickaninnies vie with the running, roaring Victoria Falls; with Pao de Acucar—more familiarly known as the "Sugar Loaf"—from which a marvellous panorama of Rio de Janeiro is obtained; with the tomb of Cecil Rhodes, mighty Empire-builder from which, carved in the living granite of a huge boulder topped with a bronze slab the spirit of the founder of Rhodesia can survey his handiwork; with the stranger sights, sounds and smells of the bazaars of Port Said and the majesty of Vesuvius frowning on the fateful city of Naples famed for the gaiety of its life despite the ever-present menace of the world's most famous volcano for supremacy in the memory of the voyagers when they all back in their easy chairs at the end of the voyage.

Wherever the "Duchess of Atholl" calls her passengers will see new sights, their ears will meet strange sounds and they will gather impressions that will endure of many of the different races and countries of which this world consists.

And when it is considered that the cruise, starting from New York January 22nd, 1929, will visit Jamaica, Trinidad, Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, South Africa, Madeira, Algeria, East Africa, Kenya, the Sudan, Egypt, Italy, Monaco, France, Gibraltar and England, the sights depicted above are not really needed to indicate the "infinite variety" of this "cruise of contrasts."

The visit of the R.M.S. "Duchess of Atholl" during the three weeks of the cruise will provide an opportunity for citizens of ports in the various countries on the new 20,000-ton Canadian Pacific liner—and to realize the stride the great Dominion is making. The ship is equipped with an individual ally controlled ventilation system that makes it ideal for tropical climates.

Advertising In Newspaper Is Most Effective

PHILADELPHIA. — The newspaper is "the most effective medium of advertising," stated Jack Lutz, vice president of the Advertising club of Philadelphia, in his address to the Business Men's association of Germantown. His subject was "How the Merchant May Get the Most out of His Advertising." Mr. Lutz maintained that the confidence that was inspired in the readers plus the great number of possible buyers reached, made newspaper advertising cost low or than any other form.

During his talk, he enumerated ten purposes which he said can be realized through newspaper advertising. They were, in the opinion of Mr. Lutz, in the order of their importance: "to sell merchandise, to secure quick turnover, to inform the public where to buy the article, to educate the public to the use of such articles, to draw new customers into your store, to act as the first step to a sale, to create and maintain confidence among your price force to create and maintain good will, to raise the standard of living and 'to sell' your store as a good place to buy".

"In my judgement", he continued "every merchant owes it to his business, his community, his employes, as well as to himself, to advertise. The question is 'Where shall I advertise?' and my answer is 'in the newspapers.'

"There is no advertising medium known to that will reach as great a number of possible buyers, that will reach them at a lower cost, that will inspire in them greater confidence in what they read than the newspaper. Not only do figures prove this, but the constant use of the newspaper and its growing use as an advertising medium by those who figure costs and returns prove it.

"Moreover, no other medium can take advantage of local conditions and give local service as can advertising the newspaper. Of course, you have competition; you have competition in everything. Competition is overcome in advertising as it is in your store—by arrangement, appeal, attractiveness, price, quality and other features.

"The prime object of retail advertising is to induce the public people to come into your store. The question of 'selling' them after they get into the store is up to your sales force, to the arrangement of your store, to the attractive display of goods, to the way with which you meet your people and examined, to the courtesy extended and to accommodation in the matter of payment.

"Direct mail supports other forms of advertising; it supports sales efforts and it can be made to function very effectively if it is consistently used according to a definite plan.

"But let me leave this thought with you. There is no better medium for the retail store than the newspaper. It is read avidly to and coming from business. It is read at home. It is believed, because in most cases it is truthful. It gives you quick turnover, exactly what the smaller must have to make a fair profit for the year and to continue in business.

Bishop Takes Rector's License

GLASGOW, Dec. 24. — A rift has been created in church circles by a sensation which arises at the St. Stephen's Episcopal church, Rutherglen, near here. The Bishop of Glasgow has rescinded the license of the Rector, Rev. F. Maldwin, on the ground that he disobeyed his orders.

Sunday there was great disorder in the church when a hymn attempted to conduct a service. The congregation booed him and refused to listen. Rev. Maldwin, who is a High Churchman, went to the altar and said: "The Bishop has muzzled me and won't let me speak."

A large body of police were stationed outside the church but did not interfere with the proceedings.

Clandonald Gets $14,000 Structure

The great success of the Clandonald colony is reflected in the fact that a contract has been awarded for the erection of a three story frame building with full basement, which will be occupied by the sisters of the Benedictine Order, who will carry on the usual educational activities in the district and take part also in many other social and charitable functions.

The contract for this work has been let to John Dunlop, well known Edmonton contractor, who has just completed the erection of over 100 cottages and barns for a further extension of this settlement scheme.

The cost of the new building is stated to be approximately $14,000, and it is expected that it will be ready for occupancy by the end of February.

FURTHER TRIALS FOR COMMERCIAL FERTILIZER

It is announced, following a recent conference held at Trial, B.C. that experiments to determine the value of superior phosphate fertilizer on Alberta farm lands will again be carried on by the Department of Agriculture during 1929 at various points throughout the province. The results of the experiments among this line conducted during the past season, are considered sufficiently encouraging to warrant further tests. Five supplies of fertilizer will again be furnished by the Trail Smelter and will be carried free of charge by the Canadian Pacific Railway. Experimental work will be paid during the coming year to the effects of this commercial fertilizer when applied in the form of the areas of lighter soil through out central and northern Alberta.

A motor road that will shorten the present Banff-Calgary highway and take in some of the finest scenery in the Rockies is one of the projects of the $195,207,245 budget presented by the Board on January 22nd.

The Port of Montreal has again scored a new record with grain deliveries of 119,586,000 bushels for the season of navigation. Last year's record was 106,247,824 bushels and those of 1926 to 134,- 591,240 bushels.

Many visitors from western cities in Canada and the United States are expected at the Banff Winter Sports Carnival which opens on January 19th and lasts for a week. Arrangements are being completed by the Board of Trade for the entertainment of the visitors.

"The present season of navigation is considerably earlier as far as general cargo is concerned" is the view of the wharfage department of the Quebec Commission of Montreal commenting on business outside of grain. "We shall shove off earlier than the annual report seems to be made up," he said.

Although the Canada Colonization Association only started to operate in Ontario last February, it has already placed 120 families on 6,871 acres of Ontario farm lands, according to figures recently made recently in Toronto by W. C. Kent, Hamilton, provincial representative of the Association. It was his opinion that British settlers would be the best to start in Ontario then elsewhere.

Some 500 of the thousand head of Scotland to Elk Island Park near Edmonton, have been slaughtered during December in order to keep the size of the herd within the carrying capacity of the park's pasture. It is expected that most of the meat thus secured will be shipped early in the form of pemmican to provide food for the Indians inhabitants of the Northwest Territories as a result of the growing demand from this source following the tribal shipments made last year.

Supplies for the 158 inhabitants of the lonely Isatis island of Tristan da Cunha in the southern Atlantic not far from St. Helena are being collected by Montreal charities of the I.O.D.E. and will be delivered to Pedroray by the Canadian Pacific Liner "Duchess of Atholl". This great liner, making a cruise of South America and Africa, is one of the few vessels to call at this isolated point. The visit is one of the unique features of the cruise for the passengers and the event of the year for the inhabitants of the island.

C.P.R. Line Open To Accept Traffic

WINNIPEG, Dec. 24. — The board of railway commissioners has granted the application of the Canadian Pacific Railway to open the new Willingdon line for freight and passenger traffic. The tariffs will be published by the first of the year. Edmonton business men, as well as those throughout northern Alberta and Saskatchewan, will thus be benefited by greatly improved communications with Willingdon, Lloydminster, Wilkie and other points. Up to the present construction trains only have been running over the new line.

New toll offices were opened during the month of November by the Provincial Department of Telephones at Nordegg, Horburg, Saunders and Alsask west of Rocky Mountain House, at Father and Donnelly in the Peace River district. Construction of new lines to several points on the system is also in a progressive way and these will shortly be connected up with the rest of the system. New offices will be opened at Cold Valley, Cooderalgie, Embarras Foothills, Steveo and Lovett.

A town plank is being built at Rosinville, the new townsite on the C. N. R. north of St. Paul and similar work is being done at Elk Point.

An interesting item in the report of the telephone department is that over 300 telephones have been installed for elevator companies this season and at present a total of 1260 telephones are in service in elevators throughout the province.

Alberta Horticultural Society Planned Steps towards the formation of a provincial horticultural society which will have as its object the development of a greater interest in horticultural matters in the province are being taken by the Edmonton and Calgary Horticultural Societies. The Weather And Influenza

Except for three days of below zero weather during early December, the fall and early winter months have been one long Indian Summer. Buttercups are still to be seen. Their leaves are unusually few. It is true, but they are there in the open and full of fun and vigor. Blue Jays are whistling in a northern garden yesterday, the blue of the birds rivalling the blue of the sun drenched sky.

It is delightful and like most delightful things it has to be paid for. Paid for in the coin of temporary ill health. The doctors are agreed that so long as the mild weather continues, so will colds and influenza. Influenza in the more serious infection brings with it pleurisy or pneumonia and they in turn having impaired the body's resistance, pave the way for that dread disease Tuberculosis.

The apparently innocent little cold is the real beginning of many respiratory infections. Only when an environment has been found for the communicable disease to act, compelling all persons suffering from a cold to be isolated, shall a real blow be struck at influenza and its dread full owers.

Let this be the New Year resolution of all readers. "Resolved that when I have caught a cold, I will go to bed and stay there until completely recovered, thus showing regard for my own health and responsibility for the health of my community.

Literally speaking, common cold and all communicable diseases may be had from the Canadian Red Cross, 497, Civic Block, Edmonton, Alta.

Many of the town's people took advantage of the extremely fine weather to take in most of the Christmas concerts at the surrounding schools.

Miss Floris Purser, who is attending Camrose normal, came home last Friday night to spend Christmas and see the parental roof.

The Misses received rather an unwelcome Xmas box on Monday in the form of a case of Scarlet fever. Russel Bowen being the victim. As a result, all inmates of the house are under quarantine.

A large number of local people are planning on attending the Masquerade ball in Vermilion on New Years eve.

AND THAT'S THAT

"Are you sorry" an anxious patient asked a physician, "are you sure I shall recover? I have heard that Doctors sometimes give wrong diagnoses and have treated patients for pneumonia who afterwards died of typhoid fever."

"You've been misinformed," replied the medico indignantly. "If I treat a man for pneumonia he dies of pneumonia."

A New Year's Resolution

This is the season when with Christmas thoughts of "Peace on earth, good-will toward men" still uppermost in our minds we turn our faces toward the New Year in the hope and expectation that it will prove a better happier, more prosperous year than the one that has gone before. New Year resolutions are made, some are kept, many are broken, but the desire is made in all very human and weak.

But there is one guiding motive in the lives of all which surely we ought to adopt and determine to keep. It will cost us nothing to do so but a little self-restraint, and it will add immeasurably to our own happiness and peace of mind, and to the peace, progress and prosperity of every home community, every province and the Dominion as a whole. Play more, its universal acceptance and practice would constitute a permanent guarantee of the peace of the world.

It is the essence of the Christmas message. "Peace and Good-will Toward Men;" it is the golden rule of life, doing unto others as we would that they should do unto us. It is a spirit of tolerance, of brotherhood, a recognition of the rights, even the privileges of others, and acceptance of the fact that there are other viewpoints than those we ourselves hold and cherish.

In every community and in every country there are, unfortunately, men whose greatest ambition appears to be to nullify, stamp out, kill the spirit, the hope, the principles which the Saviour of the world taught his disciples, and for which He laid down His life. Such individuals, having certain ends to serve, thrive for a time by stirring up strife, through the arousing of passions, prejudices, hatred, disrupting whole communities, and leaving behind them a trail of discontent, suspicion and ill-feeling where formerly concord and co-operation prevailed. These agitators, seeking self-aggrandizement or other selfish ends, pass on, but individual lives have been embittered, happy homes wrecked, communities divided, and all the old pleasant relations and unity destroyed.

It is passing strange why so many otherwise sane and intelligent people give heed to the demagogic appeals of men who have no other object in view than the real leaders of their country. Why is it that men and women can be stirred to frenzy against their fellow citizens merely because they speak another language, or whose skin is of a different color, or because of their birth and upbringing, have been taught to worship God through different forms to those they themselves have inherited and accepted?

Rather must we be swayed by those who preach and practice tolerance, generous because of the stealthiness of its approach and because of its tendency to grow with increase. Every growing girl should occasionally take a dose of Ferrozone and thus avoid trouble. It is because of their powerful and healthful influence that we find that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have won the confidence of womankind. The case of Miss Claire Philbrook, Dundee Creek, N.S., helps prove the value of this medicine. Miss Sullivan says: "During my school days I suffered a great deal from this and watery blood. I was continually weak and tired, my appetite was poor, and unrefreshing and I was troubled with headaches. The doctor we employed I was attacked with acute appendicitis and the trouble left me in a very weakened state. My mother, who had taken a course of Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, had me take them and before I had taken the second box I can say the result was simply wonderful. I am continually well and strong, my appetite is splendid, my health, and now when opportunity occurs I always recommend them to weak, ailing girls suffering as I did."

You can get the pills from your druggist, or by mail at 50 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Is Losing Money Growing Price Wheat

Must Have Support To Continue Says Herman Trelle

Herman Trelle, of Wembley, Alta., thrice-crowned king of the wheat world, will have to abandon experimental work on registered seed and turn to growing wheat commercially, "unless there is support coming from somewhere in Canada," he declared in an interview at Winnipeg.

"I am going broke growing high grade exhibition wheat," he said. "I used to make money—quite a lot of money growing commercially; but practically all the money has gone on experimental work on registered seed."

The wheat king, who this year produced the largest crop of registered seed grain in the history of the world—and cashed for it—declared "there is little money to be made in growing wheat that wins prizes in the leading shows of the world.

"If I had all the money that has been given to me to encourage me on positions in the United States as the result of winning grain championships, I could have a fortune. I made application for the Canadian Pacific Railway prize of $1,000 a year for life, but I never considered the financial aspect of growing prize wheat; now I have to consider it."

It takes on a very serious because of the stealthiness of its approach and because of its tendency to grow with increase. Formal Discussion Of Inter-Imperial Problems

Says Time Has Passed When Nations Can Be Trebled Into War

Chairman Britten, of the house naval committee, says a Washington despatch, announced that he intends to propose for adoption by the interparliamentary union a plan for free-will formal discussion between representatives of two or more nations of their problems.

Britten divulged his plan in a letter sent to Commander Joseph M. Kenworthy, Labor member of the British parliament. The letter was in answer to a cablegram relative to a proviong proposal of the chairman for a conference on naval limitation between committees from the house of parliament.

"The time has passed when millions of men and women can be trickled or blundered into war by ambitious directives of irresponsible diplomats," Britten declared. "Those so-called diplomatic understandings and mysterious treaties affecting the very life of a nation are out of place in a world desiring peace and equality of opportunity."

As long as no agreement is reached for equality on the seas, Britten continued, every appropriation for warship construction in the United Britain and the United States would be looked upon as money wasted in competitive construction. Without such agreement, he added, the United States should "adopt a policy on national defense that would supersede all powers."

An increase in the navy because of the anti-war spirit in Great Britain and armaments was demanded in the senate by Senator Gillett, Republican, Massachusetts.

He said if Great Britain is "unwilling to reduce her naval armaments," he could see no other way except to increase the United States navy, and added:

"It is disagreeable to contemplate or discuss hostilities, but it is dangerous to shut our eyes to them. I thoroughly agree with those statements in Great Britain that war between the two countries is unthinkable. Yet all declarations of the best intentions are sometimes forgotten."

Patten Estate

Chicago Wheat King Leaves Huge Amount To Charity

Nearly 50 per cent. of the estate of the late James A. Patten, "The Wheat King," who died recently, will eventually go to charity, the Chicago Title and Trust Company, named as executor and trustee, has revealed. The estate is estimated at $15,000,000.

Upon the death of the widow, the estate is to be turned over to the trustee, one-fourth to the son, an equal share to he daughter, and the remaining one-fourth to be divided among seven charities.

Demand Exceeds Supply

Canada Does Not Make Enough Matches For Home Market

Canada, it would seem, ought to possess a thriving industry in the making of matches. This Dominion produces a large proportion of the material required. Yet in the past fiscal year Canada imported matches to the value of $93,000, as compared with $35,348 the year before. These came almost entirely from Sweden, though there were also purchases made in the United Kingdom and United States. Exports during the year showed a decline of from $18,670 to $8,491, those going in small quantities to a great many countries. Canada is at the same time exporting match splints for the industry in other countries. The value of these to leave the country in 1927 was $468,348, and in 1928, $385,854. The United Kingdom is the principal importer while the Irish Free State is also an importer.

Six years ago there were four plants manufacturing matches in Canada, but through amalgamations there were but three in 1926, though the capital invested in the period had increased from $3,168,779 to $4,569,305. A total of 781 persons found employment in the factories during the year at the cost of $533,784. The cost of materials used in the industry was $1,569,695, the selling value of the products was $2,703,479, and the value added by manufacture according to $874,149.

While many of the chemicals utilized have to be imported the items of heaviest cost in manufacture are found in Canada. Sulphur, according to reports received by the department of marine and fisheries. In the lower St. Lawrence it is found in many of the department, such as buoys and floating lights, were gathered into winter quarters. Whether any of these whatever as far as could be ascertained.

Discovery Of Two Skeletons In Snow Throws Light On Polar Expedition

Discovery of two whitened skeletons is believed to have solved the ten-year mystery surrounding the exact fate of two members of the 1916-1919 Polar Expedition of Roald Amundsen. The skeletons were found recently in northernmost Ellesmere Island.

The men involved were named Tessem and Knudsen. Both were members of the crew of Amundsen's Peter ship, the Maud. They left the expedition at the Cheliuskin peninsula with letters, maps and scientific data all of incalculable value, which Amundsen thought it desirable should reach civilization at once.

Tessem and Knudsen were trying to make Port Dikson. They never arrived and nothing had been learned of them until the discovery of the skeletons.

It would appear, from experiments tried on the ranch of H. Bray, that the ring-necked pheasant should thrive well in Southern Alberta. Canada's Best Customer

Canada's trade with the Old Land is only second to that with the United States. But the difference between our trade with the United States and our trade with Britain is that whereas the United States sells to us but a fraction of what she sells to us, Britain sells to us infinitely less than what she buys from us. In one respect, therefore, and considering her population in comparison with the United States, Britain is really our best customer.

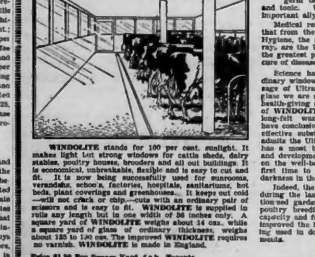
It is predicted that in ten years there will be one automobile in Europe to every 30 people, in contrast with the present one machine to every four people in the United States.



WINDOLITE

MADE IN ENGLAND

The Improved Glass Substitute

COMES WITH A MESSAGE OF HEALTH

THE sun is the all-powerful life producer. Nature's universal disinfectant and germ destroyer, as well as stimulant and tonic. WINDOLITE is the sun's most important ally.

Medical research has definitely proved that from the point of view of Health and Hygiene, the most effective among the sun's rays are the Ultra-Violet rays, which possess the greatest power for the prevention and cure of disease and debility.

Science has further established that ordinary window glass does not allow the passage of Ultra-Violet rays, so that by ordinary glass we are artificially excluding those vital health-giving rays. Therefore, the invention of WINDOLITE has completely satisfied the long-felt want. Elaborate experiments have conclusively proved that it is a most effective substitute for glass, that it freely admits the Ultra-Violet rays, and that its use has a most beneficial effect on the growth and development of plants and chickens and on the well-being of cattle, enabled for the first time to have healthy light instead of darkness in their sheds.

Indeed, the discovery of WINDOLITE has during the last six years completely revolution ized gardening, given a new stimulus to poultry breeding, increasing the egg-laying capacity and fertility of chickens, has greatly improved the health of cattle and is now being used in domestic and household requirements.

WINDOLITE stands for 100 per cent. sunlight. It makes light but strong windows for cattle sheds, dairy stables, poultry houses, greenhouses and cold frames. It is economical, unbreakable, flexible and is easy to cut and fit. It is now being successfully used for sunrooms, verandahs, school's, factories, hospitals, sanitariums, bedsteads, plant coverings and greenhouses... It keeps out cold —will not check or chip—costs with an ordinary pair of scissors and is easy to fit. WINDOLITE is supplied in rolls any length but in one width of 36 inches only. A 1 square yard of WINDOLITE weighs about 14 ozs. while a square yard of glass of ordinary thickness weighs about 125 to 150 ozs. The improved WINDOLITE requires no carriage. WINDOLITE is made in England.

BRITISH PREMIER DEVISING WAYS TO HELP MINERS

London, England.—The policy of moving unemployed miners out of the distressed areas to districts where more promising parts of the country under government direction was, it is understood, the principal one means of affording permanent relief, stated Premier Stanley Baldwin in the House of Commons. The prime minister was making an additional statement on the government's proposals for dealing with the problem.

The government is giving $750,000 already collected by the fund; is using $500,000 in transferring men and is going to contribute to the level mayor's fund an equal proportion of future collections.

Premier Baldwin believed it a fallacy to say that absorption of labor from the distressed areas would seriously interfere with unemployment elsewhere.

The schedule of training centres to fit miners for agricultural work in the place of industrial employment would be greatly extended in the coming years, the prime minister promised. The number of training centres in the year would provide for feeding at least 6,000 trained in mixed farm work and added:

"It is disagreeable to contemplate or discuss hostilities, but it is dangerous to shut our eyes to them. I thoroughly agree with those statements in Great Britain that war between the two countries is unthinkable. Yet all declarations of the best intentions are sometimes forgotten."

Explosion Shakes London

Violent Explosions Rip Up a Mile Of Pavement

London, England.—Leaping gas flames illuminated the wreckage of torn streets in London's busy West End where a series of violent explosions ripped up the pavement as though with a giant plow for nearly a mile.

In perhaps a dozen streets, the roadway was in ruins. Probably a score of persons were injured with burns or bruises, or affected by gas fumes.

Vehicles and lamp posts were overturned and great pieces of paving stones and manhole covers were hurled in every direction against the fronts and roofs of buildings.

Tle first explosion occurred in the post office tunnel where fallen rod rapidly, heaving up roadways and rocking the entire neighborhood as much that in Piccadilly Circus, central London was experiencing an earthquake.

Fire broke out in many of the broken gas mains and there was a fierce blaze for a while on the premises of the Automobile Association.

Every available police officer was made to avoid hurting any one's feelings.

Quebec Accepts Dawn Film

British Made Edith Cavell Picture Passed By Censors

Montreal, Que.—"Dawn," the British motion picture film, which has been the subject of considerable controversy in Britain and elsewhere throughout the Empire, has been passed by the Quebec provincial censors. Banned in Great Britain, it has been rejected in Ontario and Saskatchewan, but is said to have been accepted by the authorities in the latter province, and the bishops of the Canadian rights are hoping that in view of Quebec's decision, the Ontario and Saskatchewan censors will reconsider their decision. The picture has been shown in New York, Philadelphia, and other large cities, the most distinguished of British actresses, takes the role of the martyred Engl. Edith nurse.

Aid For Distressed Miners

Prince Of Wales Has Issued An Appeal For National Effort

London, Eng.—The Prince of Wales has issued a personal appeal in behalf of the distressed women and children in the mining areas of the kingdom, and has called for a combined national effort to give material help to the thousands who, through the shutting down of the mines, are suffering dire poverty.

Announcing that he had accepted the position of patron of the relief fund, the heir-apparent said:

"Let us recapture the spirit of the war when we recognized every effort made by the government as a new call to individual self-sacrifice."

Prominent B.C. Citizen D'es

Hon. Walter Nichol, Former Publisher Of Vancouver Province Is Dead

Victoria, B.C.—Death removed one of British Columbia's best known citizens in the person of Hon. Walter Clements Nichol, K.C., Lieut.-Governor of the provinces and until a few years ago owner and publisher of the Vancouver Daily Province here.

Several hundred people living in flats of the damaged area were rendered temporarily homeless as a result of the explosion.

G. Adams, immigration inspector in charge at Windsor. Cards contain the photograph of the applicant.

Alberta Resources Question

New Offer By Federal Government Is More Satisfactory

Edmonton.—A new offer from the Dominion government for the transfer of Alberta's natural resources to provincial control is the outcome of the conference held in Ottawa, according to Hon. H. G. Reid, provincial treasurer, who is the first of the Alberta ministers to return home. The offer is better than any you made, says Mr. Reid, and is not based on any accounting of previous receipts and expenditures.

As soon as Premier Brownlee returns and the Executive Council can get together, the offer now in the hands will be taken up by the Government, prior to introduction in the legislature. No public announcement of the terms is being made in the meantime, the matter having been decided, as a compliance or rejection by the Government.

Promises Not To Interfere

U.S. Will Respect South America's Rights, Says Hoover

Buenos Aires.—La Prova, a newspaper which is generally regarded as a spokesman for President Irigoyen said that Herbert Hoover in conversing with the Argentine president, told him that in the future the United States government would never intervene in the internal affairs of other countries, that it would respect the right to manage their own problems. President Irigoyen was quoted as having replied that Mr. Hoover was not in accord with the ideas of President Coolidge.

Spread Of Influenza

Toronto. — Influenza epidemics seem to have their origin in the common cold, and the Ontario Public Health Act should be amended to provide that pupils might be sent home from public schools when primary symptoms of cold are noticed, according to the findings of the conference called today by Dr. W. J. Bell, deputy minister of health. The committee was reached that the only break of "flu" in the province was "widespread."

WHY CANADA SHOULD REMAIN IN THE LEAGUE

Ottawa.—It is well worth while for Canada to remain a member of the League of Nations, Hon. C. A. Dunning, minister of railways and canals, told a large meeting of the Canadian Club here. Mr. Dunning was one of Canada's representatives at the meeting of the League of Nations assembly in Geneva this year along with Prime Minister Mackenzie King and Senator Dandurand.

"I am often asked," Mr. Dunning said, "whether it would be wise for Canada to adopt the attitude of aloofness taken by the United States in respect to the League since we were a new country on a continent separated from the prejudices and animosities of the old world."

The last war, he said, had proved that Canada could not afford to ignore the quarrels of other countries and let them fight it out among themselves. The dispute of the smallest of nations might bring all nations into conflict.

The exceeding courtesy that prevailed at all meetings inaugurated by the League did not say what they really meant. He replied that if they did the league would blow up in ten minutes."

Mr. Dunning pointed this out to show that every effort was made to avoid hurting any one's feel ves.

New Gas Well

Largest Producer Ever Struck in the Medicine Hat Field

Lethbridge, Alta.—Forty million cubic feet of gas daily was struck in the Eagle Butte well being drilled by the Cypress Hills, 85 miles southeast of Medicine Hat, the largest producer brought in in the Medicine Hat field. The gas sands were tapped at 3,300 feet. The structure on which the well was drilled by Medicine Hat and Kanasa interests, headed by C. E. Roth, was blanketed a year ago last summer by the Harkness-Rowe interests, of Toronto, in a filing cap, in which 80,000 acres were covered $50,000 being paid over the counter of the land office here in one operation. It is understood the gas is dry gas.

Revolts Blamed On Ruler

Afghanistan King Has Not Paid Troops In Report

London, Eng.—The trouble that King Amanullah of Afghanistan is having in suppressing revolts were said in despatches to be due to his failure to pay his soldiers.

A despatch from Lahore, India, said that the army had not been paid for some time past. The Daily Mail printed a despatch from Bombay saying that the standing army of 35,000 was dissatisfied because of insufficient pay.

A Karachi despatch to the Daily Express said a revolt against King Habul, capital of Afghanistan, as saying that the King used army funds to pay his many pensioners in Europe. It was claimed that the army had not been paid for three months.

Cause Of Death Unknown

Coroner's Jury In Ralph McKay Case Unable To Determine What Caused Death

London, Ont.—The mystery of the fate of Ralph McKay deepened when a coroner's jury, after hearing medical testimony, returned a verdict to the effect that they were unable to state the cause of death. The son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. McKay, of Regina and a student at Western Ontario University, disappeared strangely on the night of October 25 and for nearly two months diligent search failed to reveal any clue to his where abouts. Recently his decomposed body was found in the River Thames by children.

The jury's finding was based largely on the testimony of Dr. Fred W. Lamey, who was given charge of the body two hours after it was removed from the water.

Dr. Lamey, who performed an autopsy, declared that he had found no marks of external violence and no traces of any bones. There was no water in the lungs and the stomach, which was empty, did not indicate the convulsive struggle that after death by drowning. Nor was any symptom of poison in the system.

"In fact," said the doctor, "I can not tell the actual cause of death."

Make Big Drug Seizure

Narcotics Seized At New York Pier Valued At Five Million

New York.—Narcotics valued by federal authorities at $5,000,000, were seized by special agents of the treasury department at a Hudson River pier.

The seizure was described by United States Attorney Tuttle as the largest of its kind on record.

Tuttle said arrangements for bringing in the contraband which arrived Friday, on the French liner Rochambeau, had been made by a man named Klein, a name which was one of the aliases used by Arnold Rothstein, Broadway gambler.

The narcotics, contained in five large packing cases, were marked as being trans-shipped to an unidentified consignee in Philadelphia. Four of the cases were found to be opened by special agents and were found filled with opium, cocaine and morphine.

May Be Elevated To Peerage

Sir Austen Cramberlain May Enter House Of Lords

London.—The Evening Star says there are strong rumors in Conservative circles that Sir Austen Chamberlain, secretary for foreign affairs, will not seek re-election in West Birmingham in the next general election. No confirmation is obtainable at the moment, but the newspaper says the suggestion is not improbable. It is possible Sir Austen may be elevated to the peerage, it says, for if the present government were returned to power it would be quite in keeping with Conservative precedent to have the foreign secretary in the house of lords.

SAILS ON MAIDEN VOYAGE

The R.M.S. Lady Nelson, one of the five new vessels built for the Canadian National Steamships Fleet, in accordance with the Canada-West Indies Treaty, sails from Halifax on her maiden trip on December 14th. The photograph shows the Lady Nelson on her arrival in Canada from Great Britain, where she was built, and inset, her skipper, Captain J. M. Reith. The new ships are 8,000 tons and their passenger accommodation was designed specially for tropical travel. Already a number of winter tours from Canada to the West Indies have been booked for the various sailings of these new steamships.

Leave For Far North

Airmen To Check Up On Conditions Of Prospectors Near Richmond Gulf

Winnipeg, Man.—Four airmen of the Northern Aerial Minerals Exploration company left Winnipeg in two super-monoplanes to find out the "real" conditions of a small party of the company's prospectors working on the eastern shore of Hudson Bay near Richmond Gulf.

The prospectors were brought to the bay by steamer. They have no means of communication with the outside world and the only way they can get in civilization is to walk or by plane.

The crews of the two planes will check up on the condition of the prospectors and probably bring them supplies from Sioux Lookout.

EVIL EFFECTS OF MIXING ON GRAIN INDUSTRY

Yorkton, Sask.—Farmers of north eastern Saskatchewan as witnesses before the Royal Grain Commission here, and asked that mixing was an evil that is damaging every phase of the grain industry with the exception of private lake terminals.

Claiming that he lost $225 on a car of grain because of erratic work of the Winnipeg inspection department, W. F. Golden, farmer of Ebenezer, condemned mixing as a vicious principle degrading Canadian wheat and unjust to the old country buyer as well as to the producer.

"Only the mixing house profits," he said.

If a number 2 and a number 4 shipment were sold separate, would the producer be as well off as if the two were mixed?" the witness was asked by the chair. "I think the mixing went to the producer, he might be as well off, witness thought. Mixing may should be believed such a system to be a fraud on the old country miller.

That the British miller would spurn the "degraded" mixed product from Canada when Russia comes back as a volume exporter was Golden's warning.

Change In Death Penalty

Ottawa.—Executions will be carried out within prison walls instead of in the open, under an amendment to the criminal code passed by the house of commons. The change was made on the motion of Hon. Hugh Guthrie, minister of justice, who explained that the change was made to avoid the unpleasant publicity which attended executions in the open.

Expect Peaceful Settlement Of Bolivia Trouble

Washington, D.C.—The Pan American conference through a special committee has asked Bolivia and Paraguay to reach a pacific settlement of their differences.

Meeting with Buenos Aires minister Diez De Medina and the Paraguayan delegate, Ayala, the special committee has asked the latter to ask his countries formally expressed to the two representatives the "hope that their differences will be settled in a peaceful and satisfactory manner."

After a two-hour session, Dr. Maurice de Para, the chairman of the special committee announced it would continue to gather certain information on the conflict before acting. C. Breuilette, Lundu, was re-elected vice-president, while R. J. Moffatt, Bradwell, was again chosen manager-director.
